Smashing Ahead Against Extremely Light Resistance

Vishinsky Claims Fascist State Set Up in S. Korea

By TOM OCHILTREE

Lake Success, Oct. 2 (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia charged today that the United States has "flung a challenge at the U.N. and International Law" by ignoring a four-power agreement on Korea.

Addressing the General Assembly's political committee, Vishinsky accused the U.S. chief delegate, Warren R. Austin, of a "deliberate and wilful misrepresentation of the facts" in the Korean case.

The Soviet foreign minister spoke during committee debate on an eight-member resolution for the unification and rehabilitation of Korea under United Nations supervision.

Vishinsky maintained the report of the present U.N. Korean commission showed illegal acts were carried out during the South Korean election of last May. He added that supporters of opposition parties were beaten up.

The election took place in an atmosphere of "unbridled terror" created by the police of South Korean president Syngman Rhee making free balloting impossible. Vishinsky declared.

Describing the South Korean government as "rotten," Vishinsky said the catastrophic financial situation in the country resulted from a boycott by the people against Rhee's policies.

"There was the so-called land reform in 1949," Vishinsky said. "It was not satisfactory."

Vishinsky declared a fascist state had been set up in South Korea. He accused American authorities of endeavoring "to bolster that fascist state."

Calls it Aggression

Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky charged the eight-country U. N. resolution on Korea constituted "direct aggression" against the people of that country and was designed to cast a mantle of legality on U. S. intervention there.

In a policy speech before the U. N. Assembly's political committee, the Soviet Foreign Minister promised to put in a resolution of his own to counter the measure under debate. He said the eight-member proposal was designed to perpetuate the occupation of all of Korea by foreign forces.

Vishinsky explained that his proposal would call for halting of American bombings. This same proposal has been beaten down in the Security Council. He said a companion Soviet proposal calling for the disbandment of the present U.N. commission in Korea also would be presented because that commission "acted unobjectively" and failed to carry out its mission.

Tokyo, Oct. 2—(AP)— South Korean troops drove nearly 30 miles inside Russian-sponsored North Korea today. They were almost half way to the line where North Koreans were reported preparing to make a last-ditch stand at Wonsan.

Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle reported from the front that the South Korean 3rd Division had driven close to Ansong, a coastal town 30 miles north of the Parallel-38 border.

The entire South Korean 3rd Division and two regiments of the republic's capital division were across the border, Boyle said. The capital division was striking west from captured Yangyang, about seven miles north of the border.

An American officer with the South Koreans said republican forces were smashing ahead against extremely light resistance.

The South Korean 3rd Division crossed the border Sunday on the east coast. The capital division marched over Monday in the same area.

The reds were ignoring Gen. MacArthur's weekend order that they give up now or be destroyed.

Top-ranking United Nations commanders would not say anything about what MacArthur's headquarters called a delicate campaign—the thrust into red territory. The crossing was reported only in field dispatches at the outset.

Stand Around Wonsan

Red Korean prisoners said the northerners were preparing to make a stand around Wonsan, the heavily-bombed east coast port about 100 miles north of the border. This is due east of the red capital, Pyongyang, along a line cutting North Korea at its narrowest point.

Pyongyang remained silent both on the reported crossing and on MacArthur's surrender ultimatum.

MacArthur's surrender terms were broadcast first at noon Sunday.

Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle reported the South Korean 3rd Division had smashed across the 38 border on the east coast 15 minutes before that.

Boyle said the order to cross was given by Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, U.S. Eighth Army commander, and was dropped to the South Koreans from a plane.

AP correspondent Leif Erickson said the South Koreans Monday captured Yangyang, seven miles north of the border.

New Bomb Line

A U.S. Eighth Army officer said the South Korean capital division was marching across the border on a road leading to third division positions.

107,000 VISIT FORT

Kingston, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Old Fort Henry has been visited by 107,000 persons this year, the first season the number of visitors has passed 100,000. Last year about 87,000 persons toured the fort.

Fort Henry ended its official season yesterday. From now on, it will be open only Sundays.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 2. (CP)—Synopsis: Most of Southern Ontario was blanketed in thick fog Saturday night and Sunday night, and this hazard to traffic will be present again Monday night. However the sun will break through the fog a few hours after sunrise.

The cloudy cold weather over Northern Ontario and the Central States still shows no signs of advancing over the Great Lakes regions, and Tuesday will see another fine Autumn day over most of Ontario.

Soldier's Prank is Responsible For Bison Used as Emblem

Halifax, Oct. 2—(CP)—A retiring general told today how a soldier's prank convinced the people of Brussels that the bison is the emblem of Canada.

Maj.-Gen. H. W. Foster retiring as commanding officer of the army's eastern command, who told the yarn, was in command of the 4th Canadian Armored Division which liberated Brussels from the Germans in September, 1944.

"When I saw the Boche were clearing out," the General told a group in his home here, "I borrowed two regiments of infantry from the 2nd Division to sweep the city on foot. They actually did the liberating.

"However, one of my units, the 12th Manitoba Dragoons wearing a cap badge with the bison on it, had other ideas. As soon as the sappers had completed a bridge, they moved into the city and their R.S.M. did a fast public relations job on the burgomaster.

"He convinced him that the Dragoons had liberated Bruges and that the bison on their cap was the national emblem of Canada."

The happy Belgians said they would build a bridge across a wide canal and call it "Canada Bridge". At either end would be placed a life-size statue of the bison as a tribute to Canada and the 12th Manitoba Dragoons.

"They did just that," said Gen. Foster. "When I was sent over there on the anniversary of their liberation in 1948 to receive the freedom of the city of Bruges, I was asked to place a wreath on the bison monument, the national emblem of Canada. Later, they presented me with the miniature statue which I now give to the Nova Scotia Archives."

1,400 COMMIES JAILED BY WEST GERMAN POLICE

Truman Promises Aid To Keep Berlin Free

Duesseldorf, Germany, Oct. 2—(AP) — German police today claimed a decisive victory over communists who Sunday attempted to start a bloody wave of riots and demonstrations in West German cities.

Police jailed more than 1,400 red ringleaders and broke up every attempt they made to start riots in a score of cities.

The day marked for bloodshed ended with nothing more serious than scattered fist fights and stone-throwing. About 30 police were hurst in the skirmishes.

Meanwhile, the people of Russian-encircled Berlin received assurance from President Truman of continued aid to keep the city free. The President's message was delivered yesterday by Paul G. Hoffman, retiring chief of the economic co-operation administration, in a speech at the opening of the German industrial fair in Berlin.

"Our aid will continue," Truman's message declared, "for we are confident of the eagerness of the German people and their republic to join the free of the world in defence of all that we cherish."

Red leaders had promised to make Sunday a bloody day of "national resistance" to the western allies and the west German government they sponsor.

The communists had shipped in thousands of young fanatics, trained in trouble-making, from Soviet occupied east Germany.

They tried to foment riots in the streets and squares of many cities from Hamburg to Munich. But they didn't get far against 100,000 well-organized German police.

Flying squads of armed police pounced on every small red gathering so fast that agitators hadn't even time to distribute their leaflets of anti-western propaganda.

About 900 would-be rioters were tossed into jail, joining 500 others who had been arrested Sunday as a precaution.

The biggest fight of the day took place in Hamburg, where 16 policemen were injured fighting 3,000 stone-throwing communists.

The day's only successful sabotage action appeared to be a temporary cutting of the telephone line of the government-owned railway. It was severed near the capital city of Bonn. Saboteurs, believed to be reds, escaped. The line was quickly restored.

WORKERS ON STRIKE

Helsinki, Oct. 2—(Reuters) — Workers in butcher shops and slaughter houses throughout Finland went on strike today. They joined more than 100,000 other strikers who seek wage increases of up to 50 per cent. About 60,000 of the total number on strike are metal workers. Their strike has stopped the manufacture of reparations goods for Russia.

Foreign Exchange Markets Say Canadian Dollar Worth 94 Cents to the U.S. Dollar

The world put a higher price on the Canadian dollar today and said it is worth more than Canada had been saying it was worth.

Roughly it added about four cents to the value of each dollar, saying it was worth around 94 cents in terms of United States dollars instead of about 90 cents. This means also that it is worth more in terms of the monies of other countries.

The action took place on the Foreign Exchange Markets of world financial capitals, especially New York, London and Canadian centres and followed Canada's action of abandoning a controlled rate and alolwing the Canadian dollar to find its own level in the ordinary marts of trade.

But the situation is not at all stabilized yet and too much should not be taken for granted as to what the dollar will do in the coming days.

Today, for instance, quotations verge on what they call "nominal" with foreign traders feeling their way along.

Precise prices in the various markets are complicated things, with variations as to buying and selling rates.

Boost For Canada

Whatever the Canadian dollar does, there seems no doubt that the effect of the current action is a boost for Canada in world eyes. It demonstrates a faith in herself and the reality of her economic strength, which peoples will be inclined to believe.

On the New York Stock Exchange, for instance, leading Canadian issues made fractional gains and contributed to a rise in the general market. This contrasted with early.. weakness in Toronto and Montreal exchanges, though Canadian exchanges also showed good recovery signs.

Chief worry on the Canadian exchanges was the fact that firms now getting paid in United States funds, will receive less for their products if the Canadian dollar goes up. This applies particularly to base metals and newsprint stocks. It would seem unlikely, however, that any loss of this kind should have any great effect on the real worth of sound companies.

Gold stocks did surprisingly well. There had been some fear that they would take a beating, but the big producers picked up from early losses, and some of the smaller ones showed good gains.

Cattle markets were unable to establish definite prices in early trading owing to the uncertainty of the dollar's value.

Anglers Request More Control Over 'Lunge Fishing

London, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters is going to ask the Ontario Department of Games and Fisheries to seek from United States authorities control of Muskelonge fishing in Lake St. Clair.

Delegates to the third annual convention held here during the weekend passed this resolution which will be forwarded through their national executive.

The motion arose from the condition that exists in this international body of water where Americans can fish muskelonge unhindered by law while for Canadians it is a closed season. Members felt some adjustment of regulations should be made.

Harold Franklin of Dunnville was elected chairman. George McGarvin of Chatham was chosen first vice-president, John J. Girling of Hamilton second vice president and Walter F. Wilson of Kitchener, secretary treasurer.

The convention also will ask the fisheries department to abolish family non-resident fishing license. Members argued that no age limit was given on this type of license and any number of Americans could fish in various parts of Canada with little chance of any check on their catch. They also asked for more signs in game reserves and regulated hunting areas to protect hunters who may shoot unknowingly in forbidden areas.

Liberal Party Police Prepared For Convention

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP) — A blue print for the leadership convention of the Ontario Liberal Association was endorsed Saturday by the O.L.A. management committee. The convention will be held here Nov. 9-10.

A 5,000 word Liberal party policy also was approved by the committee for submission to the convention.

The policy deals with every phase of provincial activity. The draft was presented by the party's policy committee, which has been working on it since February.

Corridor conversation forecasts a four-way fight for the leadership.

Bids are already in from Campbell Calder, member of the legislature from London, and Walter Thompson, of Pickering, Member of Parliament. Other applications are expected from Jack Brown of Kitchener, member of the provincial legislature, and Controller Arnott Hicks of Hamilton.

Voters attending will number about 1,000 with 500 alternates and guests.

NORMAL PRODUCTION RESUMED

Windsor, Oct. 2—(CP)—Normal production was resumed last night at the Windsor plants of Ford Motor Company of Canada following last week's demonstrations which twice closed the big assembly line.

No shifts were scheduled between Friday night, when employees walked out to shut the plant, and last night, when a late shift began work as usual.

TWO SIDNEY TWP. GIRLS DROWNED NEAR AIR STATION

Clothing of Children Found in Ditch

Two young Sidney township girls, Kathleen and Patricia Denny, ages 12 and five years, were drowned in a water-filled ditch, Sunday afternoon, when the older girl is believed to have made an attempt to save her younger sister.

The two young girls were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Denny, of Sidney township, residing at the east end of the Trenton Air Station on No. 2 highway. The girls drowned in a ditch in the air strip extension project east of the air station about a third of a mile from their home.

Two Yugoslavian D.P.'s employees of the McFarland Construction Company, living in a shack near the airport extension were first to learn of the drowning.

Went to Pick Grapes

The two girls with their three-year-old sister, Gloria, and a nine-months old baby had left the Denny home about mid-afternoon to pick wild grapes north of their home. They are believed to have gone in wading in the water-filled ditch when Patricia went to beyond her depth and Kathleen went to her rescue. The two D.P.'s heard the baby crying shortly before dark and investigated.

Finding some of the girls' clothing near the baby carriage, the men realized something was amiss and notified Glenn Meyers, a nearby farmer. Neighbors conducted a search and when this was without success were led to believe the two girls had been drowned in the ditch.

Only Small Pond

By this time it was well after dark. Provincial Police at Belleville were notified and Constables Watson and Tasker obtained dragging equipment from the Trenton Fire Department. The bodies of the two girls were recovered shortly after 9 o'clock in about four feet of water.

Constable Watson said the pond in which the girls' bodies were found covered an area of about 30 by 50 yards. It had been partially excavated as drainage for the air station project.

The distraught father today stated the girls had always been in the habit of going back in the fields as there they were safe from the heavy traffic on No. 2 highway.

Dr. A. E. McQuade, Trenton coroner, viewed the bodies and stated there would be no inquest.

MENTAL EXAM. ORDERED

Peterborough, Oct. 2 — (CP)— A mental examination was ordered today for Harvey D. Sylvester, 32, who told provincial police that he set fire to a store here in August, 1948.

He is scheduled to appear in court Friday on an arson charge in connection with the $250,000 fire at the S. S. Kresge Company store. He went to provincial police at Cobourg Sept. 24 with his story of setting the fire.

Dominion Waits To See How World Reacts to Action

First Time in Eleven Years Canadian Dollar Set Free

Ottawa, Oct. 2 (C) —Canada, setting its dollar free, waits anxiously today to see how the world will react.

From every part of the globe reports will come pouring into this country, establishing for the first time in 11 years new day to-day buying and selling rates for the Canadian dollar.

The rates which exchange markets set for the dollar, previously pegged at 9.1 discount in relation to United States currency, will to some degree reflect the confidence the world has in the whole Canadian economic structure.

Canadian officials make no predictions as to what will happen to the dollar, cast off from government control for the first time since 1939, but Washington officials say it may shoot right up to par with the U.S. dollar and then drop part way back.

Some London experts hazard the same guess of parity within a day or two but say that the dollar may shoot higher than the U.S. dollar later in the week. That kind of thinking reflects tremendous confidence in Canada's economy.

The government's decision to set the dollar free was announced by Finance Minister Abbott Saturday night. At the same time he also disclosed:

1. Canadians soon will be able to take out of the country any "reasonable" amount of United States tourist dollars beyond the current limit of $150 a person yearly.

2. Emergency exchange-conservation restrictions on imports of United States consumer goods will be removed Jan. 2, 1951.

3. Possible removal of similar restrictions on U.S. capital goods. This removal to be considered by Trade Minister Howe.

4. Removal of the $3.50 cut to marginal gold miners made a year ago to offset the 9.1-per cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

5. Control will be maintained on the flow of capital in and out of the country.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, hailed the government decision as a move "in the right direction".

"It has been our contention," he said in a statement ,"that no human being is able to fix an arbitrary value on our exchange dollar by some kind of financial black magic. . .It is hoped that we now will soon have a free exchange dollar and that other nations will follow the same course."

While the government will have its eye peeled on what the world does with its unshackled dollar, it also will keep a sharp eye on a huge recent influx of speculative capital—termed "hot money" by the experts—that was the main cause for the government move to be taken.

Labor Paper Protests TV Comedy On BBC Reeks With Snobbishness

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 2 (CP)—A Labor newspaper protested today about a television comedy which it said makes labor look sad.

The Daily Herald said the play "Party Manners", televised last night by the BBC, "reeked with snobbishness." Its criticism was contained in a front-page article headed: "We don't want any more of this."

The BBC declined to comment on the article.

The play deals in part with an attempt by a cabinet minister of a Labor Government to win votes through a report on atomic energy whose publication might jeopardize national security. The Daily Herald said it thus portrayed a Labor cabinet minister who was willing to win votes at the expense of the country.

The BBC operates under government charter and has a monopoly on television and broadcasting in Britain. It has recently been under fire by commentators of all parties for making too much use of old films during television hours.

The criticism followed a recent report that 20 Labor members of parliament have formed a committee to try to purge the BBC and variety (vaudeville) shows of anti-government jokes.

One gag to which they object is said to be "I don't want to be a soccer player, but I had to get a house for my wife somehow."

The protest group, which calls itself the Democratic Listening Association, was recently criticized for being too touchy. BBC comedian Jon Pertwee, said there were plenty of jokes about Conservative leader Winston Churchill, "and he never complains."

Large Mouth Bass Weighs 8 Pounds, Two Ounces

Kingston, Oct. 2 — (CP)—One of the biggest large mouth black bass ever caught in Canada was pulled in Friday in Lakes' Bay, Loughborough Lake, it was learned here today.

Weighing eight pounds, two ounces, the fish was hooked by Mrs. Joyce Whineray Phillips of Trucksville, Pa. The fish, weighed on tested scales, measured 23 inches in length and 19 inches in girth.

Mrs. Phillips was casting with live minnows for bait when the bass struck. Guide Bruce Miller, who never uses a net to land fish, boated the bass with his hands.

In Toronto, Dr. W. P. Harkness, head of the Lands Department Fish and Wildlife Division, said his records show two bigger large-mouth bass caught in Ontario waters. A bass caught in July, 1948, in Stoney Lake near Peterborough was estimated to weigh 14 pounds, 12 ounces. Length was 28 inches and girth 22½ inches. A nine-pound large-mouth black bass was caught in Grenadier Pond, Toronto, in August, 1941. The nine-pounder was weighed on tested scales.

The known world record is 22 pounds, four ounces, held in Georgia. The Canadian species never attain such size.

Kills Self After Hitting Pedestrian

Union, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — A hysterical, 27-year-old man shot and killed himself yesterday shortly after an automobile he was driving struck and injured a pedestrian. Police said Ralph Humphreys went to the home of his father-in-law, whose car Humphreys was driving and shot himself in the chest.

Five are Injured as Cabin Cruiser Blows Up

New York, Oct. 2—(AP)—A 28-foot cabin cruiser exploded yesterday at a dock on City Island, injuring five persons. Police said that when the boating party tried to start one of the two motors on the cruiser, there was a loud explosion. The boat was blown into four parts and sank in a few minutes.

17,000 BEER JUGS STOLEN

Munich, Oct. 2— (Reuters)— Parents mislaid 149 children, 1,866 persons were injured and 17,000 beer jugs were stolen in Munich's biggest and gayest autumn festival which ended last night.

City and District News

INJURED MAN STILL ON CRITICAL LIST

Condition of Earl Fox, 41, Catherine Street, whose truck was struck Saturday morning by a C. P. R. freight at Ivanhoe, still remains critical it was learned today.

Fox, a driver for Westons Bread, was northbound to Madoc when in a heavy fog his truck was struck by the train and carried half a mile down the track. Fox suffered a fractured skull, brain injury, broken shoulder, severe head lacerations and possible hip fracture. Dr. R. S. Gibson held out little hope for his recovery.

HUNTERS BREAK ALL LAWS IN BOOK

If there were any laws left to break, this trio of hunters apparently didn't know of them.

They were apprehended by a Department of Lands and Forests conservation officer when discovered hunting ducks out of season.

That is not all. It was also found they had no hunting licences; were hunting on Sunday; had more wood ducks in their possession than migratory law allows; and in addition were using rifles, an additional offence.

FIREMEN CALLED FOR MARSH FIRE IN P. E. COUNTY

A marsh fire in Ameliasburg township which threatened to spread to a farmer's hay stacks resulted in a run for the city fire department Sunday. The marsh fire got beyond the control of the farmer and feeling his hay stacks were in danger, called for the fire department.

400-lb. Barkeep Wounds Three And Kills Self

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (AP)—Popo Trujillo, 400-pound Mexican bartender, ran amuck in downtown Los Angeles early today, police said, wounding three persons and killing two before blowing his brains out in a main street bar

Police said Trujillo burst into Mike Lamas' apartment and struck Lama on the head with a gun. Lama and his wife jumped from their second-storey window. Trujillo fired through the window at them, wounding them slightly.

Trujillo then headed for a neighborhood bar. En route he encountered Edward Smith and Willard Minor and shot them dead.

Upon reaching the bar Trujillo announced he had just killed two men and gave bartender Ray Davis a nickel to telephone police. Then he put his gun to his head and pulled the trigger but the gun misfired.

A bystander, Gordon Smith, tried to grab the gun and Trujillo pistol whipped him, lacerating his scalp. Then Trujillo pointed the gun at his own head again. This time it went off.

Rev. Dean Garvin Welcomed As Pastor of St. Michael's, Farewell Said to Fr. C.E. Baker

The Church of St. Michael's was filled with parishioners the other evening to extend a warm welcome to their new pastor, Very Reverend Dean Garvin.

After Benediction which was celebrated by Dean Garvin, an address of welcome from the Parish and its Societies was read by Leo Callaghan, expressing their jubilation that the vacancy created by the death of their beloved Pastor Monsignor Nicholson, had been filled.

Dean Garvin thanked the people and the Societies sincerely for their warm welcome and said he knew that he held their full support by their attendance. He also expressed his desire to meet everyone as soon as possible.

Present in the Sanctuary were: Father Martin, P.P., Deseronto, Father O'Neill, P. P., Marmora, Father O'Hearn, P.P., Stirling and Father Buckley, Belleville.

Academy Students' Welcome

The entire student body of St. Michael's Academy assembled in the Auditorium, on Thursday where a very hearty welcome was expressed to Very Reverend Dean Garvin. Tommy Cushing, speaking for the School, assured the new pastor that the academy was jubilant in feeling that the keenly felt vacancy created by the death of their former loved Pastor Monsignor Nicholson, was filled. Dean Garvin spoke to the children, assuring them of his appreciation of their warm welcome. A brief program, consisting of songs of welcome, a hymn, Dear Heart of Our God, Bless Our Pastor", and "Bless Our School" was presented. Two tiny tots presented Dean Garvin with a basket of roses, symbolic of the love and reverence of the children for their new Pastor.

Farewell to Father Baker

The auditorium of St. Michael's Academy was earlier in the week filled to over-flowing with parishoners to bid farewell to Father Baker, who has been appointed parish priest at Stoco.

The evening's entertainment was under the chairmanship of Leo Callaghan.

Sister Bibiana arranged a very delightful program which was capably rendered by the pupils of St. Michael's music studio.

After the entertainment Father Baker was called to the platform by the chairman, where an address was read by Ernest Cooke and a purse of money presented him by Harry O'Neill from the parish.

Father Baker expressed surprise and thanked the parishioners and all responsible for their generous donation. He gave a very interesting account of events that had taken place in the parish during his twenty years as a curate here, and in his closing remarks extended an invitation to all to visit him in his new pastorate.

The enjoyable evening was closed with the singing of "Till We Meet Again."

On Monday afternoon the pupils of St. Michael's Academy assembled in the auditorium where an address was read by Tom Lynch, Grade X, to Father Baker, who was then presented with a handsome wrist watch from the pupils, for which he thanked them very much.

Kathleen Channel Of Wellington Champion Picker

The "red gold" lies thickly in the frost-touched tomato fields around Wellington way.

Vines are blackened but in many cases the fruit has not been damaged.

On Sunday, farmers and pickers toiled in the fields picking the fruit against frost. Canning factories are still in processing operation.

Kathleen Channel, of Wellington, is taking full advantage of the red harvest. . . And she is setting a record for tomato picking that will be hard to beat.

On Friday she picked 70 bushels in 4½ hours and on Saturday garnered 68 bushels in 4½ hours.

Sunday she went well over the 100 bushel mark in a little less than seven hours.

And at ten cents the bushel—you figure it out.

Three Anglican Clergy in Diocese Resign Charges

Three Anglican clergymen long associated with the Diocese of Ontario, have tendered their resignations to the Most Rev. John Lyons, archbishop of the diocese.

The three clergymen are the Rev. Canon S. E. Harrington, rector of St. Luke's Church, Kingston; Rev. Canon A.O. Cooke rector of St. Mark's Church, Barriefield and Rev. Joseph Cantrell incumbent of the mission of Marysville.

All three will retire from the active ministry of the church this year.

No appointments have been made by Archbishop Lyons to fill the vacancies.

The Rev. A. F. Dowdell, missioner at Maynooth, Ont., has resigned and been appointed rector of the parish of Oxford Mills, effective Nov. 1st.

The Rev. L. Arthur Page, rector of Prince Albert, Sask., has been appointed incumbent of the mission of Roslin and will take charge on Oct. 15th.

GEOLOGISTS ON TOUR

London, Ont., Oct. 2 — (CP)—A 1,000 - mile trip through northern and eastern Ontario by bus got under way today for 21 senior students and staff of the University of Western Ontario's geology department.

They will study geological formations along the route from London to Madoc via Guelph and Peterborough.

During the second and third days of the tour excursions to sites of geological interest will be visited. These include abandoned mines which at one time produced arsenic ores, fluorspar, pyrite and talc.

Three Sets Tires Slashed by Unknown Persons

Slashing of three sets of auto tires in various parts of the city Saturday night by unknown persons has police puzzling today. They believe that the same person or persons were responsible for all three incidents but they question the reason for damage.

Mayor H. Jack Allin, College Street, Ernie Gray, 270 George Street, and Dean Garvin of St. Michael's Rectory all had their tires slashed apparently in their respective driveways. The tires were found flat Sunday morning. The slashing was done with some sharp instrument and several of the tires were ruined by the cutting.

Police Chief Walter Probert laid it to the work of some crank who practises his operations in widely scattered parts of the city. There is also the possibility the slashing may have been done by the person who some time during the weekend broke into a Dundas Street, West, residence and stole three sets of darts and a commando dagger.

RUSSIANS RELEASE SHIP

London, Oct. 2 — (Reuters) — The British trawler Swanella, arrested by a Russian ship in the White Sea off Murmansk last week, has been released, a Foreign Office spokesman said today. He said the trawler reported by radio she is fishing again. No reply has been received from Russia to a British note last week asking for release of the trawler and reasons for its arrest.

Obituary

MRS. SARA REARDON

Marmora—The funeral of Mrs. Sara Reardon took place on Saturday afternoon, leaving the residence of Mr. Robert Harris for service at St. Paul's Church at 2.30 p.m. Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie officiated. Burial took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. The pall bearers were Charles Hoover, Bruce Robson, James Crawford, Robert Harris, Gerald Harris and Albert Bartlett.

SIDMER J. DEMOREST

After an illness of one week, Sidmer J. Demorest, 309 McDonald Avenue in this city died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday.

For the past 33 years Mr. Demorest has resided in Elrose, Sask., where he conducted farming operations. A short time ago he came to this city to live retired. He was born in Foxboro, 67 years ago, and on retirement from farming came back to his native county to live.

He was a member of the United Church and fraternally was a member of IOOF in Elrose, Sask. Surviving him are his wife, the former Nancy Haslip, one sister, Mrs. John Longwell of Lindsay, and one brother, Dr. Sheldon Demorest, of Foxboro.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

THE LATE PERCY M. WHITE

The funeral of the late Percy M. White of Sidney township, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. S. E. Larman of Holloway Street United Church, who also said the committal rites in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Franklin Reid, Albert Kingston, Harold Wright, Clarence Holmes, Edward Hall and Jack Rapson.

Lord Alexander Visits Premier, Wife in Hospital

Quebec, Oct. 2 (CP)—Governor-General Lord Alexander today visited Premier and Mrs. Byron Johnson of British Columbia in St. Sacrement Hospital.

The Johnsons were injured Friday in an auto collision at St. Augustin, 15 miles west of here. They were returning home following the Quebec constitution talks.

Sunday Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec visited Premier Johnson and his wife.

Hospital authorities said today both were doing "very well."

Arrangements for their transportation home are being made but no date has been fixed for their departure. It is expected they will be here for the rest of the week.

'Definitely Through for All Time' States Harold Wilson After Gears in Boat Break

Picton, Ont., Oct. 2 — (CP) — Miss Canada IV's high jinks have proved too much for Harold Wilson.

The hard-luck guy of speedboat racing has finally called quits. The 38-year-old native of Ingersoll, Ont., gave up the ghost Saturday night after his $100,000 craft balked his final bid for a world record.

The 33-foot boat was taken from the water when three gears in her specially-designed gearbox broke up. Wilson looked at her and said: "We're licked."

Asked if he were determined to retire now, he said: "Very definitely—for all time."

Miss Canada IV has been a hex to her owners since she was launched in June, 1949. At that time, she was probably the most ballyhooed boat in the world. Wilson was looking to her to capture the world's speedboat record as a climax to his 16 years in the game.

Wilson had won the Gold Cup and the Silver Cup, but the third, the biggest, trophy — the Harmsworth — escaped his grasp when Miss Canada IV became temperamental both last year and this. He managed to establish a North American record of 138.648 miles an hour a year ago today, but this was later nullified when Slo-Mo-Shun IV took the world's record at Seattle last June with a 160.3235 mark.

Engine Imported

Harold Wilson and his father, E. A. Wilson, went all out to make this boat the one to take the record. A top-flight Rolls Royce engine, the 2,500-horsepower Griffon, was imported from England, as was a specially - designed propellor, which gave them a lot of trouble.

What finally killed all hopes last weekend was a special gearbox, made in Ingersoll.

Three of the gears were a total loss; the oil in the box was a mass of steel chips. Wilson said any one of the gears could have been replaced, but the loss of three together finished the boat's chances.

The boat hit a reported 155 miles an hour Saturday morning for the benefit of almost the entire population of Picton. But when the chips were down she couldn't make it.

It is believed that E. A. Wilson will hire another driver if Harold sticks to his decision.

It was a disappointing end to Wilson's career. There had been high hopes for Miss Canada IV.

Now she goes back to the sheds at Gravenhurst for indefinite storage. Right now, her future is pretty black.

Ingersoll, Oct. 2 (CP) —E. A. Wilson, owner of Miss Canada IV, today scotched reports that he'll keep on trying for the world speed record despite the pesky boat's sorry performance at Picton Ont, this weekend.

Wilson, whose son, Harold, is Miss Canada's pilot, said in an interview he has decided "absolutely" to stop speedboat racing.

Harold Wilson said in Picton yesterday after gear trouble stymied a scheduled bid for the record that he was determined to retire: "very definitely—for all time."

But there were reports that his father would hire another driver if Harold stuck to that decision.

E. A. Wilson denied that today.

"If my son is not going to drive anymore, it robs me of personal interest." He felt sure some other Canadian sportsman would show interest in the $100,000 craft "to take up where we are leaving off."

"We'll be pleased to give any help or assistance within our power," he said.

Stirling Cubs, Scouts to Hold Field Day

Oct. 9th the Stirling Scouts and Cubs are holding a field day on the Fair grounds. Troops and packs from Napanee, Belleville, Airport, Trenton, Brighton, Bata, Frankford, Campbellford, Madoc, Tweed and Kaladar have been invited and the Stirling leaders have a good program on hand.

The parents of the boys are invited to come and see their offspring go through their work. There are races for all the boys, jumping, ball throwing and tug-of-war.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct 2—(CP)—Prices recovered as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today from an early battering of heavy selling that followed the freeing of Canadian currency on world markets.

Leading industrials pushed sharply lower at the opening but a recovery move set in before the decline could pick up much speed and by the half-way mark the market was about balanced. Companies that sell much of their goods in the United States showed the sharpest losses in the early trading. Papers, key liquors and refining oils showed majorities of declines in the groupings while textiles, utilities and several steels firmed.

Gold stocks pushed into plus territory. Senior producers recovered losses and junior producers chalked up gains ranging to 15 cents. The new currency policy is expected to help junior producers and mean a loss to seniors. The government announced that it would reinstate the $3.50 an ounce cost-aid to high-cost-production gold mines.

Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou boombed in Base Metals. Golden Manitou jumped $1.25 to $6 in heavy trading and Quebec Manitou added 44 cents to $1.99.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,451,000 shares, about 509,000 shares more than Friday's similar period.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot price, 55 cents; delivered, 58 cents.

The egg market continued firm this morning. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free:—grade A large 60; A medium 50; A pullet 37; grade B 39-40; grade C 28. Wholesale to retail: grade A large 63-64; A medium 55-56; A pullet 41-42; grade C 32-33.

Butter solids: first grade (nominal) 55 1-2-55 3-4 cents; second grade 53 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 2 — (CP)—Due to the unsettled conditions of the Canadian dollar sales on most cattle were too few to establish prices at the Ontario Stockyards today. Receipts: cattle, 4,760; calves, 1,070; hogs, 780; sheep and lambs, 1,800. Left from last week were 2,000 cattle.

A few stockers sold at $27.-$27.50.

A few calves brought $30-$32.

Hog prices were not established.

Lamb prices were also not established, a few sheep sold from $13-$16.

Wm.T. Nugent May be Chairman Of Licence Board

Toronto, Oct. 2. (CP)— The Telegram says today in a news-page story that Arthur Welsh may give up the chairmanship of the Ontario Liquor Control Board and that Judge W. R. Robb of Orangeville, is seeking retirement as chairman of the Liquor Licence Board. One other top official is slated for a change, the paper adds.

Col. Welsh also is provincial secretary. Recently he was appointed head of Ontario's Civil Defence effort.

"Col. Welsh is reported to be seeking relief from the liquor post for two reasons, that he is tired of the pressure involved in the commissionership and that he wants more time to devote himself to organizing Ontario Civil Defence," the paper says. "Judge Robb is reported to be anxious to relinquish the Licence Board job owing to the heavy duties involved.

"Speculation places Major J. W. Foote, V.C., vice-chairman of the Control Board, as most likely to succeed Mr. Welsh. W. T. Nugent, vice-chairman of the Licence Board, probably would succeed to the chairmanship of that body if Judge Robb retires."

Free Enterprise Must Remain Says Garson

Toronto, Oct. 2. (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said today that if competition were to disappear over an important area of business "there is no doubt that public opinion would demand a system of State control."

In a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting of the Retail Merchants Association of Ontario, Mr. Garson said:

"Let us make no mistake about it: the economy in which business restrictions were imposed by price-fixing agreements and monopolistic practices would not be tolerated very long by free Canadians.

"If we are to have monopoly, most Canadians would insist that it be closely supervised if not operated by the state and we should thereby get backwards into a system government control of business."

Mr. Garson dealt particularly with provisions of the Combines Investigation Act and said the principle behind the legislation was "consistent in every sense with and indispensable to a free democratic society."

Cannot Injure Community

In effect it said to business men "your right to combine together for common objects does not include the right to agree upon practices which injure the community as a whole."

If competition disappeared from business and the people demanded a system of state control, this would bring with it arbitrary allocation of resources, greater or lesser conscription of capital and labor, rigid wage and price controls, and many other repugnant restrictions on individual and business freedom.

"It is necessary, therefore, that the demands of the people be met by efficient and enterprising business men at prices and on terms which result from their individual decisions based upon their own costs and expenses of doing business, and that the channels of trade, moreover, should never be closed to the vigorous newcomer," said Mr. Garson.

"When such a business environment is maintained there is little to fear from those who advocate the extreme policies of socialism and communism."

WAR NOT OVER TO U.N. INFANTRY

While the U.N. delegates at Lake Success talked of the end of the Korean war and while Synghman Rhee, South Korean president, thanked Gen. Douglas MacArthur for rescuing his country, the fighting men still had their work to do. Snipers and small groups of communists fleeing northward were offering small-scale resistance that brought casualties to U.N. forces. Here a couple of U.S. Marines warily investigate a shack for hidden snipers. — Central Press Canadian.

FEWER HIGHWAY FATALITIES

A more cheerful note has been sounded in the report for the year so far of the number of fatal traffic accidents—they are less numerous than for the same period last year.

It would indeed be a tragic situation if people did not look upon a reduction in fatalities as something of the very greatest importance. The Department of Highways and the authorities charged with the safety of the highways for travel has ever been stressing the need of careful and courteous driving as the means of preventing accidents, both non-fatal and fatal.

The added fact that Ontario motor vehicle registrations have gone beyond the million mark this year is an indication that in spite of the increased traffic the total of fatalities is lower.

There are on the roads and highways of the Province 1,036,509 motor vehicles which have been registered and of these no fewer than 830,012 are passenger cars.

The increased number of registrations is a fair indication of increase in traffic.

The authorities who police the highways and roads do a good work. Their presence has a restraining influence and has the result in fewer accidents, there can be no doubt. They are doing a work of education which cannot fail to show the benefits of the motor patrols.

EFFECTS OF GREAT FOREST FIRES

The extent of the smoke sent up by the Alberta forest fires causes the Halifax Mail to refer to the Miramichi fire in 1825 which sent up enough smoke and tinder to litter the coasts of Cape Breton more than a hundred miles away. Fires in New Brunswock and Nova Scotia laid an almost impenetrable pall of smoke. Nova Scotia has had occasions when forest conflagrations have dimmed the sun.

In some instances the fires have been greater than those recently in the Alberta woodlands, but winds have dispersed the smoke and rains have beaten down the particles before they attained the rainless levels which the Alberta smoke barrage seems to have reached.

It is noted that the smoke passes leaving its effect upon the weather by keeping in the earth's warmth. "It moves on to other lands with somewhat the same results, if not so easily measured; it joins with the refuse cast into the skies by gigantic eruptions like those reported to have accompanied earthquakes in the Himalayas. It may help spell warmth. It also may bring more rain than usual, helping to upset the whole weather pattern. In constantly lessening quantities the particles may have their influence as did those of Katmai in Alaska in 1917 when five cubic miles of earth were hurled into the skies to change the earth's weather for three whole years. Eventually they disappeared entirely — unlike the volcanic scars on the earth's surface which last forever, unlike the blackened track of the forest fire which, as in Shelburne, may be traced even now in barren wastes which more than a century's growth has failed to recover with trees."

HAZARDS TO BIRDS

Danger surrounds the life of birds and it is a wonder that "they can always sing as frequently as they do," remarks the Hamilton Spectator, noting instances of grim tragedy which has befallen numbers of the creatures which sing about our door.

"Almost every moment of their existence is surrounded with hazard. If it isn't cats and catapults, other winged marauders and prowling foes, that have to be guarded against, then some simple and unforeseen circumstance may end their happy days. A foot or two of twine at nesting time may prove to be a hangman's noose, or the crack in a fence post may trap the slender leg of the young bird that perches there. Many such mishaps can happen, and do. Evidence of these little tragedies can be seen by any bird lover who watches them closely.

"Flowers were being unloaded from a truck at the Toronto market when the body of a young hummingbird was discovered in the V formed by two gladiolus leaves. This tiny jewel of a bird had evidently been seeking food in the junction of the leaves when the sword-like blades closed a trifle and held it fast until death took it.

"The hummingbird is said to have no singing note; all its beauty has been lavished on its plumage. The Toronto incident recalls a similar event in a rural part of Ontario some twenty years ago when the bodies of two ruby-throat hummingbirds were found trapped on a burdock bush by the side of a country road. One of them was thought to have got into trouble first, when its mate went to the rescue and was likewise imprisoned. The cruel burrs of the weed were like so much barbed wire as they rent those wings of gauze.

Free as the birds of the air, says the poet. But the price of their freedom, too, is eternal vigilance — and not always then are they able to preserve it."

Our praises are our wages. — Shakespeare.

JUST FOLKS

THE NEWSPAPER BOY

Dreaming of college and earning his way,
Covering a route with the news of the day,
Now just a newspaper carrier is he,
But doctor or priest of tomorrow to be.

Great men but yesterday once did the same,
Took, as a newsboy, their first steps to fame.
Lads who went laughing and whistling their way,
But judges and artists and

Striving to please, but at times to annoy,
That is the way of the newspaper boy.
Head full of dreams but a heart that is stout
Man of tomorrow that's just starting out.

Eyes on the future! I watch him go by
And remember just like him at one time was I.
Living with memories time
When I was just somebody's newspaper boy.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 2, 1930

Four motorists were badly injured in a train-car crash four miles east of the city. A chauffeur and three society matrons from Toronto were rushed to the hospital suffering from bruises and a severe shaking-up.

Fifty freshmen from Albert College provided entertainment for citizens of Belleville when they were forced by seniors to march down Front Street and up Pinnacle, painted all different colors of the rainbow.

General V. A. S. Williams, comissioner of Ontario Provincial Police, arrived in the city today to inspect members of the local detachment. This is an annual visit to bring the members of the force and those higher in the organization into closer contact.

October 2, 1920

The Rev. Dr. Crozier Graham Adams and Mrs. Adams, of Rutherford, N.J., who have been visiting friends here, have left for their home.

Mr. Douglas McKenna of the Bank of Montreal, Winnipeg, has left for that city, after visiting his mother in this city.

Mrs. J. W. Elliott of Winnipeg is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. Soule, Pine Street.

Mr. L. Grills of the second concession of Thurlow exhibited today a potato grown on his premises which weighed two pounds, nine ounces.

Mrs. Paul H. Franklin of Pittsburg, Pa., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonnell, William Street.

October 2, 1910

A permanent roadway between Victoria Avenue and Bridge Street sounds good. Citizens will never be satisfied however, until they have a permanently paved roadway from the upper bridge to the wharf and on Bridge Street from Pinnacle Street to the lower bridge. No doubt all this will come in time.

Mrs. Will McCoy has returned from Peterborough where she visited friends.

The Rev. A. M. Hubly of Emmanuel Church, this city, has returned from Barrie where he spent a few days.

Mrs. Samuel White, who has resided on Murney Street here for over 60 years, has rented her house and will in future reside with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Brooks, in Madoc.

50 YEARS AGO

October 2, 1900

Mr. W. H. Comstock, M.P., Brockville, is in the city today.

Mr. A. Coe of Madoc was in the city today.

Mr. J. Earl Halliwell, barrister Stirling, was in the city today.

Senator William Kerr of Cobourg, is visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Asa Wallbridge, Ameliasburg.

Mr. John C. McLean will leave shortly for Winnipeg.

The Rev. A. L. Geen has been appointed District Deputy High Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters throughout the jurisdiction of Eastern Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig left today for their home in Ottawa after visiting their son, Mr. J. R. Craig, Yeomans Street.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON GOING HOME

No matter how much we may enjoy a trip to a foreign land, or to some selected spot for a vacation, there is always that enthusiastic joy of returning home. Returning to the country, and to the home of which we are so much a part, is one of the thrills that are always welcomed, though repeated many a time.

We look forward to all of these excursions to some happy or interesting spot, but we also look forward to the return. Said John Muir: "The snow-flowers go home when they melt and flow to the sea, and the rock ferns, after unrolling their fronds to the light and beautifying the rocks, roll them up close again in the Autumn and blend with the soil."

With the seasons, also, the millions of flying creatures return to their other homes, from which they came in the Spring and Summertime. In this space some time ago I told of a dog that got lost from its owners in Nova Scotia, but which later turned up at his home in far-away Illinois. One of the most beloved poems ever written was that one by John Howard Payne—"Home Sweet Home", written in Paris at a time when he had no home that he could call his own!

The home in which we have been given birth, or which has sheltered us for long, is hallowed with something of ourselves, so that when we leave it we leave something of ourselves to which we return with increased joy. How happy are the reunions of a family, in the old home and how the worries or trials of the day are shifted as a father approaches his home with the kiddies running out to meet him!

No matter how humble, there is no place like home, or ever will be. It is the citadel of every human being, a return to which should always carry a blessing, and gratitude to God for its existence. Not long ago I returned to view the little home in which my twin sister and I were born. I tried to imagine the joy that came to my mother upon such an event, a mother now so long gone. It was home—my first home, that I can only treasure in my memory, but somehow the most treasured of all the homes since.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOUR VITAL METHODS

What are you doing with your life.

The late Joseph Fort Newton used to say that there are four things a man can do with his life. First, he can run away from it, and many people do this; like the prophet Jonah, who tried to get away from a divine commission and boarded a sailing vessel for Tarshish. There are others who run along with life. Jesus referred to them when he spoke of the broad highways full to overflowing and leading to destruction. Then there is another group who try to run life—both their own life and the lives of others. Sometimes these people appear as masterful characters, but more often they are pests or tyrants or dictators, and the world reads their obituaries with considerable satisfaction.

The last group of men, as Dr. Newton pointed out, are those who surrender to a higher power. They step out into the wind and face the storm when it is necessary to do so, because they know that they are reinforced by a power above their own. They do not run along with life or try to manage their own lives and interfere with the lives of others. They surrender to Him, of whom the Apostle John wrote saying: "In him was life and the life was the light of men; and the light shineth in the darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

YOM KIPPUR IN KOREA

When Eleanor and I were in Tokyo a little over a year ago, we got to know Colonel Anthony Story, General MacArthur's pilot. This morning I got a letter from Tony with a Korea dateline and it contained a story which I think is worth passing along. . . .

In one of the Marine Corps regiments which recently slugged into Inchon there was a corporal named Abraham Geller who had been brought up a nickel phone call away from Delancey Street. Abe was the son of a rabbi, and even at the front where sleep is the most important thing in the world, he never failed to wake a half hour before his buddies and go through the ritual of the orthodox morning prayers.

On September 20, Abe's regiment crossed the Han and cut the Seoul-Kaesong road and, what with snipers in every rice paddy, by dusk the men were glad to dig in and catch a few hours of clammy sleep—especially since they knew that the drive for the Korean capital itself was scheduled for sunup.

An hour before dawn, aside from the sentries, only two men in the company were awake: Corporal Geller, bent over his prayer book, and Captain George O'Connor, surveying the terrain and figuring out how best to deploy his troops in the coming action.

When Abe was finished, the captain said, "Go back to the chow truck and get yourself a cup of coffee."

"Thanks, Captain,' said Geller, "but today's Yom Kippur, and I'm not supposed to eat until sundown."

"You mean to say you're going to fast the day we bust into Seoul?" said the captain.

The East Sider grinned. "I figure I've got enough calories packed away for twenty-four hours," he said.

Well, as the papers have told you, the Marines ran into plenty of trouble the first day of the drive, and along about sundown Captain O'Connor's men were inching their way across a field littered with dead North Koreans. One of the commies, however, though badly wounded, was only playing dead, and as the officer came within range he rolled over on his side and aimed his pistol.

Fortunately, Abe, who was only a few feet from his commanding officer, saw the body move. He jerked his bayonet out of his belt and made a dive for the enemy soldier, but in finishing him off he got the three bullets which had been intended for O'Connor.

The captain did the best he could for Abe, but at this stage the situation was what military commentators called "fluid", and it was almost three hours before the corporal got a shot of penicillin and was carried to a hospital tent.

The operation lasted over an hour, and when the surgeon finally came out Captain O'Connor was waiting for him.

"How does it look?' he asked.

"The kid's doing fine,' said the medico.

"I figured he was done for," said O'Connor.

"So did I," said the surgeon. "The bullets went through his abdomen and several loops of intestine, and wounds like that are generally fatal if penicillin isn't administered pretty fast. The spillage almost always causes peritonitis and general blood poisoning."

"I don't get all the words," said the captain, "but his pulling through seems like something of a miracle."

"In a manner of speaking, it is," said the surgeon. "Corporal Geller owes his life to the fact that when he was shot there was hardly any food in his stomach."

Twenty Persons Die Violently In East Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty persons died violently in Eastern Canada during the weekend, five in three separate plane crashes, 11 in traffic accidents, one by drowning and three by various other causes.

Ontario led the death toll with nine, Quebec had eight and the Maritimes three. The plane crashes occurred in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

Near Truro, N.S., Claude Chapman of Truro was killed and Francis Tremble of East Mountain, N.S., suffered undetermined injuries in the crash of a light private plane Sunday.

Pilot J. C. Wilson, 47, of Merritton, Ont., and Leonard Babcock, 47, of North Tonawanda, N.Y., died Saturday in the flaming plane of a two-seater seaplane at Grindstone Lake, in Northern Quebec.

Donald Dodd, 21-year-old pilot and Ben Mist, both of Toronto were killed near Brooklin, Ont., six miles northwest of Oshawa, Sunday night when their rented plane crashed into a hilltop.

The Maritimes' two other fatalities resulted from traffic accidents. Mrs. Josephine Crouse, 40, of Zealand Station, died from injuries received when the car in which her husband was driving her to hospital at Fredericton collided head-on with another. At Saint John, N.B., Beverley Kierstead, 75, of Kingston Peninsula, was killed Sunday night when hit by a car while walking near a cemetery.

Traffic fatalities in Quebec included Alice Goudreau, 18, killed at Lac Au Saumon; W. Laviolette, 60, fatally hurt when hit by a car which failed to stop at St. Paul L'Ermtie; and Gerard Desautels, 21, and Raymonde Derome, 20, killed in a two-car crash at South Roxton.

At Sherbrooke, Que., Eugene Lemay, 5, a furnace attendant, was found asphyxiated Saturday in the boiler room of a Roman Catholic monastery, and at Granby, provincial police reported the discovery in a bush of the bady decomposed body of an unidentified man.

Victims of traffic accidents in Ontario were Janet Spratt, 5, killed near her home in Ottawa Saturday; John H. Cassmore, Sr., 45 of Detroit and Isaac Dennis 34, of Watford, who died in a head on collision of two cars near Sarnia; and Mrs. George Gaudette, parents of six children, who were drowned when their car plunged into a creek north of Matheson, Ont.

At Lindsay, Ont., eight-year-old Ronnie Howe was drowned Saturday when a home-made raft on which he was sailing tipped over on the Scugog River. At Renfrew, Jerry Scharfe was found Saturday crushed to death by his car which apparently slipped off the jack while he was underneath it making repairs.

Student Admits Sex Slaying Of Young Boy

Detroit, Oct. 2 (AP) —A 15-year-old high school football player admitted Sunday the sex slaying of little Joey Housey in suburban St. Clair Shores three weeks ago, State Police Capt. Howard Seller announced.

Capt. Seller said Rodney McRae, who fled in a stolen boat from his St. Clair Shores home Saturday was picked up at 3 a.m. at the home of a relative in Sarnia, Ont. The capture was made by Michigan State police and Ontario provincial police.

The youth admitted, Capt. Seller said, slaying eight-year-old Joey and burying his body in a shallow grave in a wooded area. Seller said that young McRae sobbingly blurted out the story but wos vague on details.

The body of the Housey boy was found Sept. 23 two weeks after he had disappeared.

McRae fled shortly before he was to have taken a lie detector test.

The youth is five feet, eight inches tall, weighs 181 pounds and plays substitute tackle on the football team at suburban Lakeview High School. He was in the searching party when Joey's body was found.

Capt. Seller said McRae appeared to be a normal youth and had no record of sex deviation.

The youth was questioned first last week after he was found to have a straight edge razor he used to make model airplanes. Joey was mutilated with a similar weapon.

McRae was held without charge.

WOULD PIPE GAS

Calgary, Sept. 30—(CP)—Canadian Delhi Oil Ltd., yesterday applied to the Alberta Natural Gas Conservation Board for a permit to export gas to eastern Canada by means of a 1,800-mile, $220,000,000 pipeline to Toronto.

Canadian Delhi's application is the fifth received by the board for export of gas.

The line would carry 365,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day and would serve intermediate points in Saskatchewan, Fort William, Port Arthur, and Sudbury. Spur lines would feed Sault Ste. Marie, Ottawa and Montreal.

PSYCHOLOGY AND OBESITY

It has long been known that many persons who become involved in trouble—social, legal, marital or what have you—"take it out" in eating sprees. Eating is normally a satisfaction to any healthy person. In times of trouble it lends itself to "escape" in the same manner that smoking does.

Young persons who develop the conviction of inadequacy or inferiority are apt to seek solace in eating. In the absence of organic disease, obesity on a youngster invariably has a psychological background of frustration or social maladjustment. Eating is a pleasure to which the agitated or frustrated person can turn and indulge himself with a minimum of criticism from others.

Appetite or hunger is common to all persons. Abnormal appetite can and often does have an emotional background in the absence of other material causes. Obesity in a school age youngster may be the result of eating habits which carry on throughout adult life. This situation seems to be widely accepted as "perfectly natural," or inevitable. Everybody concerned readily concludes that the person in question is "born to be fat", and that's that. This conclusion, like so many others having to do with health and disease—is wrong.

The obese youngster can be taught correct eating habits while his emotional difficulties are being fathomed. And the life-long obese individual can be trimmed down to something resembling normal contour without "endangering his health." It is not a whim of fate which creates a "fatty." It is invariably a state of the individual's mind.

The amount of food an obese person eats at a meal is determined by the amount of pleasure is given him or her to eat it. The question of physiological need or requirement is seldom, if ever thought of.

The obese person who seriously contemplates doing something to reduce his weight can make an eventual success of the undertaking only by recognizing the long range problem involved. It is possible by near-starvation to lose weight rapidly as a temporary thing. It is something else to gain mastery over unnecessary weight as a life long control.

This involves a psychological adjustment—the giving up of old convictions and the adoption of new ones. Probably very few obese persons are moved to develop new ideas because of chagrin over their contours. The satisfaction derived from eating far outweighs any sense of guilt, shame or chagrin which may develop—when and if it does. The obese person constantly and knowingly persists in eating far more food than he needs. If his obesity is a cause for scorn or disgust on the part of others, his response to this may be a further desire for escape—and the eating of more food.

Obesity once established must be regarded as a psychological problem as well as a purely nutritional difficulty. The obese person who views with hostility any suggestion as to changes of habit or diet poses a most difficult problem for the physician. Without the development of a clear desire to co-operate—rather than a "I dare you to reduce me!" attitude,—failure is inevitable. Any long range weight control program must be based upon comprehension of the underlying facts involved—and the determination to exercise dominance of the mind over the appetite.

The "weight-reducing" regimes involving little or no restriction of the diet,—the giving of cathartics and "shots" of glandular substances, invariably are short range innovations of no permanent value. These are contests between the reducers and the reducees. The reducees always win—if you want to call keeping on being too fat—winning.

When it becomes obvious that weight reduction is needed, speed is no object. The remarks such as "I lost ten pounds in one week!" are meaningless. What is of importance is what is lost at the end of a year or what the situation is at the end of ten years.

The sensible approach to weight reduction does not involve startling and abrupt losses. Rather, it is based upon actual nutritional needs, the observance of these and a gradual, orderly and permanent return to normal figures.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Anything But a Mouse Nest in Cat's Ear

Aunt of mine, 61, married a year ago, believes she is going to have a baby. Menstruation ceased fifteen years ago. Only base of her notion is vague abdominal discomfort, and tiredness. (T. R.)

Answer—Some reader assures me that even a mouse nest in a cat's ear is possible, but your aunt's belief seems as improbable. She should have some sense by now—go to her physician for proper examination.

Adult Tetany

Please discuss for my benefit and the benefit of hundreds of other readers past sixty the cause and relief of cramps in legs, arms, torso, even feet and hands. (Miss T. V. M.)

Answer—Most common cause, I believe, is tentany—manifestation of calcium and vitamin D deficiency of many years' standing. Physicians generally associate tetany with infancy. The condition is widely prevalent in people past middle age who do not consider themselves ill. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Some people are not actually happy or at rest unless they are worrying. Worry is a sort of appetite with them. It is as if they had an extra stomach, like a cow, into which something to worry about has to be stuffed every day

For example, if it is money they worry about, and you are able to remove these worries, it is not a day, or half a day, before the pangs of worry-hunger begin to gnaw on them; and they simply have got to get busy and locate some fresher fodder. They have no trouble finding it, though sometimes the material they seize upon, in their hunger, is pretty comical.

If Alcoholics Anonymous can work miracles in curing people of a taste for liquor, maybe an organization called Worriers Anonymous might be set up to rescue addicts from their abnormal craving for worry. A psychiatrist tells me that giving up worrying is just about on a par with giving up smoking. Some people can do it in a sudden gush of determination. Others make a sort of game of it, just as in giving up drinks or cigarettes. They dare themselves to go a week. And then a month. After that it is easy; and they wonder why they ever worried or smoked or drank.

But few people who drink, smoke or worry are much inclined to give up their hobby. It is a well-known fact that reformed drunkards are terrible nuisance to their friends. I have known people who gave up smoking, and thereby changed their whole characters. Instead of amiable, careless, comfortable natures, they became alert, health conscious, even athletic types full of reproof, both spoken and inferred, for all their acquaintances. It gives most people superiority complex when they conquer a small vice.

If you cure a person of worry, some more offensive habit might take its place. The average human personality has not much room in it. It generally holds a nice balance of virtues and vices which have got used to each others' shapes.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

ROOF WITH CHARM SOOTHES SAVAGE!

There's no doubt about the charm of a Johns-Manville Asphalt Shingle Roof! The wide choice of designs and colors will blend with any style of architecture. And as for the "savage" enemies of all roofs, fire, weather and wear, J-M Asphalt Shingles stubbornly resist all three. Their first cost is low, and the years of protection they afford doubles their initial economy.

A WORD OF WARNING! Never let an "unknown" or "roving" roofer tamper with your roof! Too often the work they claim to have done proves extremely expensive. Consult your J-M dealer or J-M applicator on roofing matters. He is absolutely dependable and knows where to look for trouble signs and how to remedy them.

Special Force Unit for Use Of United Nations

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 2—(CP)—Canada's special force, designed for use in Korea if necessary, has become a unit for use by the United Nations, subject to Canada's control.

This was made clear here Saturday in an address by Prime Minister St. Laurent to the Royal Military College Club.

"The creation of the special force," Mr. St. Laurent said, "means that from now on we will have a Canadian force-in-being available to assist, without undue delay, in discharging a part of our obligations under the U.N. charter and the Atlantic Treaty."

The prime minister's statment threw a clearer light on what may happen to the 10,000 men enlisted for the special force. For the first time, Mr. St. Laurent gave official public indication that Canada will be ready to send manpower to Europe.

"Provided the Korean incident is successfully terminated before too long a time has elapsed, the special force would be available for service as part of a deterrent force in Europe if its employment there would fit in effectively with joint plans," he said.

At present the force was being trained for service in Korea, "if that seems to be the right place to send it when it is trained and ready."

"But there are other areas in the world. For what has happened in Korea might be repeated and it might be that our special force would be dispatched to some entirely different place if circumstances warranted and parliament aporoved.

He warned, too, that the western powers' effort to prevent war may go on for many years.

More Than 100 Persons Overcome by Monoxide

Detroit, Oct. 2. (AP)—More than 100 persons were overcome by carbon monoxide gas that swept the Lasky Theatre last night. No fatalities were reported.

Those stricken were rushed to hospitals.

Twelve were injured in a stampede that developed after the audience of more than 500 realized the presence of a deadly gas.

Fire department inhalator teams worked frantically in the theatre lobby.

Police said the gas escaped through a rusted muffler on a motor operating the theatre's air-conditioning unit.

FRENCH IN THAINGUYEN

Saigon, Indo-China, Oct. 2 — (AP)—A French military spokesman said today a French column Sunday occupied Thainguyen, communist communications hub in North Indo-China.

Two other French columns were advancing toward that principal military-political centre, 40 miles north of Hanoi, on the left and right of the forces that entered the city.

1,500 HOMES BLACKED OUT

London, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP)—An explosion in a temporary transformer blacked out 1,500 east-end homes for about two hours, early today and cut electric power to several of London's larger industries for a brief period.

Ottawa, Oct. 2. (CP)—The soldier's old fibre "dog tag" is on the way out.

For troops of Canada's new special brigade there will be a new-type identity disc made of metal, the army announced today. It will be designed in two sections, with the centre partially perforated to permit easy removal of the duplicate lower half.

On one side of the rectangular-shaped tags will be stamped the soldier's regimental number, rank, name and initials, religious denomination and his nationality; on the reverse side will be the man's blood grouping—important when a soldier is wounded.

A beaded chain of strong metal replaces the old neck cord.

12 RCAF Planes On Tacoma-Tokyo Air Lift

Ottawa, Oct. 2 — (CP)— The R.C.A.F. now has 12 planes operating on the Korean air lift from Tacoma, Wash., to Tokyo and has made 50 round trips carrying troops and arms to Japan for Korean operations.

This first disclosure that Canadian planes have been carrying arms as well as troops to Japan came from Wing Commander C. H. Mussells, commander of 426 Squadron which is engaged in the operation. Wing Commander Mussells is in Ottawa for conference with senior officers of air transport command.

The squadron commander, who himself is engaged in the air lift, said that in the 50 round trips made so far, the Canadian transports have carried 1,700 troops to Japan and rockets and other arms were included in the plane cargoes.

Canada sent six of the R.C.A.F.'s big four-engined North Star transports into the air lift late in July, complete with ground crews to keep them operating. The number has gradually been built up until the squadron now has a dozen planes in the operation.

Offer Rejected By Milk Drivers

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP) — An offer of a $4-a week pay increase by Toronto District Milk Distributors was rejected yesterday by representatives of the 1,800 milk drivers and dairy employees in the area. The drivers, whose basic weekly wage is $42, asked for a boost of $7; the dairies previously offered $3.

D. J. Buchanan, president of the Milk Drivers' Union (AFL), said a membership meeting voted to apply for conciliation in the month-old dispute with the Toronto Distributors' Association, which represents 14 dairies.

The dairies recently increased the price from 19 to 20 cents a quart for standard milk. Dairy spokesmen have indicated union demands could not be met without a further increase in the milk price.

An arbitration board was appointed last week to consider the wholesale price of milk in the Toronto area.

US Warships Find Many Floating Mines Russ Type

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP) — Admiral Forrest Sherman said today U.S. navy ships off Korea have found "a great many floating mines" of Russian type.

Sherman, the chief of naval operations, told the House of Representatives Armed Services committee that an examination of recovered mines indicated they had been "recently laid and not long out of the storehouse."

Last Wednesday, the U.S. destroyer Brush hit a floating mine and nine men were killed, 10 injured and five missing. The destroyer was able to make her way to a Japanese port.

Sherman said indications were the mines had been floated down rivers or perhaps laid by small craft. He said there also were some fatalities when a mine damaged a small vessel.

Claims Russia Made First Bike 150 Years Ago

London, Oct. 2 — (Reuters) — Bicycle races were held in Russia yesterday to honor the memory of a Russian claimed by Moscow radio to have been the "true inventor of the first bicycle in the world" 150 years ago.

The radio gave his name as Artomotov, a mechanic.

Despite the silence of top officers, there was no doubt that South Korean units were thrusting well into red Korea.

Field reports placed them 11 miles north of the border. They were seen in North Korean territory by correspondents who crossed the border in planes. American officers attached to South Korean forces, and South Korean officers reported slow but steady progress against light resistance.

An air force spokesman in Tokyo said a new bomb line for B-29s had been established north of the border. It was being pushed northward every six hours to keep pace with advancing friendly ground troops.

MacArthur and his top field commanders still remained silent on the first thrust into red territory. A spokesman for the U.N. commander said it was a delicate subject, both militarily and politically, and could not be discussed loosely.

An official announcement was expected soon, however, on this campaign which may turn out to be a final cautious testing of communist determination—including that of the Chinese reds—to fight to the end.

South Korea and U.S. officers with the South Korean forces said 3rd Division elements Monday afternoon were four miles north of Yangyang, moving along the east coast highway against light resistance.

Allied warships prowled off shore, ready to support the South Koreans with mobile artillery. They had not been called into action at mid-afternoon.

Forest Fires Still Main Cause of Unusual Weather

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP) —Alberta forest fires remained the main cause of unusual weather in Eastern Canada today.

Smoke from the series of blazes in the Northern Alberta bush today mingled with the output of factories in Southern Ontario and United States border cities to blanket southern Ontario and the United States middle Atlantic area with a thick fog.

Weather officials explained that the fog resulted when warm moist, tropical air came in contact with the smoke. As the air cooled off at night smoke particles caught condensing moisture.

Shortly before noon EDT the sun rolled the fog away in the Toronto area and forecasters said it would soon clear elsewhere.

Sixty traffic accidents, most of them minor, were blamed on the weekend fog in the Toronto district. The fog delayed ferry service between Toronto islands and the mainland for half an hour today and many office workers were late for work.

Three million bees were burned at Oakville, 20 miles west of Toronto, when a truck loaded with bees and beeswax struck a light standard and burst into flames. Police said the driver was Milton Fretz of New Liskeard, Ont., who, with a passenger, was shaken up.

The fog held up traffic in the Welland ship canal for five hours early today. Fog warning signals were sounded along the St. Clair River at Sarnia, where a thin haze reduced visibility to three miles.

Dense fog on the lower Detroit River at dawn delayed shipping briefly.

Sault Ste. Marie had a light fog last night but traffic continued to move normally through the big ship canals linking lakes Superior and Huron. Light fog was no hindrance to shipping on the Cornwall canal.

FRANKFORD

Merchants Drop 11-7 Decision To Wooler Team

Frankford—Frankford Merchants dropped an 11-7 decision in Wooler Friday night, as the home team evened up the Trent Valley Softball League finals at one game apiece. Boyle of Frankford and Stacey of Wooler slugged it out for top honors in that department, each with a perfect five for five.

Wooler got their first run in the top frame on two walks, and singles by Stacey and Richards. They added four more in the second, on three walks, singles by Leavitt and Stacey, and two Frankford fumbles. Then for five innings, Boyle settled down and pitched runless ball.

The bubble burst in the eighth as Wooler collected six more big runs on doubles by McColl and Stacey, singles by May and Richards, and two singles by Austin who came up twice in the big inning.

Frankford didn't get to McColl till the sixth in which they scored two runs on two walks and a double by Boyle. They added another in the seventh as Rankin doubled home Consaul who had walked. Two more came in the eighth to tie the score, as Boyle took advantage of two Wooler errors and smacked a single into left in the clutch. In the 9th it was Boyle again with a home run, driving in a runner ahead of him to complete the Frankford scoring.

Thus, the jinx which has haunted Frankford throughout the year in Wooler continues, with the third and deciding game also slated for Wooler.

CAMPBELLFORD

Campfire Meeting By Club Held At Bradley Bay

Campbellford—The St. John's Young Adults Club resumed activities in an autumn atmosphere at Bradley Bay on Thursday evening, with about forty members attending the meeting round a campfire.

The first cool nip of fall weather made the cosy campfire feel good beside the chilly waters of the bay.

The president of the club, Mrs. Ruth Thompson, opened proceedings, and called upon Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith, who besides conducting a short devotional period, told of the importance of young people in the church and of the splendid success of the big religious convention held by youthful church workers in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto in mid-August.

Business included the entertaining of a suggestion received from St. Andrew's regarding the holding of a joint evening service during the fall and winter months with a rotating system, under the auspices of the various clubs. The report was favorably received.

The Young Adults Club members have not forgotten the outstanding success of their Minstrel Show presented well over a year ago, and the question of again undertaking a full program on a similar line of endeavor, was put forth. The decision was finally reached, that Mr. George Nicholls be contacted with the hope that a show of suitable nature could be presented by the club in January. A meeting of all members will be held in the church on Thursday, October 12, when a report will be submitted on the progress of this venture.

The annual Hallowe'en party will normally be due on Thursday, October 26, and the suggestion was made that an invitation be extended to the U.R. Welcome Club of St. Andrew's and the Chi Rho Club of Christ Church to be guests that evening, with all comers to be in costume or suffer the consequences. The idea was adopted.

Grows Big Potatoes

Mrs. Alex McInroy of Rannie Street in Campbellford believes in growing potatoes—big ones. Yesterday she dug some of the spuds to see if they had reached a large enough size, and decided they had. One specimen weighed in at exactly 32 ounces. Two whole pounds. The seed for this potato of the red variety came all the way from Victoria. Another smaller cobbler weighed only 24 ounces. A pound and a half.

Mrs. McInroy is quite proud of her efforts in the agricultural field, and while she does not claim this to be a record, we would like to know if anyone has grown any larger potatoes. The spuds are on display in a local store window.

An important difference between you and your neighbours.

CHANCES ARE you have a lot in common with your neighbours. But there is an important difference between your plans for the future and theirs.

There is something special, for instance, about your plans for retiring. You have your own ideas about how much income you'll need to live on in your later years. And you also determine at what age you'll want to start "taking it easy".

Likewise, you face different problems in protecting the family income in case anything happens to you.

With life insurance you can find security in both of these ways—arranged to fit your own special needs. You have a choice of many different kinds of policies for different purposes. And the services of trained life underwriters are at your beck and call to help you make that choice wisely.

Nothing but Life Insurance gives YOU this control over your future.

So today—and tomorrow—rely on your own life insurance to meet your own personal security needs!

WEDDINGS

BRADSHAW—GILMOUR

The United Church, Kingston Road, decorated with white and red asters, was the scene of a pretty wedding on September 22, at two o'clock, when Mary Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gilmour, Point Anne, became the bride of Maurice Greve Bradshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradshaw, R.R. 4, Belleville.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. Wagar and "Because", was played during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with face veil and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Earl Bush, as matron of honor, wore yellow net over taffeta and carried a nosegay of bronze 'mums centred with roses. Miss Merilyn Payne, as bridesmaid, wore pale green net over taffeta and carried a nosegay of bronze 'mums. They wore Juliet caps.

The groomsman was Mr. Clifford Bradshaw, of Toronto, and Mr. Patrick Gilmour and Mr. Ronald Bradshaw acted as ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother received her guests in a dress of blue and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses and the groom's mother assisted in black with corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

For motor trip to Niagara Falls and the States, the bride chose a green suit with brown accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto and Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw will take up residence at Belleville.

Delightful Tea At Country Club

The wives of the doctors in the city along with members of the Soroptimist and Venture clubs, were entertained at a delightful tea at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Sunday afternoon by Dr. Lily B. Mathieson. The clubroom was tastefully decorated with colors of the clubs and the tables were laden with Fall blooms in varied colors. The guests were welcomed by the hostess and Mrs. McLaughlin, Mrs. Frances Bennett, Mrs. Quinn, Miss Betty Monteith, regional director of the Venture club and Mrs. Fry.

Tea was poured by Mrs. John Deacon and Mrs. James Forrester, assisted by Mrs. Tommy Caton and Mrs. Georgia Smith. Those assisting at the tables were Miss Marjory Gothard, Trenton; Mrs. Stanley Hagerman, Miss Edra McCreary, Miss Helen Keller, Mrs. Bryson Leslie, Mrs. Joseph Blackburn and Miss Pearl Campbell.

Miss Violet Mason of Toronto, and Miss Sweeney, of Montreal, were out-of-town guests at the function.

New York, Oct. 2. (CP)—Fifteen Canadian women pilots will be inducted into the international organization of licensed women pilots at a special ceremony at Ottawa Oct. 7, it was announced today.

The Canadian group is sponsored by the New York-New Jersey section of the organization. The group induction is the first in the history of the 21-year-old organization, which has a membership of about 1,200.

Women pilots from New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan will fly to Ottawa for a three-day program which will include a reception by Governor-General and Lady Alexander.

Couple Defiant of Phantom Whistler

Taft, La., Oct. 2. (AP)—Herbert Belson and his comely bride begin a Florida honeymoon today after defying the reported threats of the phantom whistler of Paradis.

Belson, 26-year-old State trooper, and Jacqueline Cadow, 18, were married yesterday in this town ten miles from Paradis, scene of the threats.

The church was crowded by the curious.

Mrs. Clifford Cadow, the girl's mother, treated lightly any mention of the whistler. A few weeks ago she said someone was whistling funeral dirges around the Cadow home and telephoning threats that the wedding never would take place. Sheriff Leon Vial said his investigation disclosed no whistler who was a menace to the Cadow family.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

Copenhagen, Denmark.
Friday Morning, Sept. 15.

Friday morning I walked via the fish market to Christiansborg. This market lies along the canal and the fishing craft with seines and nets strung up are pulled up behind the vendors' stalls. It is an interesting and busy place, and I'll have to agree, smelly, also. This was my first contact with the fishwives we have all read about in story and fable and they surely looked the coarse, unkempt individuals we expected. They sit on stools, behind their wares, expertly boning fish, cleaning them, beheading them or de-shelling them, depending on the kind. The long, slippery snake-like eels were alive and wiggling when they stripped the skin off them.

The market is a block long —wholesalers ordering at one end and at the other the fishwife dealing directly with the homemaker. It was a gory, untidy place. I purposely walked back at noon and everything was in order—vendors gone, stalls folded up and away and the bricks washed and scrubbed clean for the morning. This is Copenhagen, spotlessly clean. You never see papers and trash lying carelessly around. Refuse baskets are fastened on the street lighting poles and people really make use of them here.

I wonder if at home we would thus co-operate to keep our city orderly and attractive. When you use a train here they give, you a receipt and many a time I've seen a passenger walk to these refuse baskets and drop this small receipt in, rather than drop it in the gutter. They are proud of their national characteristics of cleanliness and order and boast that their democracy is the oldest in the world—1,000 years old.

Another custom that's different: In restaurants and hotels you are always served small potatoes like marbles. When I asked about it the answer was, "Oh, yes, we always save our small potatoes for special functions." They peel and boil them until cooked, but not into pieces, then roll them in melted fat to which they add sugar. The result is a very appetizing brown ball, nice to look at as well as to eat. You can see how attractive their large silver platters are when they bring them to the table to serve you—meat sliced in the centre, surrounded with brown balls of potatoes, green beans slivered, rounds of carrots, and always this time of year, cauliflower, decorated with white sauce and chopped parsley. Have I told you about their pastries? The bake shop windows are most attractive with them in every shape and size and decorated to catch the eye. A pastry or two along with your tea or coffee we've found to be excellent and tasty.

We met in plenary session this morning and the constitution committee was the first to present its findings. They recommended in opening their report that the chief object of our organization be "to do everything possible, both by study and action, to further friendship and mutual understanding between countrywomen of all nations, thus working toward a better and more united world, and to further international relations in every way consistent with the aims of the organization. Improvement was made many places in the constitution, which had been revised at Amsterdam in 1947, and one major change of great importance.

Heretofore, vice-presidents of A.C.W.W., were elected by the executive committee and might be from any one of the constituent societies. The conference approved the recommendation brought forward by this committee that the world be divided in large areas, seven in all, and that an area president be elected from each of these seven areas. These vice-presidents would be nominated by their respective areas, but voting for all vice-presidents would take place at the conference and by all the delegates. There was great discussion over this point, (a) whether the vice-presidents should be nominated and elected to office in their areas; (b) whether the vice-presidents should only be nominated by their areas and have to come before all the delegates for their election. The second method was the one decided upon. We wanted the same status for all vice-presidents. If seven were elected by their areas and the other three (10 in all) elected by the delegates at a conference, there might be a tendency to give precedence to the vice-presidents elected by the conference in session.

These are the seven areas specified, each to have a vice-president. You can see why it is a wonderful break for Canada:

1. The United States of America with its territories and the West Indies, and any further affiliations on the North American continent.
2. The Dominion of Canada.
3. Northern Europe, consisting of Scandinavia, including Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and Iceland.
4. Southern Europe, consisting of Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Great Britain, France, Ireland and later if they again join, Italy and Belgium.
5. Africa.
6. Asiatic countries, consisting at present of Ceylon and India.
7. The South Pacific, consisting of Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea, and any further affiliations from the Pacific Island territories.

This system of election will be under way at the time of the next conference in 1953, which we hope will come to Canada, and possibly to Ontario. Canada's delegation head, Mrs. Morton, was elected one of the vice-presidents and was away ahead of all the others running when the votes were counted.

Friday afternoon the conference received the findings of the policy committee. Many of these findings were in support of resolutions sent in by the constituent societies and dealt with (a) ways of spreading our work in less privileged countries, (b) ways of lessening the burdens of the farmer's wife, (c) more active knowledge and support of the United Nations and F.A.O.

You will be interested in the two following recommendations which were both accepted after lengthy discussion, because they were submitted by Canadians. The first, proposed by Mrs. J. E. Houck, of Brampton, (1) "It is recommended that societies encourage their members to take more interest in their responsibilities as citizens by studying local and national government. Also that A.C.W.W. urge their members that those who are fitted to accept office in local and national government do so as individuals as long as it does not infringe their obligations as members of a non-party political organization." (2) This was proposed by Mrs. McCleod, president of Prince Edward Island Institutes, and received great acclaim: "That A.C.W.W. give the lead in emphasizing to mothers the importance of the mother's influence on the children of the world, not expecting so much help from state, school and church, thus putting a solid foundation under the better world we hope to build, such campaign to consist of radio broadcasts, newspaper publicity, lectures, films, etc."

Packages were on our chairs when we took our places Friday morning. These proved to be aprons, gifts from the Colorado Home Bureau members, and every one of them was made from a colored flour sack. In the pocket were extra gifts of hankies, seed packages and the name and address of the sender. Wasn't this a lovely thing to do? Surely the friendliest of gestures and an excellent way to secure a U.S. pen-pal.

Friday evening was the big night when we were to dress in our finery for dinner and entertainment at National Scala, the restaurant of Copenhagen, the guests of the Housewives of Denmark. It was another wonderful party—nearly 1,000 present and all in gay attire and in festive mood and the food, you may be sure, was the best Denmark could produce.

The restaurant has tables and chairs arranged in four tiers, so that all have a good view of the stage show. By the way, when we went in the orchestra was playing in a pit at the head of the room. When it was time for the entertainment the whole stage rose into the view of everyone. Our seating was arranged so that foreign delegates were placed with Danish Housewives, and again it was amazing how well we got along together and how we could converse just knowing a few words of each other's language.

The dessert was a memorable one—lights were dimmed and 50 waiters entered in line, each bearing aloft a tray containing a huge mound of ice-cream and beside it baskets and shells of many designs made of ice and filled with fresh, colorful flowers, the whole tray illuminated by a concealed light. You can imagine the beauty of it and the acclaim which greeted the waiters as they marched in. The ice-cream was de luxe, filled in the centre with fresh melon balls and green grapes. Dainty iced cakes were served with it.

Mrs. Sayre, as always said the right thing, after thanking the Danish women on our behalf, "that it was no time for speech making but time to remember that a speech to be immortal does not have to be eternal."

We enjoyed this statement from one of the Danish Housewives, "It was a peculiar thing, but when man wanted to typify liberty or peace, etc., they always typified it in the form of a woman.' Excellent entertainment followed the banquet in the form of orchestra selections, soprano solo and ballet dancing. It was an evening of great pleasure and excellent companionship.

C.W.L. Sponsors Euchre Party

The Catholic Women's League sponsored a very successful euchre party on Friday evening l t in St. Michael's academy. This event was under the direction of the members of Holy Rosary School district and was convened by Mrs. Ambrose Whelan and Mrs. S. Haley and their committee which included Mrs. F. Daley, Mrs. H. Glen, Mrs. M.Guigan, Mrs. J. McHugh, Mrs. T. Morrison, Mrs. T. Bashall, Mrs. W. Harris and Mrs. P. F. Halloron.

Ladies first prize was won by Mrs. J. Wims with second prize going to Mrs. Horne and consolation prize to Mrs. Jack Doran. Gentlemen's first was won by Michael Hogan, second by R. McCullough and consolation by Michael Ryan. The door prize went to Mrs. B. Conway and was a large hamper filled with groceries, homemade pickles, jams and jellies. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, after which Mrs. Kathleen N. Doyle, president, expressed her pleasure at seeing so many present and thanked all who worked to make such a successful party.

Grandmother Returns to College After 50 Years

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 2. (AP) —Mrs. Mabel Lightner Weagin, very sprightly grandmother, has enrolled at Huntingdon college and this Fall will renew her pursuit of a diploma.

It was 50 years ago that Mrs. Feagin first set out to earn a college degree at Nashville Tenn. She quit the Nashville college for young ladies to marry and rear a family.

Her husband died in 1910 and she went to work to support her four children. By 1939, she had eight children, and decided to retire.

Club Activities

HARMONY STUDIO CLUB

The Harmony Studio club met last Monday night at the home of Mrs. Veley, Harriet Street, to resume their monthly meetings, with the President, Mrs. C. Scott, presiding.

Business was discussed and plans were made for the coming meetings of the year which take place the last Monday of each month.

Talks were given by Miss Dix, Miss Lumb, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Veley.

Miss Dix chose as her subject "My Work as a Girl Guide Instructress at Carleton Place This Summer".

Miss Lumb described picturesquely her trip to the west coast by plane, bus, train and boat.

Mrs. Thompson spoke on "Flood Conditions in Winnipeg".

Mrs. Veley described to the club members "Music Day at the Exhibition".

Records were played by Bob Reid, for study in music appreciation. Refreshments were served.

Dollar Problems Canadians Face In Old Country

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 2. (CP)—A pound note won't fit into a billfold made for dollars. A handful of shillings and pennies are heavy enough to burst the sturdiest Canadian change-purse.

These are some of the "dollar difficulties" nine Canadian newspaper women have to cope with on a three-week tour to find out what makes British industry tick.

The women are here as guests of the dollar exports board of Britain and the Canadian dollar-sterling board.

The problem of translating dollars into British money crops up every time you spy a pretty dress in a shop window with what looks like a low price tag. But the tag stands for pounds, not dollars.

Up to this week-end each pound was worth about $3.08 in Canadian money, but the rate is expected to fluctuate now that the Canadian dollar has been freed to find its own level.

Most of us still breeze blithely along, multiplying pounds by three and shillings by 15 to get a rough equivalent in dollars and cents.

Thus a velour hat priced at £3 10s. would be worth nearly $11. Stockings are advertised at five shillings, six pence but you can bet your bottom dollar—pound, rather—that they aren't nylon.

Those are usually sold on street corners for more than £1 a pair.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Says he's going to kill himself? —Don't be too scared!

So the young man is going to kill himself if you won't marry him? Or the husband who has callously mistreated you still loves you so madly—he says—that he will put an end to his life if you leave him.

Well, don't let either of them panic you into doing what your best and most careful thinking has convinced you is unwise. Don't reverse a decision based on commonsense for no better reason than that you've let yourself be scared out of putting it into effect.

One wife from whom I heard recently has been living in bitter unhappiness for eighteen years, unable to take the step that will terminate it because she has been paralyze by her husband's threats of suicide.

"Shortly after our marriage," she wrote me, "I discovered that my husband was having an affair. Ever since, there has been one after another. Each time, after he knew I had found him out, he would beg for forgiveness and promise it would never happen again. Of course the promises were never kept, I don't believe he ever really meant to keep them.

"A long time ago I decided I had forgiven him enough, and I asked him to leave. He made a fearful scene, cried, promised some more and pleaded that he couldn't live without me and our two children. Finally, he threatened suicide, so in the end I was weak enough to give in and let matters ride again.

"But now I've reached the point where I can't take it any longer. Yet I still feel helpless to do anything about it because I know he means what he says about suicide. I know it, because the other day, after an argument, he took a whole bottle of pills the doctor had left me. It gave me an awful scare."

And a girl of 20, who has been engaged for nearly a year and now wishes to break off with the young man because she's sure he won't make the right husband for her is equally terrified.

"He has told me that if I break our engagement he will make away with himself," she says, and adds: "I really believe he would do it, too, and I could never live it down if anything like that happened."

Now the first thing these frightened women should realize is that people who seriously intend to kill themselves aren't very likely to publicize the fact. They think—and usually with good reason—that if they broadcast their intentions, some definite steps would be taken to outwit them.

Those who make threats of this kind almost always do so because they believe it to be the quickest way to get what they want from somebody who's holding out on them.

Sure, the husband in the first letter actually swallowed the pills. But that didn't necessarily mean he really hoped they'd kill him. What he was almost certainly doing was taking a chance that they would merely make him sick, knowing that if he appeared to be suffering any serious effects, his wife would call a doctor quick, and all would eventually be well. Better than well, indeed, because wouldn't that show her he meant business and she wouldn't dare cross him again?

People have turned on the gas, too, and jumped into the water, and slashed their wrists with razor blades, just to show somebody, and with the same idea that they'd be rescued before it was too late.

Not long ago, another wife, distracted by a husband who had introduced the weapon of suicide threats into their marital difficulties, consulted a psychiatrist about what she should do. "He told me," she reported, "that the next time my husband made such a threat, I should tell him in a perfectly casual manner to go ahead. I was to ask him what he was waiting for, since he'd made the threat so often. The psychiatrist said he realized it would be a hard thing for me to do, but that it was my best chance to keep my husband from carrying out his threat. He said, too, that if it worked the way he believed it would, I'd hear no more such threats in future. He explained that as long as my husband knew he was keeping me too scared to go against his wishes, he'd go right on using that means of doing so. But that if I called his bluff, he'd realize the technique had lost its power and discard it.

"Well, it was hard, all right, but I did it, and it worked. The very next time my husband said he'd kill himself if I did such and such, I said, as coolly as I could, though my heart was choking me: 'All right, if that's the way you feel about it.' He looked at me a minute in complete amazement, then turned and walked out. I walked the floor all night in agony, but—he came home for breakfast the next morning and has never mentioned the incident since. It gave me courage to believe that, though things are by no means perfect yet in our home, in time they may improve if I have the will power to take a stand now and then."

It goes without saying that not all bluffs of this nature can be successfully called, and that there have been plenty of occasions on which the suicide threatener has made good his threat. But the fact still holds, that no one should allow his course of action to be regulated by fear of such a happening, nor hold himself responsible if it should occur.

For the truth is, that the person who commits suicide, letting it be known that he blames a blighted romance, a broken marriage, or anything else is giving not a reason for his act at all, but merely an excuse. The reason hiding behind the excuse is his own emotional immaturity, which makes it impossible for him to handle either himself or his problems to his satisfaction. Hence he uses what he fools himself into thinking—and hopes others will believe—is a logical cause for exit from a world with which he is unable to cope.

"I was afraid of LOSING MY JOB!...

"Today, a friend congratulated me on my new promotion. 'Beats me how you stand the pace and always look so fit', he said. How that took me back to the time when I used to wake up 'half-sick' . . . go through the days always tired and listless . . . never getting any real relief from the sluggish, 'liverish' misery of bad digestion . . . worried because I was only 'half on the job'. Then I started with Kruschen Salts. A little in the morning seemed to make a new man of me. Liverish feelings soon disappeared and I got 'regular' again. Now I'm right back on top of my job—and feeling on top of the world!"

Goyaesque Red Velvet Hat

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The wave of Spanish style influences sweeping the country scoops up centuries of history, and is borrowed from [illegible] belongings of peasant and Infanta.

This individual [illegible] has the flavor of Goya and is especially adaptable to our modern fashion chic. It is a little bright red cap, of velvet, edged with black braid loop and ball silk passementerie, and worn with this season's coarse mesh veil drawn over complexion and hair, beneath the hat brim.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Spaghetti is properly cooked when you are able to chew it.

The Italian style "al dente" or "to the teeth" means that it is boiled until tender but still somewhat firm. The individual strands of spaghetti haven't been reduced to a mush.

One of the commonest faults with spaghetti is its stickiness caused by loose starch particles. Spaghetti of the best grade, made from hard durum wheat, is not likely to diinestgrate in this way. Allow plenty of water—about 2 quarts for every half pound of spaghetti—and be sure the water is kept at a rapid boil until the cooking is completed. It's also important to stir the spaghetti when first added to the water so that the strands do not stick together in a mass.

If spaghetti does show stickiness, after it has been cooked, it should be steeped in a pot of cold water and tossed around, to wash away the loose starch. Three or four rinsings may be necessary to eliminate the gummy coating.

In casserole dishes spaghetti combines well with either very bland or highly seasoned foods. Sphaghetti with tunafish and cheese will help reduce fantastic meat bills.

Spaghetti and Tunafish Casserole.—Serves 4.

Cut 1 cup celery into 1-2 inch squares. Cover with slightly salted water and cook until celery is tender, about 15 minutes. Drain.

Cut 1-2 cup canned pimientos into 1-2 inch squares.

Drop 1-2 pound thin spaghetti (or spaghettini) into 2 quarts of rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Stir spaghetti well. Boil until just tender 9-10 minutes.

Remove spaghetti from pot, draining well. Wash in cold water if necessary.

In a saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter. Add 1-4 cup chopped onion and 1-4 cup chopped green pepper. Simmer slowly until peppers are tender.

Combine the spaghetti, celery, pimientos, onions and peppers. Add a 7 ounce can of tunafish broken into flakes.

Grate 1 cup American cheese. Mix 1-2 cup cheese with the spaghetti mixture. Add salt and pepper to taste. Turn the spaghetti into a greased baking dish.

Sprinkle balance of cheese over top of spaghetti. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place baking dish in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, until cheese is browned, about 15-20 minutes.

MRS. F. SINATRA GETS BETTER HALF OF FRANKIE'S INCOME

Women Flyers To Form Chapter Of 'The 99's'

Ottawa, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Feminine interest in flying will get a boost here next Saturday when the first foreign chapter of "The 99s" — the international organization of licensed women pilots — will receive its charter in Ottawa.

A group of 20 members of the organization, formally set up now only in, the United States, will come to Ottawa next Friday to instal the new charter.

Most of the visiting women pilots will fly their own planes to Ottawa, where a round of entertainment has been arranged for the weekend.

The first Canadian chapter will have its headquarters in Ottawa, and five of the seven chapter members are capital residents. The others are Mrs. Kay Harvey of Trenton, Ont., and Miss Marjorie Lawes of Moncton.

The Ottawa chapter expects to have members-at-large from other parts of Canada and eventually to see additional chapters set up across the country among the more than 350 Canadian women holding pilot licences. Five charter members are required to organize a chapter.

The movement had its start in 1929 when a group of licensed women flyers met to organize a flying club. There were 26 girls at the meeting. They sent out a call to other feminine air enthusiasts in the United States, Canada and abroad, and got 99 charter members. Thus the unusual name of the organization.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"R.s.v.p." asks for reply, whether it accepts or regrets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a dispute between my sister and me? She and I each received an invitation to a shower given by a mutual friend, not a very close friend. On the invitation were "R.s.v.p." and after this the telephone number. We were both going to accept the invitation. I telephoned to our friend to say that I was accepting. My sister didn't telephone at all, and is insisting that "R.s.v.p." means that you reply to the invitation only if you are not going to whatever occasion you are invited. I thought it meant that you reply in some way as to whether or not you are going. Who is right?

Claire M.

You are right. "R.s.v.p." means "please reply" . . and that obviously means that you are asked to "reply' as to whether you are accepting the invitation or regretting it. And since the telephone number was written on the invitation, this confirms the request for a reply as to "yes" or "no".

How long a time before remarrying?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman?

What is the proper length of time either a widow or a widower should wait before re-marrying?

C. H.

This is, of course, a question that just cannot be answered without a knowledge of the personal circumstances involved. Correctly, in most circumstances, a widow or widower should wait at least a little over a year before re-marrying. Less time than that, unless really justified by circumstances, does seem on the "hurried" side.

How to play telegram

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Could you tell us how to play a game called Telegram? It was in a list of suggested games for small parties and we know all the others. Thank you.

Yes. . . it's a good game, and can show ingenuity and imagination, as well as be great fun. One player gives a word of nine or ten letters (ten is best, of course, since this is the number of words in a usual telegram). For example —Skyscraper. Five minutes are given in which to write a telegram. . . .each words of which must begin with a letter of the word given, always in correct sequence. First word of telegram, in this instance, to begin with "s", the second with 'k" and so on. The name and address of the person to whom the telegram is going is also written, these to be either real or imaginary (sometimes merrily addressed to one of the other players), Another version of Telegram is the day-letter telegram. In this each player gives a word. These are listed and must be used in the order given, to write a telegram. Since the day-letter is longer than the usual telegram, players may add any connecting words they wish. Then the finished day-letters are read aloud. . . and can be most amusing.

When co-worker's wife is not included in wedding invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am employed in a large business organization, and a co-worker of mine, a man whom I have known only in a business way, has sent me a formal invitation to his formal church wedding. The invitation is addressed to me only, not to my wife and me, and it is to the church ceremony only, not to the reception which I have been told is to follow at the bride's house. My wife thinks that she should be invited also, and does not think I should go without her. What's your opinion?

Bill M.

When the wedding is to be a very large one, sometimes, indeed very often, the invitations must of necessity be limited to the business acquaintances or even business friends, and, for practical reasons, cannot be stretched to include any member of the family of the business associate or co-worker. Your wife should understand this, should realize the practical considerations.

Salute to Suede Styling

By ALICE ALDEN

By now suede has won itself an honored place as a material that is ideal not only for smart country wear but for town as well. This full length coat is of supple suede in beautiful shades set off by an ascot tie in contrasting colors. The tie is held by the flattering tunnel collar. Spoon-shaped gores begin at the shoulder and continue down to shape full pockets that cleverly accent the hipline detail.

BEAUTY

Get your beauty sleep

Before the days of the motor car, radio and television, nobody ever heard of sleeping medicines. So the old-timers tells us. You went to bed at a respectable hour, enjoyed a well-organized life and periods of leisure. Now existence is a sort of delirium of noise and crowds, especially in the big cities. Insomnia is on the increase, and that is not surprising.

It is an affliction that often baffles members of the medical profession, and your reporter is much too humble to imagine that she can suggest a cure. She has listened to complaints of women who tell about long hours of wakefulness. Most of them are beset with anxieties or worries, which goes to prove that troublesome thoughts, chasing through the mind, are what keeps the sand man away.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Insomnia is on the increase.

Many women are over-active, couldn't relax if they got paid for it. They go to bed so worn out they can't sleep. Perhaps more outdoor life, more fresh air, would solve the problem. A quiet evening is certainly a better way to prepare oneself for slumber than an evening of social excitement. A dull book will often act as a sedative. Listening to the radio or watching television may set nerves to tingling.

A ten-minute rest in a tub of warm water is relaxing to some individuals. It makes others more wakeful. Fifteen minutes of good-looks chores gives one a chance to slump. Have you tried that, if you are a wide-awaker?

After washing your face, which is absolutely a nightly duty if you expect to keep your skin in good condition, apply a heavy cream. Start at your collar bones and sweep upward and outward. Give your face a brisk tapping and slapping to speed up circulation. Friction some of the cream into your fingernails to soften the surrounding cuticle.

Brush your hair. Perhaps you fancy it will weaken your permanent. Nothing to it. Even if it did, it is better to keep your locks in a healthy condition and go through the waving ordeal oftener.

Do setting-up exercises for a few minutes, bending at the waistline, lifting your hands as you lift yourself up on your toes. Do not imagine that this will make you more wakeful. It will not. It will send slow-moving blood streams galloping. They will carry away fatigue bugs.

In bed, stretch and relax. Stretch your arms, legs and torso, fingers and toes. Then go limp as a rag. Breathe deeply and, in your mind, repeat the word "sleep". You'll get so bored that you will soon be in dreamland. Maybe!

A Girl's Favorite Best Dress

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE comes the day when you just can't beat white satin as top choice for an important occasion. You've guessed it. . . on a girl's wedding day. But can the girl always afford to have a white satin gown, or even if she can, may it seem a very extravagant indulgence for one short social appearance? One answer to both conundrums is given in this fashion photograph. It is a gorgeous white satin classic which betrays not a hint of its budget-wise character, lurking beneath the yards and yards of centre aisle skirt, the Point de Venise lace frosting.

But look at the bodice agai The whole lacy neckline, to which the sleeves are attached, is removable leaving a strapless bodice a la mode for evening. The skirt train can be cut away, leaving a full length or ankle length full dancing skirt. Presto, the trousseau evening dress, and the whole deal priced in modest best-dress range. Miss Wilma Allen, wedding consultant, who sponsors the model so to speak (and who this Fall is working on her sec ond 50,000 weddings after 2 years of advising), is probably the bride's best friend, full of helpful tricks like this.

Women's Institute

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE W.I.

Mrs. Ralph Plumpton opened her home for the regular meeting of the Cannifton-Corbyville Women's Institute, which showed an attendance of 29 members and five guests.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Mathews, who also conducted the induction of officers. After business was attended to Mr. Hollinger of the Co-operative Medical Association spoke to the group.

The topic, in charge of Mrs. C. Ellsworth, was "Home Economics" and dwelt on "Weaving". A few of the highlights of the history were given and then Mrs. Gould of Belleville, gave a demonstration on hand weaving.

There was a period of games and quizzes in which the lucky prize winners were Mrs. Margaret Shorey, Mrs. Mary McCall, Mrs. Ruby Poste and Mrs. Marguerite Eves.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Milton, Mrs. Lywood, Mrs. Latchford and Mrs. Mathews.

Mr., Mrs. Roy Bush Honored by River Valley Community

Rawdon.—Last Wednesday evening over 100 friends and relatives from the River Valley Community gathered at the home of Mr. Glenn Bush to welcome his bride, the former Grace Dunham, of Mount Pleasant, and to extend congratulations to Glenn on his recent marriage.

Mr. Jack Chard was master of ceremonies, and spoke briefly on this happy occasion.

Mrs. George Heasman led in several rounds of sentimental songs.

Appropriate readings were given by Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, Mrs. Percy Utman and Mrs. Ross Bush.

The Misses Catherine, Joanne, and Grace Heasman rendered a trio.

Mr. Glen Morrow, violin and Mr. Ernest Rosebush, piano, contributed several musical selections.

Impromptu speeches were given by a number of folk in the audience. Mr. Reg. Coombes read a humorous address to the honored couple on behalf of the charivari gang, after which they were presented with a coffee table.

Mrs. Clifford Lansing read an address on behalf of the community and Glenn and Grace were presented with a book case and one of newer designed wicker clothes hampers.

The young couple voiced their heartfelt thanks and the ladies then served refreshments.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

Madoc.—Owing to conflicting dates, the W.M. Society held their October meeting one week earlier and were entertained at the home of Mrs. Fred Fleming on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 23 members.

Mrs. Percy Caverly opened the worship service. Mrs. Bennett gave a missionary reading. The president, Miss Annie Holmes, took charge of the business period including minutes, treasurer's reports and reports of conveners.

Nominations were open for the next year's officers and on motion of Mrs. Fred Fleming and seconded by Mrs. Frank Dafoe all officers were re-elected, with installation taking place at the November meeting which is to be held on the 2nd Wednesday of the month, at the home of Mrs. Percy Holland.

A poem "Are All Children In" was read by Mrs. Fleming. Mrs. Archie Adams rendered a solo, "Sun of My Soul", and Mrs. Delbert Carmen gave the study book review of Chapter two "The United Church Re-enters Japan" written by Sybil Courtis, dealing with social welfare in Japan.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Joe Adams, Mrs. M. Fox and Mrs. Dorland Adams in serving dainty refreshments.

CENTENARY W.M.S.-W.A.

The September meeting of Centenary W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley May.

The treasurer showed a balance on hand of $61.38. Plans were made to have an open meeting in October with Mrs. B. Lehman, as guest speaker. Mrs. H. Hancock and Mrs. J. Lawrenson were nominated as delegates to the W.M.S. rally in October at Tabernacle church, Belleville.

The new study book "The United Church Re-enters Japan", was introduced. Those taking part were Mrs. G. Sills and Mrs. R. Thrasher.

Mrs. P. Sutherland offered her home for the next meeting, which will be held the first week in October.

Woman's Auxiliary

The W.A. meeting followed the W.M.S. meeting at the home of Mrs. S. May. In the absence of the president, the meeting was in charge of 1st vice president, Mrs. G. Woods. Four members contributed to the birthday box. Reports of cards and flower were given by the three conveners. Mrs. C. Bain would like the W.A. to quilt two quilts this Fall. It was decided that all sell Christmas cards again this year. Mrs. F. Edmondson and Mrs. R. Edmondson are looking after the selling of same.

The devotional part of the program was led by Mrs. D. Holton. The 1st Psalm was read in unison. A reading, "Special Purchase" was given by Mrs. F. Aikens. Mrs. Holton gave an article entitled "Good Cheer".

THURLOW

Young Couple Honored by Community Friends

Thurlow—On Monday evening friends and neighbors of the 3rd and 4th of Thurlow, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Cooney, in honor of their daughter Doris' recent marriage to Mr. Floyd Cummings, of Belleville.

When the gathering was called to order, Doris and Floyd were given seats of honor and an address was read by Miss Shirley Tweedy, signed on behalf of the community, and the young couple were presented with a trilight lamp by Norman Christie and a large decorative wall mirror by Harold Rupert, for which both the bride and bridegroom expressed their appreciation to the community.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent before everyone left for their respective homes.

Women of the Moose

The regular meeting of the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435 was held last Thursday in the Saco club rooms with 35 members present. The meeting was called to order by Sr. Regent Selina Isles. After the roll call of officers recorder Gladys Ritch read the minutes of the previous meeting and all communications. Report was also read on how many attended the convention at the Royal Connaught, Hamilton.

After the meeting was brought to a close two co-workers, who celebrated September birthdays, were led to gift laden tables, co-workers being Doris Ashton and Luella Downes.

The gifts were opened and the co-workers thanked for their thoughtfulness. Pianist Irene Read, played many favorites.

Chapter 60 invited all members of 435 to have refreshments to which the Loyal Order of Moose of Port Hope, Trenton, Belleville, had been invited.

As this was publicity night the tables were decked in newspaper. The refreshment entertainment and prizes were all donated by Chapter 60 to whom guide Marg. Mallette, gave a vote of thanks. The pillow cases donated by co-worker Florence Carufel, were won by Doris Ashton.

Co-worker Nell Haslip won the prize for being the longest number of years in the Chapter and co-worker English, the prize for the shortest length of time. The door prize was won by Governor Bill Thompson, of Belleville Lodge. The second door prize was won by co-worker Peggy Benedict. The two lucky chairs by Sr. Regent Selina Isles and Freddy Page.

The prizes for the fattest and thinnest men went to Governor Bomsey, Port Hope and Brother Benedict, Frankford.

The evening came to a close with all singing "Happy Birthday". A great deal of credit goes to Chapter 60 for their splendid

FRANKFORD

S.S. Members Hold 'Family Night' In Community Hall

Frankford.—A family night for Sunday School members of the Frankford Charge was held in the Community Hall, Wednesday evening. A good turnout was present from the four appointments, Zion, Stockdale, Batawa and Frankford. Superintendent, G. S. Martin, led in a sing-song before starting the program. The evening opened with a hymn, following which, Rev. Mr. Fletcher of Wooler, led in a responsive Psalm. Rev. MacEachern then led in prayer.

Mr. Martin welcomed everyone, and announced the numbers in turn as they were presented. Each appointment had two numbers on the program. Highlight of the program was a one-act play dealing with Christian Missions, presented by the Frankford Sunday School. This was capably directed by Marilyn Wannamaker, who was the convener in charge of the program as a whole.

Each superintendent spoke briefly, expressing the joy at being able to attend the gathering, and advocated more of such joint meetings.

A report on the World Convention on Christian Education was given by four delegates of the Frankford Charge, in the form of a panel discussion. Rev. Mr. Fletcher of Wooler, led in the discussion.

Rev. Mr. McEachern closed the meeting.

Personals

The fire siren sounded shortly after 10:00 Wednesday evening, and the Frankford Fire Brigade went out in full force to the home of Mr. Elgin Payne. Fortunately, an overheated stove was checked in time and no damage is reported.

Wednesday evening guests of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. MacEachern were Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Cox, Stockdale, Mrs. Blake Terry of Murray, Mrs. Harold Wiley and Mrs. Gordon Chase, of Murray, and others.

IVANHOE

Mr., Mrs. A. Creaser Honored by Neighbor Charges

Ivanhoe. —A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Creaser, on Tuesday evening, in Ivanhoe Town Hall. This happy event brought friends from the neighboring charges of Salem, White Lake and Fuller.

Rev. B. Beckel was chairman for the interesting program as follows:

Round of community singing with Mrs. Reg. Haggerty at the piano; Misses Shirley, Marion and Lois Broadworth sang, "A Marriage Vow" and "Have I Told You Lately That I Love You", with guitar accompaniment.

Mrs. Keith Bray's school staged a mock wedding.

Ivanhoe quartet consisting of Keith Bray, Earl McMaster, Rev. B. Beckel and George Wood, gave two numbers "In Grandpa's Beard", and "The First Seven Years are the Worst". Miss Margaret Wright gave a reading and Mrs. Roy Demille and Mrs. Elvin Holland rendered a duet.

Presentation Made

An address was read by Mrs. Thomas Clements, of Salem, and the presentation of a lovely chest of silver was made by Mrs. Murney Johnston.

An address of appreciation was also read by Miss Marjorie Prest, on behalf of the Ivanhoe charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Creaser warmly expressed their heartfelt thanks for the many lovely gifts and the many kindnesses shown them and extended an invitation to all to visit them in their new home at Hillside.

Brief speeches were given by Mr. Stanley Prest representing Ivanhoe Mr. Earl Holland, White Lake; Mr. Wm. Johnston, Salem; while Rev. B. Beckel spoke on behalf of the Fuller congregation, in the absence of Mr. Herb. Burke.

Mention was made of the splendid work Phyllis had done in the S.S., Y.P.O., W.M.S., and church choir, where she faithfully and efficiently served as organist and choir leader.

Mr. Creaser came to Ivanhoe from Frankford, highly commended for his work there, while in charge of the Ivanhoe circuit has made a host of friends whose best wishes go with him and Mrs. Creaser to their new charge at Hillside.

Local Branch U.C. Bible Society Holds Annual Meeting

Tweed.—On Wednesday evening, the local branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held their annual meeting in St. John's United Church with W. S. Gordon, president, in the chair. Mrs. J. J. Luffman, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Rev. W. H. Young, Toronto, Field Secretary, of the Society, was the guest speaker, and was delighted to see so many present. Mr. Young gave an interesting talk on the work of the Society, in their efforts to get the people to realize the great work they are doing. He said that young people must be taught the truth of the Bible, and to know the Bible was for them to read it themselves. He also said that before long, high school students would be asked to write essays on the Bible.

Over 20,000,000 copies of the Bible are circulated throughout the world with over 1,000,000 copies having been sent to Brazil alone. The Bible has been printed in Braille for the use of the ever increasing number of blind people.

Mr. Young showed a wonderful sound film entitled "In Times Like These".

The Sunday School had invited the officers, teachers and parents to hold a social evening in conjunction with the Bible Society meeting, to listen to a report from Mr. W. S. Gordon and Mrs. C. C. Atton, who were delegates to the 13th World Convention of the World Council of Churches, held in Toronto, August 10-16.

There were 6,000 delegates registered from 62 countries of the world, and 27,000 people signed the Welcome Book.

Mrs. Atton told of the Young People's Rally that was held at Maple Leaf Gardens when 15,000 people jammed into the place. She spoke of meeting and talking to many of the delegates and also showed a number of pictures of herself taken with the different delegates.

Mr. Gordon called on Mrs. W. Provost who sang as a solo "Fairest Lord Jesus", which was sung a great deal at the convention.

Mr. Gordon was chosen as one of the delegates from Ontario, who helped carry the volumes of the Welcome Book to the centre of the platform.

Refreshments were served and a delightful evening brought to a close.

Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales were in Toronto, for a few days during the week.

John Douglas and Frank Hammond, of Toronto, are spending a week's holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Sim McCrea. Mrs. Ida Douglas, also of Toronto, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beatty.

Mr. and Mrs. Sim McCrea, of Tweed, and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Chase, of Frankford, spent a couple of days in Meaford.

Athabaskan Bombards Military Targets

Tokyo, Oct. 2, (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Athabaskan has again struck at the Korean communists—this time bombarding military targets near Kunsan on the southwest coast of Korea.

A United States navy summary said Saturday that the Athabaskan, one of the three Canadian warships with U.N. forces, was joined in the action Thursday night and Friday by the Australian destroyed Bataan. One mine was destroyed in the approaches to Kunsan.

There was no mention of casualties, and it is presumed the Canadian sailors have yet to suffer any.

American ground forces in South Korea are driving toward the west coast but have not yet reached it in the Kunsan area.

The Athabaskan, a tribal-class destroyer commanded by Cmdr. R. P. Welland of McCreary, Man., took part last Monday in a raid on Oran, a tiny communist-held island in the Yellow Sea. Seventy communists also were reported killed. That was the third land action of the Korean war for the Athabaskan's bluejackets. Before the Oran raid, the Athabaskan, with South Korean warships, shelled the island for two and a half hours.

The other Canadian ships in Korean waters are the destroyer Sioux, under the command of Cmdr. Paul Taylor of Victoria, and the Cayuga, under Capt. J. V. Brock of Winnipeg.

HAIL, THE CHAMPIONS

The sweaters can now go back to the mothballs or wherever softball sweaters go. The arguments can lose some of their fire and the various games relegated to the cracker barrel league or the winter evening caucases. For the shouting and the tumult ceases, the champions have been declared and Old Mother Mushball takes to her knitting for the winter.

For Saturday night was the deadline for the Commercial Softball League titular tilts and the last glimmers of the now somewhat feeble flickering of the Exhibition Grounds kleigs. It was a dead heat and perhaps a good thing for all concerned.

Yup, kiddies the new champions were officially declared on Saturday evening and while not officially crowned they wore their honors proudly. Manager Mike Whalen, of the proud Ox Pointer team wearing the colors of the Canada Cement Company of Point Anne are the new senior "A" section champions while Manager Warpy O'Brien's Bateman Motors are the winners of the "B" section gonfalon.

At a date in the near future the Point Anne and Bateman Motors champions will be honored at a banquet when the Pointers will receive the Wishing Well Trophy, emblematic of the "A" title and Bateman Motors will be given the brand new gleaming Labatt Trophy. It should be a grand party for all concerned for the Conger Lehigh and Pellar Trophies will also be awarded to Yank McBride and Leo Goyer, respective batting champions of the sections. Tis reported Bill Durnan, ambassador extraordinary of the Labatt Company will be here to do the honors and to give the boys a few words of wisdom. Bill in his off moments this winter will coach the Ottawa Senators senior puckchasers.

The Point Anners are worthy champions. They proved to the league and the softball world in general, hereabouts at least that they were money players and could come through when the chips were down. They surprised the faithful in general and not a few of the old die-hards in particular in the semi-finals when they defeated the proud Brewers in three straight games. Brewers, it was confidently expected earlier in the season, would go to the finals mat with the Howe and Hagerman squad in the finals mat with the Howe and Hagerman squad in the finals, but the upsurging Ox Pointers who apparently never struck their real stride until the playoffs upset all that dope.

It was a matter for conjecture, too, in some quarters, if the Point team could "take" the Howe and Hagerman squad, favorite all season to cop the titular nod. They dropped the first one, picked up two sensational victories, dropped a close 5-4 decision in the fourth game and came through with a convincing win for the title on Saturday night. They were full value for their money and thoroughly deserved to win the championship on their playoff form. And Howe and Hagerman were the first to congratulate their conquerors after the series was over.

Bateman Motors, too, are worthy title holders of the "B" Section. They played consistent softball all through the schedule and were practically pushed into the finals when Belleville Motors were forced to withdraw because of inability to field a team at the time prescribed by league officials for the playoffs. However, that was one of those things that could not be helped and was definitely no fault of Batemans. They surged through the finals in three straight games, defeating the gallant Avons, a team of youngsters playing together for the first time and who put up a great fight against their superior foemen. All four finalists held high the banner of softball for the Commercial League, and the season just completed was by far the most successful since the inception of the loop.

Baltimore Evens Series Defeating Columbus 8-1

Baltimore, Oct. 3 — (AP)—The army gave southpaw Harvey Maddix, Columbus hurler with an 18-6 season record, a special pass from Fort Dix, N. J., to pitch against Baltimore in the Little World Series.

The Orioles gave him a special pass to the showers in the sixth inning of Sunday's game after 3 home runs off his deliveries.

Having taken the first game of the four-of-seven series, the American Association representatives expected Haddix, a recent draftee, to make it two straight.

But the Orioles displayed the same homerun power that carried them through two rounds of the International League playoffs.

They sent four balls over the fence, three off Maddix and one off reliefer Bob Habenicht, as they won, 8-1 to even the series.

First baseman George Byam got two of the all-the-way clouts. Austin Knockerbocker and Butch Woyt hit the others.

Columbus also ran into some neat pitching. Karl Drews, a tall righthander, threw a six-hitter and only leftfielder Larry Miggins' homer in the fourth spoiled a shutout.

Fighting Phils Take First National League Pennant in 35 Years, Rest for Series

By JOE REICHLER

Philadelphia, Oct. 2 (AP)—Their first pennant in 35 years finally safely stowed away beyond Brooklyn's reach, Philadelphia's fighting Phillies plan to shoot the works against the favored New York Yankees in the world series starting here Wednesday.

Unless there is a change of heart, Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phils will open up with Robin Roberts, conqueror of the Dodgers yesterday in the biggest game of the year, Roberts will be opposed by Allie Reynolds in a battle of righthanders.

The Yankees, well rested following their clinching of the American League pennant last Friday, will rule a 2-1 favorite over the Phils. Experts figure the Yanks have too much experience, deeper reserve strength and stronger pitching than the youthful Whiz Kids.

Philly Manager Eddie Sawyer does not appear to be the least bit worried about the Yankee prowess.

"We weren't figured to have a chance to beat Brooklyn for the pennant, were we?" he reminded.

Rosy-cheeked Robin yesterday undoubtedly pitched the greatest game of his career, but he still got a great battle from Brooklyn's Don Newcombe. If Dick Sisler hadn't hit that homer with two on in the top of the 10th to snap a 1-1 tie, the game might be going on yet.

Roberts Wins 20th

The blow by Sisler, son of the immortal George, who acts as Brooklyn's head scout, ended Brooklyn's "miracle" finish that for a time threatened to throw the race into a last-day tie. It gave Roberts his 20th victory of the year after the youngster had made five futile tries for it.

Although Roberts yielded but five blows to 11 for Newcombe, he had to summon all his wile and cunning to hold off a Brooklyn bases-loaded threat in the ninth that appeared destined to bring about the Phillies' sixth straight defeat.

A crowd of 35,073, biggest of the year at Ebbets Field, went into hysterics as Cal Abrams led off the last of the ninth with a walk and took second on a single by Pee Wee Reese.

Slashes Single

That brought up Duke Snider, the best lefthanded hitter on the club. With everyone expecting a bunt, Snider teed off and slashed a line single to centre. Abrams attempted to score from second, but Richie Ashburn made a sparkling one-handed scoop of the ball and threw to the plate. The ball came in on a good hop right into Stan Lopata's hands and Abrams was tagged out standing up.

But Roberts was not out of the hole yet. There were still runners on second and third (Snider went to second on the throw) and only one out. Sawyer ordered Jackie Robinson purposely passed. That loaded the bases.

Carl Furillo, swinging at the first pitch, raised a soft foul to first-baseman Eddie Waitkus. Gil Hodges sent a long fly that went for the third out.

Then it was the Phillies's turn. Sawyer debated taking Roberts out for a pinch-hitter by finally decided to let the pitcher hit for himself. Roberts opened with a single to centre. Waitkus blooped another.

Bunted Into Force

Ashburn, attempting to sacrifice, munted in to a force play at third. That set the stage for Sisler's game-winning clout.

Still playing with a bandaged right wrist that had kept him out of action for two weeks, Dick worked the count to a ball and two strikes, then sent a high arching fly to left. The ball carried into the stands, about four rows in. That was the ball game. Roberts got the side out in order in the last of the 10th.

In the American League games on the season's closing play, the Yankees lost 7-3 to Boston Red Sox, who had already clinched third place; second-place Detroit dropped a 7-5 decision to Cleveland Indians, who wound up fourth; the last-place Philadelphia Athletics wound up with a 5-3 triumph over Washington, who ended up in fifth place; and Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns split a doubleheader, Sox winning the opener 4-3 and the Browns the finale 10-6. Chicago took sixth place and St. Louis seventh.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Giants closed out in third place with a 5-1 victory over Boston Braves, who finished fourth. Chicago Cubs, second-last team in the league, closed with a 3-2 victory over the fifth-place Cardinals Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, sixth and last respectively, split a doubleheader, the Reds taking the first 3-2 and losing the nightcap 3-1.

St. Catharines Back in Running For Loop Title

St. Catharines, Oct. 2—(CP)—St. Catharines Athletics swamped Owen Sound Crescents 16-3 here Saturday night to even their Ontario Lacrosse Association best-of-seven finals at two games each.

Next game of the series will be at Owen Sound Monday night. The sixth game will be here, with the seventh game, if needed, to be played on neutral territory.

Three Donnybrooks broke out during the game. Fourteen penalties were handed out, three of them majors.

St. Catharines led 1-0 at the end of the first quarter, 5-0 after the second and 9-1 at the three-quarter mark.

Wipper spearheaded the winners' attack, scoring four goals and an assist.

MARMORA

Tweed Defeats Marmora High By 22-5 Score

Marmora—Playing at home on the Deloro field to Tweed on Friday afternoon Marmora High School rugby team was defeated by the score of 22-5. The Marmora line up had several players making their debut and Tweed as a team were heavier. The homesters showed a weakness in tackling which it is expected they will overcome with more practice. With two touchdowns and a one point kick, Holmes got half of the score for his team. In the second quarter, Borland got Marmora's touchdown.

Score by quarters:

All six National Hockey League teams saw action during the weekend in exhibitions with farmhands. In the main, the Majorleaguers turned in lopsided victories.

A veteran and a rookie sparkled on the offence as Toronto Maple Leafs walloped Pittsburgh Hornets 7-1 Saturday night in St. Catharines, then moved over to Buffalo Sunday and smacked Buffalo Bisons 8-1.

Centre Max Bentley scored three in Saturday's game, and rookie Tod Sloan went him one better by bagging four Sunday.

At Sudbury, Chicago Black Hawks ran roughshod over their Milwakee Sea Gulls farmhands 13-5 Saturday with Bep Guidolin, who only last season started to come into his own as a scorer, bagging four goals. Gus Bodnar and defenceman Jack Stewart got a brace apiece.

The Leafs came up with a rather surprising player shift. Left-winger Vic Lynn, a four-year man with the club, was sent down to Pittsburgh Hornets. Never a high scorer, he was used largely in utility roles and last year developed into an ace penalty-killer. The word is that this move is in line with general manager Conn Smythe's program to inject more scoring punch into his club.

Maurice (The Rocket) Richard bagged two goals as Montreal Canadiens played a 4-4 tie with Buffalo Bisons at home Saturday. Sunday they defeated Chicoutimi Saguenays 4-2 before 6,000 fans at Chicoutimi. Richard again shone, feeding Elmer Lach with a goal-producing pass to break a 2-2 deadlock, and finishing off Canadiens' scoring with a goal himself a minute and half later.

New York Rangers laced St. Paul Saints of the United States Hockey League 8-4 Saturday in an exhibition at Lake Placid, N.Y., their training headquarters. Jackie McLeod and Pentti Lunder potted two goals each for the blue shirts.

At Hershey, Pa., Boston Bruins and Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League battled to a scorless tie in the first exhibition game of the Bruins' training season. Johnny Crawford, one-time star and now playing pilot of the Bears, made his bow to Hershey fans and promptly trimmed back the ears of his former mates.

Detroit Red Wings sold centre Patt Lundy to Chicago Black Hawks in a straight cash deal during the weekend. The 26-year-old Lundy, a native of Saskatoon, joined the club in March 1946. Later he alternated a lot between the Wings and their American League Farm Club at Indianapolis.

A TIME FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a brief pause in our busy lives which provides an opportunity to take stock of our good fortune! Family—friends—good health—home—freedom . . . these are among the many blessings for which we should be grateful. We can be thankful, too, that as Canadians, we share more privileges and greater opportunities than the people of any other country in the world. To think of these things, to realize their importance in our individual lives, to appreciate them—these are essentials of "Good Citizenship".

Underdog Victories Tighten Football Races; Argonauts, Tigers Beaten Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The teams who just had to win football games won them during the weekend.

An exception was the once-mighty Calgary Stampeders who took a 22-0 drubbing from Winnipeg Blue Bombers and lost almost any hope of a playoff spot.

Ottawa Rough Riders needed to beat Toronto Argonauts to recover from a dismal early-season performance. They battered the Argos 15-5 in a surprising reversal of last week's game when Argos crushed the Riders 36-15.

Montreal Alouettes, defending Dominion champions, needed a win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats to keep within shouting distance of the rest of the pack in the Interprovincial Football Union. Alouettes ended a four-game losing streak by upsetting Hamilton 31-18 in a Sunday game in Montreal.

In the west, a win over Eskimos would have all but clinched a playoff spot for Saskatchewan Roughriders. But a last-minute touchdown by Al Bodine gave the Riders the game 9-6.

In the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Toronto Balmy Beaches trounced Windsor Rockets 24-10 in a Sunday game at Toronto. Beaches also beat the University of Toronto 25-15 in an exhibition game.

In other exhibition games — warm-ups for the Intercollegiate season which opens next Saturday—Sarnia Imperials, the ORFU leaders, beat the University of Western Ontario 24-19 at London and Queen's beat McMaster 23-6 at Hamilton Saturday.

The weekend in the Big Four left Argos still in first place, two points ahead of Ottawa and Hamilton. Montreal trails by another two points.

Has Game in Hand

In the Western Conference, Winnipeg and Edmonton are left in a tie for first place but Winnipeg has a game in hand. The clubs meet tonight in Edmonton. Roughriders are four points behind the first-place club with four wins and four losses while Calgary trails with a single win and eight defeats.

Sarnia still heads the O.R.F.U. with three wins and no losses, while Balmy Beach has two wins and a loss and Windsor Rockets are winless in four starts.

Ottawa won the game along the wing line, where its fighting front wall slowed down the Argo backs and gave ample time for Ottawa's attack to develop. The Riders rolled over the Argo machine almost at will during the first half, but led by only a single point, the result of a long punt by Bruce Cummings. Just at the start of the third quarter, Argo halfback Billy Bass scampered 85 yards for a touchdown. But an Argo fumble set up a touchdown by Andy Gordon. It was followed by another single by Cummings.

Frank Dunlap powered over for another major in the final quarter. Both Ottawa touchdowns were converted by Eric Chipper.

Trailing at the start of the third quarter, Alouettes roared into life and counted three majors in the third period with another in the final. Tommy Manastersky and Virgil Wagner each went across twice. Keith English got another on a pass from Frank Filchock—one of two touchdown passes by Filchock.

Had Little Trouble

Bill Gregus got two of the Hamilton touchdowns. Jack Stewart got the other on a three-yard plunge and Edgar Jones converted two of them.

Winnipeg had little trouble in crushing the ailing Stampeders. Tom Casey went 10 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter and Joe Aguirre converted. A Calgary fumble in the second quarter set up a Jack Jacobs-to-Tommy Ford pass for another. Aguirre converted it and kicked a field goal in the same quarter. Ford got another major in the third period. Aguirre again clicked for the extra point and finished off the day with a last-quarter single.

An Edmonton fumble in the last period set up the game-winning play for the Roughriders. Jack Hartman had put Riders in the lead with a first-quarter field goal only to have Edmonton roar back with a touchdown on Lindy Berry's heave to Morris Bailey.

Late in the final quarter, Sully Glasser picked up the fumble at his own 41 and went to Edmonton 27. Two passes from Hartman to Bodine got the winning major and Hartman got the convert.

Twelve Cars Race at New Speedway Park

Twelve stock models of racing automobiles will provide the main feature at the opening of the new Speedway Park near Marysville on Wednesday afternoon, it was announced by owner R. L. Burrowes today.

The new speedway is situated two miles east of Shannonville, north of the highway and is one-half mile in length. The track is an oiled-dirt affair and has the sanction of the new five-man board recently created to supervise Canadian automobile racing, Mr. Burrowes said.

Wednesday's inaugural meet will consist of six races and any stock model automobile can be entered. All cars however must comply with police regulation and doors must be welded or tied down. Shock-proof glass or no glass at all is permissible.

Stock car racing is rapidly gaining popularity in Toronto and other parts of Canada. At speedways throughout the country crowds estimated at between 4,000 and 8,000 thrill to the spectacular sights as the cars roar over the track.

City and district drivers interested in entering their cars at the Speedway Park on Wednesday should contact Mr. Burrowes at 130 Front St.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Wonder what George Sisler was thinking during that 10th inning yesterday—what with Don knocking George's Dodgers out of a pennant chance. But you can't say it wasn't even-Stephen—last year the Phils carried the Brooks to the 10th inning of the final day before they escaped a playoff. This year the Dodgers did the same thing to the Phils.

Of course, it may have been merely that the Brooklyn players really listened to Branch Rickey's explanation of why he is selling his stock in the club. Remember? Branch said nobody can live on his salary these days; he has to have some extra income, the Dodgers know all about the salaries Rickey pays, so naturally they were after a world series shot for the "extras".

What's the pitch? Somehow we can't see a team that staggered into the title the way the Phillies did whipping a real pro outfit like the Yankees in the world series, but if the Phils had Curt Simmons, we'd give them a chance; the Yanks didn't look exactly like fireballs last week either, but, as usual, the series probably will go to the team that gets the steadiest pitching and it looks as if Jim (74 games) Konstanty will get more work when the kids have to face Rizzuto, Berra, Dimaggio, Mize and Bauer—five hitters in a row who can bust up a ball game. And, say, what became of those early-season protests that the "rabbit" ball didn't give pitchers a chance?

Monday Matinee

This is one time you can't blame football coaches for having the crying towel. Of the teams that were rated at the top by the preseason pickers, Michigan and Tennessee were knocked off Saturday; Notre Dame won by just one touchdown and Army's offensive line wasn't what they're used to seeing at West Point. . .. When Frank Hyde of the Jamestown, N.Y., Post Journal picked Ez Charles to outpoint Joe Louis, he preserved his record of naming the winner in advance every time the heavyweight title changed hands since Jack Dempsey beat Jess Willard. ..risking fate, Hyde picks Charles to kayo Lee Savold in nine rounds when they meet.

Point Anne, Batemans Win City Softball Championships

Point Anne and the Bateman Motors are the 1950 sectional champions of the City Commercial Softball League.

The Point team won the "A" Section championship and the Wishing Well Trophy at Exhibition Park Saturday night when they defeated Howe and Hagerman 13-4 in the fifth and deciding game of the championship series.

The series was tied at two-all going into Saturday night's game but the Point came through with a convincing effort to win the game, series and title after the How-Hags strove desperately to pull the game out of the fire.

Close Game

Bateman Motors under the guiding hand of Coach "Warpy" O'Brien, won the "B" section championship by virtue of three straight wins over the gallant Avon Jewellers. Batemans rolled over the hard-fighting Avons in the first two games by heavy scores but the Jewellers gave them the best argument of the series Saturday night, losing by a 9-6 count.

It was too much Maracle for the Howe and Hagermans. The dusky Point Anne hurler came through with his third win over the opposition Saturday night. He hurled superlative softball all through the series especially in the second game when he shut out the enemy by a 3-0 score. The Howe and Hagerman hurlers, Hunter and Al. Adams pitched masterful ball but the Point's clutch hitting and pitching gave them the edge.

Score Three in First

Point Anne got a commanding lead in the first innings on Saturday night when they scored three times to grab a lead they never relinquished. Howe and Hagerman however came back after Point Anne had scored a single in the second to tie the count at four all when they slipped over a trio of markers on hits by Moe Rollins, Roger Mallory and Widge Adams.

The game was clinched however in the fourth inning when the Ox Pointers shoved over four runs on three hits and an error and from that point on, Maracle was master of the situation. He blanked the Howe and Hagerman squad with three hits over the remaining five innings.

Plan Banquet

After the game the defeated Howe and Hagerman team went to the Point bench and congratulated their conquerors. The Commercial League executive announced that the championship trophies and individual awards to batting champions of both sections will be presented at a banquet to be held in the near future at which it is expected, Bill Durnan, former goalie of the Canadiens, National Hockey League team, will be the guest speaker.

Olympic Assoc. Limits Officials In the Parade

(By The Canadian Press)

It looks as though they may be giving the Olympic Games back to the competitors—at least as far as Canada is concerned.

The Canadian Olympic Association decided at a Montreal meeting Saturday that the number of officials at the 1952 Olympic Games must not exceed 10 percent of the competitors for the opening parade.

The Association estimated it would cost approximately $170,000 to send Canadians to the Olympic Winter Games in Oslo, in February, 1952 and to the Summer Games in July and August in Helsinki.

A story that may start a new fad in referee-testing comes from Manchester, England.

After preliminary training as referees for junior soccer league, a number of men were given a test.

It was found that six were color blind and could not distinguish one team from another.

The Canadian basketball team won their second match in the World Jewish Olympics by beating Belgium 80-12 at Tel Aviv Sunday night.

Welterweight boxer William Eugent Sudney of Toronto, beat Israel's Gabi Held for the 147-pound championship.

Joe Kirkwood, Jr., of Hollywood, the Joe Palooka of the movies, proved he was no palooka with a golf club Sunday. He won the Ozarks Open Golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 201, 18 strokes under par, at Springfield, Mo.

Syracuse University won the International Silver Trophy relay race championship at Toronto Saturday, covering the 30-mile distance in three hours, four minutes and 23 seconds.

The novel race—an annual fixture since 1904—started at Earlscourt Park, Toronto, with the 10-man teams carrying the batons to Waterdown, Ont.

Close behind Syracuse came the Hamilton Olympic Club, in three hours, seven minutes, 31 seconds.

Third was Toronto's Gladstone Athletic Club, with three hours, nine minutes, four seconds.

Roger Whynott, former Canadian middleweight champion from Mahone Bay, N.S., gained a 10-round decision at Saint John, N.B., Saturday night over Marc Begin, 19-year-old Montrealer. It was the first loss in 23 bouts for Begin, who outpointed Whynott two weeks ago.

George D. Widener's Battlefield wrapped up honors as the champion two-year-old horse of 1950 when he drove to the wire Saturday to win the $106,415 Belmont Futurity.

Oshawa Seniors Take Waterloo To Even Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers and Oshawa Merchants, each with a game under their belts, meet in Oshawa tonight in the third game of their best-of-seven series for the Ontario Baseball Championship.

Tigers, champions of the intercounty league, won the first game at home Saturday 9-4. Merchants, Viaduct League champions and winners of the Canadian Sandlot Tournament, roared back to a 7-1 win in Toronto Sunday.

Tony Delaurentis held Tigers to one hit in the second game while three of the Merchants collected home runs. Merchants raked starter Marv Meyers for seven hits before he was pulled.

Wood, Walsh and Harper hit the homers. Auggie Herchenratter's single in the fifth drove in the only Waterloo run.

In the Saturday game, centrefielder Alex Kvasnak batted a perfect four-for-four as Tigers reached Gerry Creasy for 14 hits. Al Dumouchelle yielded nine and struck out an even dozen Oshawa batters.

In a Sunday Junior playoff in Toronto, Toronto Peter Pans took both ends of a doubleheader 11-0 and 9-4 from Brockville Braves to reach the finals for the provincial championship. Peter Pans now meet Guelph Regents for the provincial championship.

In the Niagara District Senior League, Welland Stokes forced a seventh game in the league championship finals by staving off a late-inning rally by Niagara Fa Fords and winning 6-5. Th the series 3-3.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The guy who makes me want to fight decisions that are crummy determines if a bid is right or wrong by double dummy.

Double dummy means seeing all four hands of a deal. A bid or play is not necessarily correct because it happens to work in some deal you have seen. It must work in the majority of cases.

Comes a letter with the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH
♠A J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3 2
♥None

♠Q 4
♥A 8 4 2
♦A K 9
♣K 9 8 6

Opponents led a small diamond and this pair made a grand slam in spades. I am asked how the bidding should go. How come there is no rule bidding that reaches slam, they want to know.

If east has the club ace and west leads a club the declarer is held to 11 tricks in a spade contract. So, the fact that it took 13 tricks does not prove that it should be in six or seven.

My decisions are made only from rule and not from the result of any one hand. So, what actually happened has no bearing on what the correct bidding and final contract should be.

South has no opening bid of one or two or three. The only rule opening I know for this hand is a pre-empt of four spades. But fear of such a bid is that partner may pass with enough to make a slam.

Such a bid should not be used by the dealer or the player at the left of dealer. Only if partner has passed a chance to open is there little chance to make a slam by your pair.

My inclination here would be to pass. If my partner can open with a bid of one club or one diamond I might then hop to six spades. This seems to be the best practical course.

Any such combination of cards in one hand is bound to be some kind of a gamble. A slam depends on which tops are held by partner. Not how many. Or, its success may depend on a lucky lead.

Maybe somebody else knows a better answer.

Attendance Down Fifteen Per Cent In Both Leagues

New York, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Major-league baseball drew 17,226,824 fans during the 1950 season, a drop of 15 per cent from 1949, according to an unofficial survey by the Associated Press.

The National League lured 8,025,169 customers and the American 9,201,655 during the campaign which ended yesterday. In 1949, 9,484,718 fans patronized National League games and 10,730,647 American League contests for a two-league total of 20,215,365. The National League attendance in 1950 was off 16 per cent and the American 14 per cent.

Philadelphia's pennant - winning Phillies, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and New York drew over a million this year. Only Philadelphia and Cincinnati failed to draw a million in 1949.

New York Yankees, Detroit, Cleveland and Boston were the only American League clubs to draw more than a million fans this season. The same teams also were the only ones to draw a million in 1949.

The Phillies, Detroit and St. Louis Browns were the only clubs to better their 1949 attendance, the Phils zooming to a record with 1,217,080. Cleveland fell off 511,736 and Philadelphia A's dropped 506,429. Brooklyn took the biggest dip in the National — 448,648 paid admissions.

AT THE BELLE — Tender touch. Glenn Ford and the lovely Valli are thrown together and romance ensues, in RKO Radio's Technicolor romance, "The White Tower," also starring Claude Rains and Oscar Homolka, continuing today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre.

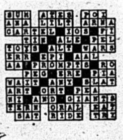
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop and ma were eating breakfist kind of quiet, and pop said, What a life. Yee gods, I dont know why I ever go down to that office of mine. There's nothing down there but peeple making mistakes and expecting to get paid for it, and if they didn't get paid for it they'd quit, and other peeple would come in and make the same mistakes and expect to get paid ever more. I vow and swear the only reason I dont close up the place and retire is because I cant afford to, he said.

Well jimminy roozalem, pop, you awt to be glad you aint me, sitting in school all day like a frozen statue listening to stuff you wish you had never heard and then getting heck and bad reports if you dont remember every werd of it by hart, I said. And anyways, pop, you can get down to your office late and nobody can say beans to you, and you can walk out of it any time you feel like it and stay out as long as you want, but how about me and school? I said, and pop said, By gollies, it seems that we men are always and forever floundering in a sea of trubble, every last one of us, and the best we can do is pity each other while we try to keep our heads above water.

Oh, you 2 make me weary, ma said. I only wish I could be a member of the male sex just for one lifetime. I declare I'd just cast care to the winds and sing like a morning lark. I'm going to cleen and dust this entire house today, and do you know why? Have you an idea what for? Well I'll tell you—just to make hundreds of shiny spotless surfaces for tomorrow's dust to settle on, that's what for, she said, and pop said, Benny, can it be that we are both comparatively lucky guys?

G, pop, I guess maybe we are, I said, and we shook hands to congradulate each other and I walked a far as the bus with him for company on my way to school.

Collegiate Srs. Drop Game To T.C.S. 29-22

By DON DOLAN

In an exhibition football game on Saturday, Trinity College defeated Belleville Collegiate Seniors 29-22. This was the first game of the season for each team.

Paced by a Belleville boy, David Smith, T.C.S. scored first. After a series of exchanges, Trinity kicked on a third down but the kick was fumbled by B.C.I. and a Trinity player recovered fumble deep into Belleville territory. After forward pass failed to click, Smith swept around the right end and ran 15 yards for the first score of the game to give Trinity a 5-0 lead. The convert was missed.

Second Quarter Life

In the second quarter the B.C.I. team came to life. After brilliant runs by Ken Allen and "Smiler" Greene had brought the Belleville team into enemy territory, Doug Soule fired a 25 yard pass to Tom Lewis who outran the Trinity defenders over the goal line to tie up the game. B.C.I. also missed on their first convert try. Belleville continued to go on the offense in the second quarter, still being led by Allen and also McBride. Once again Soule fired a pass into the end zone. Don Barclay, surrounded by three T.C.S. players, leaped high into the air and came down with the ball to give B.C.I. a 10-5 lead. Soule's attempted placement split the uprights and since there was no further scoring in this half, B.C.I. led the field leading 11-5.

T.C.S. took advantage of a penalty to B.C.I. in the opening minutes of the third period and brought the ball to within 25 yards of the Belleville goal line. Then McDermott made a great run to score Trinity's second T.D. During this dash at least six B.C.I. players laid a hand on the shifty runner but he managed to zig-zag his way to pay dirt. Wright converted and the score was tied 11-11.

Belleville then took the kick-off and marched down the field. From about 15 yards out Soule attempting to kick a field goal, booted the ball wide of the uprights but B.C.I. tacklers trapped a T.C.S. player behind the line and B.C.I. again led 12-11. However, Trinity took over and marched the ball up the field. On third down T.C.S. kicked but were awarded the ball deep in Belleville territory because a Belleville player was charged with holding. Then after McDermott brought the ball to the B.C.I. four yard line, Smith went over for his second touchdown of the game which was converted by Wright and Trinity led 17-12.

On the following kick-off B.C.I. fumbled and Gossage an alert T.C.S. player fell on the ball in the end for another Trinity touchdown. Wright again converted. Score T.C.S. 23, Belleville 12. Also in the third period Muntz scored another major for Trinity and this time Martin converted.

B.C.I. fought back stubbornly in the last quarter as a Brown pass to McBride brought the Collegians within striking distance. Two plays later McBride crashed over for a T.D. The last touchdown of the game was scored with less than three minutes remaining. Claude Carr on a sleeper play caught a pass from Harry Brown to score for B.C.I. The game ended with B.C.I. trying to penetrate into T.C.S. territory.

For the winners, Smith, McDermott and Wright were brilliant. Ken Allen, MacKay, McBride, Brown, Green and Soule led the locals. Allen stood out on both defense and offence.

Lineups:

B.C.I.: Davis, Soule, Green, Moore, Adamson, McClay, Brown, Lewis, MacKay, McBride, Allen, Creeggan, Cameron, McBrien, Dolan, Smith, Barclay, Ashline, Anderson, McPherson, Carr, Kane, Irwin, Milligan.

T.C.S.: Smith, Wright, McDermott, Martin, Humphries, Brierly, Philips, Muntz, Emory, Marshall, Currie, McKim, Gordon, Dolph, Harris, Segram, Gossage, Robertson, Watts, Arkley, McCullough, Farley, Rumble, Timmins, Claro, Hunt, Cooper, Bonnycastle.

Queen's Seconds Beat Brockville

Brockville, Oct. 2 — (CP)—A four-touchdown onslaught in the second half of an exhibition football game gave Queen's University Intermediate team a 25-1 victory over Brockville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School here Saturday.

The Brockville crew racked up 14 first downs in the first half, compared with the Gaels' six, and the high school gridders led 1-0 at half-time.

They faltered in the third quarter, however, after being rouged once. Majors by Bob Montgomery, Bill Atwood, Bryan Timmis, Jr. and Pat Wright. All four touchdowns were converted by Johnny Irwin. Montgomery's major came in the third quarter, the others in the final session.

Queen's second-half surge put them on top in the yardage division, making 26 first downs to Brockville's 22. The tricolor completed three of 18 attempted passed the locals two of seven.

Billy Goodman Wins Batting Crown of A.L.

Chicago, Oct. 2—(AP)— Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox yesterday won his first American League batting title, turning in a sizzling .354 mark for the 1950 season.

The 24-year-old Goodman, who bats left-handed, finished 14 points ahead of George Kell, Detroit Tigers' 1949 league batting champion.

Goodman's unofficial average was eight points better than that of Stan Musial, slugging star of St. Louis Cardinals who won his fourth National League batting title.

Goodman, who played outfield, first, second, short and third for the Red Sox, overtook Kell in the final stages of the season, then spurted to an easy win. Kell last season shaded Ted Williams of the Red Sox for top slugging honors.

WIN 200-MILE RACE

Lake Placid, N.Y., Oct. 2—(CP)—Bob and John Bogie, brothers from Saranac Lake, alternated driving their Blitz III Sunday to win a 200-mile speedboat race on Lake Mirror.

The Bogies covered 160 laps of the 1 1-4 mile course in four hours, 18 minutes and 55 seconds.

George Gigard of Beauharnois, Que., trailed many laps but brought his Hurricane in second. Bill Belfie of Gananoque, Ont., piloted Static to third.

Superior Hurling, Batting Makes Yanks Favorite

By JACK HAND

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—Yankee home-run power and superior pitching set up the American League champions as favorites to whip the eager Philadelphia Whiz Kids in the world series opening Wednesday at Shibe Park.

Everybody is feeling sorry for the Phillies, who barely scraped home with the pennant by beating Brooklyn 4-1 in 10 innings yesterday after blowing most of a big league lead. That may be a fatal mistake.

Despite the odds stacked against the pitcher-poor Phils, the pick here goes to the underdogs from Philadelphia in six games, with Jim Konstanty taking the bows. Put it down as a hunch, for the figures don't back it up.

Casey Stengel's Yanks have four regulars fit and ready—Allie Reynolds (16-12) to start, Vic Raschi (21-8) for the second game, lefty Eddie Lopat (18-8) for the third game and rookie Ed (Whitey) Ford (9-1) for the fourth. Any one of these reasonably can be expected to go the route.

Back of the starters, Stengel is not as deep as he was last year against Brooklyn. Tommy Byrne (15-9) who has failed to finish any of his last 10 starts, is the only other possibility for a starting job. Joe Page (3-7) has been a flop all year as a relief man. Last year he was one of the series heroes. If his starters get in trouble, Stengel probably will come in with veteran Tom Ferrick (9-7). Fred Sanford (5-4) and lefthanded Joe Ostrowski (3-5) don't figure to see much duty.

The Phils have one solid man in Robin Roberts (20-11), the club's first 20-game winner since the days of Grover Cleveland Alexander. Sawyer probably will start Roberts in the opener and come back with him at least once and maybe twice.

Loss of Curt Simmons (17-8) their southpaw ace who left for the army Sept. 9 was a stunning blow to the Phils. Simmons, finally getting control to go with his sizzling fast ball, would give anybody trouble. But he's out.

Heintzelman Sleeper

Bob Miller (11-6), Bubba Church (8-6) and Russ Meyer (9-11) are potential starters, with Ken Heintzelman (3-9), a crafty lefthander, a "sleeper" who may give the Yanks trouble.

Back of Roberts, the Phils real ace is relief man Konstanty (16-7), who set a modern major-league record by appearing in 74 games. Although Konstanty slipped in the final week, he was effective against the American League's best in the all-star game. Strictly a stuff pitcher with a fine slider and palm ball, he represents the Phils' best chance to win the series.

Ken Johnson (4-1), the Cardinal discard, Blix Donnelly (2-4), Card series hero of 1944 and Milo Candini (1-0) are the others.

The Yanks have an edge in the catching with Yogi Berra, packing more batting power and runs-batten in threat than Any Deminick. The other catchers do not figure to see much action.

The Phils infield slickness compares favorably with the Yanks in all positions except second base, where Jerry Coleman has a decided edge over Mike Goliat. Eddie Waitkus, one of the better glove men in baseball, can outfield Johnny Mize, Tommy Henrich or Joe Collins, the Yankee first-sackers.

Phil Rizzuto of New York must be given preference over Granny Hamner at short but there is not too much to choose.

Willie Jones of the Phils, an improving fielder with a good arm, can play third base with either Billy Johnson or Bobby Brown of the Yanks.

On the offensive side, however, the Yankee home-run bats tip the scales in their favor.

Philadelphia Welcomes Home Their Whiz Kids

Philadelphia, Oct. 2 — (AP) — The pent-up emotions of a baseball-mad city let loose like a mighty bombshell as Philadelphia Phillies returned home last night with the National League championship — their first in 35 years.

Within a few minutes after the Phillies conquered Brooklyn Dodgers 4-1 yesterday, the third largest American city became a bedlam. Old and young danced in the streets in hundreds of neighborhood celebrations.

Police estimated that upwards of 5,000 gathered at the Pennsylvania railroad's North Philadelphia station merely to catch a glimpse of Manager Eddie Sawyer's Whiz Kids as the train made its regular stop.

But the celebration there was only minute to that which greeted Sawyer, owner Bob Carpenter and the players at the 30th Street station. Trainmaster Charles H. Simple estimated the jam-packed mob at 15,000.

Improvised bands went into action, automobile horns honked, whistles blew and everybody yelled as police made a valiant effort to clear the way through the station to waiting buses.

Dick Sisler, whose home run carried the Phils to their 10-inning victory, relief pitcher Jim Konstanty and third-baseman Willie Jones escaped by jumping off the train at North Philadelphia and disappearing almost before the crowd recognized them.

Carpenter and his wife led the procession, if it could be called that, through the almost-hysterical crowd. Then came Del Ennis, taking a beating as never before. He was followed by Sawyer and then Mrs. Robin Roberts, Andy Seminick and the remainder of the team.

"I never guessed it would be anything like this," gasped Del as he stumbled on the waiting bus.

Peterborough Wins 18-1 Victory Over Orillia

Orillia, Oct. 2—(CP)—Led by Bill Huntley and Gordon "Spike" Matthews the Peterborough Orphans raced to an easy 18-1 victory over Orillia Silver Bombers in an O.R.F.U. Intermediate Football game Saturday.

The Orillians held the visitors on even terms for the first half, each team scoring a single point. The Orphans broke loose in the third quarter for two touchdowns by Huntley and Matthews. Huntley kicked the convert each time.

They added their third and final major in the fourth quarter when Huntley carried over on a plunge from five yards out. The convert attempt failed.

Stan Musial Wins Batting Crown Of American

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Stan Musial, the slugging star of St. Louis Cardinals, won the fourth National League batting championship of his brilliant career Sunday as he finished the 1950 season with a healthy .346 mark.

Musial is only the third player in National League history to win more than three batting championships. The other two were Honus Wagner of Pittsburgh and Rogers Hornsby of the Cards and Boston. Wagner won eight crowns and Hornsby seven.

The master mauler of the Cards pounded out 192 hits in 555 trips to the plate, according to unofficial figures. Among his blows were 28 home runs, seven triples and 41 doubles. Musial drove in 108 runs and scored 105.

Stan the man, who has never failed to hit .300 or more since he joined the Cards in 1941, previously won the title in 1943 with a .357 mark, in 1946 with a .365 average and in 1948 with a lofty .376.

Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn Dodgers, who won last year's batting derby from Musial by four points, finished second to the Card star with a .328 mark.

Trailing Robinson were Duke Snider, Brooklyn, .321; Del Ennis, Philadelphia, and Walker Cooper, Boston, .313; Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati, .307; Carl Furillo, Brooklyn, and Bob Elliott Boston, .305; and Andy Pafko, Chicago, and Sid Gordon, Boston .304.

Kiner Home Run King

Ralph Kiner, the hard-hitting outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, won the home run derby with ease, belting 47 to outdistance runner-up Andy Pafko of Chicago who wound up with 36.

It marked the fifth time that Kiner has either won or tied for the title since he came into the league in 1946.

Despite his bumper homer crop, Kiner finished second to Ennis for the runs-batted-in leadership. Ennis drove in 125 runs and Kiner 117.

Earl Torgeson of Boston led in runs scored with 120. Snider collected the most hits, 199, while Red Schoendienst of St. Louis led in doubles with 43 and Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia in triples, 14. Rookie Sam Jethroe of Boston stole the most bases, 35.

Sal Maglie of New York Giants finished with the best won-lost percentage, .818. The former Mexican Leaguer won 18 and lost 4. Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain of the Braves, and Robin Roberts of the Phils, were the only 20-game winners. Sain and Roberts hit the number on the head while Spahn won 21. Spahn also led in strikeouts with 191.

COBOURG GHOSTS WIN

He made CRIME
his business
When Johnny Young, head of one of Eastern Canada's largest drug rings, went down for a five-year stretch, it was just another event in his 15 years of crimes. The story of Johnny Young, Montreal's East-End tough guy, and how he got that way, is a special crime-story feature in The Standard this week. LEAVES DECISION OF 38th PARALLEL TO MacARTHUR

A crossing of Korea's 38th Parallel by United Nations forces is "up to MacArthur" according to Col. Ben C. Limb, Foreign Minister of the Korean Republic. Speaking to New York newsmen the colonel gave an eight-point plan for post-fighting unification. He also read a statement from President Synghman Rhee, expressing gratitude for the deeds of American "sons" who have died in Korea. — Central Press Canadian.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"There's a buzzer in my room upstairs." Blackie scowled and took a step forward. "What you doing in here?"

"I heard you'd been trying to get in touch with me. I wasn't sure I had the right address and was checking the car to make sure before I woke you."

"I've been wanting to see you, for a fact." Blackie's scowl lightened, but the muzzle of his gun remained steady. "That was sort of a mistake tonight when I slugged you."

"A bad mistake," Shayne told him. He was relaxed, his right hand resting on the fender, inches from the automatic weighting his coat pocket.

"Yeh. No hard feelings huh?"

"Is the bracelet for sale?"

"Look here. . I didn't say anything about a bracelet." His scowl was replaced by a look of cunning. "You in the market for one?"

Shayne said, "I could be." He kept his voice pleasant, and moved forward between the two cars toward Blackie. "That's what you wanted to see me about, wasn't it?"

"Maybe I did and maybe I didn't. How'd you know to come snooping here?"

"Followed my nose." Shayne was close to him now, ten feet away. The barrel of the .45 was wavering. "You don't have to keep that thing pointed at me. I don't talk business over a gun barrel."

Blackie looked down at the heavy weapon as though surprised to see it in his hand. Shayne's thumbs were hooked inside his coat pockets. "I don't figure you" Blackie said in a worried tone. "If I'd got slugged like you did."

"I never let a slugging interfere with profits." Shayne was closer now. Six feet away. "Why did the Rajah change his mind about the bracelet after it was offered to him?"

Blackie looked up, surpised. "I don't know what you're talking about," he muttered. "I think you better go in the house. . ."

"Let's settle this right here. Just between you and me." Shayne's right hand crept deeper in his pocket. He stood poised on the balls of his feet. He asked "why did you have to kill Mrs. Dustin?"

The .45 was a double-action, uncocked, but Blackie's forefinger was tight on the trigger. At Shayne's words, he swung it up with an oath, but the detective leaped forward and closed his big hand over the top of the firing chamber as the hammer came back. It snapped forward harmlessly on the soft flesh between his thumb and forefinger at the same instant his right hand came out of his pocket and described a sweeping arc forward.

The flat side of Shayne's automatic slammed against Blackie's head and his knees gave way. The .45 fell from his hand as he slid to the concrete floor.

Blackie was tough. He stayed on his knees with both hands planted on the floor to support his weight. He breathed heavily through his open mouth and shook his head like a wounded and dazed animal.

Shayne dropped his automatic into his coat pocket and cocked the hammer of the double-action .45 with his right hand.

Blackie began to push his torso laboriously upward. His eyes were fixed on the cocked gun in the detective's left hand. Shayne said, "I like you better on the floor."

He put the sole of his big shoe in Blackie's face and shoved. Blackie sprawled backward and lay there for a moment.

When he pulled himself slowly to a sitting position, he grunted, "Evens u. up. Who'd you say was killed?"

"Mrs. Mark Dustin."

"I don't know any Mrs. Dustin. I ain't killed nobody. Not recently," he amended, clearing his throat and turning his head to spit.

"Did you send someone over to keep your date with her?"

"What date you talking about?"

"The one you made by telephone," said Shayne irritably. "After you tried to kill my secretary and pretended it was me talking over the phone."

"Look, Shamus, I don't know what you're talking about. So I slugged you tonight. . .by mistake So, all right. Now you slugged me. So we're even. I don't know about this other stuff."

"I suppose," said Shayne angrily, "you don't know anything about a ruby bracelet."

"That's right." Blackie folded his bare arms across his chest and sighed. "I got to sit here all day?"

Shayne said "what about a busted fender fixed up at Mickey's." He ran a thick tongue over his thick lips. "Me and the Kid took the big job out without the boss knowing about it and scraped some paint off. I was getting it patched up when you barged in."

"How do you mean you slugged me by mistake?"

"I must of got mixed up on the phone," Blackie explained readily. "I thought you were sticking your nose in my business and trying to shake me down by threatening to tell the boss about the busted fender."

"So you called him up to find out what to do?" Shayne jeered.

"I just pretended to call up," Blackie explained swiftly. "To see what you'd do. You fell for that gag, huh?"

His story, Shayne realized, had been well rehearsed. When the boss had changed his mind, for some unknown reason, about dealing with the insurance company on a reward for the return of the rubies, he had realized it had been a tactical error to have Shayne slugged. So he had evidently ordered Blackie to shoulder the full responsibility for that error.

"I know you're lying right down the line," Shayne told him dispassionately. "As you say, we're even on the slugging, but we're still not even on a couple of other things. I don't like mugs who come in my apartment and answer my phone. . and slap my dolls around."

"Honest to God," Blackie protested, "I've never been inside your apartment."

"That's easily checked. Get up."

Shayne said "you'll have a chance to stay there forever if you don't start moving." He gestured toward the door with the cocked .45.

His tone convinced Blackie that the discussion was ended. He lumbered to his feet and Shayne said, "walk out that door and straight down the drive to the street. Then turn to the right to the corner and then to the left. My car is parked half-way down the block. We're going for a little ride together, and if you make one single move or sound I don't like I'll blast you with your own gun. The cops would thank me for doing it because I've got you framed right in the middle of a murder rap, and they can use a fall guy. Get going."

Blackie got going. Shayne followed him out the door and down the drive to the street. The sun hung like a red ball of fire behind the misty clouds above the rim of the ocean. Birds were singing in the shrubbery and the new day held a clean warmth that promised muggy heat within a few hours.

They encountered no one on their walk to the corner and to the detective's car. "Get under the wheel and drive," Shayne ordered. "To the County Causeway and then turn left on Biscayne Boulevard. I'll be resting easy in the back seat with a gun on you."

Blackie opened the front door and got in. Shayne eased himself in the back seat and tossed the keys across to the driver.

Blackie drove carefully and expertly, and at slow speed. Shayne kept his eyes on the back of his head and let his mind wander into the unknown equations that were beginning to unravel. Blackie would talk soon enough. He was grimly sure of that. As soon as Lucy identified him as her attacker and he realized the spot he was in. His denial of Mrs. Dustin's murder had sounded genuine enough, and he might have been telling the truth.

It was plausible to presume that Blackie had contacted his employer after the telephone call and sent him to keep the appointment with Mrs. Dustin which had resulted in her death. In that case Blackie might well have been honestly surprised to learn that she had been murdered.

That was all the more reason why he would talk when he realized how neatly he had been framed for the job. If he were guilty, he might continue to obstinately deny any knowledge of the telephone call but if innocent he would be a fool if he didn't spill everything he knew.

One thing troubled Shayne as they turned down Biscayne Boulevard. He felt positive he held the key to recovery of the bracelet but if he let the policeman on guard at his apartment hear Blackie's confession, the secret would no longer be his and any possible reward would slip out of his hands like hot butter.

He had an angle figured by the time they reached the foot of Flagler Street. He said to Blackie:

"Swing over to Second Avenue and then toward the river. I'll show you where to pull up just this side of the drawbridge."

When the car was parked Shayne took the keys and said casually. "We're going in through the hotel lobby and up to the third floor. There's a Miami cop in my apartment. Figure things out for yourself. If you'd rather keep this whole thing private, just between you and me, use your head and I'll tell him you're a friend. We'll get rid of the cop and talk it over after he's gone. If you want to make it tough I'll take you in with a gun on you and hand you over to him on two charges. Murder and attempted murder."

Blackie turned a swollen and frightened face toward Shayne and said hoarsely "honest, I'm not hunting no trouble. I don't know what all this stuff is about murder, and I'd rather do my talking outside bars than behind them."

"Fair enough, but don't forget I've got two guns on me. Let's go." He thrust the revolver inside his trousers waitband and buttoned his coat over it, then led the way around to the front entrance and they entered the lobby.

CREDITS VICTORY TO FIGHTING MEN

General Douglas MacArthur stands bareheaded, at left, as President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of South Korea reads the citation during the presentation of the Korean Republic's order of military merit to the general. The ceremony was held in the assembly hall at Seoul, where MacArthur formally turned over controls of the liberated capital to the South Korean government. In reply to President Rhee, MacArthur gave all the credit to his soldiers. Said he: "The president has done me too much personal honor. The men of my command won this great victory." — Central Press Canadian.

Rules Parliament, Provinces Cannot Exchange Powers

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today ruled that the Federal Government and the provinces cannot legally exchange their legislative powers, but the judgment will have no effect on existing federal-provincial agreements.

Informed government sources said the judgment might delay an over-all national social security program. Social security normally falls within the jurisdiction of the provinces and no over all national program can be inaugurated without their consent.

There have been some suggestions that the provinces delegate their powers over social security to enable the Federal Government to introduce a national social security program. That avenue for bringing the program into being now is blocked. The only way it now can be brought about is for the Federal Government and the provinces to agree on a constitutional amendment.

Existing Agreements Unaffected

Justice Minister Garson said in an interview that existing Federal-Provincial taxation and other agreements will not be affected, because they do not constitute a delegation of powers. They constituted a foregoing to taxation authority by the provinces rather than the outright delegation.

Under the constitution, the Federal Government has unlimited taxing authority and the provinces, in entering the agreements, say merely, in effect, that they will not operate in the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields for the duration of the agreement.

Federal rent controls, due to expire April 30 next, remain unchanged by the decision. In peacetime, by virtue of the decision, it would be illegal for the Federal Government to undertake a control program.

However, existing controls are based on emergency wartime legislation which, the Supreme Court already has ruled, makes it valid for the government to apply restrictions.

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP) —Premier Frost of Ontario said today he considers any question of Federal-Provincial delegation of powers a matter for the constitutional conference, which met last week in Quebec and was adjourned until December.

Asked for comment on today's Supreme Court of Canada ruling that it is illegal for the Federal Government and a province to delegate to one another powers assigned them under the constitution, he said:

"This raises a point which I think can properly be considered and determined by the present constitutional conference, which meets again in December."

82 South Koreans Massacred With Bamboo Spears

By STAN SWINTON

With U.S. 25th Division, Korea, Oct. 3—(AP)—A new batch of massacre survivors reported today that pro-communist South Koreans stabbed 82 South Koreans dead with bamboo spears Monday.

Witnesses said the victims were men, women and children in the anti-communist village of Chungyong, a few miles south of the west coast port of Kunsam.

United Nations investigators reported another red atrocity. They said 23 bodies were found in a well near Kunsan.

(Evidence of hundreds of similar atrocities was reported elsewhere).

Lord Elgin Grandson of Governor Of Canada Centrry Ago Pays Visit

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (CP) —Lord Elgin is stopping at the Lord Elgin today.

The grandson of the man who governed Canada from 1847 to 1854—and got pelted with rotten eggs by a Montreal mob— came to town for discussions with CBC officials.

He is staying at the hotel which was named for his grandfather, governor in an important era between the 1837 insurrections and confederation and a big name in the evolution to Canadian responsible government.

The present Lord Elgin told a reporter he thinks many valuable letters and papers that came down from his grandfather will eventually go to the Canadian archives. But there is nothing immediate about it, he said.

His ancestors travelled and served all over the world and the Canadian papers are only part of a big collection. Actually, he said, Ottawa's archives already have many of his grandfather's papers.

He didn't say whether they mention anything about the time the governor was pelted by a Montreal mob after signing a bill providing compensation for damage suffered in the 1837 Papineau uprisings.

Lord Elgin is here as a member of a government-appointed committee studying revision of the BBC's charter which expires next year. He will use A. D. Dunton, head of the CBC, and later will go to Toronto and Winnipeg as well as the United States.

He is honorary colonel of the Elgin Regiment of Canada.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Synopsis: While Winnipeg had 4.8 inches of snow on Monday — a record fall for so early in the season — Southern Ontario enjoyed maximum temperatures near 80 degrees in many localities. However, this week-long spell of Indian Summer is coming to an end today as the cooler air from the Canadian prairies and north-central states advances over the province. Snowflurries are forecast for Tuesday, and freezing temperatures tonight, as far south as Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions.

DRIVE MAY CARRY TO CHINA'S BORDER OF MANCHURIA

Believe Reds Massing For Flanking Attacks

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Oct. 3 (AP) — South Korean forces pierced nearly 50 miles into North Korea today on a drive aimed to carry all the way to communist China's Manchuria border.

The South Korean commander then conferred with two top U.S. generals who flew to Koryo airfield at Kangnung, just south of the border.

Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander, and Maj.-Gen. Earl E. Patridge, Fifth Air Force Commander, talked there with Maj.-Gen. Kim Pak Il, comander of the South Korean 1st Corps.

The reason for the conference was not disclosed. But an allied Korean military advisory group officer expressed concern over the small number of prisoners taken —50 to 75 a day.

Advisory officers feared that the reds may be vanishing to mass up in the hills for a flanking attack.

The South Koreans had allied air support on a swiftly advancing bomb line and standby naval gun support alongside their east coast drive.

The reds were reported running toward Wonsan, 60 road miles north of Kansong under reported orders to make a last ditch stand there on the Sea of Japan coast.

South Korean troops thrust about 275 road miles since they started 15 days ago in the Pohang port area.

Going to Border

"We are going to the borders of Manchuria," said Lt. Col. Jung Rei Hiok.

First Couple Wed Under New Civil Marriage Law

Toronto, Oct. 3. (CP)—Walter Smuk and his bride today became the first couple to be married under Ontario's new Civil Marriage Law.

The Marriage Act went into effect yesterday, allowing judges and magistrates to perform marriages. Previously that authority was held only by clergy.

The 27-year-old Smuk and his 15-year-old bride, Martha Calvert, were married in a five-minute ceremony conducted in York County court by Judge Robert Forsyth.

REFUSES TRANSFER OF TRACK

Owen Sound, Oct. 3—(CP) — City council, by an 8 to 1 vote, last night refused to turn over a 12-acre section of Victoria Park, the city's fairground and race track, to the Owen Sound Board of Education.

The board had requested transfer of the tract as a site for a proposed $1,200,000 collegiate and vocational institute here

Canada and Australia Lend Powerful Support to Eight Member Plan for Korea

By A. I. GOLDBERG

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3 — (AP) — An eight-country plan to unify Korea under United Nations auspices gained powerful support from Canada and Australia today as sentiment mounted against a Russian program intended to stop U.N. forces in their tracks.

Australia, along with Britain and six others, is a sponsor of the eight-member plan.

Blunt-spoken Percy Spender, Australian Minister for External Affairs, was expected to say outright that Gen. MacArthur's troops have the right to go clear to China's borders in carrying out a U. N. program for Korea.

Most delegates believe that, but only Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo of The Philippines has suggested openly in the debates of the General Assembly's 60-country political committee that decisions of the Security Council give MacArthur the power to so act.

Canada's Minister for External Affairs, L. B. Pearson, has promised complete support for the 8-power plan. He said Russia's proposal for a cease-fire now would have the effect of stopping U. N. troops at the 38th parallel or wherever they are in Korea.

India was on today's speaking schedule, along with Australia. Fresh instructions from New Delhi shortly before the session began were expected to give chief delegate Sir Benegal N. Rau the cue for his line.

Persons close to the Indian delegation expected Rau to differ sharply with the Russians, and to demand that post-war elections in Korea be held under the strict supervision of a U. N. commission.

Thrown into Debate

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, yesterday threw Russia's Korea program into the debate after he had rejected the eight-country idea — already favored by a U. N. majority — to set up a commission with strong Asian representation to stabilize Korea as a unified country, supervise elections and arrange for relief.

The committee's afternoon session yesterday was filled with a series of satellite repetitions of an earlier speech yesterday by Vishinsky. He charged that South Korea and the United States were the aggressors in Korea and that a U. N. watch-dog commission there tried to cover up for the U. S.

Poland, White Russia and Czechoslovakia argued, often in the same language Vishinsky had used earlier, for the Soviet viewpoint. South Africa then broke the Soviet thread by announcing complete support of the eight-power plan and rejection of the Russian program which had just then been made known.

In addition to demanding an immediate halt to hostilities, the Russian plan asked immediate withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea, holding of elections under a special Korean commission with U. N. observers to include Russia and red China, and U. N. economic and technical aid.

After all that(Vishinsky's proposal said, Korea could be considered for U. N. membership. Vishinsky is expected to make another long speech to argue for his resolution.

Battle Looms For Leadership Of Conservatives

Vancouver, Oct. 3 (CP) — A rebel movement to oust Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb as leader of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative party comes to a showdown this weekend.

For months a younger faction, identified with the young Progressive Conservative Association has directed a province-wide campaign against him.

The charge has been made that he allowed Liberal members of the provincial government to dominate the coalition administration formed in 1941 to check the C.C.F. The coalition is made up of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives, with the Liberals holding a six-four balance of power in the cabinet.

The leadership, with Mr Anscomb seeking re-election, will come before 650 delegates at the party's provincial convention Friday and Saturday.

It will be a contest. W. A. C. Bennett, outspoken member for South Okanagan, will be a candidate for the leadership. There may be others. E. Davie Fulton, member of parliament for Kamloops and best known outside the province for his fight against crime comics in Canada, has been mentioned.

Mr. Bennett announced last week that he would seek the leadership, but when Mr. Fulton was mentioned, his comment was: "the convention itself must decide."

Genial, 58-year-old Mr. Anscomb who has been a cabinet minister from the start of coalition, has also been criticized for retaining his interests with the wine and brewing industries. He holds directorships in two companies.

It is claimed British Columbia is the only part of the commonwealth that does not adhere to a British tradition that cabinet ministers resign from corporations trading with the Crown.

Mr. Anscomb has withheld his comment, saying he will answer his critics from the convention platform.

BODY OF MAN FOUND

Kapuskasing, Oct. 3—(CP) — Provincial police said today an unidentified body of a man "apparently a suicide" was found Sunday 4½ miles from here.

Fred Arsenault of O'Brien township found the body when he was cutting wood in the area.

A belt and part of a shoelace was discovered around the crotch of a tree over the body. Police said the corpse had lain in the bush about two years.

Improvement In Employment Is Indicated

Ottawa, Oct. 3—(CP)—Canada's employment picture continues to improve under the impetus of the country's stepped-up production-for-defence program and some industries actually are suffering a labor shortage, the Labor Department reported today.

A developing phase of the employment situation is the increasing number of women seeking jobs.

At Sept. 14 a total of 140,300 registrations for employment were on file at National Employment Service offices across the country, a decline of 11,300 from the first of the month, but 1,600 more than at the same time last year.

Of these, 53,400 were women, compared with 39,700 registered women job-seekers at the same period last year. The male registrations — 89,900 — were 12,000 below the total at the same time last year.

The department said there were shortages of farm workers in some areas and recent defence orders created new jobs in shipyards and aircraft factories in Ontario and Quebec where experienced workers were much in demand. Many primary iron and steel plants and steel fabricating firms also were increasing staff and there were numerous vacancies for skilled machinists, tool and die makers and moulders.

Auto Collides With CN Handcar Three Men Hurt

Thornbury, Oct. 3 (CP)—Three men were injured, one of them seriously, when an automobile collided with a C.N.R. hand-car at a level-crossing near here early today. Thornbury is 30 miles east of Owen Sound.

The injured men were rushed to hospital in Collingwood.

Early reports said that Elmer Clock, Meaford railwayman, suffered a fractured skull and was most seriously injured. Robert Wheeler of Meaford received a dislocated shoulder and Ray Hutchinson, also of Meaford, suffered a broken arm.

Provincial police at Meaford said the automobile was driven by James A. Hammar of (63 Garden Ave.) Kitchener. They said he was not injured.

COST-OF-LIVING INDEX MAY HIT ANOTHER NEW HIGH

Since 1939 Cost Has Risen 68.5 Per Cent

Ottawa, Oct. 3—(CP) — Canadians get a new glimpse at their official cost-of-living index this week, and they won't be surprised if it has hit another new high.

The figures which the Bureau of Statistics will issue will be for the month of August. That was a month prior to the time the government took a number of so-called anti-inflationary steps which probably won't be reflected in the index until October.

In July the index jumped 1.0 points from 167.5 to 168.5—its sixth new high since the beginning of the year—under the influence of higher prices for food, shoes, piece goods, eastern telephone rates and coal and coke in Ontario.

The index is calculated on the basis that the 1935-39 period equals 100, so that since 1939 it has risen 68.5 per cent.

During the special session of parliament early last month there were repeated demands by opposition speakers for the return of price controls such as the country had in wartime. But the government said it does not consider them necessary at this time.

The government, however, took a number of anti-inflationary steps in its "baby budget" produced during the session. The budget upped corporation taxes and imposed new tax levies on certain non-necessities and luxury items such as automobiles, candy, chewing gum and soft drinks to discourage their purchase. Most became effective immediately.

Then, as another anti-inflationary measure, Finance Minister Abbott announced last weekend that the 9.1 per cent premium on United States dollars was being abolished and the Canadian dollar set free to find its own level in the exchange markets.

This should have the effect of cheapening American and British goods sold in Canada but probably won't be reflected in the cost-of-living index for a time.

Retreat From Policy Of Wage-Freeze

Margate, England, Oct. 3 (CP) — Heavy fire from union leaders and left-wing Members of Parliament today forced the Labor party executive to retreat from its wage-freeze policy. The unions rammed through a resolution demanding pay boosts, price cuts and profit controls.

The resolution which the executive accepted unanimously, forced the party to abandon the Labor government hold-the-line order on wages, put into effect in February, 1948. It was adopted after 1,500 delegates to the party's annual conference heard Prime Minister Attlee declare in a welcoming speech that "capitalism has lost faith in itself."

Dressed in Russian Uniform, U.S. Congressman Pierces Iron Curtain

Berlin, Oct. 3 (AP) —An American Congressman has pierced Russia's Iron Curtain in Germany and returned undetected with an eye-witness account of new Soviet baby tanks and jet planes.

The adventure was reported by Representative Thurmond Chatham (Dem. N.C.), who came to Berlin with a group of Congressmen touring United States defence points in Europe. Chatham in an interview described a 50-mile jeep ride into the Soviet zone, which bristles with 250,000 Russian troops. He visited a new air base and an infantry tank compound.

A westerner on such forbidden territory is vulnerable to arrest and possible shooting as a spy.

The Congressman said he was escorted on the trip by a Russian officer he befriended while they both were doing liaison work during the Second World War.

Chatham told this story:

He recognized the Russian, in civilian clothing, in a West Berlin night club.

"He threw his arms around me and we had a good talk. He asked if I would like to take a trip with him and I accepted."

The next day the Russian took Chatham to the Soviet sector of Berlin, put on the uniform of a senior Red Army oficer, and took a jeep from the Russian motor pool.

He barked his way through half a dozen check points, explaining his American companion as a friend from one of the east European satellite countries.

At an airfield completed only six weeks before, Chatham said he saw net jet planes with swept-back wings that appeared to him as sleek and fast as the latest American types.

At another base, he said, there were about 20 tanks built lower than anything he had seen while in combat in both World Wars—about three feet high but armed with long guns.

Chatham speculated the tanks might be almost immune to ordinary fire from weapons which could not lower their muzzles enough to aim at the low tanks.

At the end of the trip, Chatham said, the Russian donned civilian clothes again and brought the Congressman back to the west.

Canada Girding For Long-Term Anti-Red Program

Cold War May Go on For Years at Stiff Cost

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 3 — (CP) — With Korea apparently waning, the cabinet is starting to condition Canadians for a long, tough and immensely-costly haul to deter communism from launching a Third World War.

Key ministers are saying publicly now that the cold war is going to go on for "many" years at a pace and cost far above anything conceived before Korea.

In the last few days, both Prime Minister St. Laurent and Defence Minister Claxton have made statements that could be primarily designed to wipe out any tendency to think there will be a let-down in the preparedness drive once Korea is over.

The prospect they, in effect, hold out for the years ahead is one of enormous defence costs, duty for thousands of Canadian service men abroad, higher taxes, expanding armed forces, sacrifices by the individual which could get worse if Moscow steps up its many-sided campaigns.

Korea started all this. It won't end with Korea.

Ministers aren't pulling any punches about the cost. External Affairs Minister Pearson said recently in a broadcast from New York that "we (cabinet) have decided for next year roughly to double our defence budget . . . to about $1,000,000,000."

That is roughly double the entire average annual federal budget before the war.

Given Notice

At Kingston Saturday, Mr. St. Laurent said:

". . .the maintenance of high standards of living and increased welfare is an objective which competes directly with demands for ever-increasing defence activity. This is what is becoming for our generation the old question of guns and butter.

". . .it is not really as stark as that in a country like Canada . . .though it is obvious that some of our personal wants will have to go unsatisfied. . .in building up our strength we must never lose sight of the fact that its primary purpose is to prevent war and that the prevention of war may require many years of sustained effort."

To that in a Navy Week broadcast last night, Mr. Claxton added these remarks:

U. S. TOURISTS AT SOO

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 3—(CP) — Immigration officials reported today 34,299 tourists from the United States entered Canada through this border city in September, an increase of 1,506 over the same month last year. Number of Canadians returning from the U. S. through here totalled 29,087, an increase of 6,168 over September, 1949.

Stalin Receives Appeal Raising Critical Questions

Moscow, Oct. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin has received an appeal raising critical questions concerning Formosa, it was disclosed today.

This appeal, addressed to both the Soviet leader and the United Nations is signed by 12 Chinese who said they spoke in the name of 40,000 Chinese of Formosan origin now living in Japan.

Diplomats here speculated that Stalin might send a reply, and this reply might throw additional light on the U.S.S.R.'s present position regarding Formosa—last stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

(Such appeals from the communist world are addressed to Stalin as the "great leader, teacher and friend," and often are the preludes to weighty statements from the Kremlin on world issues).

The appeal asked the United Nations and Stalin to press for:

1. Immediate withdrawal of foreign armed forces from Formosa.
2. Rejection of any proposal from U.N. trusteeship for Formosa of its separation from China in any form.

The Soviet position up to now has been almost identical with the position set forth in this petition.

Charge Against J. Ernie Keays Again Adjourned

Ottawa, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Magistrate Glenn Strike reserved judgment Monday in the case of J. E. (Ernie) Keays, former provincial police constable who created a disturbance in county court here last month.

Keays is charged with unlawfully wearing the uniform of an Ontario Provincial Police constable and with carrying a weapon capable of being concealed. He was arrested after brandishing an automatic in court and demanding to be arrested.

Following summation by S. Rupert Broadfoot, Assistant Crown Attorney, and rebuttal by Keays Monday, the Magistrate said there were a number of points of argument he would have to study. He adjourned the case to Wednesday, with an indication he will them order a further adjournment.

Keays was dismissed from the force in 1949 after a Royal Commission investigated his charges of irregularities in the Belleville jurisdiction of the O. P. P. The Commission found his charges without foundation.

However, Keays claims he never received a formal notice of dismissal and is unable to get another job without such notice.

15-YEAR-OLD BANK

The Bank of Canada commenced operations March 11, 1935.

Friends Honor O.P.P. Inspector On Retirement

The silver-haired inspector of the Ontario Provincial Police leaved a deep sigh, settled down in his chair, and smiled, "Well, that's that. It was a long tough grind, but I enjoyed every minute of it.

He was O.P.P. Inspector Sidney (Sid) Hunter who retired from active service on Sunday after 35 years of service a majority of which were spent in connection with highway traffic duties.

Inspector Hunter is well-known in police circles in this district. He served with the Belleville detachment from 1940 to 1943 in charge of highway patrol.

The first motor cycle patrol officer in Ontario, he joined the staff of the Toronto and Hamilton Highway Commission in 1916 and patrolled the Toronto-Hamilton highway aboard his trusty bike for the next ten years.

Appointed in 1930

Joining the Ontario Department of Highway in 1926 he remained with it until 1930 when he was promoted area inspector of motor cycle police of the O.P.P. He remained in Toronto until 1934 when he was transferred to Brockville and placed in charge of the eastern area patrol.

Following the abolishment of that phase of the force, he was transferred to Belleville in 1940 in charge of the highway traffic patrol. Three years later he went to Perth and in 1948 was promoted inspector in charge of District 11 with headquarters at Cornwall. He remained in that position until his retirement.

Inspector and Mrs. Hunter were signally honored prior to the date of retirement at a banquet tendered them at the Royal hotel, Cornwall, which was attended by 140 of their friends. Present were Judge Marion, of Rockland. Crown Attorneys of Carleton, Prescott and Russell counties and Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

Inspector Hunter was presented with a handsome radio-phonograph combine and a purse of money and Mrs. Hunter with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

They will make their home in Perth, where the inspector will indulge in his favorite sport of fishing.

Members of the family include Mrs. Berkley Stenson, 154 Church Street, Belleville; Miss Rosemary Hunter, of the staff of the Income Tax Office here, and a son Bill, with the engineering department of the Department of Highways at Avonmore, Ont.

CAPTAIN FINED

Hong Kong, Oct. 3 (AP)—Capt. William D. Gordon, 49, of Suffolk, England, a British sea captain, yesterday was fined 40 Hong Kong dollars for tearing down a flag raised to commemorate the first anniversary of the red regime in China. Gordon said he stripped the flag from the communist-operated China National Aviation Corporation because the company displayed the red flag without also flying the Union Jack.

Rotary Governor Pays Official Visit to Club

Rotary Clubs in 83 countries throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace, Rotarian Arthur R. Ferguson, Gravenhurst, Governor of District 247, Rotary International told the Rotary Club here yesterday.

District Governor Ferguson paid his annual visit to the club and held a morning conference with club officers, directors and committee chairmen. He spoke over Radio Station CJBQ last evening.

In addition to the activities of Rotary's 7,100 clubs to promote this objective, over a three-year period, Rotary International is spending $750,000 principally to create better understanding among the peoples of different nations, the governor said.

One of the principal ways in which this money is being spent, he added, is on Rotary foundations Fellowships which enable outstanding graduate students to study for one year in countries other than their own. In this way they act as ambassadors of good will. Since the program was established in 1947, 195 scholarships have been awarded to students in 35 countries with grants totalling nearly $500,000.

Provides Common Ground

"Devoted to service, Rotary provides a common ground for 342,000 busines sand professional executives throughout the world regardless of nationalities or political or religious beliefs," the governor said.

Directing his remarks to the Rotary Club here, he said in tribute that "it was an excellent club with every department doing a grand job. It was a pleasure to hear John Deacon sing again and as for the club itself, it is the best singing club I have heard—outside of Gravenhurst."

Reviewing the responsibilities of his own life, Governor Ferguson said he had discovered that if "you offer the real hand of friendship to your fellow man, it will be returned one hundred fold. I have also found," he added "that 95 percent of the people are honest."

It was a great honor for him to be elected a Rotary Governor he said, "I hope I can carry on the job as well as those who preceded me and perhaps add a little to it."

"Rotary," he said, "draws men from all nationalities, and creeds into one large bond of friendship, a veritable treasure house where men can be boys again, and live in a fine atmosphere of fellowship. If Rotary has been good to you, pass it along to the other fellows he urged."

Reviewed Objects

Governor Ferguson reviewed the four objects of Rotary illustrating each with human interest stories. He outlined the activities of the many clubs he had visited paying tribute to each, and ending with the quotation of a little girl who said "doing good for other people makes me fell pretty inside."

"Some day," he concluded, "when we are forced to lay down the tools, it will be nice to reflect and realize that the Rotary way has not been in vain."

Governor Ferguson was introduced by club president Ken Griffiths with club appreciation voiced by Rotarian George Campbell. John Deacon was heard in "Rule Britannia" with Leo Riggs at the piano.

Dogfish Hooked Did Not Grace Family Table

The latest story in this year's fishing parade, and perhaps one of the strangest, comes from Point Anne, where Dick Maracle. 22, caught a dogfish Sunday.

The dogfish is one of the most repulsive looking fish in Canadian waters, and apparently this one was no excetpion. It was 29 inches long, and while Mr. Maracle did not weigh the brute. neighbors estimated it would groan the scales ta 35 pounds.

Mr. Maracle caught the monster on a worm, while still fishing, and it took him about 15 minutes to boat it. Mr. Maracle had never caught a dogfish before and said that he thought they were caught "very seldom" in the bay.

Fortunately, someone knew this particular species wasn't much to rave about at the dinner table, so Mr. Maracle cut his prize up into small pieces, and is feeding it to his cats and dogs. "I've got enough to feed the cats for a week," he said.

Horse, Tractor, Car, Grain And Farm Machinery Lost In $5,000 Fire on Trent Road

A large driveshed containing farm machinery, tractor and automobile as well as over 2,000 bushels of grain, was burned Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gunn, four miles west of Belleville on No. 2 highway. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

Also lost in the blaze was one of a team of horses quartered in the building. Origin of the blaze, which started in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Gunn, was unknown.

Motorist Notices Flames

An unidentified passing motorist was first to notice the flames. He ran to the barn and managed to free one of the horses which escaped with severe burns but could not get near the second animal. Then the motorist ran to the house and breaking open the door telephoned the alarm. By that time others had gathered but were unable to save the auto, tractor or other farm equipment.

The Belleville Fire Department under Fire Chief Gerald Vance raced to the scene with two pumpers and were successful in saving the large frame house situated only 40 feet away.

The frame siding of the house was scorched and firemen had to continually wet the sides down to prevent it catching fire. Fortunately the little wind which was blowing carried embers away from the house.

Farm Cistern Used

A small outbuilding used as storage for drums of gasoline for use in the farm tractor caught fire but this was extinguished. The large cistern in the Gunn home was used to good stead to replenish the water in the fire pumper tanks, but firemen also pumped water from the bay to extinguish the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunn had been at Peterborough for the day and returned home shortly after five o'clock to find their driveshed ablaze with their farm machinery and year's grain crop lost. It was the largest crop of grain threshed on the Gunn farm in many years.

Very little hay was lost in the blaze as this was stacked in a nearby field. The original Gunn barn had blown down some years ago and the large driveshed was used in its place.

The Gunn hired man was milking the cows in another building and did not know of the fire until he heard the commotion.

Memorable Musical Event Given in Memorial Arena By Massed Bands of District

Colorful pageantry, the thunder of the drums and brilliant music featured the Band Festival at Memorial Arena last night.

It was by far the most memorable musical event of its nature to be recorded in the band archives of the city with the only disconcerting note being the comparative smallness of attendance.

The musical "piece de resistance" was the crack Central Command, Ottawa, Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force under the baton of Flight Lieutenant E. Kirkwood.

Adding their own quota of color and collective artistry to the musical whole were the Belleville Municipal Band under Bandmaster Ted Robbins; the Trenton Lions Club Band and the Belleville Kinsmen's Boys' Band under Mr. Alfred Cooper.

Heralding the brilliant performances of the bands massed on a flag-draped dais, were the thrilling marching and playing of the Trenton RCAF Drum and Bugle Band; the No. 6 Repair Depot RCAF Drum and Bugle Band, and last but not least the blood-tingling skirling of the pipes of the Belleville Kiltie Band. These marching units swung up and down the floor of the Arena, turning in smart formations while the Arena rang with sustained applause.

Colorful Feature

One of the most colorful features of the festival, seen and heard in Canada for the second time were the Triumphal Trumpets of a septet of Royal Canadian Air Force members of the Ottawa Band. These instruments fashioned after those of the heralds of old, draped with colorful hangings were brought to Canada for the presentation of the colors of the RCAF in Ottawa. Last night's appearance was the first since that brilliant ceremony.

The golden-throated instruments poured forth a melodic fanfare in collective offerings while their superb tones were heard in complement to numbers by the massed bands.

E. Reg. Hinchey, president of the Belleville Municipal Band, sponsors of the festival, introduced the marching bands of Belleville, Trenton and the RCAF and Mr. A. Robertson, secretary of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association who complimented the Municipal Band on its brilliant presentation of units.

Professor C. F. Thiele, of Waterloo, originator of the famous Waterloo Musical Festival was master-of-ceremonies for the festival and carried the assembly with his delightful sense of humor and at times droll sayings.

Deserves Fullest Support

During the program, Professor Thiele in tribute to the Belleville Municipal Band told the audience "You should be very proud of your band. Any community of this calibre should be proud indeed of such a splendid musical organization. I don't know whether you support it or not, but it deserves the fullest support you can give it."

The Central Band, R.C.A.F. occupied the centre position on the flag-draped dais over which fluttered the Union Jack, and the Canadian Ensign flanking the Royal Canadian Air Force flag. Vases of flowers added their own touch of color to the scene.

The brilliant scarlet and gold of the Belleville Band; the immaculate blue and gold of the R.C.A.F. Band, the waving plumes and orange blouses of the Lions Boys Band and the smart uniforms of the Kinsmen Band with other color practically shamed the rainbow.

A touch of unprogrammed humor was injected into the picture when a small boy suddenly stepped from the audience and marched with a trumpet band. While the crowd applauded the little fellow suddenly lost his footing and sprawled unhurt and laughing on the floor of the arena.

Massed Bands Heard

The program proper began with the massed bands offering "O Canada." Followed the Triumphal Trumpets in their inaugural appearance under Ft Lt. Kirkwood and then the mark-versatility of the combined Lions and Kinsmen bands was heard in the tuneful score of "Oklahoma" with Mr. Cooper conducting. Sustained applause was greeted with an encore "Light Squadron."

The Central Command Band of the RCAF gave melodic evidence of its reputation of being one of the finest organizations of its kind in Canada with its opening number "Roman Carnival."

Its rendition of this difficult score bespoke the individual and collective artistry of its musicians. The audience "took" the band to its musical heart, and thunderous applause echoed in the building. The band followed with "Fantasy of Melody in F" and this whimsical arrangement was also met with demands for 'more.' This brought a beautiful arrangement of "Beyond the Blue Horizon."

Talented Musician

Robert Cornish, talented young clarinetist of the Belleville Municipal Band, next offered "Interlude" on his instrument with band accompaniment. The youthful artist received rounds of sustained applause and in request for an encore, the band offered the catchy "Syncopated Clock."

The RCAF band followed with Richard Strauss' waltz "Rozenkavalier." The audience thrilled to the rendition of the difficult "Mannin Ween" given by the Belleville Band and in response to applause played "Time Out for a Jam Session."

Modern musical comedy selections were heard in the RCAF band's interpretation of the score of "Annie Get Your Gun" and as an encore offered a special arrangement of the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Waving of tiny flags, cheering and band members standing to take pantomimic bows added the typical "American" touch to the score and the audience "brought down the house." The band obliged with a repeat rendition.

Miss Helen Grant, talented xylophonist of this city was next heard in solo. Her offering of a polka number by Hinchey drew the unstinted applause of the audience and she graciously responded with "Romany Life."

Mr. Cooper was given the honor of conducting the massed bands in the march "Imperial Echoes" and then the melodious thunder of "Finlandia" was heard with Bandmaster Robbins conducting the combined RCAF and Belleville bands.

The "Victory Fanfare" by the Triumphal Trumpets brought an outstanding program to a brilliant ending and the National Anthem played by the entire company of bands conducted by Professor Thiele echoed in the Arena.

Obituary

ROBERT H. HANNAH
(Hearst, Ont.)

Napanee, Oct. 3 — (CP) Word was received here yesterday of the sudden death of Robert H. Hannah at Hearst, Ont., formerly relief agent for the Canadian National Express at Napanee. He was appointed agent at Hearst two months ago. He was a member of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders Pipe Band at Belleville while here. Funeral services will be held at Napanee.

Besides his widow he is survived by six children and a sister, Harriet, in Kingston.

RICHARD HADDEN
(Picton)

Following a short illness, Richard Hadden passed away in Kingston General Hospital yesterday afternoon. He suffered from a heart condition. In April, Mr. Hadden retired after being associated with the Hadden Hardware for 40 years. He was the third generation of the family to operate the store which was founded in 1841. In earlier years he spent seven years with the Standard Bank.

Born in Picton 65 years ago, Mr. Hadden was the son of Mrs. Lottie Hadden, Picton and the late Charles E. Hadden. All his life was spent here. He did not seek public office. He was a member of the United Church.

Survivors are his mother, his wife and one daughter, Kathryn, Currie, wife of Dr. George Currie, New York City.

ARCHIBALD SEXSMITH
(Bancroft)

Shortly after being involved in an accident on Highway No. 2, about 33 miles east of Kingston, the death occurred of Archie Sexsmith of Bancroft, at the age of 45.

The deceased was the son of Mary Sexsmith and the late Tobias Sexsmith, of Coe Hill. Left to mourn his passing are his wife, the former Audrey Hughson, two daughters, Mrs. William Lynch, (Nina) of Belleville and Donna at home, one son, Murray, also at home. Two brothers, Joe of Coe Hill and Percy of Eganville, also one grandson, Bobby of Belleville.

Those attending the funeral included Mrs. Fred Anderson of Juniper, N.B., sister of Mrs. Sexsmith.

The funeral service was held from the Sandercock Funeral Home, Bancroft on Friday, Sept. 1st. Rev. F. W. Smith officiating at the chapel and graveside in Coe Hill Anglican Cemetery.

The bearers were former friends and associates, George McCaw, Nick Whitmore, Harold Wheeler, Herb Lehigh, Cliff Landon and John Goodkey. The funeral was largely attended, many friends and acquaintances paying their last respects. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful.

LATE MRS. ROBERT STAPLEY
(Frankford)

Funeral services for the late Ethel May Irene Stapley, wife of Robert Stapley, of Frankford, were held Saturday afternoon from the Rowe Funeral Home to Eggleton Church, where service was conducted by the Rev. F. M. Perry assisted by Rev. Potter, both of Frankford, and Rev. J. S. Spearman.

The bearers were Lorne Stapley, Clifford Cook, James Stapley, Charles Stapley, Stanley Cook and Harry Cook. Interment was made in Clark's Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Stapley died in Toronto General Hospital on Thursday, Sept. 28th following a lengthy illness. She was born at Gilmour, Ont., 39 years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wilson. She had lived for the past nine years in Frankford and previously in Sidney township. She was a member of the United Church.

Surviving besides her husband are two sons, Wilfred, of Toronto, and Robert, at home; three daughters, Mrs. Collin (Annetta) Cleveland; Mrs. James (Fern) Downs, and Miss Betty Stapley, at home. There are two brothers, Harold Wilson, and Lyol Wilson of Belleville, and three sisters Mrs. Bert Hobbs, Mrs. James Hill and Miss June Wilson. There are four grandchildren.

BRITISH FROM JAPAN ARRIVE

Tokyo, Oct. 2 — (Reuters — More than 300 British troop reinforcements for Korea arrived in Japan by air from Britain this week, an RAF spokesman said today.

Most of them will join the Battalion of Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders accidentally bombed by American airmen recently.

More reinforcements are to be flown from Britain later.

IN MEMORIAM

BULPITT — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Madeline Bulpitt, who died on October 1st, 1947.

Three years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her husband, Lloyd and two sons, Stanley and Gerald. O3

MOREAU — In loving memory of our darling daughter, Vimy Moreau, who passed away October 2nd, 1945

Before the throne of God
Thousands of children stand
Children whose sins are all forgiven
A holy, happy band.
Up there among the throng
Our little Vimy stands
Waiting for us to join her
In that holy, happy land.

Ever remembered by Mum, Daddy, brothers and sisters. O3

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Industrial stocks jumped ahead strongly in early dealings on the Toronto Stock Exchange today but were stopped as the session progressed.

Trends continued upwards in later dealings despite appearance of downward pressure. Papers showed a wide list of fractional gains and steels, agricultures, textiles and refining oils were higher. Utilities were about balanced and constructions weakened.

Heavy selling early yesterday pushed market leaders lower following freeing of the Canadian dollar but a recovery move set in, wiping out many of the losses. Buyers started briskly today but were stopped in mid-session.

Base metals brightened slightly in heavy trading. Sherritt-Gordon Mines held the limelight, trading heavily for a moderate gain. The stock touched a new top at $2.80 in early trading but lost part of the advance.

Western oils showed gains ranging up to 10 cents. Interest slackened in later dealings and some signs of easiness appeared

Golds turned lower following a moderate advance yesterday. Selected junior producers dipped as much as 15 cents while seniors held steady.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,319,000 shares.

Dollar Exchange Rate Steadying

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian dollar today seemed to be steadying at a four to five-cent improvement over its controlled price of last week.

Toronto transactions showed the United States dollar costing $1.04¾ to $1.05¼, as against the controlled $1.10.

Montreal reported $1.05¼ to $1.05¾. New York quoted the Canadian dollar at 94⅝ to 94⅞ cents.

These ranges were closer together than the fluctuating quotations of yesterday.

However, there did not seem to be much money offering and traders were hesitant to hazard an opinion as to whether this situation would continue or whether some speculative money might yet be forced onto the market.

Gold Producers On Same Basis As Before War

Ottawa, Oct. 2 (CP) —Finance Minister Abbott today announced that the government's price to Canadian gold producers will now operate on the same basis as before the war when there was no official rate on the Canadian dollar.

This follows Saturday's action when the government took off the arbitrary exchange rate and left the Canadian dollar to find its own level in the money market.

The formula is: A basic proce of $35 a fine ounce, United States funds, converted into Canadian funds weekly at a average noon rate of premium Monday through Friday.

The daily 12 o'clock noon rate will be reported to the finance department by the Bank of Canada, Monday through Friday. The average noon rate for the five days will dictate the premium to be paid on the $35 an ounce rate for the gold delivered to the Royal Canadian mint in that week.

This, if the week's noontime buying rates for U.S. funds averaged at, say, a five percent premium, the seller would get $35 an ounce plus five percent for the gold delivered to the mint in that week.

Creamery Butter Production Down Four Per Cent

Toronto, Oct. 2—(CP)—Creamery butter production in Ontario during the first eight months of the year declined four per cent, the Agriculture Department said today in its monthly dairy report.

The eight months' production amounted to 50,192,000 pounds cheddar cheese production was 49,360,000 pounds, down 12.8 per cent. August output of creamery butter was 7,515,000 pounds, a decrease of 4.3 per cent from August, 1949. August production of Cheddar cheese was 9,746,000 pounds, an 11.6 per cent drop compared with the same month last year.

CAMPBELLFORD

Car and Garage Lost in Fire

Campbellford, (Special.)—Fire destroyed a car and garage on the farm of Mr. Lewis Dunk on the 3rd concession of Seymour East, about five miles east of Campbellford on Saturday night.

Mr. Dunk had returned from Campbellford and put the automobile in the garage earlier in the evening. He heard the dog barking and went to the door to let him in when he saw the flames shooting from the garage. Mr. Dunk was helpless to put out the flames which had gained considerable headway. Neighbors saw the [illegible] and notified the Campbellford fire department, where the alarm was sounded and more than two hundred people in more than sixty cars travelled to the farm, believing the house was on fire. Permission was obtained to send the Campbellford fire truck and men to the scene, and although it took the truck less than ten minutes to arrive, the garage and car were already destroyed.

Firemen confined their efforts to checking the spread of the flames, and later to quenching the flaming embers. Loss is estimated at more than $1,000, most of which is covered by insurance. The fire is believed to have started from a short in the wiring of the car. Flames appeared to originate from the motor of the vehicle, and quickly spread through the frame building.

Mr. Dunk and his wife live alone on the farm.

Ohio Plane Found Wrecked, Couple Aboard Safe

Winnipeg, Oct. 3 — (CP)—The RCAF said today it has been advised an Ohio plane missing on a flight from Michigan to Kenora, Ont., has been found wrecked, but the couple aboard are safe.

The accident was reported to have occurred 25 miles east of Manistique, Mich., on the plane's route between Traverse City and Escanaba, Mich.

Details were not available here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker of Dayton, O., had been unheard from since they left Traverse City Sunday in their amphibious plane. They were on a vacation and hunting trip to Kenora.

May Lose Sight Of Eye When Cartridge Explodes

Struck in the face by a flying piece of metal from a jet propulsion cartridge attached to his model airplane 17-year-old George O'Neil, son of George O'Neil, of the local bus terminal may lose the sight of his left eye.

The accident occurred outside the local bus terminal Monday evening as the youth was igniting the jet propulsion cartridge with a match. The cartridge exploded with a terrific force one of the flying pieces of metal striking the youth in the face. Two other lads were standing near, but escaped injury.

The father said today that he had no idea where his son had procured the jet propulsion cartridge but he understood they were manufactured for sale to model airplane enthusiasts. The explosion was believed to have occurred when a pin failed to come out, the burning fuel building up such a pressure that the container exploded.

The injured boy was taken to hospital where his injured eye was attended to by Dr. F.R. Ross. The doctor said it would not be known for a day or so whether the sight of the eye would be lost.

Inquest Ordered After Death Of Earl O. Fox

Critically injured when his truck was struck by a train on Saturday at Ivanhoe, Earl Orville Fox, 41, of Catherine Street, died Monday afternoon in Belleville General Hospital.

An inquest looking into the death has been ordered, the preliminary hearing being held this morning at the hospital before Coroner Dr. G. S. Cronk. Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acted for the Crown, the hearing being adjourned to Tuesday, Oct. 10th at 8 p.m.

Jurors empanelled were Carmen Fitchett, Vernon Goyer, George Osler, John Wood and George Olsen, all of Belleville.

District Farmers Welcome Rain

The rapid change from yesterday's summer weather to today's rain may leave some city dwellers sad, but the farmers won't mind.

There was lots of comment over the weekend that this was really the first summer weather we had had all year. Shirt sleeves and tropical clothes come back in with a rush, travellers got into cars to see the north country in the beginning of its fall glory.

All the sunny dispositions and even the sun itself were dispersed in the city this morning, but the country folk will welcome the dampness to fill their cisterns and facilitate fall plowing.

So if your nose turns up at the weatherman's offering today, remember that it may just help to feed you next year.

Says More Traffic Accidents Caused By Solid Citizens

Toronto, Oct. 3—(CP)— Such solid citizens as doctors, ministers and women shoppers cause more traffic accidents on Toronto streets than drunk drivers and 'teen-aged "hot-rodders," traffic director Vernon Page said today.

"A lot of them got their licences years ago when traffic congestion was non-existent and cars weren't so powerful," he said.

"Look at me. I'm 37 and I haven't had a test for 21 years."

Three Local Youths Appear At Cobourg

Cobourg, Oct. 3—(ENS)—Judgment was reserved by Magistrate R. B. Baxter after last week's hearings of the charges of robbery with violence against Ronald Elliott, 17, and Roland Sandford, 21, of Belleville, and Garth Badgely, 22, of Cannifton.

The boys were charged with robbing Nicholas Sispatol of Seymour township of $108 on August 3.

According to the statements to the police alleged to be made by Elliott and Badgely and the testimony of Sispatol and Sandford in court, the four had been on a party in which a considerable amount of beer and liquor had been drunk.

Elliott, in his statement to the police, said that he was in the car with Sandford, Bagely and Sispatol. Sandford got in an argument with Sispatol who was drunk. He saw Sandford hit him several times while the car was stopped near Hoard's Station. Sispatol fell down and Sandford went through his pockets and took his money, giving $30 to Elliott, he said.

Badgley said he met Sandford in August in Belleville and they went to Sispatol's house where they had two bottles of liquor and three cases of beer. They drove to Campbellford and near Hoard's Station the car broke down. Sandford and Sispatol got in an argument and Sandford knocked him down and took his money. Badgley said he received $20 of the money but gave it to Sispatol.

Sandford testified that he had been drinking and had hit Sispatol twice during the argument after the car broke down. He said that during the course of the drunken argument, Sispatol produced his wallet and he grabbed it and passed the contents around.

Brothers Thwart Hold-Up Men

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (CP) — A 61-year-old Lowertown merchant and his 63-year-old brother last night thwarted two hold-up men who entered his store and demanded money.

Louis Torontow, proprietor of a biscuit shop, said the two men walked into his store and one of them, with his hand in his pocket, declared: "This is a hold-up."

Torontow said he told them to help themselves from the cash register, but they began roughing him up and forced him toward a small room at the back of the store.

Then Torontow's older brother, Joseph, entered the store, and despite warnings of "stand back or I'll shoot," began grappling with the men. During the struggle the two men broke away and ran from the shop.

MARMORA

Work on Road Being Pushed At Bannockburn

Marmora. — Motorists using No. 62 Highway between Eldorado and Bancroft are aware of construction being undertaken on a large scale. At Fox's Corners, about two miles north of Eldorado, straightening and levelling of the highway extends for about four miles until Bannockburn is reached. Work is continuing day and night.

At Kellar's Bridge, the road is being elevated to an extent that the narrow iron bridge there will have to be replaced by a modern and presumably concrete structure of greater width. At L'Amable another contractor has been doing straightening of a road that was marked with steep hills and dangerous curves, which promises to be a great boon to traffic in that northern section of Hastings County as it is graded under requirements.

Matron Smashes Stick-Up Man on Head With 'Gone With Wind'

Montreal, Oct. 3 (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Nicholson was quietly reading a novel when a man came into the Catholic Sailors' Club here where she is matron.

The man asked for a Spruce beer and when she returned with it he snapped:

"This is a stickup; hand over your cash!"

Mrs. Nicholson didn't hesitate. She brought down "Gone with The Wind"—all 1,795 pages of it—on the man's head.

He fled.

DRIVE MAY CARRY

"We will get there in a month—maybe two months. But we want to get there before the winter comes."

The Manchurian border is about 180 air miles north of parallel 38, the border between South and North Korea. By road it is closer to 300.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters broke its silence on the Sunday crossing of the parallel 38 border by the South Koreans. His Tuesday afternoon war summary said without elaboration that South Korean 3rd Division troops had advanced to Tongho, a village 13 miles north of the border on the Sea of Japan.

An allied spokesman in Korea, however, said spearheads of the 3rd division had moved beyond captured Kansong against little opposition.

Kansong is about 35 miles north of the border and within 60 road miles of Wonsan. Wonsan is the oil-refinery port where communist prisoners have said the North Koreans are hastily massing troops for an all-out defence stand.

Another South Korean division the Capital, had moved at least 15 miles north of parallel 38 Tuesday morning. It was advancing on a road a few miles inland. MacArthur's Tuesday summary did not mention the Capital Division as being north of the border.

No American Troops

Behind this all-South Korean force of at least 20,000 troops, the Republic's 6th Division captured Chunchon, seven miles south of the border in the centre of the peninsula. The sixth moved on north toward the 38th parallel.

A MacArthur spokesman said he did not know of any American forces with the South Koreans inside North Korea. However, he could not recall any earlier large-scale action when U.S. advisory officers had not accompanied South Korean forces.

Red Koreans were silent for the third straight day on the border crossing and MacArthur's Sunday ultimatum calling on them to surrender or be destroyed.

U.S. Marines meanwhile were fighting into the blasted town of Uijongbu, 12 miles north of Seoul and 20 miles south of 38.

MacArthur's summary said the Marines had reached Uijongbu's southern outskirts in one of the main battles of the scattered mop-up fighting in South Korea.

Throughout the remainder of South Korea, allied troops continued cleaning out red forces ranging from a few hundreds to thousands.

MacArthur's spokesman said the largest North Korean force reported was about 4,000 troops who were attacked in ridges eight miles southeast on Wonju, 55 miles east of Suwon. Half were believed to be wounded. Allied forces drove the reds into hills.

OCTOBER AT ITS BEST

October has entered with all the grace and beauty usually associated with the time of year. It brought unusual warmth, making it feel rather like a late summer day on Monday, late in the year though it be.

The tenth month has with many the reputation of being really the finest of the autumn and even of the entire year. It is the time of full garners and rich colors. The earth has just come to the end of the season of producing her annual output of fruit and vegetables and at such a time it is naturally to feel much of the thanksgiving spirit and of the fruition and reward of man's efforts. Next Monday the Canadian people will enter into the spirit of Thanksgiving at the annual festival.

SWIFT TEMPO IN KOREA

Action has moved swiftly in recent days in the Korean theatre of war. After a swift drive, backed by the necessary forces the United Nations arms drove forward, causing retreat of the enemy, the North Koreans. It also brought before the United Nations the grave question how far the UN forces should proceed, whether or not to cross the 38th parallel. The advance came so quickly that it was ahead of the decision whether or not to cross the line about which there had not been contention until lately.

It has been pointed out that the 38th parallel was at no time really a recognized boundary. Commenting on this a New York Times writer says that the Koreans north and south of the parallel were and are of the same race and the boundary was originally set up by agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union as a purely military demarcation of areas of operation. It was not a political boundary.

Then the Russians and the North Koreans began to change its character by resistance to all plans of unification.

The UN General Council at no time recognized the validity of the partition of Korea into north and south Korea. The situation sharpened when the communists refused to permit UN observers to come into any part of the peninsula of Korea north of the 38th parallel says the Times.

"The fiction of the frontier has been most effectively destroyed by the Korean communists themselves. After hundreds of border forays they dropped the last pretence and attempted unification of the country, on their own terms by force of arms."

The object of this has been frustrated by the fact that the United Nations have taken up the cause. The UN striking for the welfare of the free Koreans will see the situation through for it has become the test of strength and will of the free nations against aggression.

The communists have ignored the order of General MacArthur to give up or be broken up. The South Koreans had crossed the boundary to a depth of thirty miles on the north side of the 38th parallel by Monday.

DIGGING INTO DIM PAST

Digging in the dust of the past archeologists of today are finding what is said to be the first proof of a prehistoric migration across the Behring Straits. University of Pennsylvania archaeologists are believed to have found relics of the first inhabitants and settlements of North America. The finds substantiate the theory that these inhabitants were primitive nomads who crossed the straits in the far-away stone age.

Modern science is being called in to reveal the age of the 2,000 to 3,000 objects found in Northwest Alaska. Some of the radioactive relics are bits of charcoal from the fires which many thousands of years ago were lighted by the primitive Alaskans. There are also fragments of reindeer antlers and charred animal bones.

As far as discoveries are concerned, the present age is the most learned of all for it knows what were the conditions of life of many ages and periods of time and what the people were like. These facts were hidden from all but the recent finders.

It has remained for the past two generations to make momentous discoveries of the conditions of life many generations ago, bringing new light into the dark or dim sections of early history.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNER

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts on behalf of peace.

How successful his efforts were is indicated in the ending of hostilities in the Near East. Dr. Bunche had taken the post of mediator at a crucial time. Everyone remembers the shock that went around the world when Count Bernadotte lost his life in the early efforts at peacemaking.

Dr. Bunche comes rightly by this high honor.

True happiness renders men happy and sensible; and that happiness is always shared with others. — Montesquieu.

CHALLENGE

Heed no sly and whispered word
Save to challenge and defeat it.
When disloyal speech is heard
Prompt and ready be to meet it.

Scorn the man who would betray.
Poisonous the brew he's steeping.
Coldly send him on his way.
Friendship false is not worth keeping.

God has blest our glorious land,
Made it one to love and cherish,
Fortright then for freedom stand,
Lest our way of life shall perish,

Freedom withers under might,
Tyrants use their force to end it,
When it's threatened, day or night
With your heart and mind defend it.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3, 1930

There has been considerable criticism, more especially on the part of pedestrians, that there is no yellow, or safety light on the signal at the corner of Bridge and Front Sts. Pedestrians claim that they have no chance against traffic; they say that it does not matter whether the light is against them or with them — there is always traffic of some description at the corner.

The northward pier of the new upper bridge has been poured and the footings poured on the middle pier, with the whole centre pier being finished before the weekend, which is excellent progress.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3, 1920

The Y's held a parlor meeting at the residence of Miss Deacon on George Street yesterday. It was decided to assist the W. C. T. U. in their rummage sale.

Members of the city council went to Picton today to attend a meeting at which will be considered the details of the proposition which is to be submitted to the electors in January next relative to the purchase of the bay bridge.

Mr. B. R. Quincey, bread inspector, submitted his report to the city council which showed that he had made 191 inspections during the year and found that the law was being obeyed. In some instances bread was overweight.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3, 1910

Mrs. John McCroden spent Sunday in the city.

Mr. J. S. McKeown has returned from Boston, Mass.

Mr. William Appleby, an old Belleville boy who has been in the Yukon territory for some time, is here on a visit.

Mr. J. C. Sinclair and wife of Inverness, Scotland, are visiting Miss Sutherland, Forin Street.

Mr. J. L. Hess, Secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., has gone to Toronto to consult with the architect relative to the plans for the new Y. M. C. A. building here. The excavation work will be commenced next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper have returned to Toronto after visiting relatives here.

A reception was tendered last evening to the Rev. A. G. Baker and his bride at the Baptist Church. They are spending a few days here.

Mrs. Kincaid of Brockville is visiting Mrs. DeMille at Avondale.

Mr. T. T. Ferguson of Stirling was in town today.

Dr. George W. Wright has returned to the city after spending a few days in Frankford.

Mr. J.J.B. Flint was in Tweed today on legal business.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Treasure Within

A friend this summer showed me some samples of quartz with small specks of gold within them and presented me with a small piece with a tiny nugget of gold looking out into the big world. He said that it was unprofitable to mine this small stuff, but that if he had the capital to dig deep he might discover the rich veins of gold.

I've been thinking a great deal about what my friend told me. I recalled how, in some places miners have gone for miles under the sea for coal and deep into the earth for precious metals and diamonds. I recalled reading from an essay by John Ruskin where he said: "When you come to a good book, ask yourself, Am I inclined to work as a miner would?' The metal you are in search of being the author's mind or meaning, his words are as the rock which you have to crush and smelt in order to get at it."

We are apt to read books just to get the story, or to be intrigued by clever characterization. But it's the book with hidden gold within it that lives, and the reader who searches for this enriches his mind for all time, for such a book is for all time and does not die. In like manner, to show a person genuinely we must get deep into their inner self, fathom their richest thoughts, and learn to interpret their heart, for there is hidden treasure in every human being.

Nature reveals endless beauty in creations all about us. Her flowers, shrubs and trees beautify the entire earth. But you have to mingle with these gifts in order to fully appreciate them. There is friendliness to the very touch of every sort of foliage, and no carpet by man has ever excelled in beauty the mossy one that anyone may tread in the thick forest. But deep in the earth are to be had the most precious treasures — and these can only be gained by digging.

We never know what is in the human heart until we start exploring it. Those least suspected may have hidden within them the richest of treasures. How often it is that we come to know one in the midst of trouble or sorrow!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

The Faith of Children

At the scene of an accident, a towing truck was endeavoring to pull up a large trailer which had gone over the bank. Time after time, the cables tightened and the trailer heaved upward, but it always fell back. A little girl standing among the spectators said, "Mummie, lets go get Daddy. He can do it. He can do anything."

The faith which little children have in their parents is touching — and revealing. When there is trouble, they run to us for comfort and protection. When toys break or knees are skinned, they come straight to us, in tears perhaps, but sure that we can fix it.

Their faith is remarkably strong despite our constant failures to justify it. How often we are angry unjustly, unable to fix the toy, or too busy to provide the comfort they seek. Yet they continue to love and trust us anyway.

We adults need the childlike faith. As children of God, we have a Father to Whom nothing is impossible, Whose love and protection are always present. Just as we often require our children to do things which they do not understand, so God often acts beyond our comprehension. As our children's faith is great despite our weakness, our faith in God should be strong in proportion of His omnipotence.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BY THE BOOK

Bedford, N.S.—The Nova Scotia travel people, apart from putting out the handsomest tourist literature we've encountered, have a Jim-dandy gimmick for entertaining the visiting motorist.

Working on the sound theory that the average traveller is usually at too much of a gallop to explore properly the country along his way, Nova Scotia publishes a "Tour Book" with a kind of runnning commentary for each of the highway routes criss-crossing the province.

If you enter the province from New Brunswick, as we did this morning, your introduction to Nova Scotia is an attractive park with rock garden, manicured lawns and an extravagant widening of the highway. Sort of shows up New Brunswick and I'm surprised that they didn't put a park on their side so you'd be sorry to leave.

This is clearly a trap and an efficient one, and even the heaviest-footed tourist is apt to rein in beside the immaculate bungalow-office where several Bureau of Information greeters are eager to instruct him in getting the most from their product. It's an idea bound to make friends and influence tourists.

Here we got our copy of the Tour Book, thumbed to the chapter concerning Highway Route Two—from the border to Halifax—and, for the first time in this trans-Canada tour, knew a little something of the country unreeling outside the car windows.

How else, for example, would we have known that that old railway bed just this side the boundary was to be North America's first ship railway? Was, says Tour Book. Says 4000 men worked five years laying a track that would carry ships up to 5000 tons from Cumberland Basin to Tindnish, thus saving the long voyage around the Nova Scotia peninsula. No ship ever made the trip because the backers ran out of money.

There. See what I mean about this little volume.

Those Names

Mind you, I'm not at all sure that even such a Tour Book gives a really comprehensive idea of this corridor across Nova Scotia. If somebody were to ask me about Amherst, for example, I would be able to mumble only that Amherst manufactures funeral supplies, aerated water for fox biscuits (biscuits for foxes?) because these items caught my eye. And I know it isn't enough.

But the book does answer one question that plagues every traveller: how did such-and-such a town get its name? I'm still haunted by such names as Three Pistols, Quebec; Swastika, Ont.; Seven Persons, Alta.; and a dozen more that I meant to look into, but never did.

And so, today, when we passed through a hamlet with the name "Economy" it saved a lot of frustration to simply look up this maritime Baedecker and find that it comes from the Indian name "Kenomee," which means "a long point jutting out into the sea."

Economy, by the way, is south of Nappan which comes from the Indian word meaning "a good place to get wigwam poles."

On the other hand, it is north of the city of Truro which manufactures pyjamas and creosote poles and has a sporty nine-hole golf course with a tough seventh hole ("335 yards, a dog's leg," Tour Book records, "Tee shot, 200 yards across 40-foot tidal brook and strip of marsh, to the bend. The green is well trapped with two bunkers on the right and one on the left.")

Fact is, most of the towns we passed through bear Indian names and I am tempted to throw away my Hugo's French Simplified and get down to studying basic Indian, a truly remarkable language. How much simpler it is to say simply "Nappan" rather than "there's a good place to get wigwam poles.'

According to Tour Book, Stewiacke means "flowing softly from still water," Musquodobolt means "flowing out square," and Shubenacadie means "place where wild potatoes grow." No wonder Indians are traditionally close-mouthed. Two words make a monologue.

Some Sagas

Driving through such pastoral country without Tour Book and a wife to read it, you'd never dream of the high old adventure that went on along this modern highway.

Who would ever guess, zipping across the Sackville River Bridge, that a turnpike bridge was built here in 1782 to collect tolls and was twice destroyed by parties of masked men? (Why, Tour Book doesn't say. Probably just didn't like toll bridges.)

At Parrsboro on the Bay of Fundy, we turned to the guide and found a ready-made scenario for a Hollywood extravaganza with a part tailor-made for Lana Turner. Lend an ear a moment to this:

"Two centuries ago, Deno, an Italian pirate (Tyrone Power) captured a British vessel with rich cargo and made all but the captain's daughter, who was extremely beautiful, walk the plank. A great storm then drove the pirate from his course until at last he arrived in the Bay of Fundy and landed at Black Point. The beach seemed littered with jewels, and each of the amazed pirates gathered a treasure of amethyst.

"The captain, unable to subdue his fair captive, placed her in a cave on the shore, threw in a number of salted pollock as food, closed the entrance with stone, and sailed away. Some time later Indians who passed that way heard strange wailing cries and fled. Later, bolder ones returned to investigate. They opened the cave and found the skeleton of the unfortunate girl. The French knew the spot at Pollock Cave and it was claimed that during certain times of the year the weird cries of the imprisoned girl could still be heard."

All of this, as I say, is at Parrsboro, which has a nin-hole golf course ("many sporty hazards"), carries on general shipping and offers weir fishing within a radius of four miles.

Mackenzie's Column:

Troops Continue To Press Despite Blast from China

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Anlyst)

South Korean forces have continued to push above the 38th parallel despite communist China's thinly-veiled threat of intervention to save her red comrades.

American planes also have been blasting at North Korean troop concentrations and other strategic targets above this "deadline."

Thus it would seem that the United Nations forces aren't particularly impressed with the seriousness of communist Premier Chou Enlai's fiery blast during the weekend.

Next to communist leader Mao Tze-Tung, Chou is the most powerful figure in red China. An important announcement by him can't be thrust aside lightly.

However, in the present instance I belive we are justified in saying that Chou was speaking with the tongue of Moscow. In short, he was dispensing Russian propaganda which also suits China's purpose.

This merely confirms what long has been apparent — that Mao, Chou and the other Chinese communist leaders have decided to follow Russia's lead. Thus it isn't a question of whether it would be to China's advantage to intervene in Korea, but whether it would suit Moscow's general program.

Chou's present position is especially interesting in view of his original claim that Chinese comunism had nothing to do with the Moscow brand, but was purely agrarian. I had a long talk with him in Chungking during the last war, and he labored diligently to convince me of this point.

Wasn't Convinced

I wasn't convinced, but if anyone could have done the trick it would be Chou. He is a persuasive man of much culture and with a striking and likeable personality.

As regards General Chou's weekend threat, it is of course true that both China and Russia are greatly interested in Korea. The peninsula base touches both Manchuria and Soviet Siberia — close to the great Russian naval port of Vladivostok. It's likely that both of them would have liked to intervene in the Korean crisis if it had been feasible.

However, despite Chou's grim language, it isn't likely that the Chinese will intervene at this late date.

If they had intended to take a hand, they would have done so long before this.

IGNORES DEMANDS

Tokyo, Oct. 3 — (AP) — Red Korea's radio continued today to ignore Gen. MacArthur's surrender demands.

The Pyongyang station missed its regular 5 p. m. Monday broadcast — perhaps as a result of Allied air raids on the red capital's power station.

Then it came back on the air at 9 p. m. with a regular news commentary but carried no war communique or any reference to South Koreans crossing the parallel 38 border.

A DISH OF WHEAT OR A THREE DOLLAR SHOT

A reader with extraordinary discerment inquires whether the vitamin B complex—group of vitamins present in combination in various foods — particularly. B1 (thiamine), B2 (riboflavin), niacin (nicotinic acid, anti-pellagra vitamin)—taken in concentrated form such as tablet, capsule, syrup or "shots," is more efficacious than a fair daily ration of plain wheat or wheat germ.

A unit, microgram, milligram or fraction of a grain or thiamine, for instance has the same value to maintain good nutrition or to prevent nutritional deficiency manifestations or to correct them, whether it is taken as plain wheat, wheat germ, or in concentrate such as tablet, capsule, syrup or "shots."

From a single capsule, tablet, tablepsoonful of syrup taken by mouth, or an intramuscular or subcutaneous injection administered by the office girl dressed like a nurse one gets the identical effects that one would get from eating two or three ounces of plain wheat. But who wants to eat wheat that has not been magically "processed," refined and attractively packaged for discriminating chowderheads?

The business of Yankee wiseacres "shots" of vitamins has taken care of the overhead and made a handsome profit besides for thousands of charlatans who catch the sucker trade by calling their shops "clinics."

A clinic, in Noah Webster's quaint view, is an institution where diagnoses are made and patients treated before classes of medical students. This proper meaning of the term, like many other principles, has been perverted. There are some benuine clinics in Yankeeland, where patients are examined and treated without charge or for only the cost of medicine or keep, in return for their consent to be examined and treated before classes of medical students. So far as the general public is aware, however, nearly all "clinics" today are downright rackets and not educational institutions. Please don't deceive yourself about my bias. If your pet "clinic" is known as the Clinic with Dr. ——— as chief, of course it is a racket—a racket to attract customers in ways not permissible for a doctor who practices under his own name. Just because you were caught that way does not after the fact that the "clinic" is a racket.

It has been abundantly impressed upon me that a good many credulous customers whose I. Q. is evidently above average dote on vitamin "shots" when they feel the need of a "lift." Believe it or not, I have studied this problem and I have experimented considerably, upon myself and others, in order to answer the question in my own mind beyond shadow of doubt. Of course it is merely an opinion—but so is the view of the merchant who sells you the "shots". It is my considered judgment that any "lift" the customer gets from vitamin shots is psychological, fanciful, imaginary. Any immediate effect, that is, within an hour or two. There is no question in my mind that regular daily vitamin shots or rations by mouth over a sufficient period of time, say a term or semester in school or college, particularly thiamine (vitamin B1) boops both physical and mental capacity, vigor, vite, for the average child or adult, as I endeavor to explain in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite—for copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope. But this is a matter of better nutrition and you can't hope to improve nutrition appreciably in a few hours.

In rare instances it may be necessary or advisable to administer this or that vitamin or combination of vitamins with minerals, perhaps, by injection under the skin, into muscle or even directly into a vein. It is difficult, however, to conceive this artifice or expedient is warranted if the patient is still able to take nourishment in the natural way. That all known vitamins serve their specific purposes in the natural way is proved by the fact that healthy people get theirs only in the natural food they eat from day to day.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How to Gain Weight

Can you furnish a list of foods and how much to eat, for a person who wishes to gain weight? (Miss T. H.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (do not use clipping) for pamphlet How to Gain Weight.

Exercise for Gall Bladder

Sent for your booklet on exercise for the gall bladder but have never received it (Mrs. J. R.)

Answer—The Young Snip, chief of the studio staff, now tells me that you probably want instructions for belly breathing, which, as I explained in a recent article, gives liver and gall bladder a gentle, natural massage. This exercise in natural breathing is described in the booklet How to Breathe—for copy send 25¢ and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Congenital Pyloric Stenosis

Our baby, now 9 months old, was born with pyloric stenosis. Can you give me any information. (Mrs. C. A. VanH.)

Answer—Vitamin B complex. Mother's diet before birth of baby should contain three or four times as much as she ordinarily requires. Infant's diet from birth should include a good daily ration of it. This was clearly demonstrated by the studies of C. Ulysses Moore, M.D., and his coworkers at University of Oregon Medical School.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the butcher business, you have a lot of leeway. You can be generous or stingy, but in trimming and, above all, in the quality of the cuts. Sirloin steak is a certain price everywhere. But there are good sirloins and poor sirloins; and the butcher is the boy who knows which is which.

"In short," writes a butcher to The Packsack," there are bargains in meat. By that I mean that one customer gets a good steak for a dollar a pound, and another customer gets a steak that is not so good for the same price. Therefore, the first customer gets a bargain. And I would like to tell you who gets the bargains in my store.

"It is the white collar worker, the man with the fixed salary. I am making more money than I ever made, and so are most merchants. I am perfectly convinced that most businessmen are making more money than ever; and by the way they spend, I also know that the mechanics and skilled workers are better off than they have ever been. But it must be pretty hard on the salary worker, the office man, the store clerk and the white collar worker generally. From the same clues by which I can tell the mechanic is better off I can tell the salary worker is worse off; he is spending less and less.

"So, about three months ago my wife and I were working on my accounts, and we talked the whole thing over. We wanted to express our gratitude some way for the increasing good times we have enjoyed for several years past. And looking at these accounts the answer was easy to see. So we decided then and there that from now on, there are no bargains for anybody in our store but for the white collar worker, who is making less and less each month that prices go up and wages go up and profits go up.

"And I think the retail merchants of this country generally might perform a very real service at this time if they just quietly saved the bargains for the one class amongst us that is caught, you might say, in the jam."

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E Futcher

Copenhagen, Denmark.

This morning I am to broadcast to my Ontario members some of the impressions and experiences of the conference, so I am on my way early to "Radio House" as the taxidriver calls it. We have used taxis a great deal while in this city—there is just nothing else to do when you don't know the tram service. It is a simple matter to step in a taxi, give the address and ride without any worry of right directions. It isn't always easy though to step in these taxis— the door is so small and the floor so high, that you have almost to bend double to enter. Fortunately they are not too costly and seem to be always available and have a code of honor of their own. You must always take the taxi at the head of the line—it is his turn. I hope some of you hear my message and recognize my voice, coming across hundreds of miles.

The policy committee finishes its report this morning and is followed by the report of the finance committee. We all know adequate financing is one of the essentials of any live organization, and a great deal of time was spent in discussing the recommendations put forth. All delegates were in agreement that our president, Mrs. Sayre, must have ample funds to allow her to travel among us and to represent us at various international meetings, wherever they are held, especially at United Nations for we have consultative status here and at F.A.O. meetings.

To provide more funds the life membership fee was raised from ten to fifteen pounds and a very definite drive is to be put on to increase the "Pennies for Friendship" fund which is the two cents we pay as individuals per year to our international organization. Discussion centred around a suitable memorial to Mrs. Alfred Watt, the founder and first president of A.C.W.W. On a motion proposed by Quebec and Ontario Institutes, and accepted by the conference, this is to take the form "that the A.C.W.W. history, which is being written, be dedicated to Mrs. Watt, and that it contain an appropriate foreword as a memorial to her." It was brought out that many constituent societies had already acted on their own in planning suitable memorials and that the above recommendation would be agreeable to all.

At noon Mrs. Houck and I had a very interesting chat with Mr. Danvig, the man in charge in Denmark of exhibitions and fairs. He gave us posters as samples that they use in flower displays and pictures showing some new ideas in flower and fruit arrangements for showing. He further intimated Denmark would be interested in having a flower display at the Royal Winter Fair, if too late for arrangement this year, then later and would welcome Ontario reciprocating with a display here in the future. He mentioned chrysanthemums in particular as they are at their best this time of year. We are good press agents for Canada and Ontario, telling all the new people we meet what we have to offer in interest on the other side of the water.

It was six o'clock before all reports and resolutions had been duly dealt with and all the goodby's and good wishes said. You feel a strong bond of friendship with the women with whom you've worked and talked for over a week. As you left out assembly hall with its flags of all nations across the back of the platform, in company with women from all nations, you realized just what an inspiration the conference had been and what a tremendous influence as women, we can wield when we forget petty differences and customs and come together in faith and sincerity to find ways and means of building a better world.

But plans of our Danish hostesses were by no means finished. Every one of us was entertained at supper in a Danish home. When I reached my hostess' home I found there were five of us together— our Danish hostess, a member from Finland, two Americans, one from Nebraska and one from Kentucky, and myself—and here again we had a pooling of customs and ideas.

Their homes are very attractive —flowers and house-plants in every window, comfortable furniture, many antique pieces and always, lovely glass and china. We were taken upstairs to see the pride of the household — three children, two girls and a boy, 3, 5 and 7 years of age. The father is a teacher and was away at night school. He teaches five nights of the week and school in Denmark is six days a week. We left the table and coffee and pastries were served in the drawing room.

We all had a delightful evening, exchanging family experiences and family histories. Our hostess spoke English very well indeed (badly, she said) and the Finland member had been in the U.S. a few years ago, so conversation never lagged and more pen pals were added to my growing list.

VICTORIA AVENUE BAPTIST CHOIR ENTERTAINED

A very pleasant evening was spent at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, when the Women's Mission Circle of the church entertained the choir. About forty members sat down to a bountiful pot-luck supper which had been prepared by Mrs. Reynolds and her committee.

At the close of the supper Mrs. Post spoke a few words of welcome and tribute to Mr. Kelly, and Mrs. Welbanks presented him with a gift on behalf of the choir, as a token of appreciation for his many years of faithful service as a member of the choir.

Mrs. Campbell, president of the Mission Circle, then took charge, and extended a warm welcome to the choir members. Mrs. Campbell read a poem, "Our Choir". All business was dispensed with, except for appointing the delegates to the "Association" convention at Campbellford with Miss Lounsberry, Mrs. Blackburn, Sr., and Mrs. Gordon being appointed.

Mrs. Campbell called on Mr. Eastman, who delivered an inspiring address on "Our Task". Mr. Eastman said he was glad to be able to speak to these two groups at their joint meeting —the Mission Circle which represents the service side, and the choir, representing the praise and worship side of Christ and His great commission. Although the Baptist denomination in Canada is one of the smaller groups, there are 18 million Baptist throughout the world, who are striving to make known Jesus Christ as Saviours and Lord, and to co-operate with other denominations to extend God's Kingdom everywhere.

"In our convention," he stated, "there are about 11,000 members of the Mission Circles, who raised last year about $106,000. Our task should be vastly greater than to be just a good Mission Circle, but we should be workers here at home, and by praying, and studying, and giving, should touch India and Bolivia and our Home Mission Fields in the west and at Grand Ligne."

Mrs. Campbell thanked Mr. Eastman for his splendid address. Mr. Irwin rendered two solos, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Connor. Miss Phyllis May expressed appreciation on behalf of the choir, for the pleasant evening.

Social Program Much Enjoyed By H & S Club

Home and School was in a gay social mood on Monday evening at the Collegiate when the parents and teachers met for the first of the association meetings planned by program conveners Mr. L. A. Kells and Mr. Clifford Templer. The large crowd assembled in the gymnasia where they were greeted by the president, Mrs. F. R. Harback, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hill who were hospitality conveners. As well as the members and potential members of the association, the teaching staff had an excellent representation, and many members of the Board of Education were present thus affording a pleasant informal opportunity for those who are interested in the education of the adolescent to become acquainted.

Mr. Leslie Reid was master of ceremonies and he kept the sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Stan Hagerman, busy collecting fines for minor infractions.

Fun For Audience

Three contestants were chosen to go on a treasure hunt which included obtaining the signature of the mayor or chief of police, a feather, a cat and other difficult objects. The winner of this was Mr. Bertrim, who arrived back complete with a very small feline and was rewarded with a large decorated lollipop.

Mr. Harold Seldon was called on for a three-minute speech to tell the story of his life, which he did with some difficulty since the audience had been coached to heckle throughout the three minutes.

Mr. G. E. Currie, Mr. J. Musgrove, and Mr. E. David competed with Miss J. Tickell, Mrs. H. Seldon and Mrs. F. Harback in a quiz contest, but the male contestants sat in complete embarrassment while les femmes came up with all the right answers. To decide the winner of the losers the three gentlemen were given balloons to blow until they burst (the balloons of course). Mr. Linton Read conducted this contest.

A skit on the proper manner of proposing marriage was given by Miss Redfern, Mr. M. Hancock and Mr. Roy Sills.

An amusing lesson in mathematics with Rev. F. R. Harback as teacher of the class showed how a well conducted class does not behave when shown the intricacies of plus and minus.

A round of singing under the direction of Mr. C. Templer with Mrs. Templer at the piano was performed with Miss Merry and Miss Linden in centre stage.

Square Dance Enjoyed

The two gymns were then turned over to games of bridge, checkers, euchre, or canasta, while in the other dancing was enjoyed including a Paul Jones and square dancing, to the amplified music of a record player. Miss D. Martin of the collegiate staff instructed the dancers and called-off for the square dance.

A grand march climaxed the evening's entertainment with each group of eight repairing to the prepared tables where a tasty lunch was served under the direction of Mrs. H. R. Gibson and Mrs. G. Weston, social conveners, and their committee, assisted by two members of the group of eight who were fitted with paper caps and aprons.

Mrs. Harback introduced the members of the association executive, and the evening was concluded with many expressions of appreciation for a most successful and happy gathering.

Mr. Paul Maloney of Peterborough spent the weekend at his home here.

$67 Collected Tag Day

The annual Tag Day for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was held on Saturday, the girl taggers being under the supervision of Mrs. F. R. Wells, the local representative. The total collected was sixty seven dollars, a decrease from last year.

PYROGRAPHY

The art of producing designs on wood by "charring" with hot metallic points is known as pyrography.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Bridge St. W.A. was held in the church parlor Sept. 29th. The president Mrs. J. Marsh presided and opened with a hymn of Thanksgiving. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read by Mrs. H. Fox and Mrs. Wm. Gilbert. The corresponding secretary Mrs. W. Finkle reported 10 letters had been written. Mrs. H. B. Fetterley, the card secretary sent 27 cards. Mrs. R. Morden reported for the kitchen committee and Mrs. H. Francis for the parsonage committee. Mrs. J. M. Wood spoke on the National Council of Women's Associations which took place in September in Toronto, stressing longer worship periods and making a study of programs.

Mrs. Edgar Buchanan then took over the meeting and her opening remarks and prayer on the theme "today" made a fitting introduction for the solo "Just for Today" sung by Mrs. William Burgoyne. The guest speaker the Rev. Mr. Church was introduced by Mrs. Buchanan. He gave an inspirational talk which provided much food for thought. He spoke of God's plan of creation for the world and the ultimate outcome of that plan. He also stressed the smallness of the world itself in relation to the other planets of the universe and how little is known of what the future of the world may be.

Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Marsh and the meeting was closed with Mizpah benediction.

Refreshments served by Mrs. Buchanan's and Mrs. L. Wilson's group were much enjoyed.

HALLOWAY W.M.S. - W.A.

Mrs. Harold Wilkinson was hostess to the ladies of Halloway W. M. S. and W. A.. Mrs. Ed. Emerson conducted the worship service, the theme being "The Spirit of the Cross." She was assisted by Mrs. Lorne Wellman giving the reading on "Chaos". Mrs. Coleman Townsend read the Scripture lesson after which Mrs. Jacob Westerhof delighted with a vocal solo. A hymn was sung after which Mrs. Emerson called on Mrs. J. G. Sills of Foxboro, who gave a very interesting talk of her attendance at Peterborough Conference this summer.

It was decided to send for the new Study Book also plans for the home-cooking sale was discussed an invitation was read to an open meeting at Foxboro. The offering received amounting to $3.80.

Mrs. Earl Snider presided at the opening of the W. A., the theme song being sung and all repeated the W. A. Ode.

Mrs. Blake McMullen read the minutes of the last meeting. A letter was then read about a lecture and slides to be held in Halloway church in the near future. Plans were discussed for the coming bazaar to be held in November. The offering was then received and amounted to $1.65.

The hostess served a delicious lunch and a social half hour was spent.

PHILLIPSTON-ZION W.I.

Mrs. R. Cranston was hostess to the ladies of the Women's Institute for their September meeting over which the president, Mrs. Murney Simmons presided. Amusing experiences were related when the roll call was answered by "My Most Embarrassing Moment".

Mrs. Harry Sills, district president addressed the branch and also demonstrated some needlework.

Reviewing the girls' work during the summer months, Mrs. Percy Ray reported a very encouraging summing up of activities. The Institute members wish to congratulate the leaders, Mrs. Percy Ray and Mrs. Clifford Ray and also the girls of whom all are very proud, on the success which they attained at Stirling Achievement day and at the Belleville, Peterborough and Toronto exhibitions.

Mrs. Gordon Foster contributed a pleasing vocal solo.

The topic "What is Happiness" was presented by Mrs. Earle Ray. She stressed the fact that happiness is attained not by riches and a life of leisure but in the joy of living for others and working hard for the objectives. Pleasures of life are more appreciated after trouble and trouble brings out the love and human sympathy in others whose good fortune it is to comfort and assist in an hour of need. Let all be tolerant. Every person is entitled to his opinion. Happiness is a state of mind derived from being absolutely fair to ourselves as well as others and this greater understanding tends to make a happier people and a more united Canada. The topic was suitably closed with the poem "Watch the Corners of Your Mouth".

Mrs. Harry Ketcheson in a travel talk took her audience with her on a visit to the Atlantic Coast.

Unreported activities of the summer months included a bus and boat excursion to the Thousand Islands. The purchase of a piano for the community hall; a donation of $50 to the Manitoba Flood Relief and a donation of $10 to the Institute for the Blind.

Mrs. F. Benton, Mrs. Lawrenson Ketcheson, Mrs. Clifford Ray and Mrs. E. Sayers assisted Mrs. Cranston in serving.

Club Activities

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

The opening meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held at Kiwanis Centre. This was well attended— over fifty members giving ample proof of the enthusiasm and cooperation which can be expected for the season to come. Miss Joy Nichols presided. Following a business discussion, the two guest speakers were introduced to the club, Miss Madeline Rooney and Miss Christine Reynor of Cobourg. These two versatile women, business and professional respectively, had attended the national convention of B. & P. Clubs which was held in Halifax last July. Their interesting addresses were greatly enjoyed. Miss Rooney covered the social aspect of the convention and Miss Reynor presented the inspirational.

Miss Olive Delaney thanked the guest speakers on behalf of the club members.

A lovely dinner served by the hostess of the Kiwanis Centre and a novelty sing-song arranged by Miss Norma Arkles and Miss Marion Nichols added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Noted Artist Holds Exhibition Here

Miss Frances B. Sweeny, pictured above in a corner of her home in Westmount, P.Q., surrounded by some of her work, is in Belleville this week to exhibit some of her paintings. Miss Sweeny's art will be on display all this week at the Little Art Gallery on Pinnacle Street, and the show will be officially opened tonight by Mayor Jack Allin.

WEDDINGS

HOLTON—EDEN

Recently in Toronto, at the Church of the Messiah was solemnized a wedding which is of interest especially to the older residents of Belleville, when Miss Georgina Eden was given in marriage to Mr. Mackenzie Holton, a member of one of the oldest families of this district. The Rev. W. R. Sproule performed the ceremony.

The church which was tastefully decorated with seasonable flowers was truly a most picturesque setting. The choral procession of the choir, the organ prelude all lent dignity and splendor as the bride, Miss Georgina Eden on the arm of her father, entered the church, wearing an ivory satin gown with lace appliqued touches and petal point over skirt. A Juliet cap of satin and lace held her full length veil and she carried white roses and bouvardia.

Attending the bride were her sister Mrs. L. Price, as matron of honor; Sheila McLaughlin, Violet Conrod, Dorothy Needham and Margaret Cranmer, wearing blue and wine crepe gowns with matching half hats and carrying yellow 'mums.

Gerald Goddard, of Port Hope, was groomsman, while Leslie Price, Bruce Holton, Gerald Johnson and David Bradley were ushers.

After a special communion service, Miss Ruth Gordon sang "O Perfect Love", while the young couple signed the register.

Mrs. Douglas Holton, Belleville, mother of the groom, assisted Mrs. Eden in the reception at Prince Arthur House, St. George Street, Toronto.

GHENT—VANDERWATER

On September 23, at 3 o'clock, Marsh Hill United Church, Foxboro, was the setting for the interesting wedding of Margaret Aileen Vanderwater, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater, to Arthur Warren Ghent, B.Sc.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ghent, Toronto.

Before an altar decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums and tall spikes of white gladioli. Rev. F. H. Gilbert officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, designed by herself. The molded bodice had a rolled and shirred portrait neckline with long pointed sleeves, and the full skirt was deeply hooped, with a long train. A bandeau of white button chrysanthemums and ivy strands, held her lace fingertip veil, and her flowers were Eucharist lilies, gardenias, button poms and fleur-de-amour, with ivy.

Her sister, Miss Gena Vanderwater, was maid of honor, wearing brocaded yellow satin with a bandeau of bronze button poms and ivy, matching her bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Bazil Kuglin, Toronto, formerly Alison Vanderwater, and Miss Barbara Giles, Oakville, were bridesmaids and chose blue brocaded satin with bandeaux of yellow poms and ivy, and carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. The gowns were made on princess lines.

Mrs. Earl Gildner, formerly Miss Colleen Maines, of Waterloo, played the wedding music. The latter was of interest as it consisted of an Impromptu, composed by the bride, and an Interlude, composed by Mr. Percy Ghent, and arranged by the bride's mother. Miss Shirley Drope was soloist. Immediately preceding the ceremony her song was a poem "Hymn of Meditation", by the bride's aunt, Jenny O'Hara Pincock, set to the "Londonderry Air". During the signing of the register Miss Drope sang "At Dawning".

The groomsman was Mr. John Neilson, Toronto; Mr. Bazil Kuglin and Mr. John Anderson, both of Toronto, were ushers.

At the reception at home, Mrs. Vanderwater received wearing a beige gown of lace and crepe, with green accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Ghent assisted, wearing a gown of grey tissue faille, with matching accessories. Her corsage was also of Talisman roses.

The bride and groom left for a holiday at their summer home in Sundridge, the bride wearing a teale blue silk velvet suit, black velvet hat with matching accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Ghent will reside in Toronto.

Canadian Artist Gives Exhibition At Art Gallery

Miss Frances B. Sweeny, noted Canadian artist whose paintings have been on exhibition at the Little Art Gallery since Saturday night, will have her show officially opened by Mayor Jack Allin, tonight at 8 p.m.

Miss Sweeny, from Westmount, Quebec, is showing about fifty of her painting in her first local exhibition. Queen Elizabeth has taken a fancy to one of her floral pictures, Trilliums", and it now hangs in Buckingham Palace.

The exhibition opened last Saturday night, and will continue until Saturday, October 7. Most of the viewers thus far have been artist friends of Miss Sweeny's, but the public is invited.

Club Activities

ENERGETIC CLUB

The Energetic Club of Holloway St. United Church opened their club activities by holding a combined wiener roast and social evening at the cottage of Carl and Audrey Brethour. After a short devotional period, Harold McNish favored with two numbers on his guitar followed by a talk to the club by Rev. Sidney Larman. There were thirty five present and a good time was had by all.

Friends Honor Young Couple Recently Married

One Tuesday evening of last week, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Cooney, Belleville, R.R. 6, was about filled to capacity, when friends of the Wesleyan Methodist Church gathered in honor of their eldest daughter, Doris, and her husband, Mr. Floyd Cummings, who were recently married. The evening was spent in games and social time.

The guests of honor were called to the floor and a very appropriate address was read by Mr. Ira Spearman, following which the presentation of a beautiful electric clock and a reversible Smyrna rug was made by Mr. Ray Hall and Mr. Lorne Elliott.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cummings very fittingly expressed their appreciation for the gifts received and invited their friends to visit them at their new home on Henry Street, Belleville.

Refreshments were served by the young ladies of the group, following which the happy evening was brought to a close with prayer by the minister, the Rev. James S. A. Spearman.

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Cummings was surprised with a cup and saucer shower which was given by the ladies of the W.Y.P.S. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. Mabel Bell and her daughter, Vivian, 69 Everett Street, Belleville.

Bride-To-Be is Honored by Friends

A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Michaeline (Mickey) Downes to give her a shower on Wednesday, Sept. 27. The gifts were both beautiful and useful. The evening was spent in making a bride's book and playing euchre. The prizes for euchre went to Florence Asselstine, Nellie Shandraw, Laurretta Dennis also lone hands. Balloon prizes went to Dorothy Gray and Carol Belnap. Lucky chair, Doreen Prest.

Refreshments were served and everyone enjoyed a pleasant evening.

RAWDON

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey Celebrate Golden Wedding Are Honored by Many Friends

Rawdon.—Carmel Jubilee Hall was filled with relatives and friends on Thursday evening, September 28, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Baskets of gladioli, asters and Autumn blooms banked the platform and hung above was a gold "Fifty".

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey greeted their guests as they arrived and Mrs. Bailey's corsage was of baby 'mums and asters, while the groom sported a white aster in his 'lapel.

The honored couple were given a happy surprise as they understood they were to enjoy a treat at a Belleville theatre and found themselves at Jubilee Hall.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frances Whitton, of Frankford, the groom's sister, Mrs. Agnes Jackson, Detroit, and the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. W. Thompson, Stirling, were all in attendance along with relatives from Edmonton, Alberta, Big Island, and other points in Prince Edward County, Belleville, Frankford, Trent River, Campbellford, Millbrook, and other nearby points

Bride's Table

The bride's table covered with a lace cloth was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake made and decorated by Mrs. Archie Bailey. Four vases held dainty gold flowers and candles enhanced the beauty. Another table was laden with gifts from relatives and friends.

Jessie Bell Thompson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Thompson, of Rawdon township, and Frank Bailey, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey, of Rawdon township, were married at the home of the bride's parents on September 28, 1900, by the Rev. Wm. Johnston, pastor of Stirling circuit. The bride wore a beaded blue frock and they spent their honeymoon at Hastings, Ont.

The bride's sister, Miss Frances Thompson, (now Mrs. Hector Whitton, Frankford), was bridesmaid and the late Truman Bailey of Stirling, was groomsman. Two sons blessed this union, Charles and Archie, and there are nine grandchildren.

Rev. A. E. Baker Presides

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of Carmel, was master of ceremonies and invited the honored guests to special seats. He spoke of their worthiness in the Carmel community, both in church and social activities and paid sincere tribute to them both, also to their sons and families, who all reside in the Carmel community.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear delighted with a piano selection.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, was heard in three numbers during the program, "The Story of a Courtship", "A Dedication to the Bride and Groom of Fifty Years", and "Aunt Polly Visits the Ladies' Aid".

Miss Joyce Bailey, a granddaughter, gave a musical selection on the piano.

A grandson took various flash pictures of interesting scenes throughout the evening, which will be a happy remembrance in the years to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Seeney, Castleton, were given an ovation as it was their eighteenth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Russell Hubel contributed a humorous poem "If I Should Die Tonight", by Ben King.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Holden, Stirling, were in attendance. They are former Carmelites and have passed their fifty-fifth anniversary.

Mrs. Ted Reynolds with Mrs. A. E. Baker as accompanist, sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

Messrs. Ed. Pyear and Arthur Pyear brought greetings on this special occasion and paid tribute to the worthiness of the honored guests.

Mock Wedding Enacted

A humorous mock wedding was presented as follows: bride, Mrs. Russell Hubel; groom, Miss Marion Carlisle; minister, Mrs. Harry Brown; pianist, Mrs. A. E. Baker; bride's mother, Mrs. Joe Grills. At the close the bride presented her garden bouquet to Mrs. Bailey. This was arranged by Mrs. Bidwell Windsor of Haliburton.

Mrs. Clifford Metz, Ivanhoe, a niece of Mrs. Bailey read a well-worded address of appreciation which told of the Christian family home, the high esteem in which the honored couple are held and the appropriate setting the Carmel Jubilee Hall at the time of its 75th anniversary. She closed with a lovely poem "Your Beautiful Garden Called Home".

A grandson, Mr. Jim Bailey, made the presentation on behalf of the immediate family of a white chenille bedspread with pastel centre.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear on behalf of the community guests, read another address and closed with a poem "Grow Old Along With Me".

Messrs. Charles Hoard and Ernest Carlisle presented the honored couple with a gold wool blanket and a reversible comforter in two colors.

Mr. Harry Brown, clerk of the Session, in an other address, conveyed sincere congratulations on behalf of Carmel Sunday School and Church, and Mr. Everett Grills made the presentation of an electric table lamp.

Fairy Cross

Rev. A. E. Baker presented Mrs. Bailey with a "Fairy Cross" on behalf of himself, Mrs. Baker, and all the other pastors who had been connected through the years with Carmel church.

The story of the Cross is that the fairies who dwell in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, wept when Jesus was crucified and where their tears fell crosses sprung up. Rev. Mr. Baker said both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have been noted workers at Carmel and almost regular attendants at church and Sunday School.

To all of these lovely and varied gifts, including the table display, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey extended their deepest thanks. They were particularly overjoyed at all the kindness and said this happy occasion would be one of remembrance.

Carmel W.A. members served dainty refreshments. The bride and groom cut their cake which was later prepared for serving by Mrs. Harry Brown and all enjoyed a slice.

The guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Bailey several more happy years of married life.

Eldorado Couple Honored by Friends

Eldorado.—Recently a few friends and neighbors surprised Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Empey by invading their home to spend the evening with them on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary. After a half hour of sing-song, a humorous reading was given by Mrs. Kenneth Bateman and an electric clock was presented to the happy couple both Mr. and Mrs. Empey expressed their thanks for this remembrance. The refreshments were then served and an hour or so was spent sociably.

Mrs. T. H. Allen and daughter, Marion, have returned home after spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beryle Carman.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann and Mrs. Irwin of Wyanona, Manitoba, were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Post on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Irwin, of Wyanona, Man., was a dinner hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Stevenson on Thursday.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Berch, of Madoc, were callers in town on Thursday.

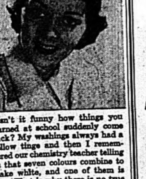
LEARNED HER LESSON



"Isn't it funny how things you learned at school suddenly come back? My washings always had a yellow tinge and then I remembered our chemistry teacher telling us that seven colours combine to make white, and one of them is blue. That is why there is no true white without blue. So of course, I use Reckitt's Blue now to keep my clothes white always—just a swish or two in the final rinse. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash."

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPE DELICATE ANGEL CAKE

1½ cups Fruit Sugar
1¼ cups Sifted Flour
½ tsp Cream of Tartar
8-10 Egg Whites (lc.)
¼ tsp. Salt.
1 tsp. Almond, Lemon, Pineapple and Raspberry extracts.

Sift flour and sugar together four times. Beat egg whites until foamy, and then add salt and cream of tartar. Continue beating until the whites are stiff, but not dry. Sift 2 tbsp. at a time of the flour and sugar mixture over the egg whites. Fold in carefully after each addition. Add almond extract. Turn into an ungreased Angel Food pan and bake at 275 degrees F. for 25 minutes and then at 300 degrees F. for the remaining time, about forty-five to fifty minutes. Allow to "hang in pan, inverted," until then the cake will easily slip from the pan.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A childish mother must be dealt with firmly

Letters from wives complaining that their mothers-in-law try to keep dominating their sons after their marriage are far from unusual. Less usual, for some reason, are the letters from women complaining that their own mothers are the ones at fault.

"I have been married a year and a half", writes one such wife, "and my husband and I haven't been out alone since we have been married. We have our own home on the next street from my mother, and she expects us to go and see her every night. If we do not, she gets mad at us.

"I work during the day and I don't have time to see her except at night. My sister and her fiance would like us to go out with them some times, but he doesn't want my mother to come, so I don't go. My husband and I did go for a ride with them one Sunday afternoon. We were gone no more than an hour, but when we came back, my mother was crying, and told us we had left her all alone.

"My father has been gone since I was a baby, and my mother brought us up by herself. She never acted like this, though, until we were engaged. My husband gets mad at me and tells me that she shouldn't be like that, but she is a wonderful mother, and I hate to hurt her. Either way one of them gets mad at me and I don't know what to do. My husband and I get along wonderfully, and I don't want anything to happen to spoil that.

"My mother used to belong to a woman's sewing club, but now she never goes to it. If she goes to visit a friend or relative, she wants us to go there with her.

"Please tell me what I can do, as I can't stand much more of this. I can't even visit my girl friends without my mother calling me there and asking when I'm coming to see her."

Now it goes without saying that no girl wants to hurt her mother, particularly when that mother has lovingly, faithfully and singlehandedly reared her children. At the same time, there are situations in which it is almost impossible to avoid this.

No one can go on indefinitely encouraging another person in an attitude that is basically wrong, and in this case, the mother's attitude is just that. It's easy to see, of course, why she should have an attitude. Her children have been her life, more than normally so because she had to bring them up alone. Now she feels deserted because they have merely followed the normal course of events and are leaving her for homes of their own.

But understanding her attitude does not excuse it. When a woman's children have grown up and gone away, it is her solemn duty to keep out of their lives and live her own. This is hard to do, of course, but almost every mother in the world has had this same problem, and those with character manage to solve it. Hence, I do not believe for a moment the girl should jeopardize her married happiness by continuing to indulge her mother in what is, after all, pure childishness.

One mistake the daughter has made, I think, was to settle so close to her mother's home. If at all possible, I think she and her husband should move to some place at a distance, where her mother could not possibly expect her to be at her beck and call. The simplest way to do this would be on the ground that it was better for the husband to live nearer his work, or something of that sort.

The great trouble here is that this girl does not want to make up her mind to take a definite stand in the matter. Obviously, she is just letting matters drift along, in the hope that eventually the problem will solve itself. This it will never do, She will have to be strong enough to make her mother understand, as kindly and tactfully as possible, that now that she is married, her husband and home come first, and that she intends to have it so.

MANY ILLITERATES

Montevideo, Uruquay, Oct. 3—(AP)—Education Minister Oscar Secco Ellauri yesterday told the third international primary education seminar that there are 70,000,000 illiterates in the Americas.

BEAUTY

Pouches under the eyes

"What's the use of having nice eyes, if you have little hammocks under them?" wailed the cash-customer at the beauty shop as she climbed into the facial treatment chair. "I always look tired. The reflection in the mirror tries my soul. What I have is no imaginary good-looks sorrow, and I hate it."

Dark circles under the eyes are bad enough, but swollen tissues are worse. They are hateful. It is not easy to be rid of them. Often they are an inheritance, are handed down from one generation to another. They may not indicate heart-trouble or kidney disorders, as some individuals believe.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Make it a habit to get to bed early.

Fatigue is often the cause, especially if the swellings come and go. Loss of sleep will bring them on, as will digestive disturbances in some cases. Finding the cause is not a simple matter, but may be determined if you are a health watcher, observing the effects of what you eat, how you live. Slow up on daily activities and note the effect. Make it a habit to get to bed early. Drink plenty of water. Get exercise out of doors every day. These habits are good for you, anyway, no matter what your good-looks worries may be.

Local treatment helps many cases, cures some.

After washing the face at night with warm water and a bland soap, apply hot, moist compresses. Do not use small pieces of gauze; they do not cover enough of the surrounding flesh. Dip a heavy washcloth, a fairly large one, in water as hot as can be comfortably endured, give the swollen tissue a steaming. Repeat several times.

Dip the cloth in ice cold water and keep it on for five minutes to bring a reaction of the blood streams. Pour some witch hazel in a saucer and add an ice cube. Dip a four-inch square of absorbent cotton in the witch hazel and place it over the eyes. Let it remain on until the flesh is warm and glowing. Dry gently and apply a heavy massage cream.

Place the first finger on the inner corner of the eyelid, sweep out to the temple, do several circles there, and come back under the eye to the starting point. Do that movement a dozen times. Be gentle. The tissues are soft and delicate; pressure should be avoided. By this time you will observe that the flesh is deflated. Give yourself this treatment every night for a week. Chances are there will be an improvement.

In the morning dash cold water on your face; dry gently. When applying rouge, place it high and pass the pad over your eyelids.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking ?

Horse sense can be human at times.

This fact is attested by the owners of the Fuchs Bakery of South Miami, Florida, whose horses on a registered stock farm eat bread rather than oats. Their daily bread consists of the left-overs picked up from retail stores in Miami. Just to make sure the horses get a properly balanced diet, they are turned loose on a pasture each day to enjoy a crisp green salad.

The mere fact that Fuchs horses like bread isn't particularly startling in itself. But these equine epicures prefer white bread to whole wheat or rye, and thus follow the human pattern faithfully.

Unlike the Fuchs Baker, most housekeepers can't afford to turn their stale bread over to animals.

Bread crumbs or stale bread are extremely useful these days as meat extenders. Roast meat or poultry with bread dressing or chopped meat with bread crumbs are well known ways of making your meat dollar go farther.

Too much bread in a hamburger kills the meat flavor. In a meat loaf, however, which is usually highly spiced, bread crumbs can be used generously, and actually make the meat more moist and easy to carve.

Chili Meat Loaf—Serves 4-6

Order 3-4 pound ground beef and 1-4 pound ground lean pork. Be sure both meats are as lean as possible since the fat will simply melt away during cooking.

Beat 1 egg slightly.

In a mixing bowl combine meat, beaten egg, 1-2 cup white bread crumbs, 1-4 cup of water, 1-2 cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper and 2 tablespoon grated onion.

Mix well. Pack meat into a greased loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees 50-60 minutes or until brown.

In a saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons flour mixing well. Gradually add 1 can hot undiluted consomme and 1-4 cup tomato juice. Return to a small flame. Bring to a boil. Simmer five minutes. Add brown gravy color. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Cut meat loaf into slices 1-4 inch thick. Pour sauce over meat on serving dishes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Today's Courtesy Tip

Again many committees are being formed for service of many kinds. You'll probably be invited to join. But you shouldn't accept the appointment to a committee that has definite responsibilities unless you are willing to co-operate completely with those responsibilities and to take care of the duties that will be assigned to you. You shouldn't shirk the work that goes with the honor of the appointment. Committees generally need active service. . . .not merely "the pleasure of your company."

Present for Bill entering the service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Bill and I have been good friends for over a year—not engaged, not "serious". Now he's entering the service. Would it be proper for me to give him a "going-away" present?

Madeline L.

Yes! Indeed proper, and a fine, friendly gesture. Choose a gift appropriate to the friendship.

Don't enclose reply cards" in wedding invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it really necessary for me to enclose reply cards with my wedding invitations? (I never have seen this type of card until yesterday, when I received one in a wedding invitation to a reception. That made me wonder if this is the thing to do.)

Jean S.

No. . . This is definitely not necessary. . . and definitely bad form and bad taste. Your friends should be polite enough to reply to such important invitations as wedding invitation, without this in appropriate "service". (This incorrect "service". is suggested only by stationers who value the added income from these cards more than they do their reputation for offering and giving dependably correct service.) Anyone with even a semblance of politeness would resent this pointed hint of an enclosed reply card. . . so please don't descend to this bad-form gesture.

For convenience to wedding guests, there should be ushers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be in October, a small church wedding, about 75 guests. Inasmuch as I cannot afford a big affair, I am trying to keep it as small and simple as can be. Now the question has come up as to ushers at the church. I did not plan to have any ushers, but have been told that it would be improper not to have someone seat the guests. Please advise me.

Unsettled

This is more a matter of convenience than of propriety. It really is confusing, unattractive, to have 75 guests arrive at the church and be completely uncertain as to where they should be seated. Even at a small, simple church wedding there should be dignity and a certain amount of ceremony in this important feature of the occasion, the seating of the guests. So I advise you to have at least two ushers, to escort the guests to their seats. And this for your comfort. . . in the interests of simplicity, it is not necessary, under these circumstances, to have the ushers take part in the processional and recessional.

Position of Salad Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our family is of the "cult". . . if that's the word!. . .that likes a salad served at the beginning of a meal. Where, in this case, should the salad fork be placed?

W. H.

Since the salad fork will be the first silverpiece to be used in the meal, it should be placed farthest from the plate, on the left of the plate with the other fork or forks.

Premier Frost Says Province Growing Fast

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said Monday night that never before in Ontario's history had there been such a "pronounced forward movement" in the province's industrial, commercial and agricultural life.

But the rapid growth meant many growing pains, he said in an address prepared for a CBC free-time political broadcast over a provincial network.

Mr. Frost said that of the last 11 years, only four had 'approached peace-time conditions. For seven years our whole economy was devoted to defence and to the immediate aftermath of war.'

The province's population was increasing at the rate of 10,000 persons a month and this created an urgent need for new public works — highways, schools, hospitals, water works, sewers and so on.

In inflationary periods, however, it was advisable to restrict government spending.

"You will readily see our difficulty at the moment: a great many provincial works which are necessary in the ordinary course of things, and upon this, superimpose the federal requirements for national defence."

Mr. Frost said the Ontario government will open discussions with federal officials today to see how the Ontario public works program could be fitted in to the federal defence program.

They will also discuss long-term conservation projects, similar to the Grand River conservation scheme, for flood control, reforestation and land utilization.

Four Baptists Take Jail Term Instead of Fines

Val d'Or, Que., Oct. 3 (CP) — Rev. L. T. Heron, Baptist minister of this northwestern Quebec mining centre, and three other members of the faith, Monday were fined $40 and costs with the option of two months in jail on a charge of obstructing traffic. The four, who pleaded guilty, chose the jail sentence.

Recorder J. L. Baillargeon warned the group that they were in contempt of court. He did not elaborate but it was believed he was referring to the fact that the Baptists continued to ignore municipal by-laws prohibiting street meetings.

He said that if court costs are not paid when the fine-alternative sentences expire, the convicted Baptists will serve another two months.

Mr. Heron now is headed for his third jail term in little more than a year in the county prison at Amos. Sentenced with him were his sister, Miss Isabelle Heron, who recently completed serving a two-month sentence, Bernard John Molloway, 25, Toronto, and William Leslie Phillips, 20, Brantford, Ont. The latter two are students at the Toronto Baptist seminary.

Numerous Baptists have been arrested here recently for refusing to move on when requested by police during religious street meetings.

Recorder Baillargeon told the group that "there are about 10,000 people in Val d'Or and of that number about 6,500 are Roman Catholics. I came here 14 years ago. Until now, I have never seen any controversy between Roman Catholics and Protestants ...or any other groups.

"We have all mixed together and prospered together because the authorities have given the example to the people. What you are doing is hardly worthy of being called a controversy except that in the minds of some, you can cause hate. Instead of what you are doing, you should be setting examples.

"You are in a free town and freedom is given to everyone. But to have your freedom, you have to obey the law of the town. Laws are not to restrict freedom but they are necessary so that all may have peace and good order...

"We have taken note of other actions and of the fact that your act looks like contempt of court ...You were not arrested and tried because you were preaching. You have a right to preach, even a duty to preach. You preach over the radio here and in your church and nobody bothers you.

'Religion asks a lot more than noisy Saturday night streets for preaching. Preachers and listeners need peace of mind to understand what is said to them. That, however, is my personal conviction.

I want you to understand that you are not being persecuted. If you think you are being persecuted by enforcement of the municipal traffic by-law, it is your duty to attack it in higher courts than this.

'I have no doubt, however, that you have acted in bad faith... so, in the face of evidence, I must convict you and impose the most rigid penalties."

Papa Dionne Changes Mind

North Bay, Oct. 3 —(CP) — Oliva Dionne, father of the Quintuplets, Monday changed his mind and refused an offer from a New York department store to outfit the girls for their forthcoming New York trip. Earlier he had accepted the offer.

He said a story in a New York newspaper, commenting on the offer, intimated he could not afford to buy their clothes in New York. He denied this, saying their wardrobe already had been bought in North Bay.

The Quintuplets will attend a benefit dinner in New York Oct. 19.

Elephant Breaks Loose, Wanders Over Decks

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 3 — (AP)—An elephant which felt solitary confinement was no way to enjoy a sea voyage created a brief uproar and some destruction aboard the liner Nieuw Holland.

Leaning heavily against its pen, the pachyderm splintered the woodwork and lumbered off for a promenade of the decks during the vessel's trip from Singapore to Sydney.

The elephant let off some steam by wrenching the headlight from one cargo automobile and the number plate from another. Then a crew member lured it back to prison.

FRANKFORD

Frankford— The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop held their weekly meeting Friday evening in the community hall. Following opening flag break and inspection, a period of instruction is semiphore was given. Then came the recreation period. Business was discussed in a short session. A good feed of melons was enjoyed to complete the evening. Applications for membership into the Troops were passed for two new boys.

Misses Ada and Ellen Benson of Cannifton visited Miss Gail Walker on Saturday.

Donations Acknowledged

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion acknowledge with thanks the following new donations toward the building fund: Vin Maybee $1; H. Rowe $1; Fred Charlesworth $1; Lorne Rogers $1; Gerald Chapman $1; Frank Lohnes 80c; Jim Howard $1; Francis Murphy $1; E. R. Plumton $1; W. B. Terry 50c; James Bulger $1; Reg Solmes $1; Bill Pollard Sr. $1; Charles Harvey $5.

The Frankford United Church choir journeyed to Fuller on Sunday, where they took part in anniversary services in the Fuller Church. In their absence, the Junior choir of the Frankford Church led in the singing.

LEGALIZATION ASKED

Stratford, Oct. 3 — (CP) — A resolution from Welland county council, asking legalization of sweepstakes in Canada, will come before Perth county council at its next regular meeting, Oct. 10.

Due to a misunderstanding, it was reported erroneously Monday night that the Stratford Board of Criminal Audit had endorsed the resolution. The resolution did not come before this board — which consists of a magistrate, a judge, the county clerk and city treasurer and meets to pass criminal justice accounts.

Chief of Police Questioned by Commission

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 3 (CP) — The newly-organized Windsor Police Commission questioned Chief of Police Claude Renaud in its first public hearing Monday in the reorganization of the city's police force.

Chief Renaud was criticized for the regulations which govern the police department — regulations characterized by Judge Archibald Cochrane, commission chairman, as "ancient."

Judge Cochrane accused the chief of breaking the department's rules and regulations, although the commission chairman agreed that the 27-year-old rules were in need of revision.

The state of departmental rules and regulations were brought out in questions put to chief Renaud by Judge Cochrane and Magistrate Roland A. Harris during half an hour following the handling of routine business.

Judge Cochrane brought out that there is no provision for the position of deputy chief, a post held by W. H. Neale.

Chief Renaud said that drilling of members of the force, which he is supposed to oversee, was done "once in a while." He did not remember when the last drill was held, and said he did not know why the regulation was not enforced.

Question on the selection of new policemen, the chief said his opinion and that of Deputy Chief Neale counted more than written examinations. He said some candidates are eliminated without receiving an examination.

Mayor A. J. Reaume spoke up twice in the inquiry, both times to come to the defence of Chief Renaud.

He asked the other two commissioners to inform the chief and his deputy in advance, so that they could bring along reports and records.

"These are simple questions and require no records," Judge Cochrane replied.

Dog Leaves Hunters, Back on Postal Job

Compton, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP) — To Sandy, a tan mongrel, duty is duty regardless of what city he's in.

For two years the pooch has been the mascot of the East Compton postal station. He reports daily and joins one of the carriers on his rounds.

When a couple of postmen drove north on a hunting trip, they took Sandy along, thinking he'd enjoy the vacation. In Bakersfield, 200 miles away, the dog disappeared.

There was a gloom at the local station house—until somebody had a hunch. A call to the Bakersfield post office got this reply: "Sure he's here. He's been making the rounds with one of our carriers for several days."

Employees Walk Off Job Again At Ford Plant

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 3 (CP) — Employees of Ford Motor Company of Canada walked off their jobs Monday night for the fourth time in four days.

The walkout followed the adjournment of wage talks between the company and Ford local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO).

Company and union bargainers broke up after a 45-minute meeting and Wallace H. Clark, Ford industrial relations manager, said that "no date was set for another meeting."

Mr. Clark said the company offered to renegotiate the present contract, signed in June "with a view to putting it on a mutually satisfactory basis for five years."

Union negotiators previously turned down a five-year contract in favor of demands for straight wage increases that would leave the present contract open for further wage bargaining next May.

Monday night's walkout forced the shutdown of two plants which had been closed a few hours earlier because of demonstrations by the preceding shift of workers.

The plants were the assembly line and the machine shop. Some 6,000 employees were involved in Monday night's first walkout.

Aluminum wrappers keep food fresh!
An "Inside Story" about Butter
Butter goes stale quickly when air and light get in. That's why better-wrapped butter tastes better. Buy one of the many brands that are flavour-sealed in aluminum foil.
No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. So save the protective foil. Use it to rewrap the butter when you put it away, and protect that "farm-fresh" flavour.
The next time you buy Butter, Cheese, Candy, Chocolate, Tea, look for the brands in clean, hygienic aluminum foil. Whenever you see aluminum on the outside of any packaged food, there's an "inside story" of purity well-protected.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THEY'RE OFF!

Those amazing Philadelphia Phils Whiz Kids, who just oozed past a desperate Brooklyn Dodgers on Sunday for the blue ribbon of the National League adopt a David role against the New York Yankee Goliaths tomorrow afternoon at Shibe Park in Philadelphia.

For the first time in 35 years the National League gonfalon flutters over the green sheen of old Shibe, emblematic of the National League title. And good old Philly is up in arms over the forthcoming dosy-does when the powerful Yankee shock troops invade the City of Brotherly Love. With the first game scheduled for tomorrow afternoon starting at 2 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time, all friendships will cease when the boys from Philly and the proud Gothamites square off in the first round.

And, it says here, mighty young Robin Roberts, the only Philly hurler to fashion twenty victories since Grover Cleveland Alexander slung 'em past the best of his day many years ago, will probably be given the mound assignment in this all-important inaugural tilt.

The bonus beauty will likely carry the faith of thousands of Philly and National League supporters on his youthful shoulders when he faces the Yankee "Giants" in the opener. Opposing him will be the tried and tested Vic Raschi who won 21 and lost 8 for the Yanks during the season.

The Yankees have been installed 2-1 favorites to win the series by the "boys in the backrooms". By the power of their mighty "Caseys" and an outstanding pitching staff they should do just that. But these unpredictable "Whiz Kids" are likely to come up with some upsets, so don't sell them too short. After all the wisenheimers picked Joe Louis to blast Ezzard Charles into oblivion—and look what happened.

However the dyed-in-the-wool Yankee supporters hereabouts, at least, are confident DiMag. and Company will wipe the slate clean in four games. That could be, but if youthful spirit and a go-get-'em style of play can win ball games, don't be too sure of the four-in-a-row idea.

Speaking of baseball and world series, this corner took a survey of a few of the baseball enthusiasts here a few weeks ago — and only two came up with the Yanks and Phillies. Speedy St. Louis and Grant Badgeley picked the winners while other gentlemen baseballically-minded were away off in their selections.

City Editor Claude Tice chose the Indians and Cards; Boyd Upper came up with the Red Sox and Phillies; this desk selected the Indians and Phillies; Tommy Mascaro, a staunch Detroiter stuck by the Tigers and Cardinals while Walter Gerow laid his figurative money on the Tigers and Dodgers.

The STOCK MODELS

Tomorrow afternoon a new sport makes its bow in local circles when the new Speedway Park stages its first stock car racing on its new track near Shannonville just 13 miles east of the city. The track is situated just north of the highway and is one-half mile in length.

Twelve experienced drivers from Toronto will bring their stock models here for the inaugural meet, and Owner Dick Burrowes is confident the sport will make a hit here as it has in several other parts of the province.

Any model car can be used but there are certain rules and regulations laid down. Drivers must wear crash helmets and safety belts. You can use either shatter-proof glass or the fresh air for windows.

Mufflers must be removed or disconnected. Doors must be closed with auxiliary equipment such as straps, welds etc. Headlights must be protected—and so on. There are a dozen and one other regulations, but better see Promoter Burrows or race officials if you are interested. The races get away at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and plenty of thrills are guaranteed.

DOTS AND FLASHES

The ice may go into Memorial Arena some time this month, Manager Walter Gerow infos . . . Al Kelleher has ambitions to become a whistle-tooter in somebody's hockey league . . . Gary Schreider is named the "find of the season" in St. Michael's College grid circles . . . With the kind of coaching he is getting, we predict the youngster will make the "tops" some of these fine days . . . Add similes:—"as popular as the guy with a television set . . . The night of the Joe Louis-Ezzard Charles fistic embroglio, the fellows with TV installed were as popular as a politician after a successful election . . . All over the city the TV owners' houses were almost blacked out with a galaxy of cars belonging to the boys who dropped in to see what was to be seen . . . Now some of the suds dispensaries have installed the look-see machinery . . . We don't know whether it increases business or not, but they tell us the places are packed to the rail . . . It's a great invention, and we hope that box seat is still available for tomorrow's world series opener . . .

Leering Lee Henning, the bashing, smashing, crashing Iowa Cornhusker, was so angered at his team's loss to the team of Whipper Watson and Timothy Geohagen here last week that he stormed and demanded a re-match. However, the vitriolic Henning blamed his side's loss on Fred Atkins and declared he'd get a new partner who would not cave in. Accordingly, Henning has tied up with The Masked Marvel to be his partner in a return team test against the mighty team of Watson and Geohogen in the Memorial Arena on Friday night.

If the clever Watson and powerful Geohagen are able to repeat their triumph against the new Henning - Marvel twosome, the Masked Marvel will have to take off his mask and reveal his identity to all present. This un-masking is one of the conditions of the contracts for the match, regardless of whether it is Henning or the Mystery Man who is beaten, in the event that side does lose. Plenty of fiery, exciting action is likely before the final verdict is reached.

In the semi-final, Abe Zvonkin, the former Hamilton grid star, will tangle with Seelie Samara, the Negro sensation.

A mat classic is the forecast for the first bout, in which talented Pat Flanagan will meet the sparkling Ray Gunkel.

Robin Roberts, Hard-Worked Hurler of Phillies May Get Call Against Raschi of Yanks

By JACK HAND

Philadelphia, Oct. 3 —(AP) — Young Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phils' life-saver in the pennant-clincher, probably will be Manager Eddie Sawyer's choice to-face New York Yankees' Vic Raschi tomorrow in the World Series opener at Shibe Park.

Sawyer may decide to go with veteran Ken Heintzelman, his grey-thatched lefty, but most of the "experts" figure Roberts a must. A definite announcement was to be made today, during the Phils' final pre-series workout in this baseball mad city.

Roberts, a strong-armed 24-year-old, pitched 10 tiring innings Sunday. But he worked with only two days rest some eight times during the season. Last week he started Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday, going 22 innings in five days. His last was his best, a classic job to rank with the masters in which he beat Brooklyn 4-1 to win the National League pennant.

"Roberts works better with two days rest than he does with three," said Sawyer yesterday.

"I'm ready and I can go," said Roberts.

In Roberts, their first 20-game winner since Grover Cleveland Alexander in 1917, the youthful Phils know they have a stopper. They know they don't need too many runs to win. And they haven't been getting too many runs lately, to put it mildly.

"Let tomorrow take care of itself," is Sawyer's likely motto in this best-of-seven series against his old Yankee bosses.

The Phils listened to scout George Earnshaw's report on the Yanks yesterday in their own locker room while the Yanks limbered up briefly at the Yankee Stadium in New York.

Earnshaw followed the Yanks through the west on their last western tour. He has an extensive "book" on each New York hitter and pitcher.

"Most of them are fast-ball hitters," Earnshaw told the kids who know little about Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra and Phil Rizzuto except what they have read in the papers.

Not Any Better

"Just because they wear the Yankee uniforms don't think they are better than anyone else" Sawyer told his men, still flushed with the glory of their exciting win over Brooklyn.

The players did not appear overwhelmed at the prospect of playing New York. They rooted for the Yanks to win the pennant so they could slice a larger series melon. Now they are confident of victory and hoot at the top-heavy odds favoring New York.

Stengel wasted little time in picking Raschi (21-8) for the opener. He said Allie Reynolds (16-12) will pitch the second game with Ed Lopat (18-8) ready for the third.

"Raschi is my man," said Casey "Vic has been my big pitcher all year. He deserves the shot."

Raschi pulled up with a sore shoulder in Chicago two weeks ago but came back to beat Boston Red Sox in a vital game five days later. He was shelled hard by the Philadelphia A's in his last outing Thursday.

Edge in Experience

The Yanks' righthanded ace definitely will have an edge in experience over Sawyer's choice. Raschi has pitched in four World Series games in 1947 and 1949. Used only in relief in '47, he started two last fall, losing 1-0 to Preacher Roe and winning the last game over Brooklyn 10-6, although he wasn't there at the finish. He has appeared in three all-star games.

Stengel spoke with respect of the Phillies, scoffing at the odds.

"That's a good ball club over in Philadelphia," he said. "It had to be good to beat a red-hot Brooklyn team in the biggest game of the year for both clubs.

"Of course I think we'll win but they've got some tough pitchers. That's the only way they can win—if they get great pitching I don't think they'll outslug us."

The city of Philadelphia, after a riotous welcome home to the Phils Sunday night, has gone on a ticket-seeking rampage. Scalpers are reported asking as high as $150 for a pair of tickets with face values of $13 or $17.50.

There is no doubt that a bulging capacity crowd of some 34,000 will jam Shibe Park tomorrow long before the 1:00 p.m. (EST) starting time.

THREE JAPANESE SENTENCED

Los Negros, Admiralty Islands, Oct. 2. (Reuters)—An Australian war crimes court today sentenced a Japanese, Akutaro Sasaki, to death for "sadistic, revengeful" butchering of Australian and Allied prisoners-of-war during the Pacific fighting of the Second World War. Another Japanese, Kyusake Yamashita, was sentenced to life imprisonment, and a third, Shimkichi Shimohama, to 10 years' imprisonment.

Western Loses Nine Players Of Last Year

London, Ont., Oct. 3 — (CP)— University of Western Ontario Mustangs, defending champions of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union, may trail in this season's pre-season polls but Coach Johnny Metras views their chances with optimism.

Nine of the players who brought Western its fourth title in five years last season won't be back. But Metras has come up with another lightning-fast backfield and is counting on an inexperienced line to hold its own with the strengthened Queen's and McGill front walls.

Jack Parry is the only missing halfback. But two more Olympic and British Empire Games track stars — the McFarlane Brothers—have returned, and Bob McFarlane's 19-point performance as the purple and white dropped a close exhibition game to Sarnia Imperials gives the opposition an idea of what to expect.

Besides Bob and his brother Don, all-star quarter George Arnott, halfback Doug Gray and flying wing Gerry Fitzgerald have returned.

Ray Truant, a newcomer from Assumption College, will spell off Arnott. Jimmy Black of Toronto and Jimmy Carroll of St. Catharines, Ont., are the best-looking new halves.

Ort a Hold-over

Hold-overs on the line include George Ort, an all-star middle last season, who has been shifted to snap. Captain Bill Ford has moved from outside to take over Ort's middle post.

Inside Elmer Quyntyn, middle Ross Grant and outside Bob McGonagle are the only other survivors, but two new insides, Milt Cork and Ron Farley, both of Toronto, have led a talented group of youngsters in workouts and exhibition games.

Doug McNichol of Merritton, Ont., and Charlie Allan of Toronto, two new 200-pound ends, have displayed outstanding open-field tackling ability.

Jack Matthews, the club's best kicker, and running-back Blake Taylor suffered early - season injuries and are not expected to be in the lineup Saturday when the Mustangs open the regular season at McGill.

BRUISING EXHIBITION

Chatham, Oct. 3 (CP) —Windsor Spitfires took a 4-2 decision here Monday night over Chatham Maroons in a bruising Exhibition hockey game at the Memorial Arena.

More than 2,000 fans saw the Spits take an early lead in the game which opened the hockey season here. A total of 26 penalties were handed out including two majors and two misconduct.

Waterloo Blanks Oshawa Seniors By 3-0 Count

Oshawa, Oct. 3 (CP) —Waterloo Tigers and Oshawa Merchants today headed for the fourth game of their best-of-seven Ontario baseball championship series, with Tigers leading, two games to one.

Tigers blanked the home team here Monday night, 3-0, before the largest crowd of the season. Tigers, Intercounty champions, took the first game at home Saturday, 9-4. Oshawa came back in Toronto Sunday with a 7-1 win.

Pitcher Joe Yosurak was the hero for the winners in last night's game. He scattered five hits and fanned seven.

Bill McTavish started for the Merchants, but ran into trouble in the second frame. Two infield hits and three walks accounted for two runs. McTavish finished the inning, but was yanked in the third in favor of George Davidson, who flew in from college in the United States, but was too late to start the game.

Edmonton Eskimos In Driver's Seat Of Western Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

There were a couple of comebacks—one fast, the other a long time coming—in the two western Canada football conference games last night.

Edmonton Eskimos, playing in their own bailiwick, spotted Winnipeg Blue Bombers 10 points and waited until the fourth quarter before hitting the scoreboard. But the men of coach Annis Stukus came back hard, took advantage of five penalties to bombers in the last quarter, and walked from under Clarke Stadium's floodlights with a 13-10 victory.

The first victory for Eskimos over the tough Bombers this season, it put Edmonton atop the league, one triumph in front of Winnipeg.

Three points also was the victory margin at Calgary, and again the home-town team was the winner. But there was a difference.

It was only the second win in 10 games for Les Lear's Stampeders—the swashbuckling cowboys who lost only one game during regular play in the two previous seasons. But to the loyal 7,000 Calgary fans who shivered in Mewata Stadium, Stamps finally looked up to snuff in their 16-13 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

But it may be too late. With only four games left, Calgary is four points back of the third-place Riders, who also have a game in hand. Only the three top teams qualify for the conference playoff.

At Edmonton, fullback Mike King, who like coach Stukus is a former Toronto Argonaut, went over for two touchdowns with only 13 minutes of time left. Up till this point Bombers, behind Indian Joe Jacobs' passing and Joe Aguirre's kicking, had Eskimo scoring frozen.

10 Completions

Jacobs, the former Green Bay packer who made 175 yards on 10 completions out of 22 tries, tossed a 45-yard pass to Bud Korchak for the Bomber's major. Aguirre booted a field goal and a single.

Eskimo quarterback Lindy Berry loosened up with his flinging arm in the final quarter, and he had those bomber penalties—including one for coaching from the sidelines and another for having 13 men on the field—to give him some help.

Vern Graham, scoring champion of the western conference last season, led the Calgarians to their win. The sure-footed flying wing, bothered by injuries this season, racked up a touchdown, field goal and a convert for nine points. Chuck Feneboch scored Stampeders' other major while Wilf Godfrey converted once and Keith Spaith kicked a single.

George Festeryga and Al Bodine crossed the Calgary line for Riders' touchdowns and quarterback Jack Hartman converted. Ken Charlton kicked 55 yards for Saskatchewan's other point.

Puck Patter

This is thumbscrew week in National Hockey League training camps—the final week before the start of the 70-game 1950-51 season.

Most of the clubs have their playing rosters settled. Now the job is to shake out the bugs in exhibition games.

Montreal Canadiens, crippled by retirements, will be trying to shake them with three exhibition games with American Hockey League clubs.

Playing for the first time in years without Bill Durnan in the nets and Ken Reardon on defence, the Habitants meet Providence Reds Thursday and Springfield Indians Saturday and Sunday, their last games before opening in Montreal against Chicago Oct. 12.

Coach Dick Irvin says he expects his top line—Elmer Lach, Maurice Richard and Norm Dussault—to come through with 100 goals this season. If his Ken Mosdell-Floyd Curry-Calum MacKay line collects another 50, Irvin figures the rest of the club will be good for 50 more. The club finished in second place last year with a total of 172 goals.

Chuck Raynor has a brand new contract with New York Rangers—running for three years at a handsome jump in salary. It's the longest contract ever offered a Ranger in 11 years.

Manager Frank Boucher said the contract is a reward for Rayner's outstanding work in the Ranger nets last year.

Bud Poile, after holding out on Boston Bruins all fall, has signed as coach of Tulsa Oilers, Boston's United States Hockey League farm club.

The big forward has refused to sign a playing contract on the grounds he was being asked to take too big a salary cut.

Poile made the jump to the N.H.L. from Fort William juniors in 1942-43.

Toronto Maple Leafs are getting more and more used to the idea of playing without Bill Ezinicki, the bashing backchecker.

Bill, who said he wasn't feeling well enough to report for fall training, apparently still hasn't followed Manager Conn Smythe's instructions to report for a medical check-up in Winnipeg and hasn't returned his contract for the season.

Columbus Moves One Game Ahead Of Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 3 —(AP) — Columbus Red Birds are in the driver's seat today with a 2-1 lead in the Little World Series and the Baltimore Orioles out of pitchers.

As the series moves into Columbus for the remaining games, Oriole manager Nick Cullop faces a tough decision in naming a starting pitcher for tonight's fray.

Should he put his ace southpaw, Bill Kennedy, on the hill or try to come back with right-hander Tommy Fine, who was clubbed out of last night's game in Baltimore in the first inning? Kennedy, International League all-star lefty, also was cuffed around by the Red Birds in dropping the series opener Saturday night 6-1.

Cullop used five pitchers in the contest last night in which the American Association representatives beat the Orioles at their own home run game to win 8-5. He even put in big Karl Drews, who Sunday hurled Baltimore's only triumph, an 8-1 six-hitter.

Harry (The Cat) Walker led the homer parade with a pair while Larry Miggins and Vern Benson each socked one for Columbus. Russ Kerns got the only round-tripper for the Orioles, who had moved through the International League playoffs on the strength of their long-ball hitting.

Attendance of 21,287 last night brought the total for the three games in Baltimore to 59,434 and increased the amount in the players' pool to $41,937.51. The players benefit from receipts of the first four games.

PLAY AT NAPANEE

Napanee, Oct. 3 (CP) — Final game for the title of the Eastern Ontario Intermediate B section, Ontario Baseball Association, will be played here Wednesday.

Cobourg and Napanee are tied at a game apiece in the best-of-three series. The winner will advance into the provincial semi-finals against Erie.

World Series Notes

(By The Associated Press)

Charles K. Krause, manager of concessions at Philadelphia's Shibe Park, probably suffered more through the last week of the baseball season than any rabid Phillies' fans. Krause ordered 40,000 World Series programs printed six weeks ago when the Phillies appeared a cinch. He also ordered [illegible] rolls, an equal number of hot dogs, [illegible] cups of ice cream and from [illegible] to 40,000 bottles of soda pop. He really sighed with relief when the Phils won the National League flag at Brooklyn on the last day of the season.

On the way to the train station Sunday after beating Brooklyn 4-1 in the pennant-clinching game, Phillies' pitcher Russ Meyer sat next to a bus window and asked pedestrians, "how did the Dodgers do today?" When they [illegible] answered "they lost," Meyer retorted "ain't that tough."

A Philadelphia used-car salesman was talking to a prospect and listening to the final Phillies-Brooklyn game at the same time. When Dick Sisler hit his pennant winning homer, the salesman got so excited he handed the keys to the car to the prospective customer and shouted "take it lady, the car is yours."

A television manufacturing company offered Mayor Bernard Samuels television sets for all Philadelphia city parks during the series. The mayor accepted for several locations. . several large department stores will have batteries of TV sets placed in their show windows. . .

The Phillies will be cheered on by their wives. The ladies are attending the series in a group. And incidentally, the wives will add plenty of glamor to the Shibe Park, scene. They're a pretty group of (P) fillies.

The local papers are busy signing up new writers to cover the series. The Inquirer has Del Ennis and Jim Konstanty penning columns on each game of the series. The Bulletin has manager Eddie Sawyer contributing deft prose on the whys and wherefores of the scrap. Phil Rizzuto is scribbling for the New York Journal American. At last reports, Yankee manager Casey Stengel was still available for an offer.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

For all I know you may be wondering about the wallop-redouble. What I have in mind right now is your redouble of an opponent takeout double of your partner's opening bid of one in a suit.

This is your hand:

♠K Q 9 4
♦J 8 4 3 2
♣A Q

Suppose your partner opens with one heart and oppenent doubles for a takeout. You should redouble. This is a potent signal. Vigor, vim, visions, and a variety of choices does it contain.

It says: "Partner, I could have made a jump bid. So you know we have a game in something. And, while I do not necessarily promise full support in your suit, we can make this contract of one redoubled."

It also says: "We have the opponents in a trap. Do not let the buzzards crawl out of it. If they bid a suit, double for penalties if you think we can make more that way than we can by making game."

It goes on to say: "If you are unable to wallop a profitable double on their rescue bid, do not block traffic with a bid. Let it come to me to see if I can sock a profitable double on them."

It further says: "If neither of us can see profit in doubling them, the last one of us to say will keep the bidding alive. We can then go to a game and maybe a slam."

This wallop-redouble has a drawback or two. It does not show at once your own takeout suit if you have one. And it may lose a round or two of bidding for your pair.

However, there should be no fear on that score. It shows a hand that is strong enough to go into the higher levels of bidding, if necessary. Because it shows strength enough for at least a game.

Can you see the advantage of such a redouble? It not only does the work of a jump bid. It also offers the choice of squeezing the daylights out of the buzzards. Givem the works.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 3—(AP)— The man with one of the most familiar voices in radio is on his way to becoming one of the most familiar faces in the movies.

He is Basil Ruysdael. It was his distinguished voice that delivered those repeat commercials on the Jack Benny, Kay Kyser and Hit Parade programs.

"People hated me," he admits. "Sometimes I even hated myself."

For 14 years, Ruysdael droned out the catch slogans, flanked by tobacco auctioneers. Ruysdael has had a number of careers. He was a tool-maker and a marine in the First World War.

He sang at the Metropolitan Opera House with his friend, Enrico Caruso. He cavorted with the Marx Brothers in "Coconuts." At 40 he turned to intoning commercials on the air.

New Career

A couple of years ago, he began his latest and most successful career at the age of 60. An agent suggested that Ruysdael try pictures.

"Not me," he laughed.

But the agent wouldn't be dissuaded. Much to Ruysdael's surprise he got a role and has been working steadily ever since.

Among his films have been "Come to the Stable," "Pinky", "Broken Arrow," "Raton Pass," "High Lonesome" and "Carrie", which he just completed.

Ruysdael gave up radio and hopes to be in the movie business for a long time to come. He has no fears of being typed. Among his roles so far have been an outlaw a priest, a general, an admiral, a lawyer, a western land baron, a psychiatrist and a saloon keeper.

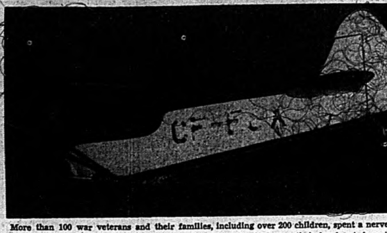
MAY HELP MEAT PRICES

Montreal, Oct. 3 — (CP) Meat prices will definitely drop if the Canadian dollar goes to par with United States currency, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Montreal branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada Monday.

"You will get your steaks cheaper," he said. "Ham and other pork products should be cheaper and probably eggs and poultry products also will go down."

The agriculture minister said Canada's farm income promises to maintain its present high level for some time. The present income is at an all-time high of $2,500,000,000.

STUNTING PILOT, PASSENGERS, ENDED UP AIR RIDE IN PASTURE



More than 100 war veterans and their families, including over 200 children, spent a nerve-wracking 20 minutes as a light rented airplane zoomed and dive-bombed over their heads, at Ancaster, Ont., to finally crash-land in a one-acre field, ten miles from Hamilton, Otario. With only the propellor and under-carriage smashed and a wing tip slightly damaged, the pilot, Robert Milson, 25, Hamilton taxi driver and air force veteran, and two provost corps privates stepped unhurt from this light three-seater, only to be arrested for "flying, which by reason of low altitude and proximity to persons and dwellings, was considered dangerous to the public."—Central Press Canadian.

THREE-YEAR CRUISE

Haifa, Israel, Oct. 3 (Reuters)—An American newspaper man has reached Haifa in a 12-foot sailing boat after covering 4,000 miles in a three-year cruise around Europe. S. Crichton of Alameda, Calif., left Sweden in the 38-year-old boat, Robinate, and called at 48 ports on his way around the continent, changing companions 18 times. With him when he arrived Sunday was R. Mowbray of England.

Milson, seen above, is now in R.C.M.P. custody after "buzzing" his sister. The two soldiers, on embarkation leave, met Milson in a Hamilton hotel. "Impressed" by their friend, they went up "for the ride," thinking he was owner of plane. — Central Press Canadian.

RECORD FARM CROP

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP) — A record Ontario farm crop this year was forecast Monday by Agriculture Minister Kennedy. He said the crop value would reach $1,250,000,000 — about $200,000,000 more than the previous high.

Oats, hay and pasture have been particularly valuable, he said. To date, cattle worth some $40,000,000 have been sold outside the province. Hogs might bring in $135,000,000.

Eggs and poultry should run about $80,000,000, he said. Tobacco, soy-beans, white beans and wheat would also contribute to the "great crop."

AT THE McCARTHY — Margaret Leighton, as Leonora Vail, shatters the marital happiness of a celebrated psychiatrist, played by Noel Coward, in "The Astonished Heart," film version of Mr. Coward's stage hit of the same title. Celia Johnson of "Brief Encounter" fame, is co-starred. Second feature is "Spy Hunt" with Howard Duff and Marta Toren.

MARINE REWARD FOR INITIATIVE

CRESCENTS GAME AHEAD

Owen Sound, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Owen Sound Crescents trounced St. Catharines Athletics 11-5 Monday night to move ahead in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior finals.

The win gave Owen Sound a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Don Campbell, Russ Slater, Harry Kazarian and Arnold Smith each scored twice for Owen Sound with Jack Foote, Don McWhirter and Bill Allum each getting a single. Carson Myers got a pair for Athletics and Ken Croft Jim McNulty and Tony Damico got the rest.

After the game, Lloyd Wootton of Owen Sound was presented with the Scott Galbraith Trophy, to be awarded annually to the most valuable goaltender in the league as picked by the club coaches. This was the first award of the trophy.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, I'm having the bridge game here this afternoon.

Then I think I'm entitled to half your winnings, pop said, and ma said, You know very well we [illegible]nt play for any stakes large [illegible]ugh to be dignified by the name of winnings. But we do serve substantial refreshments, or at least we did until today, but we're all dieting seriously, so from now on we've decided to serve only a token refreshment by way of a polite gesture rather than actual callories. I'm thinking of preparing a tray of open face sanwiches, water cress on a slice of melba toast, she said.

Why dont you serve shadow sanwiches? pop said. You take the fotograph of a chickin and place it between 2 lettuce leaves for 5 minutes, and then you remove it and substitute 5 or 6 cracked crums, he said, and ma said, Dont be silly. Of course everybody mite not like water cress, so I mite vary it with very thin slices of radishes. Or I mite serve wispy rounds of cucumber draped on celery stalks, she said.

How about carroway seeds mounted on toothpicks? pop said. I think they're called carroway spears, he said, and ma said, Oh hush. Anyway, just to uphold my reputation as a good hostess, I've decided to make a strawberry short cake with whip creem. A dessert is something without offending anybody. That's proverbial, so they can just obey the dictates of their own will power, and nobody will be able to say that I took advantage of the situation to be unduly economical, ma said.

Yee gods, pop said. If there's any shortcake left, save me a piece, and if there's any berd food left, send it to the zoo, he said.

And he folded his paper and left for his office shaking his head about women.

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe — A miscellaneous shower was given in Ivanhoe town hall on Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Brett, formerly Miss Mariel Prest.

Rev. B. J. Beckell, pastor of [illegible] United Church, who was chairman, gave the honored couple greetings and best wishes on this happy occasion.

The program opened with community singing led by Mr. Beckel was as follows:

Song by Ivanhoe school girls, "Blue Bird Singing in My Heart"; song by young married folk, "Who's Got a Shirt?", "I Wish I Was Single Again." "Cruising Down the River", "Double XX Ranch Boys"; John, Joe and Carlyle Rollins, Wayne Shaw and Darwin Beason, "Round Up Time in Alberta."

A mock wedding was staged with Harry Lovibond as officiating clergyman. Those taking part were:

Bride, Elymer Rollins; groom, Margaret Wright; best man, Etta Mitz; usher, Mildred Rollins; bride's mother, George Wood; bride's father, Hilda Bray; groom's father, Laura Wood; bridesmaid, Milton Shaw, bride's daughter, Larry Mitz.

Edna Shaw played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mr. Beckel and Earl McMaster sang "I Wish I Had Some One to Love Me."

Mariel and Grant were asked to take seats or honor on the platform and Mrs Milton Shaw read an address of appreciation mentioning the high regard in which Mariel is held in her old home town—she has endeared herself to all who have watched her grow from childhood with her winning smile and keen sense of humor—she has given freely of her time and talent in all community activities, and was faithful to her church, serving as S.S. teacher, in the Y.P.O. and a valued member of the choir.

To Grant was extended a welcome to the homes in this community and to both was extended the best wishes for a long and happy married life.

After Mariel and Grant had expressed their thanks in a few well chosen words all joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

A delicious lunch was served.

CARMEL

Carmel — A little daughter has come to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dawson, a little sister for Lynda.

Mrs. J. Latonne is spending a while with her son, Mr. Levi Latonne and Mrs. Latonne.

Eighteen ladies were present at the home of Mrs. C. Brintnell on Tuesday evening when Mrs. H. Elvidge, Belleville, put on a plastic and nylon demonstration.

Mrs. Frank Sullivan entertained Mr. and Mrs. Norman Alexander, Roslin and Mrs. Blanche Wiggins, Frankford, during the weekend.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. James Fox, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ross. After a short program they were presented with a beautiful mirror and silver casserole. James and Mildred made suitable replies, and delicious refreshments were served by the ladies.

Several from here attended the United Church Anniversary services in Foxboro on Sunday, and Mrs. M. Jones, Miss Mildred Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brintnell, Miss Ruth Brintnell had dinner with Mrs. W. D. Simmons.

The W. M. S| held their quilting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Patterson. A delicious pot luck dinner was served at noon and the quilt finished early in the afternoon after which Mrs. Patterson served tea and cookies.

Brown Bomber May Take Another Belt at Champion

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Louis has left the gate open in case he should decide to continue fighting.

"I wouldn't say definitely I would fight again and I wouldn't say definitely I wouldn't," the Brown Bomber said Monday at the International Boxing Club in New York, where he resumed his duties as director after taking a leave of absence for his losing bout with Ezzard Charles Wednesday.

"I haven't had time to think it over," he amplified. "Manny (Seamon, his trainer) and I will get together and take the Charles fight apart round by round. Then I'll make my decision. That will be at least a month or six weeks.

"But I won't commit myself one way or another now. I don't want that subject kicked around again the way it was the last time."

Louis said his decision will not have any connection with his tax troubles. He has not received his cheque of approximately $102,000 for the Charles fight yet, but said it eventually will go to Chicago, where his lawyer, Truman Gibson, was meeting with government officials to determine Joe's exact status.

Joe owes the government a considerable sum for income tax. It is believed to be about $200,000.

New York's Joe Miceli sprang a surprise last night by taking a unanimous 10-round decision from lightweight boxing champion Ike Williams in a non-title fight at Milwaukee.

Williams 142½, kept walking into Miceli, who had the crowd wild as he poured in hooks and uppercuts.

One judge gave Miceli the fight 6-3, another 6-4 and the referee had it 6-5 for Miceli.

Fred Oberlander of Montreal defeated Franz Muller of the United States in a wrestling bout at the Maccabiah games in Tel Aviv Monday.

Oberlander, manager and captain of the Canadian team competing in the all-Jewish sports festival, lost on points to Denmark's U. Pelkin in another match.

Ruby Leibovitch of Montreal was defeated in a lightweight westling contest by Simon Jurland of Denmark who won in 1.17 minutes.

Ottawa Football Club officials, totting up attendance at last Saturday's big four football game between Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders, report a record.

A total of 16,595 fans were on hand at Lansdowne Park to watch Riders upset Argos 15-5. Previous high was at another Argonaut game Oct. 1, 1949, when 16,438 attended.

Arise, owned by the Addison Stables of Toronto and winner of the fall highweight handicap on opening day two weeks ago, added the sysonby mile to his credit at Belmont Park Monday.

Fernando Gagnon of Quebec, Canadian Bantamweight champion, knocked out Art Lleanos of Porto Rico after 2:14 of the last round of a 10-round non-title bout at Quebec Monday night.

Dave Mitchell, Toronto lightweight, last night scored a 10th-round knockout over Marcel Lachapelle of Montreal in a fight card at the Montreal Forum witnessed by 3.072 fans.

Lachapelle, kayoed by a left hook to the body, was taken to hospital after he collapsed in his corner. It was found that he was not severely injured.

In another featured 10-rounder, Armand Savoie 136, of Montreal knocked out Danny Webb, 133, of Montreal at 2:34 of the fifth round.

Major-League Managers Favor Yanks for Series

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Baseball's brain trust—the Major-League managers—today lined up about three to one behind the New York Yankees to win the world series.

But Philadelphia's Phillies found strong support in the National League's 1950 "bridesmaids"—Brooklyn's Burt Shotton and Leo Durocher of the New York Giants, who finished second and-third, respectively.

Shotton and Durocher both predicted that the Phillies' tight-squeak finish will provide a psychological lift to propel them past the confident Yankees.

"In seven games," said Burt.

Eight of the managers, heading for the opening game tomorrow in Philadelphia or relaxing at home, said the New Yorkers have too much sock and savvy for Bob Carpenter's youngsters.

Three—The Phillies' Eddie Sawyer naturally joining Shotton and Durocher—picked the National League champs.

Connie Mack, as an American leaguer and a Philadelphian, deftly straddled the fence.

"I'm neutral," he said.

The four other skippers were in transit somewhere and not available for comment. They were Eddie Dyer of St. Louis Cardinals, Red Corriden of Chicago White Sox, Frankie Frisch of Chicago Cubs and Red Rolfe of Detroit Tigers.

Lou Boudreau of Cleveland and Zaeck Taylor of St. Louis Browns said flatly New York would win in five games. Others hedged a bit.

Here's how the managers see the series:

Zack Taylor, Browns: "I pick the Yank s in five games. They have the best pitching and more power. Sawyer lost a lot of pitching when he lost Curt Simmons."

Leo Durocher, Giants: "The Phillies are a fighting, hustling ball club and I think if Robin Roberts is not too tired they'll take it. I expect them to bound back."

Steve O'Neill, Red Sox: "As to how many games it will go I don't know. The Yankees definitely will win the series."

Billy Meyer, Pirates: "The Yanks have a big edge but you can't count Sawyer's boys out. Those kids can catch fire as fast as they cooled off."

Casey Stengel, Yankees: "Naturally we're confident of winning but Philadelphia has sufficiently good pitching and a hustling young club to make it a whale of a series."

Connie Mack, Athletics: "I believe it will be a toss-up. I'm for the American League and Phillies as well."

Billy Southworth, Braves: "The Yankees have the edge."

Luke Sewell, Reds: "It looks like the Yankees have the best-rested club but dame fate has put a finger on the Phillies and don't cross them off."

Lou Boudreau, Indians: "The Yankees, of course. I figure it will take them five games."

Burt Shotton, Dodgers: "I think ll go t.e limit but I like the Phillies."

Bucky Harris, Senators: "The Yankees should win the series. I expect Joe DiMaggio to do well. He's an old pro."

Eddie Sawyer, Phillies: "I'll string along with Philadelphia, of course."

MONTREAL GOLFER WINS

Kingston, Oct. 3 (AP)—Johnny Henrick from Montreal's Mount Royal Golf Club won the Canadian Assistant Professionals' championship Monday. He carded a 147 for 36 holes over the par-70 Cataraqui course.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Allans Mills — Mr. and Mrs. Revard and Miss Lucy Revard have returned to their home in Sudbury after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burkitt.

Mrs. John McKeown moved her furniture to her new home in Springbrook on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt, Mr. and Mrs. Reg Burkitt and Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt were among those who called at Belleville Hospital on Tuesday to visit Arthur Wright who is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt.

Arthur Wright underwent an operation for appendicitis on Sunday in Belleville Hospital.

Several from this vicinity attended the Campbellford Fair on Wednesday which was one of the largest crowds to attend.

Mrs. Dave Wellman received word that Dr. Marvin Wellman is seriously ill in hospital at Belfast, Ireland.

Harvest Home Service was held in St. Mark's Anglican Church on Sunday evening. Mrs. Woodbeck of Stirling was the guest soloist.

The Rylestone W. I. will hold their next meeting in Rylestone factory on Thursday night, October 5. Convener Mrs. Ernest Irwin. Roll call "Why I should not use margarine on my table". A demonstration will be given by Mrs. W. P. Moore, guest speaker and Mr. Heath, cheesemaker at Rylestone.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Barton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ingram of Menie.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reid and family visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Pollock of Menie on Sunday.

Mrs. Stanley Keller is spending some time visiting friends in Columbus, Ohio.

ONE MAN KILLED

Manila, Oct. 3 (AP)—A rain-soaked adobe wall collapsed in a sudden gust of wind killing one man in an aftermath of yesterday's typhoon. Two others were injured by the falling wall. Flood waters from Luzon mountain ranges are rushing into the central part of the island.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

[illegible] night clerk was still on [illegible] He yawned and watched the two men approach with red-rimmed eyes. Shayne stopped by the desk and said. "You know my friend don't you Jim? He was up to see me last night when I was out.

"The clerk studied Blackie's face intently. He said "I don't believe I do, Mr. Shayne. Is Miss Hamilton going to be all right?"

"I'm on my way up there now. Dr. Price thought she was okay when I left a few hours ago."

The elevator was waiting, and when they got in, Shayne said to the operator "take a good look at this man. Ever see him before?"

"Listen . . ." Blackie began to protest, but Shayne silenced him with a look.

"I don't know as I have or not" the boy said reflectively. "I might could remember better Mist' Shayne, was you to tell me jest when I saw 'im."

Shayne said "we'll skip that for the moment." They got out of the elevator and started for his apartment.

"I'm telling you," said Blackie doggedly, "I never been inside this building before. You can see neither one of them identified me."

"There's a side entrance and stairs," Shayne said shortly. He stopped in front of his door and knocked. It was opened by a tall young man wearing the natty uniform of the Miami police force. He had his service revolver in his hand, and he peered out suspiciously until he recognized the redhead.

"It's you, Mr. Shayne. I'm Edmund. I had orders to admit no one but you." He stood aside and the two men entered.

Miss Naylor sat in front of the card-littered centre table. She looked as prim and efficient and wide-awake as when Shayne left. She said "the patient has been quiet all night, Mr. Shayne. I'm sure she's going to make a splendid recovery."

"That's fine." To Blackie he said "pull up a chair and I'll pour some drinks. Will you have one, Edmund? Miss Naylor?"

"No thanks," said Miss Naylor I'm not allowed to drink on duty.

Blackie sat down in the middle of the couch holding himself erect, his hands folded in his lap. Shayne went to the liquor cabinet and asked "Cognac or whiskey.

"I really can't take anything," Edmunds told him. "I was ordered to stay on guard here until . ."

"Until I returned and took over," said Shayne cheerfully. "You're off duty as of this moment." He brought out the cognac and three glasses.

"I suppose your return does relieve me, but I couldn't take a drink this time of morning." Edmund turned to Miss Naylor and said "we'd better settle up our gin rummy accounts and then I'll be getting along."

"I've added," she told him. "Three dollars and twenty-eight cents.' . . . .

While Edmund was settling his debt, Shayne poured two drinks and handed one to Blackie, then moved across the room and sank into a chair.

"Well, I'll be going," the young officer said. "I hope the young lady will be all right."

Shayne nodded. "Thanks for sticking around." He frowned and said "wait a minute, Edmund. About that phone call. The one asking about the bracelet. Think you would recognize the voice if you heard it again?"

"Why . . I'm not sure. Over a telephone I might. It wasn't particularly distinctive."

"Anything like mine?" Shayne asked, "Or more in line with Mr. Diffingham's voice." He nodded to Blackie.

Edmund's smooth brow rumpled. "I don't believe I've heard Mr. Diffington say anything."

"Diffingham," Shayne corrected: "Say something for him Diffy," he urged.

Blackie said gruffly "looks like a nice morning."

Edmund thought for a moment, then said "it was more like his . . .but not exactly. It would be easier to judge over a telephone."

"Maybe I can arrange that for you."

"Any time," said Edmund. "And thanks for the game, Miss Naylor," he added with a whimsical grin. He went out and closed the door softly.

Shayne turned to the nurse. "How soon will it be safe to waken Miss Hamilton."

"She's not to be wakened," Miss Naylor said crisply. She got up and went into the bedroom, returned after half a minute and reported "I think she'll rouse in a couple of hours. There's really no hurry, is there?"

"None at all," Shayne said quickly and heartily. He yawned expansively, clutching at his sore stomach muscles. His eyes were heavy and he had difficulty keeping his gaze on his prisoner across the room.

Blackie had the advantage of him, for he had evidently slept several hours before Shayne's foray into the garage. Shayne thrust himself erect after a time and said "let's whip up a pot of coffee." He jerked his head toward the kitchen and waited for Blackie to precede him, then followed him out and put on a dripulator of coffee. He put a frying pan over a lighted gas jet, fried bacon and when it was crisp took it out and poured in six eggs lightly beaten in a bowl.

A few minutes later he placed three plates of bacon, eggs and untoasted bread on the table which Miss Naylor had cleared of playing cards. He announced "breakfast is served."

"I'm starved," Miss Naylor declared. "Sit down and I'll bring the coffee."

After Shayne had eaten his breakfast leisurely, he felt wide awake. He smoked a couple of cigarettes while the nurse cleared the table, keeping a keen eye on Blackie as he did so.

Miss Naylor came in after washing the dishes and said "I'd better take a look at our patient" and went into the bedroom. After several minutes she returned. "She's beginning to move restlesly. I believe she'll be fully awake presently. It might reassure her to see you, Mr. Shayne Would you like to come in?"

Shayne glanced curiously at Blackie's face as he got up and went to the bedroom door. Blackie appeared to have superb self control. Not a muscle in his solid face betrayed anxiety.

Stopping in the doorway where he could Leep an eye on his prisoner, Shayne looked at Lucy. Her features were calm and peaceful in the morning light. A curl of brown hair had detached itself and lay across her forehead.

Shayne set his teeth and felt sweat on the palms of his clenched hands a she gazed at her. It was the first time he had consciously allowed himself to consider how much her recovery meant to him. His gaunt face twitched angrily as he switched his eyes to the man whom he was practically certain was responsible for her condition. Blackie met his angry gaze with indifference.

Lucy's brown and bandaged head moved on the pillow and her long brown lashes rolled slowly upward. She looked at Shayne and a little smile curved her lips. She said, "Hi," and the syllable sent a rush of emotion through him.

He said "Hi, Angel. Take it easy and don't try to move. You have had a pretty rough time of it."

"It seems —like a nightmare," she faltered. "So—hazy. I did—talk to you after it happened, didn't I? Or did I dream that?"

"You didn't dream it. You told us everything we needed. I've got a guy here I want you to meet. Feel up to it?"

"Uh-huh."

"Don't be frightened now. Just tell me if you've ever seen him." Shayne flipped back his coat and drew the .45, gestured toward Blackie and said "come here and let the lady look at you."

Miss Naylor gasped audibly at the sight of the gun. Lucy's eyes were wide and questioning, but the faint smile stayed on her lips as she stared at the doorway.

Blackie got up and lumbered across the room. He stopped just inside the door and looked down at Lucy.

A frown creased her forehead as she studied the man, then she said slowly "I never saw him in my life before."

"Wait a minute," Shayne said swiftly. "Take it slow and easy, Lucy. Think back over last night.

Her unblinking gaze was fixed on Blackie's face. "I'm sorry, Mike. I don't think I've ever seen him, and I'm certain he isn't the man who came in last night."

"She's right," Blackie said: "Like I told you, I never been in this place before."

"Close your eyes a moment," Shayne said quietly. "Go back to last night, Lucy. The man with the mustache."

She closed her eyes and lay quietly, then opened them and said in a small and despondent voice, "no Michael. It wasn't this man."

"If he were wearing a gray suit and a Panama hat," Shayne argued. "Clothes made a lot of difference."

'I got you for a witness," Blackie broke in to the nurse, "that the young lady's done said it wasn't me. He's egging her on —trying to make her say it was me."

Miss Naylor said crisply "it certainly seems to me, Mr. Shayne, that you're using what a lawyer would call undue influence."

"It doesn't help — thinking back," Lucy told Shayne. "It doesn't help a single bit. He's not a bit like that other man."

"You said a moment ago that it was like a nightmare," Shayne reminded her. "That last night was hazy and indistinct. If you close your eyes and rest a while.

"Oh no, you don't understand, Michael. That part of it isn't at all. I can see him now as he hung up the phone and saw me and jumped at me. The other part is like a nightmare. Afterward — when I came to for a moment and saw you—and some other men."

"All right," Shayne conceded dispiritedly. "So this isn't the guy. Can you describe him any better than you did last night?"

"Just —that he was heavy-set and had sort of round face, I think. Not nearly as dark as this man. His mustache was kind of grayish. I only got one good look at him, but I'd know him again anywhere."

REDS 'WINK' AT SEIZURE IN AUSTRIAN ZONE

S. Korean Troops Prowling Deeper Above 38 Parallel

Not Known Whether U.S. Forces Will Join Natives

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Oct. 4 (AP) — South Korean troops prowled deeper into North Korea today on spearhead missions feeling for the communist North Korean army that has all but vanished and gone silent before them in ominously empty country.

They got as far as 60 miles beyond the 38th parallel as the American command announced the arrival in the Far East of a new reinforcing division — the U.S. 3rd infantry —to join the Korean fighting if necesary.

The penetration force north of parallel 38 was composed solely of fighting Korean nationals with about 60 American army men along as advisers.

The United Nations allies were held back in mop-up and reserve positions in liberated South Korea.

The latest red mystery column that streamed down from the Manchuria border of red China into North Korea was discounted by an air force spokesman as a regular highway supply train and not a foreign troop convoy.

Convoy Spotted

The Fifth Air Force said a 150-vehicle convoy was spotted Tuesday night by two allied pilots. The column was moving south near Pakchon, about 50 miles northwest of the North Korean capital, Pyongyang.

Presumably it was the same column that allied planes attacked earlier Tuesday.

The air force said bad weather prevented effective attacks Wednesday on the vehicles.

The North Koreans are equipped with Russian heavy fighting material and much of it may have come from Soviet-dominated Manchuria along the highway over the Yalu River frontier.

Official sources declined again to say whether Americans and other United Nations liberation forces would join the South Koreans above parallel 38.

Six Divisions in Field

American strength in the war theatre now is six divisions plus a regimental combat team.

British, Australian and Philippines ground forces also are in South Korea. Thai and French units have been assigned to the operation.

South Koreans captured Kosong, 50 airline miles north of the border along the east coast. Patrols stabbed still farther north in a drive which South Koreans say will go all the way to the Manchuria border.

AP correspondent William Jorden reported from the front that 4,000 communist troops are digging into strong defences

Sixteen Homes, Other Buildings Burn in Quebec

Padoue, Que., Oct. 4—(CP)—The eastern section of this tiny Matapedia county village was in rubble today following a six-hour fire which swept through Padoue yesterday destroying 16 homes, the parish hall, and about 15 wood sheds, barns and garages.

None of the 16 families comprising 150 persons made homeless by the fire were injured except for minor burns and scratches suffered in fighting the wind-driven [illegible]

The fire was believed caused by faulty electric wiring and started in the home of Charles Deschenes.

Although no estimate of damage was available, one-fifth of Padoue, a farmers' shopping centre of about 500 population in rugged Matapedia county, was reduced to ashes.

D. H. Lancette, Canadian National Railways agent here, said strong northwest winds which reached gale proportions fanned the flames. Padoue is 35 miles east of Rimouski, Que., which was heavily damaged in a $20,000,000 fire last May 6.

Other sections of the village were not threatened because of the direction of the wind.

About 400 persons, including firefighters from the nearby towns of Matane, Mont Joli, Amqui and Sayabec, fought the blaze. But their efforts were impeded by lack of water and equipment and [illegible] fire reportedly burned itself [illegible] before being brought under control six hours after it broke out.

C.N.R. tank cars brought water from the Tartigou River at nearby St. Noel and Provincial Lands and Forest Department pumps were installed in a swamp to pump water to the scene of the blaze.

Writers Consume Kippers to Help Boom Industry

London, Oct. 4 — (CP) — One hundred Canadian and United States correspondents today consumed twice that number of kippers at a novel breakfast designed to stimulate Scotland's sagging herring industry.

In the plush banquet room of [illegible]idge's Hotel waiters served [illegible]ge juice, toast, kippers and coffee at a kipper-shaped table.

Speakers said the idea is to indoctrinate North American writers in the merits of "that delectable fish caught off the misty isles of the Hebrides" — the Stornoway kipper.

Starting this week, these kippers will be cellophane-wrapped in pairs, deep-frozen and shipped direct to North America. Canadian outlets will be Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver.

Sir Frederick Bell, chairman of Scotland's herring industry board, said Scotland isn't afraid of competition from the Nova Scotia kipper.

Flurry of Snow At Malton First of Season

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP) — [illegible] first snow of the year fell today at nearby Malton. The weatherman said it was a light flurry.

"You could count the flakes."

Light flurries or maybe showers are expected tonight in Northern Ontario.

8-NATION PLAN EXPECTED TO PASS BY BIG MAJORITY

Vishinsky Calls Scheme 'Utterly Unacceptable'

Lake Success, Oct. 4 (AP) — Britain and Russia, sponsors of rival Korean peace plans, brushed aside today compromise suggestions advanced by India and Yugoslavia as the U.N. assembly's political committee moved toward a show-down vote on the case.

The resolution, offered by Britain and seven other countries and supported by the United States, was expected to receive overwhelming support in the 60-member committee and later by a plenary session of the general assembly itself. It was apparent the rival Soviet bloc's plan would be voted down.

The eight-country resolution "is utterly unacceptable," Vishinsky said. He maintained its true purpose was "to secure the interests of American monopolies and not to secure an independent Korea."

The Soviet foreign minister said the plan contemplates the occupation of all Korean territory "and does not serve to set up a unified Korea and restore peace in the Far East." He claimed the Soviet bloc resolution alone meets Korean needs.

Why He Was Late

Bismarck, N.D., Oct. 4 (CP) —As principal of Bismarck Junior High School, T. E. Simle has heard a wide variety of excuses for tardiness.

He thought he'd heard them all, until:

A lad, appearing at the office to explain why he was late, reported it was because he had to feed his brother.

How old was his brother?

Eight months.

Why didn't their mother feed the child?

She had gone to see about a dog owned by a neighbor who had asked her to check up on it while he was away.

Why didn't the junior high lad see about the dog?

Why, the last time he had anything to do with the dog, it bit him.

Wasn't he afraid it would bite his mother?

No—she had insurance.

FALL WHEAT SOWING

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) —Clear weather has speeded up sowing of fall and winter wheat, the Ontario Agriculture Department said today in its weekly crop report.

Sowing is completed in many sections and some good crops are already through the ground. Harvesting is finished in many counties or will be within a few days. Most farmers are busy with silo-filling while the good weather lasts.

'Must Feel Joy and Glory in Serving, Even Sacrificing for Our Fellows'

—Morrison

Margate, England, Oct. 4 — (Reuters) — Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, today called on the Labor party conference for a "mental transformation" among workers to ensure the success of the Labor movement.

He said that under capitalism it had been natural for workers to feel instinctively that there should be "a row with the boss from time to time even if it is only for the sake of his soul."

But he said, public ownership brought greater responsibilities and workers should forget old antagonisms.

"We need a sense of social responsibility a joy and glory in serving our fellows and even sacrificing for our fellows. That is the internal and spiritual change which must take place before this becomes a truly socialist country."

He was not prepared to claim everything was perfect in publicly-owned industries but he thought they were a big improvement on capitalism.

Morrison repeated previous party statements that the presently privately-owned cement, sugar and industrial assurance businesses "are within the field of eligibility for consideration" for nationalization.

"But we do not think it wise, at any rate at this stage, to commit the party to a time-table for socialization.

"We must consider what the national interest requires in the circumstances obtaining when decisions have to be made."

Morrison said Labor would need "all the time available" to prepare for the next general election.

Yanks Score in Fourth, Beat Phils 1-0 in Opener

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Bobby Brown's double and two long fly balls gave New York Yankees a 1-0 lead today over the Phillies after four innings of the opening World Series game.

It was a tight pitching duel between Yankee Vic Raschi, who had thrown four hitless innings, and Jim Konstanty, Phil relief ace who was the surprise starter.

First Inning Yankees

Konstanty's first pitch to Woodling was low and inside for a ball. After a called strike, Konstanty threw three straight balls to walk Woodling.

Rizzuto singled between third and short, Woodling stopping at second.

Berra flied to Ennis at the right field wall, Woodling taking third after the catch. Rizzuto held first.

Russ Meyer, a righthander, started warming up in the Phillies' bullpen.

DiMaggio took a called strike, foul tipped the next pitch, then raised an easy foul fly to Waitkus outside the first baseline.

Mize flied to Ennis in short right.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

First Inning Phillies

Raschi's first pitch to Waitkus cut the heart of the plate for a called strike.

Woodling slammed into the lower barrier in left field while chasing Waitkus' foul fly. After a brief rest, Woodling returned to his post in left field.

Waitkus fouled out to Berra behind the plate after working the count to three and two.

Ashburn bunted to the left of the mound, Raschi came up quick to throw him out at first.

Raschi speared Sisler's high chopper back to the mound and tossed him out at first.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning Yankees

Ennis raced to right centre to gather in Brown's fly.

Hamner took Bauer's slow roller and barely threw him out at first.

Sisler came in fast to make a nice catch of Coleman's foul fly near the left field boxes.

No runs no hits no errors, none left.

Second Inning Phillies

Coleman backed up to the grass to field Ennis' bounder and threw him out at first.

Jones sent a high pop to Berra in front of the plate.

Hamner rolled out, Rizzuto to Mize.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Inning Yankees

Raschi lined a single past Hamner.

Woodling walked on four pitched balls.

Waitkus fielded Rizzuto's bunt to the right of the mound and threw to first for the out. Both runners advanced.

Sisler caught Berra's fly in short left.

DiMaggio was purposely passed to load the bases.

Mize raised a meek pop to Jones for the third out.

No runs, one hit, no errors, three left.

Third Inning Phillies

Seminick went down swinging to become the first strikeout victim of the game.

Goliat sent Woodling back to the left field wall for his long fly, the first ball hit out of the infield by a Philadelphia batter.

Raschi threw out Konstanty.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning Yankees

Brown smashed a two-bagger just inside the third base line.

Ashburn raced into deep centre and made a running over-the-shoulder catch of Bauer's 400-foot drive.

Coleman flied deep to Sisler, Brown scoring from third after the catch.

Jones scooped up Raschi's bounder and threw him out.

One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning Phillies

Waitkus hit Raschi's first pitch to Coleman who threw him out.

DiMaggio took Ashburn's low drooping fly.

Sisler struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning Yankees

Woodling bounced out, Waitkus to Konstanty who covered first.

Rizzuto fouled to Seminick just behind home plate.

Berra fouled to Waitkus in back of first.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning Phillies

Ennis flied to Bauer.

Jones rolled a single into centre for the first hit off Raschi. He was Philadelphia's first base runner.

Hamper sent an easy fly to Bauer.

Seminick lined a solid single to left field, Jones stopping at second.

Goliat struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Sixth Inning Yankees

DiMaggio walked on a three-and two pitch.

Jones took Mize's pop.

Brown lined to Ennis.

Jones fielded Bauer's hot grounder and forced DiMaggio at second.

Sixth Inning Phillies

Konstanty struck out.

Waitkus coaxed a pass, the first walk given up by Raschi.

Ashburn flied to DiMaggio.

Sisler popped to Mize.

Seventh Inning Yankees

Coleman bounced to Jones who threw him out.

Raschi sent a roller down the third - base line and was safe at first when Jones' low throw escaped Waitkus. Jones was charged with the error, first one of the game.

Woodling sliced a single over Hamner's head.

Rizzuto popped to Jones.

No runs, one hit, one error, two left.

Seventh Inning Phillies

Ennis flied to Bauer.

DiMaggio took Jones' fly.

Bauer crashed into the wall in right centre but held on to a vicious drive by Hamner.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Eighth Inning Yankees

DiMaggio popped to Jones.

Goliat scooped up Mize's grounder and threw him out at first.

Goliat had trouble with Brown's bouncer but threw him out at first.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Eighth Inning Phillies

Johnny Hopp replaced Mize at first, and Billy Johnson replaced Brown at third in a defensive move for the Yankees.

Seminick fouled to Hopp.

Goliat lined to Coleman.

Lefthanded Dick Whitman batted for Konstanty.

Bauer caught Whitman's long hoist with his back to the wall.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Ninth Inning Yankees

Righthander Russ Meyer went in to pitch for Phillies.

Bauer's spinning bounder twisted off the edge of the sod and bounded off Jones' bare hand for an infield single.

Ashburn hauled in Coleman's fly.

Raschi laid down a sacrifice bunt and was thrown out.

Seminick made a nice play on Woodling's chopper in front of the plate and threw him out on a close play.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Ninth Inning Phillies

Rizzuto took in Waitkus' grounder and threw him out at first.

Ashburn and Sisler went down in order. Game over.

R.C.N. AIR ARM WINS BATTLE FOR SURVIVAL

Another Five Years Before Canadianized

Ottawa, Oct. 4 — (CP) — No one has spelled it out just that way but a unique branch of Canada's armed forces has won its battle for survival.

After months of argument, the navy's four-year-old air arm now is here to stay. It is proceeding happily on its course as an unusual laboratory for military development with men of three nations combining to guide its childhood.

It is still without a Canadian in any of its top posts, still without an official home.

The arm, with the 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent, four flying squadrons, a shore base at Dartmouth, N. S., and 1,100 men, is headed by a Dublin-born veteran of the Royal Navy, Commodore Charles N. Lentaigne.

His chief aides are all Britons or Americans because there are as yet no Canadians with the necessary experience.

As Canadians accumulate experience, they are gradually taking over but it will probably be another five years before the arm becomes completely Canadianized. But nobody's worrying about that. The tri-nation combination is working out well.

The combination is unique in Canada's defence set-up — even the "Maggie" is on loan from the U. K., with Canada paying only the upkeep — and probably will not continue for any length of time. The Americans and Britons are "on loan" to the R.C.N.

Strong Arguments

For months, though, it looked as though the whole thing might go. There were strong arguments within the navy against spending more than 15 per cent of the naval budget on an aircraft carrier and its satellites. It was both inevitable and ironic that in these debates, the Britons and Americans who knew most about naval aviation carried a lot of the argument on its behalf.

The formal signal of victory came in Parliament some time ago when Defence Minister Claxton said the Magnificent is here to stay.

Commodore Lentaigne, a sprightly, able Irishman who started to fly in 1925 and who won the D. S. O. as a destroyer captain, is pleased. Says he: "A navy without a carrier is like a blind man with no reach to his arms."

The combination of British, American and Canadian manpower pioneering an infant service has already shown results. In one typical Canadian step, the navy got 75 U. S. Avenger aircraft dirt cheap, modified them with British improvements and is getting what Commodore Lentaigne thinks is the best anti-submarine plane in the world.

MAY CARRY PASSENGERS

Tokyo, Oct. 4 — (AP)— Col. H. T. Miller, Gen. MacArthur's transportation chief, announced today Japanese ships will be permitted to carry passengers for the first time since the end of the Pacific War.

Communists Try To Put Across General Strike

Session of Four-Power Allied Council Called

Vienna, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Allied intelligence sources said tonight the cominform had ordered Austrian communists to drop plans to seize power in this country.

Vienna, Oct. 4—(AP)— More than 1,000 communist demonstrators today seized the main post office and telephone exchange in Wiener Neustadt in the Russian zone of Austria.

The Wiener Neustadt communists beat off 150 Austrian policemen who tried to stop them entering the post office. The seizure could lead to interruption of communications between Vienna and the British zone.

Hand-to band fighting broke out earlier between communists and socialists in some areas of Vienna as the reds began their march on government buildings planned as a climax to their attempt to put across a general strike.

British authorities summoned an emergency session of the four-power allied body charged with the security of Vienna, to discuss an Austrian government note protesting Russian interference with Austrian police.

Strike Fizzling

The strike itself was fizzling. The communist march from the Russian-occupied suburbs to Vienna's city hall apparently was an attempt to bolster the strike call. The strength of such a demonstration could mean the difference between defeat and victory for communist hopes of a general strike throughout Austria.

Socialists and communists battled at the gates of factories. Railworkers tossed communists out of government railway buildings. Police arrested men seeking to disrupt power supplies.

The communists, meanwhile, had seized streetcars in the Soviet sector, while armed Russian soldiers looked on.

The purpose apparently was to use the cars to transport communist-led workers to a demonstration.

The communist call for the general strike was ignored by most of Austria's workers, although it produced short-lived attempts to seize railway stations and mounting scattered incidents.

Some 50,000 workers in Russian-controlled factories heeded the communist call for a walkout demanding further general wage increases. But the reds appeared to have failed to lure workers of the Socialist and Peoples party—the bulk of Austria's labor — out of their factories.

The communist effort was expected to climax late this afternoon in a march at 6 p.m. (noon EDT) on Vienna's governmental centre. Austrian police, who last night were issued rifles and steel helmets for the first time since 1938, were put on the alert to meet expected violence.

Direct Russian military participation in the disorders was reported by an Associated Press reporter.

Directed by an armed Russian soldier, he said, communists were halting and emptying streetcars trying to cross the Danube River bridge linking main Russian sectors north of the river with the centre of Vienna.

Meanwhile small crowds of reds marched on several federal railway stations in the heart of the Russian Zone and in Vienna. At St. Poelten, astride the railroad route from Vienna to the west, workers "rejected" a communist attempt to interrupt work, the Austrian press agency reported.

Groups of communists clashed with police and street car workers at three points in the American sector of Vienna early today. Thirty communists were jailed and the attempt to halt street car traffic failed.

Warned Not to Interfere

In the Russian sectors of the city, however, police were unable to do anything about scattered interference with street car traffic. The police there were warned by Russian officers not to interfere with the strikers.

Elsewhere in Vienna socialist workers were taking a strong stand against the red effort to get them out on strike.

Socialist workers in power plants, gas works, railways and streetcar barns told the communists they would not join them. Red organizers were rushing about the city, visiting all key installations in hopes of finding supporters.

But the government appeal to workers to preserve their freedom against what was described as a communist attempt to smash the government appeared at first sight to have had a strong influence on the vast majority of workers.

In Austria's western provinces, occupied by the western allies, the strike scene was comparatively quiet.

At Linz, American occupation zone centre and a hotbed of unrest during last week's demonstrations, the huge United Austrian steel and iron works was reported fully at work.

The strike began last midnight after the government defied a communist ultimatum demanding a 20-per-cent wage increase to counter government-ordered food price increases. The government had approved a 10-per-cent wage increase.

Scientists Nearing Elimination Of Cloud-Flying Troubles for Pilots

By AFTLEY HAWKINS

London, Oct. 4. (Reuters)—British scientists are well on the way toward eliminating the nightmare of all pilots—flying through turbulent cumulo-nimbus, those towering "cauliflower clouds" which toss airliners about like butterflies.

Research staffs of British airlines have spent years analyzing pilots' reports to find out the best way to fight cumulo-nimbus. Now, their best advice is: avoid it.

Latest equipment to go into airliners of the British Overseas Airways fleet is a radar set which can scan conditions up to 40 miles ahead of a plane in flight and give early warning. These cloud formations are built up thousands of feet by ascending air currents violent enough to throw the largest aircraft out of control.

The radar, swinging 75 degrees on either side of the line of flight, will also provide "collision warning", giving pilots flying blind advance notice of high ground or other aircraft.

But primarily, this sensitive new apparatus will enable pilots to seek the best weather routes, giving their passengers smooth travel as free as possible from those violent "bumps" frequently found in the middle of big cloud masses.

Contrary to a general public fear, there is no authenticated cost of severe damage to a well-built aircraft by lightning, although there have been many cases of minor damage.

Nevertheless, developments are underway to make an aircraft in flight invulnerable to lightning by fitting special conductors and other protective devices.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP)—Synopsis—Malton airport near Toronto had a brief snowflurry early this morning in the northwesterly flow of cold air that covers the entire province.

Widely scattered shower activity is expected today in southern regions with showers or snowflurries in northern Ontario. Clearing skies this evening over southern Ontario will bring a risk of frost particularly to low-lying areas.

Another mass of cold air is pushing southward across Hudson Bay. Present indications are that this new cold wave will continue southward across northern Ontario early Thursday and into the Georgian Bay region by evening.

DRIVER TURNS DUMP TRUCK OVER IN CENTRE OF THE HIGHWAY

Losing control of his vehicle on the slippery pavement as he rounded a curve at the south end of Foxboro, Jack Muir of this city turned his dump truck over in the centre of the highway yesterday. The dump truck, owned by Meldrum Barriage, St. Charles Street, was northbound when it went out of control on the curve. The truck was very little damaged, while no injury was suffered by the driver.

CAMPBELLFORD

Robert Sinfield Of Belleville Hurt in Crash

Campbellford, Oct. 4—Robert Sinfield of Belleville, who resides at the home of Sam Bibby on Frank Street in Campbellford, was badly shaken up on Monday afternoon, when the motorcycle he was riding was in collision with a loaded Breithaupt Leather Company truck driven by J Maurice Bradley of Campbellford.

The accident occurred as the driver of the leather truck attempted to make a left turn into the driveway of the company on the Canal Road in Campbellford's south end, the motorcycle was unable to stop in time, and ploughed into the left front fender of the heavy truck, tossing bike and rider some 40 feet through the air, to land on the side of the road.

Police were summoned, and a doctor worked on the unconscious form of the youth, rendering first aid. Two stitches were required to close a cut in the lad's head, and he suffered cuts and lacerations to his legs and body.

After treatment for shock, and his injuries, he was allowed to go home. Chief Geo. H. Hardy investigated.

Campbellford, Oct. 4 — Mae Callaghan, of the Campbellford Women's Liberal Association, has been appointed chairman of Ward 1 in the town, replacing Miss Marie Crosson who resigned due to pressure of business.

Obituary

EARL ORVILLE FOX

Following injuries suffered when his delivery truck was struck by a train at Ivanhoe last Saturday, Earl Orville Fox, 96 Catherine Street, died in Belleville General Hospital Monday afternoon

The deceased was born in Rednersville 41 years ago, son of Mr and Mrs. Willoughby Fox and had resided in the city slightly over a year. Previously he had lived at Rednersville.

He worked as a salesman for Weston Bread, whose truck he was driving at the time of the accident. He was a member of Holloway Street United Church and also of the Energetic Club of that church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Bernice Adelia McCurdy and one son Leo Edward, at home.

The funeral announcement appears in this edition.

THOMAS ERWIN

In failing health for the past two months, Thomas Erwin died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank High, 66 West Bridge Street. He was 82.

Born in Stoco, son of the late Thomas Erwin and Louise Bennett, Mr. Erwin had lived in the city for the past ten years and previously at Read, Ont. During his active years he was a farmer. He was a member of St. Michael's Church. His wife predeceased him 11 years ago.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Frank (Elizabeth) High of this city, and two sons, Joseph of Sudbury, and William of Toronto. There are two sisters, Mrs. Frank Kehoe of St. Catharines and Mrs. Peter Shane of Belleville, and one brother Charles Erwin of this city.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. MAUD MARGUERITE PHILP
(Frankford)

After an illness of one year and some months, Mrs. Maud Marguerite Philp, died at her home in Stirling on Tuesday afternoon. She was born in Rawdon township 48 years ago, being the daughter of the late Warren Preston and Annie Nugent and has resided in that community for the past four years. She was well known and highly respected in the social and church life of the district and fraternally was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, No. 55, of Belleville.

She was a member of St. Paul's United Church. Surviving are her husband, R. Harry Philp, two sons, Robert and Bryce at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter Elliott of Stirling and Mrs. Joseph Walmsley of Picton.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. SARAH E. MARSHALL
(Plainfield)

A lifelong resident of Plainfield district, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Marshall, died at her home late Tuesday afternoon. She was born in Thomasburg and lived her entire life in that community. She was highly regarded by a wide circle of friends, who will sincerely regret her death.

The late Mrs. Marshall was born 76 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Adams. She was a member of the United Church and when health permitted was an active worker in the congregation.

Surviving are her husband, William Marshall, two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Mildred) Rollins, Plainfield, Mrs. Harry (Mary) Davis, Tyendinaga, two sons, Clarence Marshall of Holloway, Samuel Marshall of Sidney twp., two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Emerson, Thomasburg, Mrs. Wesley Huffman, Belleville, three brothers, Thomas Adams, Madoc, Melburn Adams, Thomasburg, Chester Adams, Belleville, seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. GLADYS L. DUNPHY

After an illness of eighteen months, Mrs. Gladys Louise Dunphy, 14 Dunbar Street, Belleville, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Wednesday morning. She was born in Belleville being the daughter of Mrs. B. Kingston and the late B. Kingston. For the past eight years she has resided in her native city but for many years resided in Picton.

She was a member of Holloway Street United Church and was connected with the Woman's Auxiliary of that congregation. Fraternally, she was a member of Quintena Rebekah Lodge, No. 123 of this city.

Surviving are her husband Glen Dunphy, one daughter, Miss Arlene Keitha Dunphy and one son Stewart Dunphy at home, two brothers, Gerald Kingston of Belleville, Lorne Kingston of Thessalon near North Bay, two sisters, Mrs. Hugh Miles, of Oshawa and Miss Norma Kingston of Whitby.

Her first husband, Earl Gilmour died some years ago.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

KATHLEEN AND PATRICIA DENNY
(Sidney Township)

Trenton — Funeral services were held this Wednesday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home for Kathleen Rose and Patricia Anne Denny, both of whom died suddenly Sunday. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. S. McConnell, and burial was in White's Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Gary Jackson, Robert Meyers, Dean Brown, Donald Bowers, Cyril Bridger, Asa Copeland, Floyd Kleinsteuber and Gary Reid.

Kathleen Rose Denny and Patricia Anne Denny were both born in Kingston, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Denny. The former was 12 years old, the latter five. Both had lived at R. R. 2, Sidney, for about eight months, and before that had resided in Belleville and Kingston.

Each is survived by her parents, one brother, John Denny, of Kingston; three sisters, Mary Denny, of Belleville, and Gloria and Doris, both at home. They were attendants of Wallbridge Anglican Church.

RICHARD HADDEN
(Picton)

Picton—The death occurred in Kingston General Hospital on Monday, October 2nd of Richard Hadden, age sixty-two years. A prominent hardware merchant of Picton until recent months, Mr Hadden had been in failing health for some time. He suffered from a heart ailment.

A son of the late Charles Hadden and Mrs. Hadden, Ferguson Street, the deceased was born and educated in Picton. As a young man he entered the hardware firm that had been established by his grandfather, and only disposed of this business on the advice of his doctor in recent months. He married Pearl White who survives, also surviving are an only daughter Katherine, Mrs. George Currie, of Denver, Col. and two grandchildren, and his mother, Mrs. Chas. Hadden. Mr. Hadden was a member of the United Church and of L.O.L. No 488.

Funeral arrangements are pending until word has been received from Mrs. Currie in Denver, Col., whether she will be able to fly here.

LATE ARTHUR A. SILLS

The funeral of the late Arthur A. Sills was held from his late residence on Bridge Street east on Monday afternoon. Rev S. E. Larman of Holloway Street United Church conducted the service in the home and also the last rites in Belleville cemetery. There was a large attendance of intimate, personal friends and relatives and the floral tributes from many organizations and clubs, testified to the esteem in which the late Mr. Sills was held in the community.

The bearers were John Shaw, 'Pop' Moynes, Stanley Lennox, Stanley Downing, Harold Mott and Edward Hogle.

LATE FREDERICK F. WILSON

The funeral of the late Frederick F. Wilson took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. Rev. J. Creeggan of Christ Church conducted the service in the chapel and also the last rites in Belleville cemetery. The funeral was private.

On Sunday evening a Masonic service was held in the chapel and was conducted by Wor. Bro. C. C. McMullen, master of Moira Lodge and he was assisted by Wor. Bro. P. W. Dewberry, Wor. Bro. Dan Stewart, Wor. Bro. R. P. Orne, V. Wor. Bro. Everett Smith and V. Wor. Bro. A. E. Barlow.

LATE SIDMER J. DEMOREST

The funeral of the late Sidmer J. Demorest took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. J. Creeggan of Christ Church conducted the service in the chapel. He also said the last rites in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Raymond Broadworth, Albert Dodwell, Harold Longwell, Louis Kline, Rueben Kline and Thomas Haslip.

Hon. M.F. Gregg, V.C., Will Address H. and P.E. Regt. Annual Reunion

HON. MILTON F. GREGG, V.C.

The Hon. Milton F. Gregg, VC; ~~CBE, MC, VD, ED,~~ Federal Minister of Labor will be the guest of honor and give the main address at the 6th annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment here this weekend, Oct. 7-8 and 9th.

The distinguished guest, who won the Victoria Cross at the Battle of Cambrai in the First Great War, will speak at the reunion banquet in the Vanity Fair on Sunday and earlier in the day will take the salute at a march-past following a memorial service at the City Cenotaph.

The parade will leave the armouries at twelve noon Sunday and on its return will march past the saluting dais in front of the Post Office where the Hon. Mr. Gregg will review the troops of the Second Battalion and ex-members of the First Battalion. He will be flanked by former commanding officers of the regiment.

Upwards of 1,000 ex-members of the famous Hasty Pees are expected to converge on the city for the annual get-together, according to regimental officers in charge. Included will be the Assoro Club, Toronto, who will parade en masse with the Queen's Own Regiment Bugle Band of Toronto in attendance.

A variable program of entertainment has been arranged by reunion officials. Following the banquet on Sunday, the annual meeting of the regimental association will take place.

Registration of ex-members begins at 2 p. m. Saturday, October 7th and at 5.30 the Assoro Club and band will parade through city streets. Immediately following will be entertainment in the Armouries furnished by talent from the regiment. At 9.30 a dance for ex-members and their wives will be held on the main floor of the Bridge Street Armouries.

Wives and sweethearts of attending ex-members will be entertained at a luncheon at the Queen's Hotel at 1.15 p. m. Sunday.

Following the main banquet, the draw for the regimental scholarship special prize will take place.

Farmers Call for Extra Help To Harvest Crop

With bad weather holding up the western wheat harvest and time for the fall freeze-up rapidly approaching, wheat farmers in the west are calling for additional farm help to harvest their crops.

Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment service office stated today that an additional 500 experienced farm helpers were needed from Ontario, with 25 needed from the Belleville district.

The special reduced harvesters' rate on the railroad has been extended until October 16th, with Nov. 15th being the effective return date. Farm helpers interested in assisting in the west are asked to contact Mr. Reed at the Belleville office.

JOINT NAVAL EXERCISES

Valetta, Malta, Oct. 4 — (Reuters) — Warships of Britain, the United States, France and Italy last night concluded two-day joint manoeuvres in the Central Mediterranean. The exercises were to test the combined fleets' anti-submarine and anti-aircraft defences.

E.J. Chard Heads O.S.D. Teachers Association

The Association of Teachers and Instructors of the Ontario School for the Deaf held their opening meeting for the year on Monday in the auditorium of the school. A bounteous lunch was served by Miss H. M. Keeler and her able social committee, after which, the President, Mr. A. J. Clare, called the meeting to order.

Upon the completion of the year's business, Mr. A. J. Clare extended a warm welcome to the new members of the staff Miss W Huffman, Miss Z. Moher and Miss M. A. Rutherford who are filling the vacancies created by the resignations of Mr. C. A. Holmes, Mrs. C. Lynch (nee Miss B. M O'Connor), Miss E. Nurse and Mrs. J. A. Kent (nee Miss J Cook). The president also expressed the pleasure of the group in welcoming back Miss C. Maloney who has returned after spending the past year studying deaf work at the University of Manchester, England.

Mr. J. W. Hodgson thanked his committee and all those who contributed to the fine selection of programs enjoyed during the year, while Miss H. M. Keeler expressed her gratitude to the social committee for the preparation of many delicious lunches of which everyone cheerfully shared. The president's concluding remarks stated his appreciation to each convener and the committees for helping to make a very successful year in the association.

Mr. R. H. Vaughan, chairman of the nominating committee, read the new slate of officers for the coming year 1950-51.

Honorary President, Mr. W. J. Morrison; Honorary President, Miss C. Ford; Past President, Mr. A. J. Clare; President, Mr. E. J. Chard; Vice President, Miss A. M. Rush; Secretary, Miss E. V. Gardiner; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Wannamaker.

The new president, Mr. E. J. Chard sincerely thanked the association for honoring him and their new executive, and asking for continued co-operation stated that he would strive to maintain the high standard of activities.

Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent, after paying tribute to the past executive and wishing success to the present, commented upon the retirement of Miss C. Ford, supervisor of professional training, who faithfully devoted forty-two years service to the Ontario School for the Deaf. Mr. Morrison remarked that Miss Ford has seriously injured her health in working ardously for the betterment and welfare of the deaf pupils but that Miss Ford enjoys the great respect and admiration of the staff.

James McCluskie Named President Of Darts League

BSM James McCluskie 9th Anti Tank Regiment, was elected president of the Belleville Service Darts League at the annual meeting held in the sergeants' mess.

Other officers are, first vice-president, J. Foxon; secretary treasurer Charles Featherstone.

Teams officially entered in the league this year include the ANAF; 9th Anti-Tank Regiment; Corbin Lock; Dennis Sports; CNR Firemen; Hasty Pees and Brewers Warehouse.

The schedule which will be drawn up within the next day or so officially gets under way on October 11th. Matches will be played in the ANAF club rooms, Front Street and the sergeants' messes of the 9th Anti Tank and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on Church Street.

A new regulation adopted this year eliminates the playoff system in vogue since the inception of the loop. Instead the team finishing in first place at the end of the schedule becomes the league champions.

The champions will be awarded the J. J. Lee Trophy while the second place team will be awarded the CNR Firemen Trophy. Third place winners will become the possessors of the new Pellar Trophy.

Trophies will also be awarded to the winner of the three high darts; the player winning the most single games and the individual winning the most games.

Matches will be played on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

205 Crippled, Other Children Taken by Shriners to Toronto To View Circus at Gardens

Anticipation lighting up eager faces, 205 crippled and other children left the city today for Toronto where they were the guests of the Belleville Shrine Club at the famous Morton Circus in Maple Leaf Gardens.

Seven buses, six from Belleville and one from Prince Edward County convoyed the youngsters to Toronto. The cavalcade was escorted by two Ontario Provincial Police traffic cars.

The children were representative of Coe Hill, Maynooth, Read, Marysville, Marlbank, in fact practically the whole of Hastings County was represented in the laughing happy throng.

A special bus left Picton and picked up children at Bloomfield Wellington and intermediate points on its trip to Trenton where it joined the main cavalcade.

With the party were seven members of St. John Ambulance Brigade, seven hospital nurses, and two doctors.

Accompanying the party was a special panel truck donated by Shriner Al. Reynolds, which acted as a commissary vehicle and carried food, ice cream, soft drinks, etc.

Mayor Jack Allin of Belleville, chairman of Welfare Alderman Harry Allen and other officials were at the Shrine Club, official point of departure, at nine o'clock this morning to give the cavalcade a send-off.

At Trenton, the kiddies were met by the Royal Canadian Air Force Band and escorted through the town to the bus terminal.

Shriner Dr. Russell Scott and 30 fellow shriners accompanied their little guests, who will return to the city late this evening.

SMALL RATIONS

Winnipeg, Oct. 4—(CP)—Rather than serve part-empty glasses of beer, Manitoba tavern-keepers are considering using smaller glasses following the Manitoba Liquor Commission's ruling that a 10-cent glass henceforth will contain only 6 1-4 ounces, instead of the previous seven ounces.

HIGH BARLEY YIELDS

Haskett, Man., Oct. 4—(CP)—Peter D. Fehr's seven-ace plot of Montcalm barley yielded an average of 66 bushels to the acre. Another Haskett farmer, George G. Elias, threshed 65 bushels an acre of Montcalm barley from a 60-acre field.

Two are Injured In Three-Vehicle Collision

Kitchener, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Two Breslau residents are in hospital here today with injuries suffered in a three-vehicle mishap last night on the Kitchener-Guelph highway, 1½ miles east of Kitchener.

Walter Weber, 41, Breslau, received lacerations and undetermined internal injuries. He recovered consciousness in hospital today. Ruth Coady, 20, Breslau, was taken to hospital suffering from abrasions.

Police said Weber's car clipped the rear of a truck loaded with cement blocks as the latter vehicle turned into a lane.

An oncoming car, driven by Clarence Strauss of Breslau, struck the Weber auto, spinning it around. Weber was thrown out the right hand door to the pavement.

The truck was driven by Jack Gilchrist of Woodstock.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP)—A handful of mining stocks were in the spotlight on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Activity was the best in about three months. Volume was about 2,850,000 shares.

Paymaster Consolidated, a small gold producer, was the most active new high at 92 cents before settling slightly. Recent developments from the company's Porcupine district property have spurred brick buying.

Other golds tended slightly lower.

Industrials moved irregularly finishing on slightly higher levels. Papers, utilities, agricultures, refining oils and textiles showed majorities of fractional advances in the groupings.

Steels, foods and constructions weakened.

..Western Oils started strongly but slipped as the session progressed.

Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou—recent features in base metals—again jumped into the spotlight. Activity was heavy as the two issues bounced up from profit-taking losses.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP)—Trading was dull at the Ontario Stockyards today. Receipts: cattle, 190; calves, 80; hogs, 250; sheep and lambs, 320. Left from yesterday were 3,450 cattle, mostly plain killers and stockers.

Medium to good weighty steers were $26-$27.50; good cows $18-$20; canners and cutters $13.50-$15.50; good bulls were $20-$22; good stockers $26-$27 with a few tops $28.

Calves sold for $29-$31 for choice vealers; common to medium $19-$28.

Hogs sold at $29.75 for grade A sows $24 dressed.

Lambs brought $25.50 for good ewes and wethers; bucks $1 discount; good light sheep sold $13-$15 with culls downward to $7.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 4 (AP) — Cattle 200; good Holstein cows 18.00-19.50; good dairy type heifers for slaughter 20.00-22.00; good weighty sausage bulls 21.00-23.00.

In New York the Canadian dollar was unchanged at a discount of 4 3/4 per cent, a valuation of 95 1/4 cents to the American $1. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80 3/16.

3 Feared Dead Four Missing Off B.C. Coast

Vancouver, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Bodies of three employees of the British Columbia Forestry Service were sought in the choppy, chill waters off Bowen Island today following collision between a coastal steamship and a frail launch.

Four other persons, one seriously injured, were saved by the Union Steamship line's Lady Cynthia which smashed the Provincial Forestry Department launch, A. L. Bryant, into two pieces late yesterday while en route to Vancouver from her daily passenger and cargo run up coast.

The missing presumed drowned, were identified as F. A. Longstaff, 30; W. M. Ingram, about 30, both of Vancouver; and A. P. Wrotnowski of North Vancouver.

E. W. Bassett, chief forester for the B.C. Forest Service, also identified the rescued as Frank Paterson of Vancouver, H. L. Coles of North Vancouver, J. W. McDonald and J. H. Kilby, both of suburban Burnaby.

Paterson is in poor condition in hospital here with one arm almost severed. The other three suffered shock.

Two of the 50 passengers aboard the 925-ton Lady Cynthia said the accident occurred when "the launch either tried to beat us across or else it went out of control."

More Than 10,000 Residents Of Seoul Massacred by Reds Before Retreat Says S. Korean

By O. H. P. KING

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 4 (AP) —A South Korean official estimated today the communists massacred more than 10,000 Seoul residents before being driven from the capital city by U. N. troops.

"Several thousand more bodies are reported lying in the hills," said Lee Joong Choon, chief of the municipal public information section of Seoul. "Many were dumped into rivers by the reds."

Lee said the city actually had buried only 375 bodies, some of them victims of the fighting for Seoul.

Another source, who declined to be identified, said mass killings were not the work of North Koreans alone. He said the number of non-combatants slain by both the communist police and South Korean soldiers probably would total several tens of thousands in all South Korea.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported from Kunsan, west coast port, that a survivor told United Nations investigators 2,000 South Koreans were killed at Chongju.

Method of Trial by Courts

One source said "people's courts" in Seoul were organized hastily and in operation within 10 days after communist occupation of the capital June 28. He said political prisoners were "tried" this way:

The prisoners were marched to the balcony of the people's theatre building. The charges were read and the crowd below was asked: "Guilty or not guilty?"

He said executions followed invariably.

Asked for comment as to whether South Korean authorities executed political prisoners, Lee said some reformed communists were executed for returning to the communist banner after the invasion of the Republic.

One responsible source said that, early in July, South Koreans killed 1,800 persons at Taejon and that there were reports of political executions in other South Korean cities. None has been confirmed officially.

At Kunsan, U. S. army investigators, who found about 800 bodies in a mass grave late yesterday, reported many of the victims were shot.

At the village of Chungyong, southern suburb of Kunsan, survivors told U. N. investigators yesterday that pro-communist South Koreans stabbed 82 South Koreans dead with bamboo spears Monday and fled into the hills.

Permits Issued For September Total $323,275

Topped by two commercial permits totalling $284,000, building permits issued at the city hall during September soared to $323,275 for the month, it was announced yesterday by city building inspector Jack W. Holley.

The biggest single item on the month's building list was the permit for $150,000 for the construction of the new Loblaw store on Pinnacle Street, while the permit for the new Royal Bank on Front Street ran a close second at $134,000.

There were 28 permits issued, four of them being for new dwellings. Other permits issued were as follows:

Doug Moxam, garage, 67 Lingham, $350; Mrs. S. Pointer, alterations, 81 Church, $100; Floyd Morden, bungalow, Oriole Park Ave., $7,500; H. Booth, alterations, 47 Yeomans, $1,000; W. A. Holway, bungalow, 21 Green Lawn Ave., $7,500; Frank Duclos, alterations, $600; Chas. Demorest, dwelling, 95 Purdy, $5,250; Miss Madeline Kennedy, porch, 42 Herchimer, $250; Miss Emily White, alterations, 38 Octavia, $100; Veteo Valasios, new shingles, 27 Station, $100; Swifts Canadian Company, alterations, Station, $9,000; Belleville Utilities, repairs, Church St., $2,000; D. J. Kleinsteuber, garage, 56 Boswell, $800; Mrs. Oliver, shingles, 9 South Park, $250; S. McCrory, Bateman Motors, addition, $5,800; Mr. Donaldson, shingles, 14 Evans, $100; Robt. Orr, garage alterations, Benjamin, $100; H. Bateman, new front at Crystal Hotel, $2,000; J. T. Lynch, shingles, 363 Bleecker, $150; J. S. Gould, garage, 8 Holloway; Bob McInroy, alterations, $50; George Keegan, cottage, 26 Elmer, $3,000.

Pelvis Fractured When Truck Overturns

Condition of Jim Sopha, 71 Pinnacle Street, in hospital since Friday when he was injured in a highway accident on the Rednersville Road, is but slightly improved it was stated today by his wife.

Mr. Sopha suffered a fractured pelvis when he was pinned under the truck on which he was riding as helper.

The accident occurred when Wesley Pringle, driver of the truck lost control of his vehicle on a curve on the Carrying Place-Rednersville road. Mr. Sopha is believed to have jumped as the truck started to overturn and was pinned in the door of the truck.

Pringle was also admitted to hospital following the accident, but has now been permitted to return to his home.

WILL DOCTOR PARTRIDGE

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Oct. 4 — (CP) — With the partridge season only a couple of days off, one bird found the right haven when it headed for the garden of a local doctor yesterday. Dr. Eugene Charbonneau said he would do his best for the bird, whose legs seemed to be paralyzed.

Nfld. Legislator Is Expelled By Smallwood

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 4—(CP)—Premier Joseph Smallwood today expelled Samuel Drover, member of the Newfoundland legislature for White Bay, from the Liberal party for "an inexcusable violation of party discipline."

In a statement, Mr. Smallwood said "as a result of statements publicly made by Mr. Samuel Drover. . . I have to announce that I can no longer accept him as a member of the Liberal party."

The first hint of intra-party strife in Canada's newest legislature came last night when Mr. Drover charged the government with "gross neglect" of his district, on the eastern side of Newfoundland's northern peninsula.

Premier Smallwood immediately expelled the member from the party but later ordered the expulsion statement killed when Mr. Drover retracted his remarks.

It is expected that Mr. Drover now will sit as an Independent in the 28-member house. Party standings before today's development were: Liberals, 22; Progressive Conservatives, five, Independent, one.

American Marines remained in captured Uijongbu, 20 miles south of the border in the west coastal area.

Make Night Raids

Other American forces on the northwestern edge of Kumpo peninsula northwest of Seoul, are within 15 miles of parallel 38.

Throughout South Korea, allied forces pressed mop-up operations against many roving bands of red Koreans.

Villagers reported the bands, ranging from 10 to 1,000 troops, are making night raids for food.

Investigators discovered an increasing number of massacres by fleeing reds. Known victims already number into untold thousands. Col. Francis E. Gillette said he has made photographs of a "red Buchenwald" 36 miles east of Seoul where 700 Korean civilians including children were executed.

The bag of red Korean prisoners was mounting. MacArthur's headquarters estimated that more than 25,000 have been captured during the war. A total of 4,166 prisoners was reported during the last 24 hours.

B.C.I. Juniors Easily Defeat O.S.D. by 27-1

By DON DOLAN

Tuesday afternoon at O.S.D. field the B.C.I. Juniors won their first game of the season as they smashed their way to a convincing 27-1 victory over O.S.D.

The B.C.I. squad, headed by Bill Philp, scored ten points in the first quarter and were never threatened during the remainder of the game. After a Philp to Farmer pass carried the ball deep into O.S.D. territory, Adamson, a B.C.I. middle, plunged over for a touchdown. B.C.I. scored again before the end of the first period as John Hagerman carried the pigskin into pay dirt. The O.S.D. team paced by Gravelle, Beaulne and McCrindle put up a stubborn battle and came very close to scoring but whenever they appeared headed for a touchdown the B.C.I. line would stand up strongly and force them back.

O.S.D. scored its only point early in the second quarter when McCrindle boomed a tremendous punt over the deadline. Philp put B.C.I. further in front when he scored a touchdown on a quarterback sneak. Philp also converted. The O.S.D. rallied to hold the Collegians off for the remainder of the half. Half time score B.C.I. 16, O.S.D. 1.

Take Offensive

As the second half began B.C.I. again took to the offensive. Within a matter of moments, Philp passed to Page, a lanky end, who outran the O.S.D. defenders into the end zone. Once again Philp converted to give B.C.I. a 21-1 lead. O.S.D. grabbed the kick-off and began a march up the field. Gravelle carried the ball for O.S.D. on nearly every play and ripped off plenty of long gains. However, as they were penetrating into the B.C.I. territory, someone fumbled and B.C.I. recovered. Then came the play of the game. Philp, the B.C.I. quarter, faded back and threw a pass. Down the field, George Farmer was running for all he was worth to try to get the ball. It appeared that he could not get it but at the last moment Farmer made a great play as he dove and caught the ball inches above the ground. Then after Burroughs made a great run to the 5-yard line, Moore went over for another B.C.I. touchdown. The two teams played close football for the remainder of the contest and no further scoring resulted.

Gravelle made many great runs in a losing cause, while Beaulne and McCrindle played heads-up football for O.S.D.

Philp Paces Win

Bill Philp scored one touchdown, passed for two others and kicked two converts to pace B.C.I. to victory. Lawrence Moore, John Hagerman, Bruce Nickle and Ken Burroughs carried the brunt of the attack for the winners.

One of the outstanding features of the game was the tremendous kicking by Bruce Nickle of B.C.I. On most of his kick-offs Nickle was booting that ball around 55 yards.

Lineups:

O.S.D.—Ends, DeRose, Renout; middles, Heppner, Denomme; insides, Munroe, Felker; centre, Wilson; flying wing, Klym; quarter, Beaulne; halves, Gravelle, Perreault, McCrindle; subs, Elliott Harris, Micetick.

Steel Industry Faces Wage Price Increase

New York, Oct. 4 (AP) —The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today "it looked certain that the steel industry faced a wage increase and a price increase."

Union leaders are expected to reject a five-cent or six-cent company offer, the publication says, adding that the large steel firms have set that figure as the maximum they can offer without raising steel prices.

"If labor wins a husky increase steel prices might rise as much as $6 to $8 a ton," the Iron Age said.

Demand for steel products is still at high tide, the paper says, and "steel is in for a hectic period unsurpassed since 1940."

Steelmaking scrap prices are generally holding, the paper says but a strong spurt in foundry business has forced cast iron scrap higher in most markets.

'Miss Fertility' Hidden Beneath Sheet of Canvas

Santa Fe, N.M. Oct. 4—(AP)—This city of endless art controversies had a new one on its hands today—"Miss Fertility".

Right now, "Miss Fertility," a bas relief sculptured panel, is hidden under a sheet of canvas pending a decision on the question:

Is she really art or is the brooding figure just a representation of a nude woman in a position too suggestive for public display in the new state capital addition?

And who's going to decide?

Governor Thomas J. Mabry, checked the question right back to Williard Kruger, head of the architectural firm which designed the addition. Kruger said he will ask a panel of Santa Fe artists to determine the question—"if it can be determined."

The controversy developed after Rev. Robert J. Brown, Baptist pastor, protested the work was not suitable for display on a public building.

The sculptor, young, bearded William Longley, meanwhile, has not made up his mind whether to "get sore about the whole thing or not."

Belleville Boy Tells of Trip To Hawaii

Mrs. V. M. Spafford, 42½ Bridge Street East, has received a letter from her son Jerry who is in the U. S. merchant navy. He relates some incidents of the visit to Honolulu on the S. S. Hawaiian Educator.

During the Second World War he served with the Canadian Merchant Navy.

Of the recent trip to the Pacific he says:—

"S. S. Hawaiian Educator,
"Clarke and Cooke, Limited.
Pier 4 Honolulu.

"Left Honolulu (Isle Oahu) at two p. m. midst a flurry of departure and arrived at Hilo (Isle of Hawaii) at six p. m. Left Hilo and in another hour will tie up at Port Allen (Isle of Ksui).

"I suppose that with such a short stay at Hilo, we saw very little of it. Wrong. We rented a car and Mauna Loa being too far and virtually unapproachable we explored the craters of one of her cousins — even crawling down into one to the horror of the Jap driver. We also trekked through a thousand foot lava tube (Thurston tube) with our flashlights puny miles in the eerie, dripping darkness. The highlight of this is when you emerge into a tiny crater luxuriant with orchids, ferns and various unknown fauna. Upon leaving the fairylike crater choked with tropical flora and fauna and rendered completely unreal by myriads of tall and very lanky poa trees whose silvery trunks catch the sunlight and shadows in a shifting panorama. I felt as if I had been drawn into the scene of one of those psychological movies. We took some pictures. We saw many other craters, some two and a half miles across and also the Kau desert, immense cane (sugar) plantations, orchid farms and so forth. We topped the day off with lau lau and rice port (beef and fish cloaked within several layers of huge tea leaves) pol and cake. Then we returned to the little volcano brewing on the ship and aggravated by our absence which held up departure activities.

"I don't rememben if I told you or not, but there was another dance at the club with an influx of Chinese girls, besides the regular Japanese and Koreans."

ONTARIO'S 1950 CROPS

One billion and a quarter dollars is the estimate placed on the crops of Ontario during the present year — a mark never before reached.

Such a harvest is not only a tribute to the wealth of the soil of Canada but the faith and tireless industry of those responsible for this addition of agricultural wealth to the nation's riches.

When the season's crops amount to $1,500,000,000, there must necessarily be a big jump in other production during some years. During this year this new wealth in agriculture is about $200,000,000. The very conception of this staggers the imagination. Into it has gone the work of very many thousands of persons. Not only the physical labor, but the planning is something about which Canadians must be proud. Surely Canadian people can be called industrious.

Agricultural Minister Thomas L. Kennedy in his comments upon the success of the growing year of 1950 refers to the importance of the oats and hay crops and then points to the value of the pasture lands. The wealth these bring in he calls "one of the most important and valuable assets we have, though a lot of peopple do not realize it."

The animal industry has played no small part in this impressive harvest of crops. He tells of the shipment of about $40,000,000 worth of cattle sold out of the Province from January to September this year. The beef and dairy cattle have been paying well.

Again he speaks in millions as he points to the magnitude of the swine industry. "Canada has about 3,000,000 pigs at $45 each. It runs into a lot of money," he says.

Never has the hen been maligned for she never deserved it. The poultry industry stands before the nation as one of the great industries, one that really stirs the imagination. One has only to think of the value of one egg is nutriment and its great part in feeding human beings in order to realize that this great industry has meant endless labor on the part of the farmers and their wives to maintain the large flocks which are capable of producing so great an income for the Dominion.

It is not hard to believe that the poultry business is in a class among the great businesses. It is a mere matter of $80,000,000 to $90,000,000 which goes into this industry, that's all. But that's a lot of money.

Then there are other crops which the soil of Canada produces. Tobacco alone will be worth $50,000,000 to the Dominion this year.

As the Minister pointed out the secret is that Canada has not one industry only in agriculture — there are many.

Meeting this variety of demand Ontario farmers have done their part well, having met the requirements of these great markets in hard work and tireless industry.

This is a brief story of a manifold industry, a great industry, one of the foundation industries of a nation. Then there are all the other numerous industries which add their wealth to the Dominion's financial stature and importance.

SMALLER CUTS OF PIE

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

At a meeting of a large and representative group of Port Arthur business men there was discussion about the cutting of pies. The particular point was whether pies should be cut and served in pieces that represent one sixth or one eighth of the whole.

It is only a few years ago that pies were cut uniformly in six pieces only. But lately there has appeared a strong tendency to make it eight. So, while wage-earners everywhere are looking for a bigger share of the pie of industrial production, diners in hotels and restaurants have been getting, here and there, smaller pieces of their favorite blueberry or apple preparations.

The situation is especially important when the tourists are coming with the expectation of enjoying some of the delectable blueberries for which this district is justly famous. It is not going to do the tourist trade any good if travellers have to go home to tell that they were permitted only to sample the kind of blueberry pies they make in Port Arthur. On account of the tourist trade falling off this year to the accompaniment of bad weather and other causes, it is too much that the situation should be aggravated by small pieces of blueberry pie.

One thing, of course, is that husbands, giving up their accustomed noon-day fraternizations, are more likely to go home where the pie is not only made to their taste but where it is served in pieces not smaller than one sixth. But there is danger even there. Wives are suspectible to practices initiated in downtown areas and, if they too start serving samples only, that will be a calamity.

It is fervently to be hoped that the discussion among business men of this important matter will be productive of good results and that it will not be necessary to resort to any kind of epicurean strike to keep pie portions up to traditional standard.

There is no strength in unbelief. Even the unbelief of what is false, is no source of might.

JUST FOLKS

THE NARROW LIFE

He saw but little beauty here.
To gaze he seldom slowed his pace.
The price of rapture seemed too dear.
His heart was in the market place.

The moon and stars were common things.
The flowers for women folk were meant.
A bird with gayly colored wings
Unnoticed by his window went.

Minutes were precious. None he found
To spend to hear a cardinal sing.
Unto his ear the sweetest sound
Was this: to hear the cash box ring.

He was successful in his way.
Of that assurance men will give,
But scorning beauty, night and day,
Seems such a narrow way to live.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Program For Today

The longer I live the more do I appreciate the birth of a new day. Its newness, its promise and its opportunity. Actually each new day is a miracle. We come into its light after hours of unconsciousness in sleep. And no matter whether this new day is one of sunshine, shadow or rain, it's a day—one never to come our way again.

So let us welcome each one of these days of ours—today—and arrange a program to make it as notable as we can. We do not bother, regret, or remember the yesterdays, for they have gone, and we are through with them. Today is the all important one. We need have no worry of tomorrow, either, for that will take care of tself, if we live out this day with credit, to ourselves.

Oh, the glory of each new day! Experience waiting at its door, ready to enrich us, to gve us growth and teach us something new Why shouldn't we plan it out to the end? How important to make this day of ours eventful! We all have our work, but how greatly it can be spiced by small variations—a kindness performed, encouragement to someone in need of it, or a nice surprise sent upon its way to an almost forgotten friend.

Upon awakening we can easly formulate our in mind our program for the day, filling in the vacant places of time, as the day unfolds. A grand experience is to at least one thng each day that you have long planned to do, but never have! A friend gave me a rather shabby book, though a famous one that I had always planned to read. I picked it up one day, thinking that I would give it away, but decided to read it first. I did—and it was such a joy! Now I have given it away with double interest and satisfaction.

Each day we ought to do something that will live in some manner after our day is over—something left behind for someone else. In a larger measure than we suspect we hide away in the lives of others and so increase our kinship with all mankind.

Strength for the Day

Seeing With The Eyes of God

Benjamin Franklin was one of the greatest men our country has produced. His personal conduct, however—as his autobiography amply discloses—left much to be desired. The good old doctor behaved himself a little better as he grew older, but he was never afflicted with any too much piety. He was shrewd, sensible in many respects, gifted with a rare penetration of mind and possessing a capacity for the practical which amounted to genious.

When he came to the end of his life and looked back over the years, Franklin decided that his life was like a book with a few mistakes here and there, but nothing terribly serious. He took the attitude that if he could live over again, he would like to have his life issued in an enlarged and more beautiful edition, with certain mistakes carefully noted and corrected.

Franklin was the ancestor of that great mass of our fellow countrymen today who believe that their lives are not so bad after all. They might be better here and there, and a few minor vices might profitably be corrected. But on the whole, life as they live it is pretty satisfactory.

Against such an attitude the Bible from beginning to end makes continuous and firm protest. It bids us to be realistic with the eyes of God.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

LACQUERING THE LILY

Three years ago Edith Piaf stepped out on the stage of a midtown theatre and for the best part of an hour hypnotized a hep Broadway audience with her gutty little songs of love and larceny in the back alleys of Paris. As I remember it, she was wearing a bleak and bedraggled dress which showed quite a bit of her spindly legs, and her mop of black hair looked like something a self-respecting pussycat would not drag in. Nevertheless, there was something endearing and authentic about this chanteuse from the Montemartre slums, and though everything she did was appallingly untheatrical, by some emotional chemistry it became great theatre. And when she finally begged off, no one in the housed bravoed louder than I.

A couple of weeks ago I heard Miss Piaf sing again, this time at the opening of Club Versailles, and though her songs and mannerisms were pretty much the same I found myself applauding respectfully rather than rambunctiously. She was still the great performer - - expert, sure of every gesture and inflection—but it seemed to me that a lot of heat and heart had gone out of her act. And as I walked home that night I couldn't help but wonder what was missing in her performance that had been there before.

Well, I've been mulling it a bit and I don't think anything is missing. The trouble, as I see it, is that something has been added—several things as a matter of fact. And on the offchance that this talented lady is too close to the forest to see the cheese, I'd like to tell her what these things are.

To begin with, the dowdy little dress has been replaced by a snappy black creation which looks as if it might have come from the drawing room of Jacques Fath. It's easy, of course, to understand how this happened—Miss Piaf is now earning several thousand dollars a week and can afford a lot of glad rags. But, in one man's opinion, the glad rags on her are as wrong as top hat and tails would be on Ed Wynn.

Next her hair: the memorable trademark which set her apart from the rest of the other singers is gone. Virtually all the character has been combed and coiffed away, and as a result a lot of the drama has gone out of the face beneath it - - just about what would happen to Chaplin if he shaved off his mustache or to Durante if he had a schnozz-bob.

The same petrifying treatment has been applied to Miss Piaf's orchestrations, choral backgrounds and lighting, and the end result is that one can no longer see the gamin for the glamor. In other words, in sacrificing naturalness for window dressing, Edith—or those who handle her - - has made the same mistake which has lessened the effectiveness of many a fine performer.

Of course Miss Piaf might argue with some logic that I ought to hold my tongue and typewriter, seeing as how she's packing 'm in at the Versailles. Well my comeback to that one is simple: She was packing 'em in before she added the gloss, and was doing it with artistry rather than abracadabra.

I hope this little lady doesn't get me wrong - - in my book she's still one of our top performers. I doubt, however, whether she's going to hit me where I cheer again until she scrapes off the varnish and goes back to being the spindly-legged song singer that Maurice Chevalier discovered in a two-franc bistro.

The talented Piaf is about five feet tall and, to make a small joke it seems downright silly to guild the Lilliution

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young lady of my acquaintance fell head over heels this past summer for a dashing gentleman from the South. He came from Virginia, Georgia or one of these romantic states.

He was tall, dark and handsome, and had a ravishing drawl. He was a college graduate, a superb water skier, dressed like next week's New Yorker ads, smoked a pipe.

He invited my young friend out to dinner and dancing at Canada's best hotel. It was all going like a book or a movie.

Naturally he got the best table. And naturally, he sat the young lady down to it as if she were Ava Gardner.

He ordered the dinner with all the assurance that only a Southern gentleman would have with regard to what a lady would like to eat.

The soup came.

He spooned up a first mouthful.

It was savagely hot.

All in one movement — into his mouth and out—he squirted the blazing hot soup right back into his soup plate.

"Only a fool," said he easily, "would have swallowed that."

And went right on with the conversation, as if soup-squirting were the Ritz.

"And do you know," says the young lady, "I lost all interest in him that very instant!"

I have used all my persuasive talents in trying to induce that young lady to go right back and get after her Southern young gentleman without an instant's delay. I have counselled her to try to get her family to take her for a motor trip on the coming American Thanksgiving, or at Christmas, at the latest, so that she can see him on his home ground in the South. I have begged her to write him. For I didn't like the first part of him at all; the tall, dark and handsome, the water skiing, the pipe.

But oh, boy, that soup-squirting, and the comment following it, through a quotation from Dr. Johnson, mark him out as a Man after any man's heart.

Mackenzie's Column: Russian Plan Obvious Attempt 'To Save Face'

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Soviet Bloc's Korean peace plan, as laid before the United Nations, is an obvious attempt to save communist North Korea from further military disaster.

Indeed Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, one of Russia's most brilliant legal minds, must have had tongue in cheek as he presented his argument.

His seven-point program had as its central point a demand for immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of American and all other foreign troops from Korea.

Even while Vishinsky spoke, South Korean troops were heading towards the Manchurian border in pursuit of routed North Korean forces.

Australia's Foreign Affairs Secretary, Percy Spender, promptly called the turn on this proposal. In his outspoken fashion he declared:

"The object of this (A. U. N. withdrawal), of course, is to create a vacuum. By whom would this be filled? . . . I do not think we were all born yesterday and the answer to this question must be clear enough."

By curious coincidence, while this Russian proposal was being argued at Lake Success, Allied warplanes were pounding heavy traffic columns moving southward on North Korea from the direction of China's Manchurian border. These columns caused urgent conferences in U. N. military circles, but there was no announcement to identify the 'mysterious' contingents.

May Send Help

That leaves it for you and me to wonder if Manchurian forces may be moving to the rescue of the Korean reds. While there has been no indication that either Russia or China intends to intervene directly in the military sense, this wouldn't preclude an under-cover bolstering of the North Korean Army with some of their brothers from the north.

In advancing the Soviet proposal, Vishinsky rejected the 8-power project for a united and independent Korea.

The Soviet position isn't difficult to understand. The sweeping success of the United Nations intervention in Korea has caused communism a serious loss of face — and that is a mighty important item in Asia. This red setback is likely to encourage resistance among other Asiatic countries which lie in the path of the communist steam roller.

JUSTICE WITHDRAWS

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) — Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of the Supreme Court of Ontario announced Tuesday his withdrawal from a conciliation board named to deal with a contract wages dispute between the Teamsters Union (AFL) and the Ontario Automotive Transport Association.

He gave no reason for his withdrawal, but it was believed to be due to recent criticism of judges acting as conciliators in labor-management disputes. The Canadian Bar Association at its meeting in Washington last month went on record as opposing the practice.

AIR CONDITIONING

In the season of summer heat, many toy with the idea of air conditioning for home or office.

Modern air conditioning is a boon to health and it does not cause any known disease or predisposition to any known disease.

The idea that stepping into an air conditioned room suddenly "chills" one and in that manner predisposes to "colds" or other vaguely named respiratory disease, is one for the birds.

The idea that stepping from a nice, air conditioned room into the outer heat predisposes one to logos on the bogos or the galloping epizootic is another one for man's feathered friends.

In the first instance, the result is intense gratification and a renewed capacity for work. In the latter, it is just dog-goned unpleasant, period. Unpleasant as it might be it is nevertheless harmless. One way to avoid the latter is to stay with the former.

So-called "room coolers" for hospital use are just as essential to a patient's welfare and comfort as the complicated gadgets which condition the operating rooms.

Imagine, all of you who might face the possibility of having a baby, the discomfort involved in going through labor in a room where the temperature is 100 and the humidity is high. Compare it to the situation in a room where the temperature is 70 degrees and the humidity is low.

Compare the ordeal of undergoing a major surgical operation in a hot humid room with that involved in an air conditioned room. Consideration of these things in advance should be sufficent to lead to the demand that air conditioning be available to hospitalized patients during the heat of the summer.

A surgeon can do better work in an air conditioned operating room. The possibility of unobserved perspiration falling from the surgeon's face into the wound is minimized. The patient is subjected to far less stress who is able to avoid extreme heat and humidity while undergoing surgery.

Some of the old-school, sweat and lather surgeons have been heard to mumble in their masks about "neuritis" developing in patients who are operated upon and recover in air conditioned rooms. This muttering is about as scientific as the "laudable pus" concept of long ago.

Experiences gained in the tropics during the war show that shock is much more menacing as a complication of surgery, when heat and humidity is high.

The "draft" emanating from a cooling device is no more menacing to a patient's welfare than the "draft" wafting down the well-known shady lane in the summer's heat.

The idea that air conditioning "ain't healthy" is sounded here and there by totally uninformed persons. If the remarks of such persons are to be considered at all, they should be considered in the light of the fact that both sick and healthy people are to be found in every type of climate.

To the extent that a person's personal comfort is extended in extreme climatic conditions, his health in general is correspondingly benefited.

Have it as you please—but you take me—I go for air conditioning

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sell it to the Ragman

You certainly owe your correspondent G. H. an apology. He or she is quite right, there is no such word as "preventative" in the English language, nor can you find it in "N. Webster's book." There is no "a" in the word preventive. (J. O.)

Answer—Pile your copy of the dictionary on the one G. H. is selling the ragman. My New International assures me there is such a word—preventative, noun.

Bronchiectasis

Please explain the nature and cause of chronic bronchiectasis. (A. D.)

Answer—The word means dilatation (careful, now, J. O.) of bronchial tube or tubes. Advice about it is given in Call it C-R-I, booklet about respiratory diseases (for copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope). The ballooning or cavity is a gradual development consequent to some suppurative infection of long standing—such as chronic sinusitis in childhood or youth. Bronchiectatic cavities occur most frequently in the lower left side—the factor of gravity has considerable importance. Posture, as explained in the booklet, is therefore an essential part of treatment in every case. Inverted or partially inverted posture is beneficial in most cases of chronic bronchitis or "winter cough", whether there is evidence of bronchiectasis or not. If too descrepit to roll somersaults, stand on head or hang by knees, at least lie for a few minutes each morning with forearms on floor and body on bed.

New Long Distance Service Being Planned R.H. Hall Tells Members of Kiwanis Club

Long distance calls will be completed automatically within few seconds under a new long distance service now being planned, R. H. Hall, Bell Telephone lecture supervisor, of Montreal, told the Belleville Kiwanis Club in an address at the regular luncheon meetnig at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday.

With the aid of energized display equipment, Mr. Hall demonstrated the progress that has been achieved in developing switches and relays, and revealed that the electrical relays most recently perfected will be used to seek out a free circuit to the out-of-town point being called and connect the calling party with the desired number automatically.

At present about one minute and a half on the average elapses between the time the telephone receiver is lifted and the connection made with the called number in the other community; in the future this time will be reduced markedly by the adoption of the new system, which is already in use in a few localities in the company's territory in Ontario and Quebec.

R. H. Hall, Bell Telephone lecture supervisor, of Montreal, who demonstrated recent developments in telephony in a talk before the Belleville Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

Shows How Calls Routed

By means of electrical apparatus, Mr. Hall showed how long distance calls are routed to the various points in the Pell Telephone long distance network. He explained that in some instances when direct circuits are not available to distant points, alternative routes are used to make the connection. Though this sometimes involved many more miles of message transmission, the extra time absorbed is usually negligible, because of modern switching equipment. Under the new system the switches will mechanically seek out the quickest available route within a few seconds.

"Calls over Bell Telephone long distance lines today are three-and-a-half times the daily average of 10 years ago," the speaker said. "In 1940 we handled about 67,000 long distance calls, but today the number of long distance calls being placed daily by customers in our territory has jumped to over 240,000." When delays sometimes occur it is due to the unprecedented demand for telephone service and the increase in the number of long distance calls causing congestion on the lines.

Demonstrate With Switch

Mr. Hall demonstrated the theory of switching by a simple electric light switch. The same electric power, which turns on the light is the basic tool enabling the voice to be carried over telephone lines. The telephone instrument itself is a type of switch. Sounds hit a highly sensitive piece of metal within the instrument which turns on and off a very small electrical current in proportion to the sound waves.

Early types of switches used in the telephone business were illustrated and the development of switching apparatus demonstrated by various models. The latest development, known as the micro-switch relay, uses only one fortieth of the electrical energy used by the earlier types, and operates more efficiently and accurately. In appearance it resembles a tube in a radio set.

"You can be assured that our engineers, our planners, all the people concerned, are striving constantly to improve long distance service," Mr. Hall said. "New lines are being installed, new equipment is going into operation. New devices and new methods are being developed. Business and, indeed, all society have benefited and will continue to benefit from the never-ceasing search for better and quicker means of telephone communication.

Taylor Franklin, President, presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers as song leader. Phil Huddleston presided at the piano and Claude Tice collected several fines. The thanks of the club was expressed to Tom Carruthers and Harold Craig for the fine party at the Country Club on Wednesday last.

The Public Affairs Committee will sponsor a radio program on October 9th from 9.00-9.15 p.m. on the affairs of the club. Jack Wood and Herbert Honeychurch will be the speakers. A number of Kiwanians journeyed to Lindsay last night to take part in the "Ladies Night" sponsored by the Lindsay Club. International President, Don Morton, was the special speaker. Taylor Franklin, Norman Edwards, Jack Bonn and Abe Mazer with their wives made the journey north. Helen Grant, xylophone artist, accompanied the party and gave a number of selections.

The speaker was introduced by Bud Punchard and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Charles Leslie. The special prize of the day was won by Ron Keele and the attendance prize donated by Don Stanton was won by Harold Carruthers.

QUEBEC TO GIVE AID

Quebec, Oct. 4 — (CP)—Premier Duplessis announced today that a special session of the Quebec Legislature will open Nov. 8 to deal primarily with loans for the fire-ravished communities of Rimouski and Cabano.

Mr. Duplessis said the session will authorize municipal loans by the communities and other special legislation designed to speed up construction in those areas.

15-Year-Old Boy Must Stand Trial On Murder Count

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Oct. 4 — (AP)—Husky, 15-year-old Rodney McRae must stand trial as an adult for the brutal sex slaying of little Joey Housey.

While the youth's mother looked on tearfully and his lawyer uncle pleaded for a delay in legal proceedings, probate judge Joseph V. Trombley waived jurisdiction after a brief hearing Tuesday.

"I'm not guilty," the youth said, his voice barely audible.

Judge Trombley ruled: "This is an adult crime, and he should be punished for it as an adult."

Prosecutor Fred Nicholson asked the court to waive jurisdiction over the youth so a first-degree murder charge could be brought.

Victim of the slaying was eight-year-old Joey Housey, whose slashed body was found in a hastily-dug grave near his St. Clair Shores home Sept. 23.

Young McRae was arrested early Sunday at Sarnia, Ont., after fleeing in a stolen motor boat through Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River. He waived extradition proceedings after his arrest and agreed to return to the U.S.

May Charge Parents

Nicholson also indicated he would ask legal action against Rodney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McRae, if it were found they knew earlier of their son's guilt and failed to report it to police.

George B. Hubbard lawyer for the McRae boy, demanded a full probate court hearing in the case and Judge Thomas V. Trombley brought the youth into court to testify.

Rodney has insisted he is "all hazy" about the slaying of Joey Sept. 9, and told police only that he had "an urge to kill." Lie detector tests Monday bore out his confession, state police said, but proved "inconclusive" as to whether he had attacked the boy sexually. Such an attack was made, an inquest showed shortly after Joey's body was found.

St. Clair Shores Police Chief Harvey E. Champine and State Police Captain Howard Seller indicated they would oppose prosecution of young McRae's parents because "they have given us co-operation."

"We are grateful for that and sympathetic toward them," Seller said. "We feel they were as victimized as society and can hardly be blamed for keeping their secret."

Now! Proof that BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING
COLGATE DENTAL CREAM
HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!

Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

2 Years' research by
proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

FURTHER PROOF
FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN
Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.
The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay!... Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! ... 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! ... The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

HELP YOUR CHILDREN
AVOID TOOTH DECAY!
Insist that your children always brush their teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream. They'll love Colgate's delicious double-minty flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly.

CLEANS YOUR BREATH
AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH!
Scientific tests prove that in 7 out of 10 cases, Colgate's instantly stops bad breath that originates in the mouth! Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stops stagnant saliva odors—removes the cause of much bad breath!

WEDDINGS

LONEY—CALVERT

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday evening, October 2, at Bayside parsonage, Trent Road, when the Reverend A. C. McCallum united in holy matrimony, Agnes Rosalind Fern, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Calvert, Frankford Road, Sidney township, to Ralph Earl Loney, son of Mrs. Mary P. Loney, and the late Wilbert E. Loney, of Belleville, Ont. The ceremony was performed in the sitting room beneath bridal decorations, and was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rushlow, brother-in-law and sister of the groom.

The bride was attired in Loganberry red dress with navy accessories, while the bridesmaid, wore a street-length dark blue taffeta dress with hat to match.

The newly wedded couple left on a short honeymoon to points west and upon their return will take up residence in Sidney township.

McCURDY—HOLLAND

Before a setting of evergreens and Autumn flowers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Holland, Stirling, on Saturday, September 23, at two o'clock, their only daughter, Iris Beverly, became the bride of Ward Alexander, son of Mrs. Alex. McCurdy and the late Mr. McCurdy. Rev. A. E. Baker officiated.

Before the ceremony Miss Joan McCurdy, sister of the groom, sang, "I'll Walk Beside You", with Miss Eleanore Bush providing the wedding music. Each wore floor-length gowns of yellow and mauve respectively.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her floor-length gown of white brocaded nylon over nylon taffeta, featuring nylon yoke, with a ruffled bertha collar and molded bodice, full gathered skirt and matching mittens. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a seed pearl and sequin halo. She carried a bouquet of red roses tied with a white satin ribbon. Her only ornament was a ruby pendant and matching earrings, a gift of the groom.

Her only attendant, Miss Mary Chambers, Stirling, was gowned in pink brocaded taffeta fashioned with full tiered skirt and molded bodice with short puffed sleeves and round neckline and matching mittens and halo. She carried a fan-shaped nosegay of pink roses and white gladioli flowerlets.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Rayburn Holland, brother of the bride.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received her guests, wearing a dress of navy blue and had a corsage of cream roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also chose navy blue dress and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling to Ottawa and Algonquin Park, the bride chose a navy gabardine suit with navy accessories and a corsage white Amazon lilies and fleur-d-amour.

SELKIRK—CONLEY

With white gladioli and ferns decorating the altar in All Saints' Anglican Church, Peterborough, on Saturday, September 23, Miss Lenore (Lee) Conley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Conley, Peterborough, (formerly of Stirling), became the bride of Mr. Neil R. Selkirk, son of Mrs. Clifford Selkirk and the late Mr. Selkirk, Peterborough. Rev. W. E. Kebblewhite officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white embossed organdy, made with drop shoulder line and yoke of sheer nylon, long tight sleeves with points over the hands, and skirt with bustle effect and a slight train. Her veil of illusion net was caught in a cap with white ostrich tips. She carried a bouquet of Sunset roses and bouvardia.

She was attended by Miss Jean Salisbury, of Stirling, as bridesmaid and Mrs. J. A. Morrison of Quebec City, as matron of honor, who wore gowns of gold slipper satin, styled on princess lines with off-the-shoulder neckline and they had matching gold mittens and hats of gold satin with ostrich plume trim. Each carried a bouquet of dark red gladioli.

Mr. Ernest Darling attended the groom, and the ushers were Messrs. Frank Conley and Albert Selkirk.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. J. C. Watkins and during the signing of the register. Mrs. J Morley sang "Because".

At the reception in the Club Paragon Mrs. Conley received her guests in a gown of dusky rose faille and a hat of black velvet. The groom's mother assisted dressed in hunter's green crepe with hat of matching velvet. Each wore a corsage of gardenias.

Leaving later for Quebec City and the United States, the bride was wearing a suit of navy velvet with hat to match and grey accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Selkirk will live at Monaghan Rd, Peterborough.

PREST—BARDY

On September 30, at 2:30 o'clock the marriage was solemnized at Holy Trinity Church, of Myrna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bardy, to Leslie, son of Mr. Nelson Prest, and the late Mrs. Prest, Belleville. The Rev. Earnest Caldwell performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with gladioli. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and lace with traditional wedding veil. She carried red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Evelyn Hill, of Syracuse, N.Y., was gowned in blue net with matching hat and carried pink roses.

The little flower girl, Carolyn Howard, cousin of the bride, was gowned in pink organdy with matching poke bonnet and carried a nosegay of pink roses and orchid poms.

The groomsman was Mr. Fred Grey, cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Cecil McCarthy played the wedding music.

The reception was held at the bride's home, 19 Emily Street, Belleville. Mrs. Bardy received wearing a grey gown with matching accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Prest will reside in Belleville.

Grandma Moses Is 'Grandmother Of Nation'

Cambridge, N.Y., Oct. 4. (AP)—Grandma Moses last night was acclaimed "Grandmother of the Nation" and she began worrying at once about her "150,000,000 grandchildren."

The bonneted little lady, whose primitive paintings have won her fame, ate turkey with Vermont's Governor Harold Arthur and nearly 300 other guests at the annual "Green Mountain Night". staged by Lions Club of Northeastern New York and Vermont.

They adopted a resolution proclaiming the 90-year-old artist grandmother of the United States.

Grandma—Mrs. Anna Mary Robertson, Moses—commented: "I'm getting to be as famous as Flying Saucers".

Evening Branch of Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church Sponsors Successful Bazaar

The Harvest Tea sale of handicrafts and homecooking sponsored by the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church, under the convenership of Mrs. C. Hayes and Mrs J. Hibbard, drew a large number of visitors on Tuesday afternoon in the Parish Hall.

The hall aglow with the colors of the Autumn leaves, sumac and maple, Fall flowers of every description and color and the fruit, vegetables and grain of the harvest were used effectively in decoration of the rooms.

The guests were met and welcomed by Mrs. J. Creeggan and Miss Frances Reid, president of the organization.

Preside Over Table

Presiding over the tea table, with its cloth of white linen and centrepiece of rust colored baby 'mums in a large crystal bowl, green candles in crystal candelabra which carried out the Autumn color scheme were Mrs. Earl Hickey, Mrs. Arthur Bateman, Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. D. Stewart.

Mrs. Everett Smith acted as tea room hostess. The small tables about the room were centred with tiny sheafs of grain in green holders and those who served were Mrs. G. O'Brien, convener; Mrs. J. Spencer, Mrs P. Burton, Mrs. E. Mossman, Mrs. F. O'Connor, Mrs. A. Bongard. Replenishing the plates of sandwiches and cookies were Mrs. F. Portlock, Mrs. C. Fuzzen, Mrs. R. Philp and Mrs. Mason. The tea services were replenished by Mrs. J. Hibbard and Mrs. A. Evans.

Homecooking Table

The homecooking table convened by Mrs. W. Edwards, assisted by Mrs. C. Musclow, Mrs. J. Milligan, Mrs. W. Lancaster and Mrs. D. Ellis had a great variety of such delicacies as cookies, cakes, pies, jellies and relishes.

In charge of the fine display of handicrafts including many knitted articles, aprons, luncheon cloths, towels, all beautifully hand-worked, were Mrs. A. Simpson, Mrs C. I. Reid and Mrs. M. Burley.

The "Touch and Take" table with its mysteriously wrapped parcels was soon sold out, Mrs. R. Rose and Mrs. K. Smith were conveners of this booth.

The Junior W.A. had a very attractive table of home made candy in dainty containers which were soon brought up by the eager shoppers.

Those who lent their assistance in the kitchen were convener Mrs. H. Ingram, Mrs. B. Smith and Mrs. L. Watson.

The treasurers for the successful event were Mrs. J. Cooke and Mrs. B. Wells.

Women's Activities

8TH BELLEVILLE LADIES' SCOUT AUXILIARY

The ladies of the 8th Belleville Scout Auxiliary held their first meeting of the season in Queen Mary School. Twelve members being present.

The treasurer's report was read and adopted. The sewing convener and social convener each gave her report. Mrs. Archer, membership convener, was permitted to be released from her ofice and Mrs. Lee agreed to take over her duties for the balance of the year.

Several items of business were discussed and it was agreed to give Mrs. Sinfield $5 with which to buy material for scarves.

This concluded the business portion of the meeting which was then turned over to Mrs. Enright program convener.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Goodman, assisted by Mrs. Lee.

CARMEL W.I.

The regular meeting of the Carmel W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. George Moorman. The resident, Mrs. C. Brintnell conducted the business part of the meeting and called on Mrs. M. Robinson to give the minutes and treasurer's report, also report on the communications. Members of the standing committee reported agriculture and Canadian industries. Mrs. M. Ross, citizenship and education, Mrs. J. Homan, historial research and current events, Mrs. F. Hicks, Miss M. Hicks reported for health giving an interesting paper on "sickness in the home."

The copper contest was discussed and it was decided to hand them in, to the leaders at each meeting.

Mrs. G. Moorman then took charge of the meeting and called on Mrs. C. Thompson for a reading "How the Elderly Family Man puts up a Picture." Mrs. W. Sills favored with a solo. Mrs. Moorman gave some hints in regard to home economics. Following this Mrs. O. Denyes, Belleville, and Mrs. Moorman gave a demonstration on preparing salad plates with four lovely ones on display. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Moorman and her assistants.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

Ivanhoe—The September meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. Benson. President, Mrs. Cliff Mitz opened the meeting with a poem.

Mrs. Geo. Wood group leader then took charge of program on Japan, reading a poem written by Kagawa.

Miss Cora Prest read the scripture lesson.

Mrs. Hugh MacMillan led in prayer for Japanese people and for ourselves to help these people.

Members took part in a test of "What we know about Japan." Mrs. Keith Bray told about the new strategy in Japan. Mrs. Jack Wickers told of conditions in churches of Japan after the war years. Mrs. Chas. Keeble explained the relief needs of Japan.

Mrs. MacMillan presented the new bookshelf presented to the auxiliary for reading. Mrs. Elmer Rollins gave thoguhts on the key word "Hope."

A letter was read by the president of appreciation for bale of clothing sent in July.

It was decided to quilt a crib quilt for Mrs. Bray at Mrs. Mitz's next meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Benson.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E Futcher

Copenhagen, Denmark.

Although the conference offici-lly closed last night, festivities lanned for us carry on through oday. At nine o'clock we all ather (hundreds of women again, [illegible]nish housewives come along) [illegible] courtyard at Christiansborg nd are off by busloads for a day's our of the Danish countryside nd the nearby castles.

The modern highway runs along he coast—much of it made highway at the water's edge. Each bus as a guide to point out points of nterest and we are all warned to tay together in the same party or the day to facilitate depar-ures. This stretch of highway is alled the "Danish Riviera" and ontains some of the finest resi-ences in the country. Our guide, loyal old Dane, relished telling ld stories of Danish bravery at he time of the German occupa-ion. When the war was over and erman troops wanted a way ome they were told "We didn't [illegible] you to come—you can walk [illegible]"—and they did just that—any of them tramping for miles oaded down with loot they had tolen and abandoned by their fficers. After all their effort in arrying heavy burdens the Eng-ish stripped them of it all when hey reached the border.

It is a beautiful day, really the est we've had since landing at Liverpool, and the Sound, between he Baltic and the North Sea is as lue as blue. All these residences have beautiful gardens. Many of them have small orchards and the trees are loaded down with apples, pears and plums — an unusually good season for fruit here. Everything is so tidy, neat and trim—the colors of the flowers especially vivid. We pass the ruins of a large hotel, occupied by German troops and burned before they left as a parting gesture of defiance. They are not yet wealthy enough to re-build—as building materials are at a premium. We see the coast line of Sweden across the blue waters that are dotted with white sails this beautiful morning. Our guide tells us that when the French tell them the authentic Riviera is much wider than theirs, the Danes reply, "yes, perhaps, but we can see another country from ours and you can't do that."

Fishing grounds are all along the way and fishing craft are pulled up alongside small wharfs. Nets are drying on the ground but the popular method seems to be hanging them from high poles in the brilliant sunlight. Homes of fishermen are all along the way, neat, stone houses, plastered over, many of them mellowed to a soft yellow. all with their trim gardens and red geraniums blooming in the windows. Beautiful forests abound, chiefly of beech with their grey-green trunks, the birch tree is the tree of Sweden, the fir of Norway and the beech tree of Denmark. The beech forests are carpeted in dead leaves and are so clean, not a trace of underbrush or fallen rotted trees. They come right out to the edge of the road and it is lovely to look up through them.

We came first to Elsinore Castle, famed for its part in Shakespeare's "Hamlet". We are taken out on the rampart and stand on the exact spot where Hamlet sees the ghost of his father. It was built by Frederick III and used to house soldiers but is now just a museum. We cross three different moats to reach the castle courtyard, passing through gate-ways in walls 50 feet in width—the whole forming an almost inpregnable fortress. In former years boats passing here had to stop to pay toll, as it is the narrowest place to Sweden, just 20 minutes crossing. The courtyard is of large cobble stones and it isn't hard to visualize it crowded with carriages and horse of a by-gone day. It is in this open courtyard that Shakespearian plays are presented each summer by different theatre groups. The chapel within the castle is particularly beautiful, heavily carved in blue and gold and dates back to 1584. The staircases are spiral and are all of stone continuously right on up to the high turrets. Some floors in the rooms are patterned in black and white stone squares and others are wide wooden boards scrubbed almost to pure white. The large banqueting hall is particularly interesting—you can imagine barons of old sitting around it. The room is huge—200 feet by 40 feet—with fireplaces at either end and beamed ceiling of one foot square timbers—like we use in our barns for support. The wall are 12 ft. thick and the windows are small panels, set in deep recesses in the walls Tapestries of unbelieveable beauty line the walls and I marvel as always at the colors and details brought out by the skill of women's hands.

We stop for lunch and are relieved to know they are prepared to handle such an enormous crowd, for we are all seated at once. The meal is excellent—hors d'oeuvres, loin roast of pork (brown potato balls again) and minced creamed spinach, a favorite vegetable in Denmark, topped off with Danish pastry and good coffee.

We go to Fredricksberg in the afternoon and of all the old castles and public buildings we've seen since visiting the old lands I believe it is most impressive and the treasures it contains of Danish culture are, beyond description. Even the ceilings of the huge room are carved and painted and the walls everywhere covered with gorgeous tapestries or priceless oil paintings. I never knew there was so much art in Denmark. The furniture, glass, stone, etc., was of every age and period. Our guide who understood his job, moved small pieces of carvings here and there in the heavy ornate desks, showing us secret hiding places. Portraits of all Danish kings and queens line the walls and the drawing room. The chapel here is especially beautiful—the Danish kings were all crowned here until 1840 when it was given up as coronations were so costly. It was started by Frederick II. in 1620, partly destroyed by fire in 1859, completed by Christian IV and dedicated as a museum in 1884. In the audience chamber of the king is the oldest elevator in the world, 300 years old, built in a corner of the room as the throne room just had one entrance and thus one exit—to get away from tiresome followers. The upholstered chair he sat in to be lowered to the floor below still stands in the shaft, dusty and faded, symbol of a monarch's ingenuity and his effort to escape from the boredom of court.

After a hasty dinner in Copenhagen we dressed for the opera—once more the guest of our Danish members at the Danish Royal Ballet. Overseas guests found that we had the best seats in the very glittering and imposing opera house with its four tiers of balconies. The King and Queen sat directly to the side of us, in the first balcony, in the Royal Box, signified by a large golden crown on its roof. They are very gracious, and smiled and bowed many times to the acclaim of the audience. We enjoyed the ballet, it was quite different to that we saw in Stockholm, not quite such poetry of motion, but cleverly done, and scenery was especially interesting, adding much to the portrayal of the story.

Our Canadian delegation gathered to bid goodbyes—for we were breaking up into different groups on Monday, some taking two, three or four day tours in Denmark and Ruth and I flying to Amsterdam Monday night for a hasty peak at Holland, then on to Paris, London and home.

I neglected to tell you that on the way back to Copenhagen from our tour our guide pointed out a large nest aloft a chimney, proof he said that the stories told by Hans Christian Andersen were really possible here. Also in another place we saw a pair of oxen ploughing at a very leisurely pace. Our guide hastened to tell us this is very unusual and that he is sure there isn't another pair in Denmark.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

When the ancient Hindus anointed brides with honey, the ceremony wasn't intended to make the brides sweet. Honey, it was thought, would chase away evil spirits, a rather wise precaution on such an occasion.

The story of the Hindus is just one segment of the endless lore that has grown up about honey and honey makers.

Latest bees have red, white and blue eyes. The colors are not combined in one bee, but various bees from the same ancestry show these color mutations. Such bees weren't developed for patriotic purposes but were the result of selective breeding experiments at the University of California.

Honey is sweeter and more digestible than granulated sugar. When used for cooking, honey should be of the mild flavored types such as clover or orange blossom.

A light moist cake frosting can be made by beating hot honey into egg whites. Use the frosting in a one bowl orange cake baked in a single layer in a square pan.

Be sure the oven is preheated before baking. Be sure the cake is completely cooled before applying the frosting.

Orange Cake With Honey Frosting

Grease and flour a 9 by 9 by 2 inch cake pan. Preheat oven at 350 degrees.

In a mixing bowl put 1-2 cup vegetable shortening at room temperature. Stir shortening slightly to soften.

Measure 2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour. Sift into the mixing bowl the flour, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 1-2 teaspoons double action baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon baking soda.

Add 2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Add 3-4 cup milk and 1-4 cup orange juice.

Mix 2 minutes in an electric mixer or beat 300 strokes by hand. Add 2 unbeaten eggs. Beat 2 minutes more. Pour batter into prepared cake pan. Bake 45 to 50 minutes or until done. Cool on cake rack.

In the top part of a double boiler over simmering water heat 1-2 cup honey 15 minutes. In a mixing bowl beat 1 egg white and 1-8 teaspoon salt until stiff. Remove honey from heat. Gradually add honey in a small stream to egg white beating with a rotary egg beater until stiff enough to spread. Spread on top cooled cake. Sprinkle with cocoanut if desired. Cut cake into squares.

DANES HELP SAXONS SAVE CHURCH

Ashingdon, Essex, England, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Once enemies, Danes and Saxons are jointly contributing funds needed to save a 930-year-old church, built by Danish King Canute to commemorate his victory over the Saxons.

Cost of repairing the church was estimated at £2,000 ($6,200). The vicar, Rev. C. A. Evelyn-White, had raised only £500, so he sent an appeal to the press.

The Danish newspaper Berlingske Tidende published it and funds already have been received from Denmark. contributions have also been received from many parts of Britain.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

A LITTLE GRIME

Halifax, N.S.—With the possible exception of grey, young Toronto (and I have contributed my share on that score) no Canadian city is as thoroughly maligned as grey old Halifax, "Warden of the North," as Kipling, the darling of so many Canadian chambers of commerce, called it.

Toronto is a big brute of a town. It merely shrugs in an oafish way when we foreigners hurl our tiny, poisoned barbs in its direction. But Halifax, being considerably smaller and more sensitive, bleeds easily from such wounds and is conscious of the high disregard with whom it is held in many quarters.

Since our arrival we have noticed this touchiness. On learning that we are sending out occasional character analyses of Canadian burgs, Haligonians have been grasping us by the lapels and saying earnestly, "Be sure to stress the hospitality of Halifax."

This, I suspect, is a natural reflex intended to counteract the canard spread far and wide by veterans of the Royal Canadian Navy who served some of their sentence in these parts. Ask most such Navy men for an opinion on Halifax and they may wordlessly simply clasp a hand to their brow (officers) or openly sob (other ranks).

The natives of Halifax are painfully aware of this, I now discover, and are still smarting, too, from the manner in which the armed forces here at the time celebrated the war's end, which, as you'll recall, consisted largely of busting up the town. Halifax, I gather, is not yet willing to write this off merely as high spirits, but persists in thinking of it, and perhaps rightly, as ingratitude.

Cities, like people, crave to be loved and it seems to me it's time we let bygones be bygones and had a good hard look at the charms of Halifax.

An Atmosphere

My previous contact with Halifax consisted of leaving here on a troop ship, enough in itself to leave an unreasoning and lifelong hatred for the port, and arriving back a thousand years later by another troop ship, on which occasion a small band huddled on the pier and played a damp version of "Here Comes the Bride," since I returned not as a hero, but as an escort for several hundred war brides, all violently seasick. Thus, Halifax was forever associated in my mind with nausea.

Now, after two days of exploring the city by car and by foot, I am pleased and surprised to find it has an atmosphere all its own. It reminds me, at every turn, of the east end of London.

I never wandered down by the London docks without expecting some wild press gang to crash out through a pub door, led by a ruffian with a wooden leg, bearing away some lad to the sea.

Many part of Halifax invite you to this kind of romanticizing for much of it looks like a set for a period movie and you will feel a faint chill at the gaunt buildings, at the graveyards with black and jumbled tombstones, at the whole rather stark facade of the waterfront where old, embalmed sailors lean against the chipping plaster walls, waiting for God knows what.

There has been no attempt to exploit the color or charm of the place as a port as, for example, you find in San Francisco. Not a single sea food restaurant adorns this shabby and grimly efficient harbor front.

And yet this, in itself, gives it a deep-sea shipping atmosphere that I, personally, find picturesque. True, in today's bright sunshine all this ugliness was a mild depressant, but I would love to wander along there in a good grey drizzle, say just before dusk when every wet shadow would speak of the days of sail when the Atlantic, just out there at the harbor mouth, was a sea of adventure and not merely an inter-continental shipping highway.

This is an acquired taste, of course, but the very aspects of Halifax which might give the shudders to one visitors will give the next a springboard for his imagination.

And Contrast

Halifax last year celebrated its 200th anniversary (it was the first town in Canada primarily settled by the English) and so it's interesting to compare it with Quebec City. The difference, it seems to me, is that Quebec has grown beautiful with age and Halifax has not.

Quebec is a grand old lady with snow-blue hair and lace at her cuffs and a black velvet band about her withered throat. Halifax is more the Tugboat Annie type, still full of vitality, but looking pretty awful in a strong light.

Take old buildings. In Quebec City they are revered, patched up and restored. Why, the old Jesuit house in Quebec which is said to be the oldest home in Canada, is in better shape than the house we live in.

But in Halif[illegible] the Charles Addams remnants of the early days (and they make up a large chunk of the town) are run down at the heels and often merely eyesores. The grimed slums of Halifax, notably the Negro section, are enough to give you the creeps and in the down-town district itself, nine out of every ten buildings desperately need a steam-cleaning job.

Contrast, too, the citadels which dominate these cities. In Quebec the visitor finds a summit of beautiful lawn with fine roads and lookouts for enjoying the spectacular view. Halifax's Citadel, with an equally commanding vista of the harbor and the ocean beyond, is an untidy overgrown weed patch which merely adds an extra fillip of inelegance to a town in which, as one of my unromantic Navy friends put it, "you expect to see giant cobwebs hanging from building to building."

People say the darndest things about Halifax.

Picton's Enthusiasm for Boating Overshadows all Other Interests

Picton, Oct. 3 — Now that the excitement of Harold Wilson and Miss Canada IV is a thing of the past again, it is a good time to say a few things about the boat-crazy town at the foot of Prince Edward County.

If anyone ever holds a contest for "The Boat-Craziest Town in Canada", Picton is a cinch. It is a normal thing for any town to go overboard for a man like Harold Wilson who never seems to get much of a break. It is also a normal thing for the same town to go into raptures over a sleek craft like the Miss Canada IV.

But when just plain boating overshadows Korea, the Canadian dollar, and just about everything else you can think of, that is different.

Topic of Conversation

Three or four days in Picton are about enough to bring the realization that if you do not own a boat, or aren't building one, or aren't thinking about it, you just aren't living. People down here do not talk or think of much else, and if you cannot converse sensibly about all the different speedboat designs and motors ever used, you are a dead loss right from the starting gun.

Meals are just a chance to sit down and expound theories. Taverns serve but one purpose — a common place to talk over recent or forthcoming regattas, records, great drivers, and anything else pertaining to the speedboat game.

Anyone who has seen any famous boat is as welcome as the flowers in spring. Immediate consultations follow as soon as the word gets around that somebody who knows somebody whose brother knows all about Slo-Mo-Shun, or Such Crust II, is in town.

Boats, Boats, Boats

The Prince Edward Yacht Club, along with the P.E. Chamber of Commerce, held a dinner last Friday noon for Harold Wilson and his party. Now, most banquets are all alike—the meals are banquet food, and the conversations range from the newest car to hit town to the price of beef in Montana.

But not in Picton. All they talked about on Friday was boats and more boats. If that seems natural, think a little bit. Do Rotarians talk all Rotary at their luncheons? Or do Kiwanians occupy themselves with Kiwanis talk all during their meals?

Once in a while, when a Picton resident is challenged, you'll find out that Prince Edward County produces the best apples and the best cheese in the world. But you have practically got to insult the man to get him to talk about anything but boats.

Everyone is conversant with the latest speed trials, from the waitresses to the biggest business man. When word reached uptown that Wilson had failed once more, there was a united groen from main street.

Enthusiasm Not Dampened

Even the chill of autumn doesn't cool off the enthusiasm, because it is then the cellars and sheds are filled with the hulls of boats in different building stages. The talk still centres around the craft that this man or the next is building.

A man who came from Seattle to buy three of Harold Wilson's engines, and then decided to take in the Picton trials was buttonholed by one amateur boatbuilder less than 24 hours after he arrived. They talked aerodynamics and aquadynamics for three hours or more and they would have been going yet if Miss Canada IV had not been around.

And after three days of Picton, the Seattle man said: "Well, I just wish Seattle was this crazy about boating. Then we'd really have something."

If you do not know a three-pointer from a canoe, and you're thinking of a stay in Picton, you had better bone up a bit before you go. If you don't you'll be a first class dub.

'GBS' Replies to Gift Of Chocolates On 94th Birthday

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—Mrs Herbert Myland of Toronto sent George Bernard Shaw a box of chocolates for his 94th birthday July 26.

Now she received this message from the famous British playwright, written on the back of one of his photographs:

"Why do you send me choos? I never eat them. Eat them yourself or give them to kiddies in their first childhood, not to dotards in their second. Do. I look as if I liked sweets?"

ORDERS GENERAL SEARCH

Sudbury, Oct. 4 — (CP) — A sum of $1,200 was missed Monday from a vault in Sudbury city hall but Mayor W. S. Beaton said the money may be only misplaced.

The money, all in large bills, was to have been deposited in the city treasurer's vault Thursday. The money was missing when the vault was opened Friday.

Mayor Beaton said there "is a distinct possibility the cash became misplaced before it reached the vault." He ordered a general search of all city offices.

TWICE MAYOR OF BOSTON

Boston, Oct. 4 (AP)—John F. Fitzgerald, 87, twice mayor of Boston and father-in-law of the former U.S. ambassador to Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy, died last night at his home. One of the most colorful figures in the history of Boston politics, the life-long Democrat was elected to congress for three consecutive terms from 1895-1901.

Talk on Child Development Heard by Club

The opening meeting of the 1950-51 season of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association took place Monday evening in the school auditorium. A large number of teachers and parents was present.

The president Mrs. R. D. Arnott welcomed all members, new and old, and introduced to the meeting the members of the executive for the coming season. The principal, Mr. W. G. Anderson introduced the members of the teaching staff of the school, with special words of welcome to the newcomers.

It has been the custom in the past to present to the teacher of the room with the largest number of parents present, a small sum of money to be spent for the benefit of that grade. This year, however, a very attractive banner is to be substituted for the cash, the winning room to retain the banner for the following month. Miss Young's class had the greatest showing of parents, and will therefore have the honor of being the first room to display the new banner. At the end of the 1950-51 season, a prize will be presented to the room which has won the banner the greatest number of times.

It was decided that the project for the year might be the installation of a loud speaker system, this matter first to be discussed with the Board of Education.

Mrs. Wallbridge gave a report on the regional conference of the Home and School Associations held on Sept. 30th at Kingston, at which a number of Belleville members were present. Literature from this conference was on display.

The speaker for the evening, Dr. G. S. Cronk, was introduced by Dr. Jack Marshall, and his talk "Child Growth and Development" was most informative. After saying that training begins in the cradle, and is largely done by the mother, Dr. Cronk went on to explain the importance of teaching the child at an early age to eat the essential foods neccessary for good growth. He outlined these foods and their respective contributions to the development of the body, adding some sound and helpful facts about vitamins, and concluding with a post-script on allergies. The vote of thanks by Mr. D. G. Burr expressed the appreciation of the audience who had so obviously enjoyed Dr. Cronk's talk.

Presentation of the past president's pin to Mr. Rae Lennox, was made by Mrs. Gilbert Scott, who spoke highly of his work for the Home and School Association.

The coffee and sandwiches supplied by the Grade 1 mothers, under the able leadership of Mrs. Summers and Mrs. Vermilyea, were enjoyed, and brought to a close a highly successful evening.

SUCCESSION DUTIES

The first imposition of succession duties in Canada was in 1892, when Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario enacted legislation of this nature.

Deputy Chief, Windsor, Grilled By Commission

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP) — The Deputy Chief of the Windsor police force admitted Tuesday that his family business sold the city police department $2,500 worth of equipment every year.

But the sales were on a competitive basis, Deputy Chief W. H. Neale insisted in testimony before the Windsor Police Commission. He said he, his wife and his son were shareholders of the Police Equipment Company of Canada, Ltd, He formerly was president, now was a director but wanted his name removed from the list of officers "because I did not think it looked good."

Deputy Neale was called before the newly-appointed Windsor Police Commission, investigating the department prior to a reorganization. The new commission was appointed after a report by two senior inspectors of the Ontario Provincial Police who said they found vice, gambling and bootlegging rampant in the city.

Police Chief Claude Renaud, rebuked Monday by the commission for not observing some police regulations, appeared before the commission again Tuesday. He was questioned in private, after being told by Judge Archibald Cochrane commission chairman, that he would be asked "some rather awkward questions."

The Deputy Chief said the business had been given to his family about two years ago by the estate of Col. George Wilkinson. He said all purchasing for the department was done on a competitive basis through the city purchasing agent and that he had "studiously refrained" from telling the purchasing agent about his connection with the company.

Only Person Not to Know

"If he didn't know it, he was the only person in Windsor who didn't," Judge Cochrane said. Mayor Arthur Reaume, a police commissioner, said he hadn't known of it.

He was questioned about the morality squad which operated under his direction and was the target of criticism in the inspectors' report. Judge Cochrane asked the Deputy Chief why the force had never applied for authority to search the premises of suspected bootleggers.

Deputy Neale said that several years ago a mistake had been made and the warrant had authorized the search of the wrong home. The warrant was taken away from the police and "I thought that our authority was taken away for good and never applied for another," he said.

Judge Cochrane told him any police force could apply for a warrant.

"I suggested it several times to the police commission but nothing was done about it," the deputy said.

Ruling May Throw Wrench into D-P Conferences

Ottawa, Oct. 4—(CP)—The ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada yesterday that the federal and provincial governments cannot exchange powers assigned to them by the constitution probably will have repercussions at forthcoming federal-provincial conferences.

The court, ending a test case brought before it by the Nova Scotia government, unanimously ruled that the federal and provincial governments cannot delegate to one another the powers given them under the constitution—the British North America Act.

The judgment, upholding an earlier ruling of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, may still be appealed to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, since the case has been before the Supreme Court since before last December, when such appeals were abolished.

At recent federal - provincial conferences some provinces have been suggesting that there should be some provision in the constitution for the governments to delegate powers. Saskatchewan, for instance, would like to see the provinces given authority to delegate power over social security to the federal government so that an over-all national security program could bo inaugurated.

An informed federal government source said following the court's judgment that a constitutional amendment now will be required before a national social security program can be started.

Justice Minister Garson said in an interview that existing federal-provincial taxation and other agreements will not be affected by the judgment, because they do not constitute a delegation of powers. In the agreements, the provinces undertook to forego the exercise of certain of their powers.

Three-Year Term Given J. Matetich

Hamilton, Oct. 4 — (CP)—A charge of attempted murder, laid against John Matetich, 34, was dropped today and he was sentenced to three years on three lesser charges.

Matetich was charged with trying to kill two unwed mothers, Betty Albert and Ann Boyko. The lesser charges were of having possession of a firearm capable of being concealed and two of administering "a noxious thing" to the girls.

Miss Albert, 23, said in court yesterday that Matetich is the father of her child.

She and Miss Boyko testified that Matetich drove them to a lonely road and offered them a choice of dying by gas or a gun. The three got into the front seat of the automobile and Matetich started the motor, Miss Albert said.

All three passed out from the fumes piped from the exhaust. When she regained consciousness the car motor had stopped. Matetich appeared ill and asked Miss Boyko to go for a doctor. When she had gone Matetich threw a gun into the bushes, Miss Albert said. Matetich and Miss Albert were found by a passing motorist.

EATONS TO HAVE UNION

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) — Local 1000 of the Department Store Employees Union (CCL-CIO) announced Tuesday in a full-page newspaper advertisement that it "is ready" to apply for certification as bargaining unit for employees in the Toronto stores and mial-order department of T. Eaton Company.

NO CHARGE FOR QUESTIONS

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP) — A "juke box" method of giving information about venereal disease was exhibited here yesterday. It plays recorded answers to questions about V.D. when you press buttons containing the written questions. There's no charge. The district of Columbia health department which employed a regular musical juke box in developing the method, said the machine will be made available to business, labor and other organizations interested in the venereal disease problem.

What is the Miracle of Canada?

The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.

When the pattern breaks

But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

North Koreans Could Fight In Guerrilla Bands for Years

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP) — American officials fear that the communist army in Korea may break up into guerrilla forces which could fight on for months or even years.

Far more serious of course, would be the direct intervention of Chinese communist or Russian troops in North Korea, but Washington authorities do not appear to believe that this will take place.

There is increasing speculation here that the Russians and Chinese communists will encourage the Korean reds to convert their country into another Greece or Indo-China. That would mean an indefinite delay in bringing real peace to the peninsula and a prolonged drain on American military strength.

However, the growing power of South Korean forces probably would make it unnecessary for U.S. troops in large numbers to remain in the fight indefinitely.

Threat is Seen

The threat of guerrilla war is seen by officials here in several recent developments.

The fact that the North Korean command ignored Gen. Douglas MacArthur's request for surrender last week dashed such hopes as there were that the whole force could be taken as a unit and disarmed by the United Nations.

The Korean reds have continued to fight fiercely and may well maintain that pattern even if they lose control of key points and major transportation routes which an organized army would require for its operations.

Moreover the mountainous and relatively primitive countryside offers excellent terrain for guerilla hit-and-run tactics.

Another point bearing on the possibility of a development along this line is that the Chinese reds have said they would not sit by and see a friendly country "invaded" by hostile troops — evidently a reference to the crossing of the 38th parallel by United Nations forces.

Authorities here say the Chinese might well send supplies and give support to North Korean guerrillas.

Communist Girl Writes Love Poem To Mere Machine

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—An 18-year-old girl in communist east Germany who wrote a love poem to a machine is being gently ribbed by the "Voice of America."

Ires Nebel, who lives in Saxony won acclaim in the communist press for the verse, which it hailed as evidence of "creative progress in the working class." The poem was thus quoted by the state department radio:

"I love you because you are beautiful,
"You shine in the sun and you are so strong,
"You give me new courage when I am disheartened;
"You, my friend, the machine."

State department officials said today that the voice, after quoting the verse in 25 languages is suggesting that there may be a big future for Moscow in the field of love:

"We don't know that the Kremlin, which has invented everything, has devised a machine which can kiss a young girl. But perhaps in the next five-year plan—who knows?"

TV Play on B.B.C. Opens Dispute In British Press

London, Oct. 4 (Reuters) — Controversy over the British Broadcasting Corporation's withdrawal of a television play following criticism that it was anti-socialist flared up in this morning's British press.

The play, "Party Manners" was written by the BBC's director of television drama, Val Gielgud. It was broadcast over television last Sunday.

The pro-Labor Daily Herald and the communist Daily Worker endorsed the withdrawal of the play, but other papers attacked the BBC's decision.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said: "Down the road to suppression the country clatters."

The Daily Telegraph said that "it seems more than a trifle cowardly of the BBC to withdraw a promise repeat performance of the piece because the socialist party press chooses to object to the theme."

The Daily Herald, however, said: "The decision to withdraw the play will reinforce public confidence in the corporation's endeavors to be politically impartial."

The play concerns a Labor cabinet minister who tries to bring pressure on "the chairman of the National Atomic Board" to release new information about atomic energy for industry. He hopes to save his party at a coming election. But for security reasons, the atom chief refuses.

Adventure Tour Awaits Group British Lads

London, Oct. 4 (CP) — A tour of adventure in the rugged wilds of Canada or the interior of Iceland, awaits a group of British lads, who are physically fit, willing to rough it and ready to lay £110 on the line.

The volunteers are being sought by the British Schools Exploring Society, which in 1951 plans to take a party of 55 boys between the ages of 16 and 18 on the northland expedition. Once a decision is reached whether Canada or Iceland is to be visited, the adventurers will set off to investigate the geology, weather conditions, wild life and flora of the country chosen.

Cayuga Gives Signal Islanders Needed Help

London, Oct. 4 (CP) — The admiralty disclosed today how the Canadian destroyer Cayuga gave the signal that brought help to hundreds of hungry South Koreans.

An announcement said the Cayuga, patrolling Korean waters with the U.N. fleet, discovered that hundreds of South Koreans marooned by the war on islands off the Korean coast were without rice, normally supplied by the mainland.

"Immediately small quantities of food were landed to feed the sick and the young and old," the admiralty said.

The Cayuga then sent an SOS to its base and the Australian destroyer Warramunga took on board two tons of rice.

When the Warramunga arrived the Koreans lined the beaches with a reception committee headed by the mayor. Women prepared fires for the first real meal in weeks.

As a souvenir of the rescue mission, the Warramunga boasts bowls of flowers in the wardroom and the mess decks.

"They were all the islanders had to give us," said Lt. Cmdr. Geoffrey Gladstone, first officer of the Warramunga: "It was just the other side of the war."

The Cayuga is under the command of Cmdr. J. V. Brock.

WISHING WELL
Cold DRINKS
7c

Costs since the war have increased on Citrus Fruit—Ginger—Sugar—Crowns (Bottle Tops)—Bottles — Cases — Trucks and Maintenance — Wages — Gasoline — Rents and Taxes — to a total of 24½c per case of 24 bottles.

Only improved equipment and greater sales enabled us to maintain the 5c price since the war.

In 1950 we have been losing money and so have other flavor bottlers before the present budget. (We know this as we manufacture flavors for many bottlers.) Now with the 30% tax it doesn't take much of a mathematician to figure 30% increase on 5c equals 6½c. That is simple. Retailers costs of doing business have increased as well as bottlers. This coupled with bottlers increasing costs has brought about a 7c price for cold drinks (6 bottle cartons—35c plus bottle deposits). No one knows how long the 7c price can be maintained in view of the present spiralling costs.

WISHING WELL DRINKS are made of the highest quality ingredients obtainable. The quality alone of Wishing Well Drinks is what has established them as public favorites in territories in Canada served by 33 bottling plants from Halifax to the West.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It may sound a trifle whacky, but twice in history a pebble no larger than a marble settled world conflicts. One instance was when David loaded his trusty slingshot, let go with open sights while the spectators looked on in amazement, and hit Goliath between the eyes for a 1-0 victory and the title.

The other instance came in that memorable world's series between the New York Giants and the Washington Senators way back in 1924.

Freddie Lindstrom, daring third baseman of the Giants twice had the chance to halt the onrushing Senators—and twice the pebble frustrated him.

Thirty-two men figured in that contest—almost enough to man two teams. Each played his part heroically, majestically, through every second of those tense, forever vivid 12 innings. Yet it was none of these men — nor all of them—which made the final decision. It was Fate — or call it destiny — which ended the titanic deadlock, using as its medium the most insignificant thing on this earth.

A pebble no larger than a marble.

A pebble that meant a $50,000 difference in the payoff, because, if it hadn't been so placed the Giants would have won, and received $5,730 each, instead of the loser's end of $3,820 apiece.

The game went scoreless until the fourth. Not a hit had been made off Barnes, of the Giants, until Stanley Harris stepped up in that inning, hammered out a homer and put the Senators into a 1-0 lead until they blew up in the 6th and three gray-clad Giants raced through wreckage to home plate and put New York in front, 3-1.

* * *

Pep Young opened that sixth for the Giants by receiving a pass. "High Pockets" Kelly singled him to third. John McGraw sent in Emil Meusel to bat for Bill Terry. Meusel poled out a long fly and Young scored the tying run. Hack Wilson singled, sending Kelly to third. Travis Jackson bounced one at Joe Judge, who proceeded to do a juggling act. While he was so engaged, Kelly scored, Wilson going to second and Jackson being safe on first. Hank Gowdy bumped one at Bluege, who let the ball go through his legs and Wilson scored.

Three runs, two hits, two errors.

Then came the eighth inning rally by the Senators.

Oscar Bluege opened by fouling out. Nemo Leibold was sent in to pinch-hit for Taylor, the man who had played with a broken hand because the regular Senatorial third baseman was even more crippled. Leibold, the midget, doubled. Ruel attempted to sacrifice him to third, but the Giant infield had been playing too far back, and Ruel was credited with a single. Tate batted for Marberry and walked. McNeeley flied to Wilson.

Now it was three on, two out — Stanley Harris up and a long hit needed to tie up or win the game that meant the baseball glory of the world.

Harris drove a low screecher directly at Lindstrom, who set himself to take it on the first bounce. The ball hit the ground, six feet or so in front of Lindstrom — or rather, it hit the pebble. Then it did a crazy thing. Instead of the normal bound, the ball zoomed high into the air, cleared Lindstrom's head and his upstretched arms and rolled into left field while Leibold and Ruel raced home with the runs that tied the score.

Lindstrom, bewildered by the eccentric action of the ball, walked to where it had struck the ground, saw the pebble, kicked it angrily to the grass near the dugout.

The twelfth inning now.

The Giants failed to score in their half.

Miller, first man up for the Senators, was out, Frisch to Kelly. Ruel up. Ruel sent up a high foul. Gowdy camped under it. As the ball came down, Hank started to discard his mask, so that he cold see it better. The mask became tangled in Gowdy's hand, the ball fell — and Hank muffed it. Ruel had another chance—because Fate had so willed.

Ruel connected with the next one, and it was good for two bases. McMillen up. McMillen swung — and the ball screeched toward Lindstrom. The drive was an exact duplicate of that of Harris' in the 8th. Lindstrom played it for the first bounce.

The ball hit the ground. Rather, it hit a pebble. It might have been a pebble other than the pebble of the 8th inning. But Lindstrom always swore that it was the same. If so, how it got back to the identical spot will remain a mystery through eternity. But there it was — a pebble — and the whistling baseball landed squarely on top of it.

The ball leaped crazily, far over Lindstrom's head. It rolled into left field, hugging the foul line. Instantly that it caromed beyond Lindstrom's reach, Ruel started for third, was flagged for home, and broke nine world's sprinting records to score the run that ended the most remarkable baseball game ever played.

Queen's Fans Think Tindall Has Team to Win Championship Of Intercollegiate Union

Kingston, Oct. 4 — (CP) —The tricolor of Queen's University, three deep in every position, are aiming to pick up where they left off at the end of the 1949 Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union season.

The Gaels flattened every team in the league in the last half of the 1949 season. But three straight losses at the start left them out of a playoff berth.

Now, with 20 of last year's team back on hand, Queen's fans figure this may be the long - awaited successor to the famed tricolor championship squads of the 1930s.

Coach Frank Tindall's charges picked up two wins in three exhibition starts, dropping a close one to Toronto Balmy Beach of the O. R. F. U. but turning on Ontario Agricultural College and McMaster University intermediates for handy victories. The schedule opens here Saturday against University of Toronto Blues.

Gone from the Queen's lineup this year are three key men from the 1949 Gaels— fullback Al Lenard, quarterback Dave Bryane and end Dick Harrison. Flying wing John Faulkner, middle John Welton and inside Harry Dick are other losses.

Bell is Back

But the return of speedy Billy Bell, a regular in '48 but ineligible last year, and scatback Ross McKelvey, out with injuries most of last season, has brought a smile to Tindall's craggy face.

Also back is handyman Tip Logan, glue-fingered outside wing who wound up second in the league's scoring last year. A smashing tackler and placement-kicking expert, Logan has been a standout in exhibition games to date.

Sharing outside wing duties will be veterans Harry Lampman and Doug Wooley. Bill Burgess, Hal McCarney and Bob Cole are back at middle. McCarney fractured his right hand against O. A. C. and may miss the first few games.

All-star Pete Salari and two other returners, Sam Sheridan and Hank Simola, appear to have the edge in the hunt for inside jobs.

Captain Jim Charters will operate at snap again, while newcomer Curly Lewis is giving veteran Rod Montrose a fight for the stand-in slot.

Loss of passing wizard Bryant forced Tindall to shuffle his backfield, moving Moe Richardson from half to quarterback and shunting quarter Don Gahner into fullback. Bell moves into the flying wing position vacated by Faulkner. Bobo Penner is the other flying wing.

Operating at halves will be fleet Jack Sisson, McKelvey, Jack Roberts, Don Ball, Murray Bulger and likely Don Griffin, a sensation with the intermediates last year.

Leafs Relying On Second-Year Men on Squad

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 4 — (CP) There's a lean and hungry look about Toronto Maple Leafs which may spell danger for the other National Hockey League teams this season.

Gone is the cocksure attitude which gripped the club last year when it was knocked out in the first round of the playoff after winning the Stanley Cup 3 times in a row.

Managing Director Conny Smythe, traditionally canny about pre-season predictions, says he looks for "a successful season." He bases his hopes largely on the vigorous play of second-year-men.

In many ways, the team's chances depend on the aging legs of Walter (Turk) Broda, at 36 the league's oldest player, and on the coaching skill of Joe Primeau, one of three freshmen coaches in the loop this season.

Rollins Will Help Out

Smythe says the seemingly ageless Turk appears as agile as ever in practice. Present plans call for the native of Brandon, Man., who broke into the N. H. L. in the 1936-37 season, to play 40 to 50 games in the 70-game schedule the Leafs open at home Oct. 14 against Chicago Black Hawks. Rookie Al Rollins, who played one full game and two periods of another last season, will be in the nets for 20 or 30.

Primeau faces a tough assignment in taking over as coach from Clarence (Hap) Day who has moved up to the post of assistant general manager. In his 10 seasons, Day coached the Leafs to five Stanley Cup championships, an N.H.L. record.

Last year Primeau coached Toronto Marlboros to the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior title. Twice he piloted Toronto St. Michael's College to the Memorial Cup and the Canadian junior championship.

Smythe says the club roster is about settled, the only question mark being left-winger Danny Lewicki. The flashy 19-year-old still has to demonstrate that he can make the long jump to the N.H.L. from amateur ranks without benefit of seasoning in the American Hockey League.

Ezinicki Likely Out

At training camp in St. Catharines, Lewicki has been working with centre Max Bentley and right wing Joe Klukay.

One of the top forward combinations is made up of Cal Gardner, Howie Meeker and Harry Watson. The other is led by Ted Kennedy with Tod Sloan and Sid Smith on the wings. Meeker got his chance when Bill Ezinicki failed to report to camp.

The other forward combination is headed by Johnny McCormack, who turned pro in mid - season last year, with Fleming Mackell and Ray Timgren on the wing.

Four veterans are back with the defence corps — Jim Thomson, Gus Mortson, Bill Barilko and Bill Juzda. Fifth defenceman is Hugh Bolton, who played last year with Marlboro Seniors. He was signed to take the place of Garth Boesch who retired from hockey to devote his time to farming.

Paid Attendance In Border Loop Down a Little

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Oct. 4 (AP) — Paid attendance at Border Baseball League games during the regular 1950 season and the All-Star game totalled 359,459, a drop of 2,773 from the 1949 total.

Figures released Tuesday by President John G. Ward of the Class C League showed that Ottawa, Watertown and Kingston topped their 1949 attendance totals. Ogdensburg, Geneva and Auburn drew fewer fans than a year ago.

Ottawa Nationals attracted the largest number this year, 97,091. This topped the 1949 mark by 18,514. Watertown's attendance of 65,329 was 4,303 more than a year ago and Kingston's total of 52,453 represented an increase of 13,782 over last year.

Ogdensburg Maples, although third in attendance this year with 55,291, fell below 1949 by 3,452. Geneva's attendance of 42,353 was 24,906 below the 1949 figure and Auburn's total of 41,755 was 13,879 under the previous year.

Puck Patter

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Dick Irvin, a resourceful sort of fellow in hockey inlated a new training stunt with five gallon nail kegs decorating the Montreal Forum ice sheet as his Canadiens went through their daily workout yesterday.

With the kegs lined up in a row, Dick had his boys carry the rubber around them before shooting it at the goalie. Players also were sent along the ice in pairs passing the puck between the kegs.

And to cap it off, Irvin had the boys chase each other in and around the kegs and up and down the rink, before engaging in a half-hour of scrimmage.

Vern Kaiser was dropped from wing to defence and newcomer Stan Maxwell put at left wing, working with Billy Reay and Leo Gravelle. In the Reds' 4-1 win over the whites, Canadiens worked out once more here before taking off for an exhibition gave in Providence against the American League Reds Thursday. They play exhibitions against Springfield Saturday and in Montreal next Sunday.

At St. Catharines, Joe Primeau had a statistician hard at work as his Toronto Maple Leafs, split into teams of whites and blues, continued their training grind. The whites outlasted the blues 8-7 and statistics showed the line of Ted Kennedy, Tod Sloan and Sid Smith showed up best. Performances were reckoned on number of goals scored for and against each line. The Kennedy-Sloan-Smith line scored six and had one scored against them.

Next best were Fleming Mackell, long John McCormack and Ray Timgren, who scored six and had four scored against them. Veteran Max Bentley, Joe Klukay and Danny Lewicki pulled up last with a one-for-and-six against record.

Chicago Black Hawks closed their North Bay, Ont., training camp yesterday and headed east for the first of a series of exhibition games before their first National Hockey League game Oct. 12 at Montreal. They play in Stratford, Ont., tonight with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Coach Ebbie Goodfellow, who feels confident of piloting the Hawks to a play-off berth during the 70-game NHL grind, left camp with his mind pretty well made up about his starting lineup.

The team will carry five defencemen, headed by Black Jack Stewart who'll pair with Doug McCuaig. Al Dewsbury and Bill Gadsby will form the other set with Ernie Dickens as the fifth man. They average 195 pounds. He has three forward lines all set and experimenting with a fourth built around the recently-acquired Pat Lundy.

New York Rangers yesterday signed up Reg Sinclair of Sherbrooke St. Francis of the Quebec Senior Hockey League . . . a rightwinger, Smith went to Sherbrooke two years ago when Boston Olympics dropped out of the Q.S.H.L. The Rangers, who play Montreal Royals in Montreal Saturday, turned on the heat at Valleyfield, Que., last night by defeating the Q.S.H.L. Braves 7-2. Montreal Canadiens yesterday acquired defenceman Ray Gariepy of Buffalo Bisons in a trade for a player to named later.

Waterloo Tigers Need One Game To Win Series

Waterloo, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Waterloo Tigers moved to within one game of the Ontario Baseball Association finals Tuesday night by mauling Oshawa Merchants 14-2 in the fourth game of the semi-finals.

Waterloo leads the best-of-seven series three games to one with the fifth game scheduled here tonight.

Southpaw Cy Bricker of Waterloo fanned nine and yielded only six hits, including two triples and two doubles.

Tigers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Jim Muldoon led off with a double and scored on Don Oberholtzer's single to left. Oberholtzer scored from 3rd on Johnny Fornari's fly to left.

Waterloo added another run in the second when Bobby Fisher doubled past third and Bricker singled to centre. They boosted their lead to 4-0 in the third as Auggie Herchenratter, who walked, scored from third on an infield out.

When Bricker led off in the 4th with his second single of the game Paul Michael was removed for southpaw Paul Thompson. Before Thompson got the side out he gave up five more runs on three hits, a walk and two wild pitches to make the score 9-0 for Waterloo.

The Tigers scored one more run in the fifth and four in the sixth.

Merchants spoiled Bricker's shutout in the 8th when Chuck Walsh singled with men on second and third after Sherry Rowland and George Ticony drew walks.

Sawyer Surprises Experts By Choosing Jim Konstanty To Open Series Against Raschi

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Jim Konstanty, rubber - armed Phillies' relief hero, is Manager Eddie Sawyer's stunning choice to open against the New York Yankees' Vic Raschi today in the most daring gamble since the 1929 World Series.

Not since Connie Mack startled his own players by calling on obscure Howard Ehmke to pitch and win the opener for the A's against Chicago 21 years ago has a pennant-winning manager taken such a chance.

A sell-out crowd of 33,167 is expected at Shibe Park to see bespectacled Jim try to "pull an Ehmke." Game time was 2 p. m. EDT with a promise of cloudy and cooler weather.

They were betting 9-5 that Konstanty and the Phils wouldn't win the opener. And the Phil Whiz Kids were 13-5 underdogs in the best-of-seven series.

Sawyer skipped Robin Roberts, his 20-game winning flag clincher, to give him more rest and settled on Konstanty, his faithful, bullpen saver, who has won 16 games and lost seven this season. Enjoying his best season at the age of 33, big Jim pitched in a record-breaking 74 games. Yet he didn't start once. He hasn't started a game since 1948 at Toronto, and in the big league since he was with the Boston Braves in 1946.

Has Best Chance

"I thought Jim had the best chance against this type of free-swinging club," Sawyer explained.

Never much of a success until he started working for mild-tempered Sawyer, Konstanty is essentially a control pitcher with good breaking "stuff." A few curves and an occasional fast ball break a steady diet of sliders and palm balls coming out of an exaggerated overhand motion.

Sawyer picked Konstanty because he remembered the way he baffled the American League sluggers in the All-Star game, how he pulled the Phils out of trouble day after day. This was the man Sawyer said made the "big difference" in the Phil success story although he had been hit hard in his last few trials.

Konstanty Surprised

The news surprised Konstanty. Arriving early for the workout yesterday, he was called into a corner by Sawyer who asked "do you think you could pitch the opener?"

If Konstanty loses Sawyer will be second guessed all over the lot. But if Konstanty comes through he will be a mastermind.

The Konstanty story created such a stir that changes in the eligible player list were almost overlooked. The Phils were given permission by the Yanks to use outfielder Jack Mayo and lefthanded pitcher Jocko Thompson in place of the ailing Bill Nicholson and Curt Simmons, the 17-game winner now in the army.

Simmons will attend the game on a 10-day furlough. The $65,000 bonus pitcher may even work batting practice but Sawyer said he would not ask Commissioner A. B. Chandler to restore him to the active list.

In return for letting Mayo and Thompson play, the Yanks can use Johnny Hopp, acquired after the Sept. 1 deadline. To make Hopp eligible, Manager Casey Stengel took Tommy Henrich, hobbled with a bad knee, off the list.

Pitches Key Games

Raschi (21-8) a powerful right-handed speedster, will contrast sharply with Konstanty's dancing and dipping stuff. Big Vic pitched most of Stengel's key games. Troubled by a sore shoulder in the last two weeks, he still whipped Boston on a six-hitter in a vital Sept. 24 game.

Both clubs took a few cripples into the series but all were expected to play. The Phils had catcher Andy Seminick still limping from a sprained ankle. Left fielder Dick Sisler still wore a bandage on his sprained right wrist. Hank Bauer, Yankee outfielder, was slowed down by an ankle injury that will require a post-season operation.

This series business is new and exciting for most of the hungry Phils. It's old stuff for the experienced Yanks. Only Sisler, Blix Donnelly, Dick Whitman, Ken Silvestri and Nicholson of the Phils ever played with a winner before 1950.

'Old Reliable' Asked to Step Down in Series

(By The Canadian Press)

One of the most famous Yankees of them all—Tommy Henrich—won't be in the line-up or on the bench when the umpire shouts play ball today in the 1950 World Series.

"Old reliable," as Henrich is familiarly known to his host of New York fans, was asked to sacrifice himself for the good of the team in the series against the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies.

And his answer was typical of the quiet, unassuming guy who has played most of his years in the shadow of teammate Joe DiMaggio.

"Sure, be glad too, if it will help."

Yankee General Manager George Weiss suggested to the 34-year-old Henrich that he give up his World Series eligibility in favor of Johnny Hopp. Henrich, a slugging left-handed batter from the day he joined the Yankees in 1937, has been sidelined most of the recent season with knee and shoulder injuries. Pinch-hitting has been his lot during the Yankee drive to their second straight pennant.

The University of Toronto football squad has elected as captains two men who probably will never again play for Varsity.

The players picked Fraser (Moose) Mustard and Jack Gray.

Mustard, an all-star lineman, was ordered to give up the game this year for medical reasons. Gray, a half back, dislocated his shoulder last Saturday in an exhibition game and probably will be out for the rest of the year—his last at Varsity.

Coach Bob Masterson said he will name a field captain before each game.

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League downed St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League 5-3 Tuesday night in an exhibition game at St. Louis.

The Canadian star basketball team Tuesday defeated a British team 64-14 in a tournament at the world Jewish Olympics at Tel Aviv.

The Canadians already have won two matches—against Argentina and Belgium— and are likely to reach the finals of the tournament.

Sydney A. Dawes, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said in Montreal Tuesday that his organization had declined an invitation to participate in the Pan-American games at Buenos Aires next February.

Coach Carl Voyles reached down into junior ranks Tuesday for two players to bolster his ailing Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Faced with two weekend games against Toronto Argonauts, current Big Four leaders, Voyles called up outside Ed Walker and half back Floyd Cooper from the Tiger-Cat juniors.

Bill McWhinney of Vancouver, Canadian Amateur golf champion, shot a one-over-par 73 Tuesday to qualify for match play in the California Open tournament.

McWhinney and two others tied one stroke behind the leaders Fred A. Jordan of San Francisco. Jordan nabbed the medal honors.

Bill McCormick, 22, of Hamilton, O., will rejoin Toronto Argonauts, current leaders of the Big Four Interprovincial Football Union.

McCormick, former Miami University player, will replace Bob Heck, United States import recently called up by the U.S. draft board. McCormick was released a month when Argos cut down their American imports to the league limit of seven.

World Series Notes

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP)—James Casmir Konstanty, starting pitcher for the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies in the first game of the 1950 world series, until today had never seen a world series game. Even so, bespectacled Jim said it would be just another ball game once the umpire shouted play ball. Told he was the biggest surprise since Connie Mack started Howard Ehmke for the Athletics in the 1929 series Konstanty said, "well I only hope I can do as well as Ehmke."

Tommy Henrich, New York Yankee veteran of five world series, will cover the series for the New York World Telegram. Tommy bowed out of the classic in order to make Johnny Hopp eligible to participate. Henrich has been injured most of the year. He said he was glad to take himself out of the series to help the team. Hopp was acquired from Pittsburgh in the last month of the American League campaign.

Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler described himself as the "only person in Philadelphia without rooting privileges." He said he will attend "every world series game with the hope that it will be over as soon as possible and that nothing troublesome will occur."

Eddie Collins, Boston Red Sox executive, was listening to the Phillies-Brooklyn game last Sunday. "'I wish his old man was batting now instead of Dick," said Collins when Dick Sisler came to bat in the 10th inning. Collins referred to George Sisler, great first baseman with the St. Louis Browns years ago. Then Dick hit a home run to win the game. Collins said, "gee, I'm glad it was Dick at bat and not his dad."

Robin Roberts, Phillies' ace pitcher, has a long memory. When Roberts pitched for Wilmington in the Class B Interstate League he was a super-duper hero to 16-year-old Jackie Cunningham. Few people ever heard of Roberts when Jackie began singing the right hander's praise Then Jackie was stricken with polio. Weeks later he left the hospital with a withered left arm. Roberts went to visit the youngster. "Do you think the Phillies will ever win a pennant," Jackie asked Roberts. Robin said he thought the Phillies might win in 1950. Jackie asked if he could see a world series game. Roberts said sure. That was two years ago. So today, Jackie will be at Shibe Park to see the Phillies play the Yankees. Roberts didn't forget his little pal.

The American League holds a 29-17 edge over the National League in world series play. Actually, it has been the Yankees who have given the junior circuit its commanding edge. The Bronx Bombers have won 12 world series—five of them in the minimum of four games Charley Segar—National League publicity director — says it's not the American League that bothers the senior circuit. It's the Yankees. Take them out and what do you have.

The world series is the climax of the road back for Eddie Waitkus, Phillies' first sacker. Waitkus was shot and almost killed by a deranged girl in Chicago in 1949. It was thought he would never play baseball again. But here he is in the world series.

Jac Egan, 80, a former newspaper man from Buffalo, N.Y., is here for his 27th consecutive series. Approaching Casey Stengel, he asked the manager of the New York Yankees to autograph an ancient baseball. Looking for space, Stengel discovered his name on the ball—a memento of the 1934 series between the Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals.

Philadelphia in Carnival Mood As Series Opens

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 — (AP)— The unveiling of baseball's big show gave this city of 2,000,000 a carnival atmosphere today. From the produce merchants around early morning street fires along the riverfront to women shoppers in the suburbs the principal conversation piece was the World Series.

Philadelphians had waited 19 long years to toast a pennant winner. In the Phillies — National League opponents of the New York Yankees for the world championship — they had that winner.

The downtown streets were festooned with enough red, white and blue bunting for a couple of New Year's Eves. Raucous hawkers peddled pennants and other souvenirs on every corner. Hardly a store window was without some expression of the series fever.

Hotel lobbies were a seething mass of baseball fans — some fortunate enough to have series tickets in their pockets, others wishing they had. And in the background the ever-present scalpers were asking as much as $150 for a pair of box seat ducats.

A murder trial had to be postponed because no hotel rooms were available for the jurors.

Many out-of-town fans had to commute between Philadelphia and other cities within striking distance. One New York hotel reported 50 per cent of its guests last night were planning to attend the series in Philadelphia.

Shibe Park — scene of the first two games today and tomorrow—was bursting with bunting and shining like a new dime after a last minute scrub down.

First in line for a $1 bleacher seat was Art Felsch, Milwaukee notions salesman, who set up housekeeping in a cardboard box last Thursday. Close behind him were four school boys who admitted they were playing hookey to see the series opener.

For the benefit of those unable to gain entrance to the park, television sets were loaned to the city by a manufacturer. These were set up in several of the city's parks.

The local TV viewers were joined by an estimated 38,000,000 along the cable and microwave relay networks to 47 cities.

Countless other millions in Canada and the United States were waiting to listen to the play-by-play by radio.

Curt Simmons On Hand to See First Series Game

New York, Oct. 4 — (AP) — The baseball world buzzed today with talk that Private Curt Simmons may get in the World Series for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Philadelphia officials said, "not a chance."

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler hinted, well, it could be done — it's been done before.

The rival New York Yankees didn't say.

Least excited about the whole commotion seemed to be the strapping 21-year-old Egypt, Pa., lefthander himself, who carved 17 victories for the Phillies before Uncle Sam handed him a rifle Sept. 5.

"Gee, sure, I'd like to get in the series if I thought I could do the club any good," he said, after arriving here for the first night of his 10-day furlough. "But I'm awfully rusty and sluggish. It would take time for me to get in shape.

"Whatever Mr. Sawyer says will be okay with me. He'll know whether I could be ready or not."

Eddie Sawyer, Phillies manager, said he didn't plan to ask that Simmons be reinstated to the eligibility list. Lefty Jocko Thompson was given Simmons' place on the Phillies' roster a few hours before the furlough was made known.

Stays in New York

Simmons, wearing army khaki and the colors of the 28th Pennsylvania National Guard division, stepped off a plane at the Newark Airport early today and motored to a New York hotel.

He planned to take a train to Philadelphia first thing this morning.

"Whether I get to pitch or not I'll get a tremendous bang out of this series, anyhow," he said with a schoolboy enthusiasm. "You see, I've never seen a World Series game."

He admitted he was left a bit breathless by the day's fast-breaking developments.

"I had asked for a leave earlier and it had been refused," the young southpaw said. "Then at 3 o'clock I was told I had it. I threw some things together and caught the first plane out."

Maj.-Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, commander of Simmons' division at Camp Atterbury, Ind., said the leave was given so Curt could "encourage the ball team during the World Series."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Talk about story-book endings. You should hear what happened to me at the Rocky Mountain regional bridge championships in Colorado. It sounds like a Frank Merriwell adventure.

Following the matches was scheduled my lecture series at the Denver Dry Goods Company. My desire was to play in the tournaments. But I had no partner. No person there had I ever played with.

My syndicated bridge kolm appears in The Denver Post. This was my first appearance in Denver. The Post had mugged and plugged me for days to herald my coming for lectures and play.

The opening contest was the Pike's Peak open pairs in Colorado Springs on July 1. My arrival was just before the starting bell. But without a partner. And not a stray one in sight.

So I walked into the cocktail lounge for a milkshake to fortify myself for the role of onlooker. As I passed a table group, someone hailed me with: "Do you play bridge? One of us needs a partner."

When I answered, "I'm your huckelberry" a lady detached herself from the others and we rushed into the tournament room. Just in time to start. No time for exchange of words. Not even for introductions.

She did not know me from Adam's off ox. Nor did I know who she was or where from. Neither of us knew what system the other played. Not until later did I learn her name.

It turned out that she was Buth Anne Miller of Wichita, Kansas. And what a player! Her game was flawless. She could have won with a wooden monkey for a partner. Anyway, if you have not guessed it, we won the title. This was my introduction to Colorado.

One of the deals in this match is shown here:

Grocers Told To Look Neat In Their Stores

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) — Ontario retail grocers were told Tuesday they must concentrate on selling what the customers want—not what the grocers would like to sell.

"Be careful about the collar you wear and the way you knot your tie," Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary manager of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States, told the foods division of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada (Ontario). "Make sure that apron is clean and your personal behavior is good."

Mrs. Kiefer said surveys showed buyers were attracted by clean well-lighted stores. They wanted food displayed conveniently and prices well marked.

Worker Suffocated In Dust Flue Bin

Port Colborne, Oct. 4—(CP)—Edwin Fretz, 40, R.R. 1, Ridgeway, was suffocated in a dust flue bin at the Canadian Furnace Co. Ltd., here early today. He was dead when found by fellow workman, Fred Jones.

Fretz is believed to have slipped and fallen when poking dust down into the bin. His feet were seen by Jones protruding from the opening at the bottom of the eight-foot bin.

Dr. E. A. McKenzie, Sr., coroner, said an inquest would be held.

ASK 5 CENT-QUART SUBSIDY

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP) — The Ontario government was asked Tuesday to pay a five-cents-a-quart subsidy to producers to cut the retail milk price from 20 to 15 cents. The Housewives Consumers League and the Congress of Canadian Women made the request in a brief submitted to Agriculture Minister Kennedy. He said he will discuss it with the cabinet.

Liberal Elected Without Vote In Quebec Riding

Ottawa, Oct. 4. (CP)—Maurice Breton, Liberal candidate in the Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm federal by-election set for Oct. 16, has been declared elected as of Tuesday.

Nelson Gastonguay, chief electoral officer, said that Mr. Breton had been declared elected following withdrawal of his only opponent—Wilfrid Guertin, an Independent.

Mr. Breton and Mr. Guertin were the only persons to file papers in Joliette Monday before nominations closed for the by-election, one of four set for Oct. 16. The others are in Montreal St. Mary's, the Quebec constituency of Rimouski and the Ontario constituency of Welland.

As a result of Breton's election the Commons standing is:

Liberals, 184; Progressive Conservatives, 43; C.C.F., 13; Social Credit, 10; Independent, five; Independent Liberal, three; vacant, four; total 262.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 4—(AP)—This may sound strange, but Maurice Evans is doing his first U.S. movie in order to further the stage.

The famed stage actor of the classics is spending his nights appearing at the Biltmore in Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple" and his days preparing for his film role with Ethel Barrymore in "Kind Lady". He explained why he was finally succumbed to Hollywood.

"The reasons are two-fold. First, I realize the value of furthering one's name by motion pictures. In the theatre, it is no longer possible to travel to every little town when you appear in a play; costs are too high now for that. But if you appear in a movie, you can go to those towns—in a can, so to speak.

"With a movie-created name, you have an added audience to draw from when you appear in a play."

New York Project

Evans said his second reason for doing the movie concerns the New York City Centre Theatre. He and a number of other stage people put on a successful season of plays there last year and intend to continue. Evans is out to enlist movie names to appear for the company.

Evans sees the center project as a hope to revive the ailing theatre. "We can put on worthwhile shows by playing two weeks in a big theatre," he said. "Prices run from $1.10 to $3 top, so nearly anyone can afford it.

"That, I think, is the main trouble with the theatre, as with all forms of entertainment—they have become too blamed expensive. People have gotten out of the habit of going to the theatre. We have to find means of drawing them back."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking the ferst half of his 2nd cigar, saying, William, I wonder if it will ever be fizzically possible for you to give up smoking?

Of course, my dear, pop said. I can stop whenever I want to. Dont I stop regularly every New Year's? he said, and ma said, Oh, you cant count those butterfly resolutions that disappear in the mists of oblivion 2 hours after they're made. The only way to ever really stop is to lose all desire to smoke, she said.

By gollies you've got something there, pop said. And if I could lose all desire to spend money, I'd have quite a bank account, although it probably wouldn't be mutch use to me under those circumstances. And if I could lose the desire to sleep late in the morning, I'd snap out of bed and start attending to bizzness while other men are still snoozing the golden hours away, and that would make me so rich that I could afford to feel like spending money and still have a bank account. Yes, sir, that's quite a thawt, he said.

I'm glad you agree with the general principal, ma said. I read an avvertizement about a new miracle drug that's garanteed to make you really dislike tobacco in all its forms, she said, and pop said, Did you ever hear of sulfadoodlebug? It's garanteed to make a woman adopt tobacco smoke as her favorite perfume and collect cigar ashes as a hobby. One woman has a collection of 204 different kinds in pill boxes, each with a different cigar band pasted on the cover as identification, he said.

Oh, I never believed for a fraction of a second that you'd ever even want to lose the desire to smoke, ma said, and pop said, My dear, how well you know me.

Meaning she was rite.

Tommy Henrich Does Not Want To be Manager

By JOE REICHLER

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP) — Because his passion for his family is far greater than his love for baseball, Tommy Henrich was prepared today to sacrifice a chance to become manager of the New York Yankees.

The 34-year-old outfielder-first baseman, in a surprise disclosure, declared he had no managerial ambition whatsoever. One of the manliest and most popular players ever to wear a Yankee uniform, Henrich generally was regarded as Casey Stengel's successor.

"I have no managerial aspirations," Tommy stated flatly last night on the eve of the world series. "I have no aspirations to become manager of the Yankees. And I most certainly don't want to manage in the minor leagues. I've struggled through years in the minors. I'll never go back, no matter what."

He added:

"This is the way I look at it. I've been playing baseball for 17 years. I'm not getting any younger. It's time I began to think of my happiness and the happiness of my family.

Loves Family More

"I have a wonderful wife and three children. They mean all the world to me. Sure, I love baseball. Sure I owe it a lot. But I love my family more and I owe more to my family."

Henrich said he'd welcome a job in baseball. "But not one that will keep me away from my family. Being a manager means staying away from home. I don't want that. I've spent seven months out of every year away from my family. That's much too much."

Tom said he'd jump at the chance to join the Yankee front office "provided it's a responsible position that would meet with my capabilities."

Tommy realizes better than anyone else that his playing days are just about over. He received a hint of it yesterday when he received the bad news from Stengel that he had been placed on the world series ineligible list to make room for Johnny Hopp.

Benched Nearly Entire Year

Tom was benched nearly the entire season by a bad knee. It is believed the injury has ended his big league career.

In characteristic Henrich fashion, he defended Stengel's move to replace him in the series with another veteran first-baseman.

"The knee gives me fits," he said. "I can't hit. I can't run. Hopp can do everything better than I. So why shouldn't he play instead of me."

Despite the bad knee and other injuries that plagued him all season, Henrich was a prominent force in the Yankees' pennant victory. He hit only .272 in 72 games, mostly as a pinch hitter. But he drove in 34 runs, hit six home runs, three in pinch hit roles and won several games with timely hits.

Henrich earned his nickname "old reliable" through 12 active years as a Yankee. He was an important cog in seven championship teams. He was the hero of last year's world series. He slammed a ninth inning home run off Don Newcombe that gave the Yanks a 1-0 triumph over Brooklyn in the first game.

EQUIPPED WITH 17-POUNDER

Ottawa, Oct. 4—(CP)—A second step to add to the anti-tank punch of Canada's special force was announced Tuesday by the army. It said the three infantry units of the force, slated to go to Korea or western Europe, are going to be equipped with the 17-pounder anti-tank gun, used in the recent war by artillery units.

BECOME AMERICAN AGAIN

Washington, Oct. 4 — (CP)— Garry Davis, the 29-year-old former bomber pilot who revoked his American citizenship and proclaimed himself a "citizen of the world" in Paris in 1948, is going to become an American again. His application for U.S. citizenship will be restored in 1952 after normal naturalization procedure.

FRANKFORD

Merchants Win From Wooler In Semi-Finals

Frankford—Frankford Merchants couldn't have been any happier if they had defeated the New York Yankees in the last game of the World Series than they were Saturday night in eliminating Wooler from the Trent Valley softball semi-finals. The two neighboring towns have been keen sports rivals for years, and it is always a big win when one defeats the other.

Wooler, playing on their own home diamond, started to roll right off the bat, with three big runs in the opening frame. Frankford came back with one in the second, two in the fourth, and went ahead with three in the fifth. Wooler tied it in the seventh, and it remained so for the balance of the regulation nine innings.

In the top of the tenth, Murphy, leading off singled to right. With two away, Consaul punched a single to centre, which Adams let go through him for the game.

Boyle went all the way for Frankford, with Murphy receiving. McColl started for Wooler but was blasted out in the fifth. Stacey went in for the balance of the game.

Frankford	010 230 000 2—8	10 3
Wooler	300 010 200 0—6	10 4

After the game Frankford was the scene of wild celebrating. Some dozen cars drove all over town with horns blasting, and the occupants cheering.

In the Trent Lock Dairy Bar usually sedate and dignified ladies let their hair down and cut loose with some war whoops that would rival a band of Navajos.

Clinton Hanna shook hands with every member of the ball team at least six times, and let go with a few of his own special victory howls.

Mrs. Raymond Rowe, so they tell us, has to swim the Trent River as the result of a friendly wager with one of the Frankford players as to the outcome of the series.

Even Herb Rankin who usually takes victory quite calmly walked up the street whistling like a cage of canaries.

As a tribute to the memory of Karl Austin, a large poster hangs in the Dairy Bar with suitable inscription. Shall we now observe two minutes' silence?

Now in Finals

Softball was again in the spotlight Monday evening, as Frankford went right into the finals against Trenton. The Merchants suffered a cruel blow right to start the series, in that Don Boyle, their ace hurler is suffering from pleurisy, and has been ordered by doctors to stay out of the game. In spite of the fact that he was taped up like a straight jacket, Don started the game for Frankford against the league-winning Trenton club. Under the circumstances, Don just didn't have it, and was blasted for ten runs, including three homers in six innings. Don Rogers came on in relief, and pitched fine ball, to set the Trentonians down scoreless for the balance of the game. It was a gallant try by a swell guy, and it is hopeful that he will be sufficiently recovered to go into a game or two yet before the series finishes.

Harry Farr was his usual masterful self, and until the ninth inning, when Frankford rallied for four runs, he practically had the Frankford batsmen handcuffed.

L. Istead and Carswell led the Trenton attack with two hits apiece. Scott had the biggest hit of the game, with a grand slam homer, when Trenton collected six runs, all unearned.

For Frankford, Rogers and Consaul had two hits apiece.

The game was Trenton's home game, although played in Frankford. The town of Trenton has supported its ball team in the same manner they support most of their sports organizations, and rather than operate at a loss, Trenton is playing all games in Frankford, where support has been the best in the Trent Valley League.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP)—The big question before the opening pitch of the 1950 world series was: "Who's going to relieve the reliever?"...But that may be an injustice to Jim Konstanty, the surprise selection of Manager E. Sawyer of the Phillies .As Casey Stengel expressively stated: "Now we gotta see if we can hit that—stuff he throws."...Stengel may have been reading a surprise himself in nominating Hank Bauer for an outfield spot in the Yanks lineup... "I dunno," said Casey as he tried to make up his mind. "I put him in here a couple of weeks ago and got a couple of good hits.... When he's hitting, he can hit both right and left handers."...Stengel, incidentally, hasn't seen the Phillies perform this season...When the Yanks gave them a trimming during spring training, Casey wasn't feeling well and stayed in camp.

Heard at Headquarters

Chicago White Sox organization will meet soon after the series to decide on the 1950 manager and settle other problems...But Billy Evans, who thinks the Tigers may have done a bit better than could have been expected this year, doesn't look for any immediate changes at Detroit... "Red Rolfe has a swell camp up in New Hampshire and probably will stay there for a couple of months," says Evans...Birdie Tebbetts' cracks about the "juvenile delinquents and moronic malcontents" on the Red Sox still are the principal subject of discussion in the Boston delegation...'It sounds like a proper Bostonian speaking," said one scribe. The good things is that the guys he was talking about won't understand him."

Crack Trotters Ready to go In Futurity

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 4 (AP)—Six crack trotters will go to the barrier here tomorrow in the 58th renewal of the Kentucky Futurity for three-year-olds, second richest event in harness racing's Grand Circuit

Included among the small, select field for the event worth $56,355 is Hambletonian winner Lusty Song and Star's Pride second in both heats of the Goshen, NY., classic in August.

The winner of the $75,000 Hambletonian has been installed as an early 6-5 choice in the Futurity off performances which have earned him the title of the biggest money-winning colt in the history of the sport.

Owned by Hayes Fair Acre Stable of Duquoin, Ill., Lusty Song as a two-year-old established a bankroll of $47,799. He has added $73,944 to it this year for a total of $121,743.

But the Futurity is expected to develop into a stretch-driving duel between Lusty Song and Star's Pride, owned by E. Roland Harriman and L. B. Sheppard. Star's Pride, to be reined by Harry Pownall, has beaten the Hayes Fair Acre performer in four of five meetings and has been established at odds of 2-1 Del Miller will drive Lusty Song.

Third choice in the betting is Malcolm, from Coldstream Stud of Lexington, at 9 to 2 with Tom Berry driving.

Completing the field will be C. W. Phellis' Scotch Dean who hurt himself early this season and was out of competition part of the year, at odds of 6-1; Milky Way Stable's Stuart Hanover, fifth in the Hambletonian, at 15-1; and E. O. Pavey's Full Force at 20-1.

The race will be contested on two-in-three heats.

SWEDEN PLEASED

Stockholm, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Award of the 195 Nobel Peace Prize to Dr. Ralph Bunche, senior director of the U.N. trusteeship council has been received with deep satisfaction in Sweden. Dr. Bunche received the award for services as U.N. mediator in Palestine where he succeeded the assassinated Count Folke Bernadotte. Countess Bernadotte said Dr. Bunche was "indeed worthy of the honor."

MASKED FLOGGING CHARGED

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 4—(AP) —An admitted Ku Klux Klansman last night was convicted of masked flogging. He was fined 500. It was the first guilty verdict returned in six flogging trials following an outbreak of lashings and cross burnings last year. The convicted man A. Byrd Carradine, immediately filed notice of appeal.

LARGE FRUIT

The so-called double cononut, fruit of a species of palm, is one of the largest known fruits; it takes 10 years to reach maturity.

BRUINS SIGN THREE

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 4 (AP) — Boston Bruins today signed three 20-year-old amateurs to professional hockey contracts and assigned them to Tulsa Oilers in the United States Hockey League.

They are Ellard O'Brien and Gordon Byers of St. Catharines, Ont., and William Davidson of Port Arthur, Ont.

The Bruins' 18 players, picked to start the National Hockey League season in Montreal Oct. 14, broke camp today and headed for Providence, R. I., where they meet Providence Reds of the American Hockey League in an exhibition game tonight.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

Shayne moved close to the bed and leaned over her. He touched her cheek gently with rough fingertips and said "Don't look so worried angel. You know I don't want you to make a false identification even though I was positive Blackie was the man I wanted."

He nodded to Blackie and followed him out into the living room. Blackie started for the door, saying, "that's all huh? You don't want me any more."

"I want you plenty more," Shayne growled when the bedroom door was closed. "Sit down over there and start talking.'

Blackie sat down and muttered sulkily "I got nothing to talk about."

"Do you deny that you and the Kid and some other gimp rammed an automobile on Collins Avenue last night and snatched a roll and a ruby bracelet from the couple in it?"

"I sure do deny that. I can prove where I was at eight o'clock."

"How do you know it was done at eight o'clock?"

"Look—you're talking about the Dustin job, ain't you? It's in all the papers about the gang grabbing a bracelet."

"Where were you at eight o'clock?"

"Me and the Kid was up to Sunny Isles with a couple of broads" Blackie told him readily. "Driving back was when we scraped the fender I was gettin' fixed in Mickey's Garage so the boss wouldn't know we'd been joyriding."

"I don't believe a word of it, but you can probably prove it by witnesses. All right. We'll skip that until Dustin has a crack at identifying you. Whom do you and the Kid work for?"

"You mean the boss " Mr. Bankhead?"

"Whats Bankhead's business?"

"He imports stuff. Got an antique and curio shop on the Beach."

"What does he import?"

"All sorts of stuff. Pitchers and statues and stuff like that."

"Jewels?"

"I dunno. Maybe, sometimes. I don't have nothing to with the shop."

"What's your job?"

"I'm the gardener," Blackie said with dignity.

"Do you use brass knucks to knock out insect pests?"

"I just happened to have 'em in my pocket," Blackie uttered. Sweat was popping out on his swarthy face.

"Is the kid a gardener too?" Shayne asked sarcastically.

"No. He's the chauffeur."

"Why did you telephone me last night from the Sunlux Hotel to ask if I wanted to buy the ruby bracelet?"

"Me? Telephone you?" Blackie looked blandly innocent. "You have got me wrong."

"You were going to call me back this morning," Shayne insisted. "We can talk it over right now and save the price of a call."

"I sure don't know what you're trying to get at."

"Did you ever hear of the Rajah of Hindupoor?"

"Not as I recollect."

"Is Bankhead a heavy-set man with a grayish mustache?"

"He sure ain't," Blackie answered earnestly. "He's tall and clean-shaved."

Shayne made a gesture of disgust sank into a chair. "Go back and tell your boss Mike Shayne says theres not going to be any payoff on the bracelet. Tell him to wrap it around his neck and wear it for a dog collar. Now get out. I'm sick of looking at you."

"Sure," said Blackie placatingly. He sidled toward the, door, looking at the .45 in Shayne's lap. "You gonna let me have my gat back?"

"I'll keep it for a souvenir" Shayne growled "and see whether the front sight matches the cut on Dustin's face and whether the police chemist can find any traces of blood on it."

Blackie said "go ahead. I swear it ain't been out of my bureau drawer for six months." He scuttled out the door and down the hall.

Shayne looked distastefully at t... gun, sighed and got up to lay it on the table. He looked at his watch and decided it was much too early to go calling on anyone. He prowled around the room immersed in thought, and stopped in front of a book case at the end of the room. It still held the books he had accumulated years ago, just as he'd left it when he gave up the apartment to go to New Orleans. The hotel management had left it here, and successive occupants had evidently accepted it as part of the furniture.

There was an old set of encyclopedias on the bottom shelf. He leaned down and ran his eyes along the backs until he found the R volume, took it out and carried it over to the couch and thumbed through it until he found "Ruby."

He glanced through the data without much interest until he reached a sub-heading Artificial or Synthetic. He read this passage carefully:

"The earliest recorded attempt to manufacture synthetic rubies was in 1837 by a German chemist. His process consisted of fusing together chips of the natural stones into one larger gem, and the resulting rubies were called reconstructed gems.

"Much later, Michaud improved the process with somewhat better success by placing several large fragments of natural rubies in a revolving platinum crucible and heating them to about 1800 c. He obtained fairly large stones by this method, though the product was likely to burst asunder from interior stresses. Reconstructed rubies have now been replaced in the market by synthetic gems manufactured by a process developed by Professor Verneuil in France. In the beginning, Verneuil used small, inferior Burma stones which he crushed into powder, fusing them into one large stone under terrific heat.

"Later, he discarded the use of crushed stones and used corundum, a form of alumina, and this process is in use at the present time to produce synthetic gems commercially."

A complicated and technical description of the Verneuil apparatus and process followed. He read this carefully, and made a grimace of disgust when he came to the final line:

"As it has not been possible to produce asterism in synthetic rubies, it follows that any star ruby must have been cut from the natural mineral."

Shayne snapped the encyclopedia shut. There it was gaain! Every time he began formulating a theory he got hit in the face with the fact that the star rubies cannot be produced artificially.

He got up and replaced the offending volume, reminding himself it was quite an old set and might not contain the newest scientific information available. Walter Voorland was the man to talk to. He probably knew as much about the subject as any man living.

Turning back toward the bedroom door, he was met by Miss Naylor who came out and closed the door gently but firmly. "Miss Hamilton has gone to sleep again. Rest and quiet is all she needs now."

"Will you be ble to stay here with her?"

"Dr. Price will be looking in soon. If he can't get a relief nurse, I can rest here on the couch with the door open so I'll hear her if she calls. Get along with your detecting if that's what you want to do," she ended with swung it out, revealing six cartridges. She snapped the cylinder back and lifted it with one hand. "Nice balance," she said. "Most of these double-actions don't carry enough weight in the muzzle."

"Amazing," said Shayne. "Do all trained nurses like to play gin rummy and know the fine points of firearms?"

"Probably not. I was an army nurse."

"You're marvelous," said Shayne fervently. "I don't know why I bothered to ask for a police guard last night."

Miss Naylor chuckled. "I won a few bucks from him," she reminded Shayne, her eyes twinkling.

"I'll leave you on guard this time. Don't let anyone in except the doctor or me. No one," he went on with emphasis. "Whoever attacked Miss Hamilton last night must realize she is alive and capable of identifying him. He may come back."

She said "he won't get in if he does," and Shayne was quite certain he wouldn't.

Outside the hotel, he got in his car and drove across the Venetian Causeway to Miami Beach. Walter Voorland lived in a large apartment near the bay and a little south of the Causeway. He was a bachelor, and had maintained the apartment for years, and Shayne had visited him on pedia shut. There it was again! a bright smile.

"Do you know how to shoot a revolver?" Shayne asked.

Miss Naylor went over to the table and picked up the heavy weapon released the cylinder and

Ontario Fruit Crops Down From Last Year

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) —Estimates of Ontario fruit crops for 1950 are down in all fruits except grapes and strawberries, Agriculture Department statistics show.

Pears show the largest drop from 1949—35 percent. Apples, plums and prunes are down about 25 percent, cherries, peaches and raspberries lesser amounts.

Grapes show the largest increase—82 percent. Strawberries are up 60 percent.

Hail in the Niagara district is given as a major cause of the decline.

Weather conditions have been generally good for Ontario vegetables, with cabbage, cauliflower, beets and turnips making the best showing, with the prospect of high yields of good quality.

Liberal Member Expelled in Newfoundland

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 4 (CP) —A Liberal member of the Newfoundland legislature was expelled from the party Tuesday night but reinstated after he withdrew statements charging that the cabinet made all decisions on legislation and policy.

Premier Smallwood ordered the expulsion of Sam Drover, member for White Bay, after Mr. Drover charged the government with "gross neglect" of his district and failure to carry out election promises.

In a statement later retracted, he said all party members were expected to vote without question after the cabinet had made its decision.

After Mr. Drover retracted this statement, Premier Smallwood ordered the expulsion statement killed.

When he ordered the expulsion Mr. Smallwood said such a public expression of doubt in the sincerity of the Liberal party was "an inexcusable violation of party discipline."

25,000 MASSACRED BY RED RULE IN SOUTH KOREA

Witness States Cases Withdrawn By Court Officials

Windsor Commission Probes Law Enforcement Charges

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP) — Evidence that officials of the Windsor Crown Attorney's office dictated withdrawal of liquor charges laid in court by police was brought today before the Windsor Police Commission.

Sgt. George Browne, head of the police morality squad, told the commission that he had dropped several cases which appeared certain of conviction.

One of these, a charge of keeping liquor for sale against Alex Shincariol, was dropped at the request of Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey, who was dismissed from his post in September following publication of a report by two provincial police who investigated law enforcement in this border city.

Squad Criticised

The morality squad was strongly criticized in the report, which found widespread vice and gambling in the city.

Chief of Police Claude Renaud gave the commission the record of arrests made of Shincariol who owns a place called the 'Blue Roof' in Windsor.

The records showed a series of liquor charges laid against Shincariol since 1926. Judge Archibald Cochrane, chairman of the commission, said the records showed that the man had never been sent to jail although he had been fined.

"If I told you the Crown Attorney has no power to direct the police in the laying of charges, would you be surprised?" Judge Cochrane asked Sgt. Browne.

"I never knew that," Browne replied.

"I think you will find that from now on you will see that that practice has ceased," the judge told him.

Judge Cochrane and Magistrate Roland A. Harris were appointed to the police commission in September following resignations by two previous members. Mayor Arthur J. Reaume remains the third commissioner.

"Devoid of Truth"

The commission yesterday heard a firm denial by Judge Albert J. Gordon that he knew of the interest of W. H. Neale, Windsor's deputy police chief, in a company selling supplies to the police department.

Judge Gordon, testifying under oath at his own request, said a statement given by Deputy Chief Neale to the commission was "totally devoid of truth."

The deputy chief also testifying under oath, said on Tuesday that he told Judge Gordon and Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan that he was president of the company which sold $3,500 worth of supplies annually to the department.

Judge Gordon and Magistrate MacMillan resigned from the commission at the time of the publication of the provincial police report.

Under questioning Tuesday by Judge Cochrane, Mr. Neale said the police equipment company had been owned by his family for the last two years. He had given "verbal assistance" in the organization of the company in 1942.

He said that all sales by his company to the Windsor Police Department were on a competitive basis. He had "studiously refrained" from telling the city purchasing agent of his connection with the company.

Judge Cochrane agreed with Mr. Neale that police regulations do not bar police officers from engaging in outside business.

The commission is expected to adjourn today until next week.

Cost-of-Living Index Still On Rampage

Ottawa, Oct. 5— (CP)—Still on the rampage, Canada's cost of living index climbed 1.3 points during August to take up a new peak of 169.8.

Of six classes of commodities taken into consideration by the Bureau of Statistics in compiling the index also climbed to record highs. It cost more for food, fuel, furnishings, clothing and rents.

The index, based on 1935-39 equals 100, now is 7.5 points higher than it was a year ago. It now costs 68.5 per cent more to live than it did in August, 1939.

Sharpest climb during August was shown in the food sub-index, as prices soared for beef, pork, lard, coffee, sugar, butter and eggs. Despite a decline in the price of fresh vegetables, the food index rose to 218.8 points from 216.7. The latest figure represents a rise of 11.2 points in the last year.

Following adjustment after a quarterly survey in rents, the rent index went up 0.6 points to 135.5 from 134.9 a month ago and now is 11.6 points higher than its level in August last year.

Fuel and light increases pushed that sub-index to 140.8 from 138.4, so that it now is 10.7 points ahead of last year.

Until recently, clothing prices had been moving down, but in August the clothing index leaped to 182.3 compared with 180.9 a month before. The latest figure, however, was 1.2 points below August, 1949.

Homefurnishings and services index was 171.1 compared with 168.9 a month before and 167.4 a year ago, while the miscellaneous group, which includes transportation and gasoline costs, moved up 0.3 points to 132.8 from 132.5. Last year it stood at 128.9. Contributing to the latter boost were higher street car fares at Hamilton and high gasoline prices at Toronto.

'U.S. Will Never be Aggressors Says Bevin Nailing Russian Lie'

By ROBERT D. BROWN

Margate, England, Oct. 5 (Reuters)—Within a few hours of returning from New York Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today routed critics of his foreign policy at the Labor Party convention with a 6-to-1 vote.

The critics sponsored a resolution urging the government to call a five-power conference, to make renewed efforts for friendly relations with Russia, to outlaw the atom bomb, and to end dollar dependence by 1952.

After Bevin had defended his policy in a speech lasting more than an hour the convention rejected the rebel resolution by 4,861,000 votes to 881,000.

Bevin also told delegates he wanted to nail the lie that the United States would ever be aggressors.

The lie was "sent out by Russia to try to blind the people of the world, and unfortunately a lot of weak-minded people keep repeating it," Bevin told the annual convention of the Labor party.

"I do not believe the United States will ever be aggressors. There is no sign of it."

Bevin, cheered loudly, said, "I have tried ever since I took office to be friends with Russia."

"There is no one who has stood at this rostrum who would stand more insults, more abuse—who has put up with more than I have from Molotov and Vishinsky.

"I have looked beyond Molotov and Vishinsky and have looked for peace and I will carry on, whatever they said.

"I have discussed these problems with Joseph Stalin at Moscow. I offered on behalf of the government a 50-year treaty of peace. I asked why a little country like Turkey should for five years be in a war of nerves.

"In Berlin we were very near to war. Without one word to us, 2,300,000 people were suddenly cut off from food.

"We saw it through, that was aggression."

The foreign secretary said that in Korea the security council did the only thing they could do — "they resisted."

175,000 TROOPS READY TO YANK DOWN CURTAIN

Will Move into N.Korea If Requested by U.N.

Tokyo, Oct. 5. (AP)—A United Nations army of up to 175,000 troops massed today to yank down the iron curtain of parallel 38 and wipe out communist resistance in all Korea.

The non-Korean Allies, who have been kept south of the artificial border, stood ready to cross and join South Koreans who have already pierced the curtain and probed 60 miles or more into the communist-ruled northland.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters made it clear that all his forces are ready to go into North Korea as needed.

Non-Korean troops had been held south of the 38th parallel since the South Koreans stabbed across Sunday.

The question of their crossing from liberated South Korea was considered only as a military issue, MacArthur's headquarters said, and not as a political hurdle at this stage.

The United Nations at Lake Success Wednesday night directed MacArthur, in effect, to use any means at his command to unify Korea.

Parallel 38 was drawn originally to designate American and Russian zones for acceptance of the Japanese surrender after the Second World War.

Want Unified Korea

The Allied political aim is a unified, independent Korea. Indoctrinated and armed by Russia, the North Koreans plunged across the parallel June 25. The historic initial U.N. armed peace-enforcement action crushed the red invaders in three months.

To mop up the remnants, the U.N. forces waited only for completion of the build-up eastward from the Seoul-Inchon west coast area and for final decisions on strategy.

The red regime continued to ignore surrender ultimatums first aired by MacArthur last Sunday and repeated since.

In one of the few remaining actions in South Korea, American marines punched northward Thursday from rubbled Uijongbu, 20 miles south of 38 and about 11 miles northeast of Seoul. Resistance was scattered.

On the east coast, the South Korean 3rd division was 60 miles north of the red border. It was within 25 miles of Tongchon, where the communists might attempt a stand in defence of Wonsan, an industrial centre some 25 miles farther north.

By Thursday morning, at least 20,000 Korean republican troops were already in communist territory — the capital division inland and the 3rd on the Sea of Japan coast.

Philadelphia Whiz Kids Tie Yankees 1-1 at End of Fifth In Second Game World Series

By JACK HAND

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 — (AP) — New York Yankees held a 1-0 lead over the Philadelphia Whiz Kids today after three innings in the second World Series game before 33,000 fans.

Gene Woodling's second straight infield single off Robin Roberts in the second scored Jerry Coleman who walked and took third on Allie Reynolds' single.

The Yanks nicked Roberts for a run in the first of the second on a walk to Jerry Coleman followed by singles by Reynolds and Woodling. Woodling's infield hit to shortstop Hamner scored Coleman from third base to give the Yanks a 1-0 lead.

First Inning Yankees

Woodling beat out a slow bounder for a single.

Seminick took Rizzuto's foul pop behind home plate.

Berra punched a looping single into short left and Woodling advanced to third.

Goliat took DiMaggio's lazy pop behind second. Woodling attempted to score after the catch but changed his mind and scrambled back to third to beat Waitkus' relay.

Mize raised a short foul pop up to Seminick.

No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

First Inning Phillies

Waitkus rapped sharply to Coleman.

Ashburn dropped a double as Bauer failed in an attempt to make a shoestring catch.

Sisler looked at three balls, then took three strikes, swinging at the last.

Coleman made a nice stop and throw to retire Ennis.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Second Inning Yankees

Brown rapped a liner right into the hands of Ashburn.

Jones caught Bauer's foul pop.

Coleman walked on a full count.

Reynolds rapped Roberts' first pitch over Waitkus' head for a single, Coleman going to third.

Woodling also swung at the first pitch and sent a long foul into the upper right field stands missing a home run by a dozen feet.

Woodling got an infield single with a twisting grounder between third and short.

Hamer tried a force at second but Reynolds easily beat the throw to that bag and Coleman crossed the plate.

Rizzuto sent a high soft fly to Ashburn.

One run, two hits, no errors, two left.

Second Inning Phillies

Jones was called out on strikes.

Hamner belted a triple, his long low liner bouncing off the right-centre field wall.

With a 3-2 count, Seminick drove a long foul deep into the upper field stands, then slapped a two-bouncer to Coleman just beyond the infield grass. Hamner held third as Coleman threw out Seminick.

Goliat sent an easy fly to DiMaggio.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees

Berra went down swinging.

Goliat gathered in DiMaggio's short fly.

Mize looped a lazy single into right field.

Ashburn gathered in Brown's high fly.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Phillies

Roberts struck out.

Waitkus lined a double barely inside the foul line in the right field corner

Ashburn fouled out to Berra.

Sisler went out on a weak roller to Coleman.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Fourth Inning Yankees

Bauer popped to Hamner.

Coleman was credited with a two-bagger when his drive into centrefield took a bad bounce which Ashburn was barely able to knock down with his bare hand.

Reynolds walked on a 3-2 pitch.

Woodling fouled to Sisler.

Rizzuto lined to Ennis.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Phillies

Ennis struck out.

Jones raised a high pop up to Mize.

Hamner walked on four pitches.

Hamner stole second.

Seminick went swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Fifth Inning Yankees

Berra popped to Hamner.

DiMaggio sent a towering pop up to Jones behind the infield grass.

Mize went down swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Phillies

Goliat singled between first and second. Coleman's off-balance throw sailed over Mize's head but Berra's alert backing prevented Goliat advancing.

Roberts attempted to sacrifice but popped to Reynolds as Goliat scrambled back to first.

Waitkus' sharp grounder bounced over Coleman's head for a single, Goliat going to third.

Ashburn flied to Woodling, Goliat scoring after the catch. It was the Phillies first run of the series.

Sisler fouled to Mize.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Man Owes Life To Heroism of Parish Priest

Padoue, Que., Oct. 5 — (CP)—Charles Deschenes, in whose home fire that destroyed a section of this village in Matapedia county is believed to have started, owes his life to Rev. Albert Lamontagne.

(The Canadian Press Wednesday erroneously identified Father Lamontagne as Father Albert Lamont. The error was due to difficulty of communication with this isolated village.)

The Priest of St. Antoine de Padoue de Kempt parish didn't let his wooden leg interfere with saving from death his parishioner, who was trapped in the burning house.

After Father Lamontagne turned in the alarm, Deschesnes who was working in the church, rushed to his home thinking his wife was trapped in side.

He was overcome by dense smoke and was thrown into the cellar when the floor caved in. Father Lamontagne limped into the house and pulled Deschesnes to safety.

Unable to Escape From Back Seat Women Drowned

Kapuskasing, Ont., Oct. 5 — (CP) —Two women were drowned and two men escaped Wednesday night when the car in which they were riding toppled over a temporary bridge across the Opasitika River, 30 miles west of Kapuskasing.

Mrs. Laura Sauve, 42, of Unionville near Smooth Rock Falls, and her 19-year-old daughter, Mrs. Yolande Levieurer, mother of a 13-month-old child, were drowned when the car which was driven by Mrs. Sauve's 28-year-old son, Asides, toppled through the bridge.

Yound Sauve and his father, Moise escaped death when they were able to free themselves from the car. Asides held the man's head above water. They were later pulled from the water.

The father suffered head injuries and hospital authorities later described his condition as serious. Four persons were drowned at the bridge last year in two similar accidents.

FIFTY INJURED AS CRACK FLIER HITS TANK CAR

Explosion Rocks Mid-Town Erie, Pa.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 5. (AP)—A New York Central Railroad flier, clipping along at better than a mile a minute, smashed into a derailed oil-tank car early today, setting off an explosion which rocked mid-town Erie.

Miraculously, no one was killed.

Between 40 and 50 were injured but none was burned, although flames from the burning tanker leaped high into the air and lapped at some of the cars on the palatial westbound New England States express.

The engineer of the Boston-to-Chicago express had no chance to keep his train from hitting the tank car. It was hurled into the express' path from a freight train travelling eastbound on a parallel track. Both he and his fireman escaped injury.

Only one of the 14 cars on the streamliner caught fire. It was the dormitory car for dining car employees. More than 10 occupants scrambled to safety through a lone exit which remained open. One unidentified waiter said:

"Everyone just scrambled around. We had been sleeping. Some of us got two left shoes, some got one shoe some got none. But we all got out of there in a helluva hurry".

50 Firemen at Scene

Nearly 50 firemen, aided by as many police, were at the scene, only five blocks from midtown Erie within minutes after the 1:15 a.m. E.S.T. crash. They kept the fire from engulfing the train and aided in rescuing passengers.

Nearly 50 passengers were trapped in the only car which overturned.

Twelve of the injured passengers were admitted to hospitals but are not in critical condition.

At least 10 others on the express, including one crew member, were treated and discharged. So were two of the rescuers who battered windows with their bare fists to free the injured.

Upwards of 20 doctors reached the scene within 30 minutes. They treated many persons on the spot for minor injuries.

Eleven cars of the train were cast about like jackstraws. Their all-steel construction not only kept them from catching fire but prevented a catastrophe, said an unidentified crew member.

$60,000 FIRE LOSS

Toronto, Oct. 5. (CP)—A $60,000 fire Wednesday night damaged the upper section of the Elm Park dance hall at nearby Woodbridge. For a time it threatened to spread to a new $100,000 arena.

Battle-Weary S.Koreans Manage Grin, Marching Beyond 38th

By HAL BOYLE

In North Korea, Oct. 5 (AP)—Here is what it is like above the 38th parallel in North Korea:

An exhausted South Korean soldier sleeps in a muddy ditch, his unheeding head pillowed in the yellow dust of the roadway.

Two lines of bone-weary South Korean soldiers limp past over the stones and ruts of the road they have trudged along for more than a fortnight from deep in South Korea.

The stones have torn to tatters the rubber-soled shoes of some soldiers, and they have replaced them with peasant slippers of rice straw.

But they manage a sweat-stained grin as they pass. A battered truck wheezes by — so decrepit it seems held together only by the morale of the men in it. But troops jammed in it are singing, shouting and waving small black-red-and-white flags of the Korean Republic.

The marching troops look at the riders enviously, then turn their heads to the yellow road and break into the shuffling trot typical of their infantry.

Marching with them and shouldering part of their equipment are 20 or more boys less than 10 years old. They are camp followers attracted by the joy of going with the winning army — and getting a bowl of free rice.

Behind the column slowly stumbles a line of civilian laborers. Each is burdened with a wooden pack to which is tied a fresh-cut log almost as wide as the road and more than six inches think. The logs are used to bridge streams. They appear heavy enough to break the back of a longshoreman but the Korean workers apparently can tote them for miles.

And behind them for hours come soldier stragglers — men too worn out to keep the killing pace, middle-aged men limping painfully, young wounded men with blood-stained bandages on cheeks, arms and legs.

But they want to catch up with the column, for there are no kitchen trucks in this army to wheel back the rice ration.

Some distance back is a large sign lettered in a language the South Korean soldier doesn't understand. The language is English and the sign says:

"You are crossing the 38th parallel. Courtesy of the Third Rok (Republic of Korea) Division. We were first."

Retreating Army Left Many Bodies In Exposed Mounds

82 Impaled on Bamboo Sticks After Food Taken

By RELMAN MORIN

Tokyo, Oct. 5 — (AP) — The communist retreat trail back to North Korea is strewn with buried and unburied bodies of an officially-estimated 25,000 murdered men, women and children in South Korea.

Where they could, the reds covered the evidence of horrible brutalities with earthen entrenchments. In haste of retreat, they left many bodies in exposed mounds at some places.

Some of the victims were American soldiers taken prisoner by the communist army, but the total of these is not known.

American officers say the overall 25,000 figure is only a minimum estimate. The tragic total may run much higher.

South Koreans say most of the victims were bludgeoned, speared, burned or hacked with hatchets for opposing communism.

Mass graves, large and small, are being turned up in city, town, village and hamlet along the bloody retreat route.

Many Not Opened

Many graves have not yet been opened by American officers probing the mass murders.

U. S. officers fear that "several hundred" Americans whom the reds took into North Korea may be massacred before the onrushing United Nations forces can reach them.

Partial figures compiled to date from official sources show the following murder toll:

Seoul area Sept. 16: Sept. 25; 10,000 and possibly more.

Taejon, Sept. 27: between 5,000 and 6,000, including some Americans.

Wonju, Oct. 1: between 1,000 and 2,000, including some Americans.

Chinju, Sept. 22: twelve American soldiers.

Yosu, Sept. 27: 200.

Chongju, no date: 2,400.

Suchon, Sept. 29: 280.

Yangpyong, Sept. 23 to Sept. 29: 700.

Mokpo, Sept. 28: 500.

These are the large-scale slaughters already known. How many more will be uncovered as the inquiry proceeds can only be estimated, officers say. But if the gruesome ratio holds elsewhere, they expect to find "450 to 500 in every fair-sized town."

More to be Probed

The War Crimes Investigation Section of the Judge-Advocate's Division has between 20 and 30 other major cases on file but not yet investigated. The places and dates have not been disclosed.

Along with them there are countless other instances in which the North Koreans killed the members of a single family in a small village.

There are others in which North Korean troops driven into the mountains came out at night probably looking for food and then killed the residents of a village.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported one such at Changhung near Kunsan which occurred last Monday. The reds armed only with bamboo spears, methodically impaled 82 people, including children, after they took the food.

The Wonju tragedy reported by AP correspondent William Jorden apparently was a quasi-military operation when it started. But it quickly became another massacre of civilians.

Killed U.S. Officers

Jorden said the North Koreans first overran a South Korean command post, killing five American officers along with South Korean officers. The [illegible] then turned on the civilians [illegible] killed between 1,000 and 2,0[illegible]

In most cases, however, the [illegible] cut down their victims for political reasons.

AP correspondent Ben Price, reporting the discovery of the trench graves at Taejon, said the condition of the bodies indicated the South Koreans were killed deliberately and without haste.

Most were shot or bayonetted, but some had been beaten to death with clubs and rubber hoses and some killed with axes and hatchets.

The 280 put to death at Suchon were burned apparently in a giant incinerator.

At Yangpyong, near Seoul, some of the 700 also were burned to death. The charred bodies of some small children were found among the ashes of their parents. An accurate count may show that as many women and children as adult men were killed, official sources say. The reds executed whole families of known anti-communists.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies are mainly sunny over Southern Ontario today. Considerable cloud covers northern Ontario where a few light showers were reported in advance of a new cold wave that moved southward from the James Bay region last night.

This new cold wave will move only slowly southward today and is not expected to advance beyond the Kirkland Lake region. On Friday the cold air will retreat slowly northward.

In southern and central Ontario skies will continue sunny on Friday with temperatures rising to the mid-60s by afternoon.

Darts into Side Of Truck Escapes Serious Injury

Darting into the side of a passing pick-up truck, six-year-old Doug Duminie, R.R.4 Belleville, escaped serious injury early yesterday afternoon near St. Michael's School.

Police stated that the school guard had directed some children across the street when the Duminie boy failed to wait for his turn to be escorted and darted into the side of a truck driven by Leonard Rashotte, 34 Ponton St., employee of Howe and Hagerman plumbers.

The lad jumped up and ran away from the scene and suffered only a knee abrasion.

W. Barrie Pres. Quinte Radio Club

William Barrie engineer with Northern Electric, was named president of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club at their first meeting of the fall season held Wednesday evening at the Kiwanis Centre.

Other officers named included Roy White as vice-president, Charles Young, treasurer, and William Coombs, secretary. Directors include James Jarvis, Gordon Turney, Harry Pitt and Harold Carruthers, who will also act as bulletin editor.

Guest speaker for the evening's meeting which was attended by about 35 radio "hams" was J. Jarvis who addressed the members on functions of the amateur radio antenna. A resolution from the club will be forwarded to the Canadian general manager of the American Radio Relay League regarding the problems of television interference as it affects the amateur.

There was a lucky draw for prizes, while as result of a radio parts box social a large number of radio parts changed hands. All persons interested in amateur radio were invited to attend the club's regular meetings held the first Wednesday of each month.

REPRESENTATIVES CONFER

Montreal, Oct. 5. (CP)—Railway representatives and officials representing 15 international and two Canadian unions went back into conference today in an effort to find settlement of the wage-hour dispute that brought a nine-day strike in August.

There was no comment from any, but many of the participants wore smiles.

Unless a settlement between the parties is reached by Oct 15, a government-appointed mediator will have the final say.

185 Crippled, Other Children Enjoy Circus in Toronto, Guests of District Shrine Club

(By Staff Reporter)

One hundred and eighty-five crippled and other kiddies were kings for a day yesterday.

And not one of these juvenile monarchs would have traded his or her thrills for the sceptre of a literal ruler.

Drawn for all parts of Hastings and Prince Edward counties, these children, less fortunate than their counterparts had the time of their young lives.

Their courtiers were the red-fezzed members of the Belleville District Shrine Club. Their royal coaches were seven buses that conveyed them to and from their "court" the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, where they thrilled open-mouthed to the color and excitement of Morton's Shrine Circus.

For the majority of them, the day and its thrills opened a new vista of the world in which they live. They stared at the strange things called street-cars. They stood on bus seats, eyes shining, hands clasped in sheer wonder at strange city sights. They gasped in amazement at police officers riding horses. They huddled in happiness in the crowd-packed Gardens where 13,600, most of them kiddies like themselves, shrieked excitedly as the wonder of the circus unfolded before them.

Will Never Forget Day

It was a day, none of them will forget. It was a shining page in the book of their lives, at the best a more or less humdrum existence. From 50-year-old Jim Patterson, Trenton, crippled all his life, to winsome little Miss Sharon Rushlow, 5, whose legs are encased in hard pieces of steel, these kiddies existed for a day in another world.

No other group could have been happier than these likeable youngsters. But there is one whose happiness derived from achievement perhaps equalled that of their little charges.

This reporter does not know what it cost the Belleville District Shrine Club in dollars and cents. Nor does he care. Neither do the Shriners. But whatever the cost in money, the investment in human happiness was repaid tenfold. One did not need the use of his eyes to see that.

Shining-eyed youngsters, their cups of happiness overflowing thrilling to the sights and excitement of a strange experience, provided full return for the investment of money and effort put forth by these foresighted hard-working members of the Shrine.

Many Unable to Walk

The kiddies, some of them unable to walk; others lying in stretchers in ambulance cots; more hobbling along in limb-supporting gadgets of steel; others torn from family ties by unfortunate family circumstances, rode in royal state.

They rode like the cavalcades of old through city, town and hamlet, the right of way their own, under police protection and to the applause of crowds of people who lined the streets as they passed through, monarchs for the day in their own right.

In crowd-packed Toronto, they rode proudly, the way cleared by the shrieking sirens of motor cycle police. Traffic was halted as the cavalcade swept through the busy section. Hard-boiled metropolitan residents, accustomed to strange parades and cavalcades in their city, paused in their activities. The most of them smiled. The women waved their hands. City "kids" gazed a bit enviously perhaps at the sight of wonder-struck boys and girls who were cramming seventy seconds of enjoyment into every single minute.

Lacked for Nothing

They lacked for nothing. The Shriners saw to that. The cavalcade stopped at intermittent points to allow the kiddies to stretch their legs. They gorged themselves on fresh milk, sandwiches, bananas, cookies, apples, popcorn, soft drinks at intermittent intervals. In the Maple Leaf Gardens, they were the envy of thousands of other children as the Shriners regaled them with ice-cream and popcorn.

They wore miniature paper Shrine fezzes of red with blue tassels. From the Gardens they brought "monkey and fairy" souvenirs on canes, provided by a last-minute dip into personal pockets of their hosts. They had balloons, horns and other gadgets dear to the heart of a child on a holiday. During the journey they sang, joked, laughed and stared. But they were well behaved. They had no time for misdemeanors. They were enjoying this strange experience too much to think of boyish pranks.

Human Interest

But there was human interest, too in this moving drama of children on holiday. The greater majority of the young guests were wards of the Children's Aid Society. Under the guise of happy enjoyment, not a few heart-touching scenes were enacted as ing scenes were enacted as brother met brother and sister, estranged through unfortunate family circumstances, for the first time in one or two years.

If the Shrine Club did not accomplish a single thing other than the bringing together of these estranged youngsters, they were well repaid for their efforts.

The five-bus cavalcade which left the Shrine Club here at 9:30 yesterday morning swelled to seven as buses from Foxboro and Picton joined the convoy. The cavalcade was escorted by two Ontario Provincial Police cruisers in charge of Corporal A. J. Morden.

Escorted by Band

At Trenton, the cavalcade was met by the crack drum and bugle band of the Trenton RCAF station and escorted through crowded streets to the town limits.

Accompanying the cavalcade were two ambulances, those of the Belleville Burial Company, and the G. M. Hicks Funeral Parlors of Picton. Five intermediate nurses of Belleville General Hospital were present. A registered nurse rode in the Bush Ambulance which conveyed crippled Don Baxter, a war veteran to Toronto. Seven members of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division No. 150 under the direction of superintendent Mrs. R. J. McCluskie were distributed on the buses.

Red-fezzed Shriners were in charge of each bus and looked after the well-being of their charges.

In the Hick's ambulance rode crippled eight-year-old "Tiny" Reynolds of Belleville, whose shining eyes and winsome smile bespoke his enjoyment and happiness.

Frank Hockaday, well-known RCAF ventriloquist and his equally well-known "Willie McGuire" bus-hopped at stops, providing entertainment for the kiddies who litterally shrieked their appreciation.

Met at Memorial

The cavalcade was met at the Scarboro War Memorial by a detachment of motorcycle police from the Toronto Police Department. Sirens screamed as the "cops" held up traffic and escorted the party direct to the Maple Leaf Gardens The motorcycle squad escorted the party to the monument on their return journey.

Two incidents marred an otherwise perfect party. Eight miles east of Oshawa a motorist crashed into the police cruiser driven by Corporal Morden after he had pulled to the side to organize the cavalcade. No one was injured, but both cars were damaged.

Shortly after little Bonny Brant, 13, was stricken with appendicitis and rushed to Belleville Hospital by the Bush Ambulance. Two cases of "bus-sickness" were the only casualties of the trip.

The cavalcade arrived here about ten o'clock and the kiddies sent to their respective destinations by automobile. Everyone was tired but happy, and weary Shriners smiling their own happiness said reluctant farewells to their guests of the day.

Fine Organization

The tour was a masterpiece of organization. It is no easy task to convey nearly two hundred kiddies to Toronto by bus, feed, entertain and look after them. Potentate's Aide Dr. Russell Scott, chairman in charge of the special committee, who worked like the well-known horse, gave full credit to his Shriner colleagues. Each worked hard and the program dovetailed into a near perfect whole. While Shriner Scott and his committee looked after details in Belleville and en route Shrine Club President D. L. Storey went to Toronto on Tuesday and completed arrangements with the Maple Leaf Gardens. Proof of his efforts was seen in the splendid seating accommodation allotted to the Belleville party.

The Children's Aid Society was represented by Mrs. Laura McLauchlin and Mrs. Mabel Marshall.

Shriners on Trip

Shriners who made the trip and acted as "daddies for the day" included Mayor Jack Allin; L. Arthur Young; Tom Lewis, Bryson Reid; Fred Rawson; Charles M. Cawker, Lionel Crawford, Aubrey Coe, Orliff Lloyd; Jack Bush, Ken Smith, W. A. Holway, Garn Dobbs, Ed. Way, G. M. Hill, Dr. Russell Scott, Ken Vivian and from Picton came Brian Dodds, Clarence Jones and Nesbitt McKibbon.

Those who contributed cars for pick-up of children included Ken Campbell, Bruce Smith, John Weese, Clayton Metcalfe, Bob Boyce, Bill Brown, Doug McIntosh, Jack Baker, Harry Rollins, John Fisher, Fred Reid, Norman Banfield, Fred Rawson, Charlie Cawker, Ken Vivian, Jack Bush, Ken Smith, Fred Reid, Orliff Lloyd and Ed. Way.

The Shrine committee paid special tribute to the generosity of the Checker Taxi Company here who picked up and delivered children from all parts of the district at no cost.

Buses used for the trip included three from the Rawson Bus line, Belleville, two from the Rathbun Bus Line, Trenton, and one each from the Wannamaker Bus Line, Foxboro and the McGinnis Bus Company of Picton.

Following is a list of the children who were guests of the Shrine Club. Many were from the district with five coming from Coe Hill.

St. Michael's Win Close One From Albert

St. Michael's Academy senior rugby team started off the season with a win when they downed the Albert College seniors by a score of 12 to 10. The play although very loose, was as close as the score would indicate, both teams doing a lot of fumbling.

Albert College blocked the first St. Mike's boot, but the boys in green recovered the kick for a gain. Play ranged around centrefield for most of the first half, but John Munro of St. Mike's pulled off a brilliant run, when he caught an Albert punt on his own 40-yard line and sifted around the end of the opposition to go all the way for a major score, which was converted. The score remained 6 to 0 for St. Michael's until the last play of the first half, when after a march down the field Harris of Albert crossed the line for a five-pointer, which was not converted.

In the second half — Albert again got a break when they recovered their own kickoff on the St. Mike's 20, but a fumble on the next play lost them the ball. Play ranged even, until St. Mike's unleashed a forward pass play from centre field which netted them another touchdown; shortly after missing the convert, an Albert fumble paved the way for another single point to make the score 12 to 5.

Late in the third quarter line plunging took Albert down to the St. Mike's 15 yard line, and Fitzsimmons broke through centre for a major score to make the score 12 to 10. During the last quarter, play ranged from one end of the field to the other, but Albert were unable to dent the St. Mike's defence and the score at the end of the game, the honors going to the Green and White boys by two points.

Green and Munro were the stars for the winners, although the latter sat on the bench most of the game with an injury to his shoulder. Green also was on and off a lot, but managed to spark the team when he was on.

The best for Albert were Harris and Fitzsimmons on the defence, and McCaw, Passmore, and Simard stood out defensively. The Albert line held well throughout the whole game, but weakened around the ends.

Sales Training Films Will be Shown in City

Appreciating that increased competition in business demands that the sales efficiency of employees be increased, the Retail Merchants' Section of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce has arranged for a series of sales training films to be shown in this city. The films will be shown in an effort to increase efficiency of sales staffs.

The first of the series will be held Tuesday evening in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra School, when two films will be shown. These include "Mr. Stewart Answers the Question" stressing the need for employee training and introduction of modern methods to meet increasing competition. The other film to be shown is "Selling America", giving the five basic rules to successful modern selling.

These films will be shown free of charge to Chamber of Commerce members and their staffs. Other programs are to be presented on October 17 and 24th.

Belleville Lock Says Picketers Violate Injunction

Toronto, Oct. 5—(CP) — The Belleville Lock Company of Belleville, Ont., today asked the Ontario Supreme Court to impose jail sentences on two strikers who, the company said, violated an injunction against picketing.

The company charged Douglas Tyner and Glenn Bedell with illegal picketing. Mr Justice Dalton Wells adjourned the hearing until tommorrow.

He granted an injunction last Sept. 30, prohibiting Tyner, a union organizer, and six employees, including Bedell, from picketing the plant. The injunction was extended yesterday to Oct. 12.

Some 100-odd members of the United Electrical Workers, (Ind.) walked out Saturday in what the company calls an illegal strike. The workers protested the dismissal of about 80 employees a week ago.

The Union has been trying for eight months to renegotiate a new bargaining agreement with the company.

The company was granted a court order, prohibiting Union organizer Douglas Tyner and six employees from interfering with anyone seeking to enter or leave the plant.

Will Continue Giving Lessons in Singing

Maurice Sinnett, until recently the director of the Albert College Conservatory of Music, announced that he is continuing to give lessons in voice production and singing in Belleville and Napanee.

Mr. Sinnett, who is choir director at Holloway St. United Church, was trained at the Royal College of Music, London, and from the age of five has had musical training. As a boy soprano, he won countless prizes in competition.

The student nurses' choir is also directed by Mr. Sinnett, and under him, is now rehearsing in a new cantata which will be presented at Christmas.

Siren Wakens Girl Sleeping For 40 Hours

Chicago, Oct. 5 — (AP) — A 10-year-old girl was aroused from a sleep of more than forty hours yesterday by a shrieking fire siren.

The girl, Patricia Kenerney, lapsed into a fitful sleep Monday night from which she could not be awakened.

Her father recalled that in August, 1949, Patricia slept for 14 days and finally was awakened by the sounds of a siren as fire engines passed her home.

Kenerney late yesterday explained his daughter's condition to Fire Lieut. John Mahoney. The fireman drove a fire truck to the Kenerney home and parked under the window of patricia's second - floor bedroom. The siren screeched and Patricia awakened.

Obituary

LATE THOMAS ERWIN

The funeral of the late Thomas Erwin was held from the Corrigan and O'Brien Funeral Home this Thursday morning. Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. Charles Church at Read by the Rev. E. Briceland, who also said the committal rites in St. Charles cemetery. There was a wealth of spiritual and floral offerings.

The bearers were Thomas McGraw, Michael Horrigan, Jerry Horrigan, Joseph Bennett, Joseph Nash and Thomas Phillips.

POLICE COURT

That it pays to ditch lights when meeting another car at night was learned today in county magistrate's court by a local motorist who paid $13 fine and costs for his oversight.

What the motorist did not realize when he failed to ditch his lights was that the approaching car was driven by a provincial police officer. The summons to court resulted.

David Ross Latone of Madoc, was sentenced to six months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when he appeared for sentence on a charge involving the theft of a battery and some tools taken from the plant at Deloro. Latone appeared in Madoc last week and was remanded for sentence to allow the court to determine his criminal record.

A charge against Clifford Reid, Shannonville, of allowing horses to run at large was dismissed by the magistrate owing to lack of evidence.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Mild selling appeared as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, reducing some early gains.

A handful of low-priced mining stocks held most of the trading limelight.

Paper stocks featured industrials, continuing yesterday's sudden strong late advances. Gains ranged from fractions to more than a point. The heavy demand brought out a flood of rumors on Bay St. of increases in the price of newsprint.

Steels, agricultures, foods and liquors were ahead in the groupings while utilities and several constructions sagged. Early advances ranged up to almost two points but were pared to fractions later.

Several gold stocks traded briskly for good gains. Villbona Mines was a feature and Ryan Lake in its first appearance attracted brisk dealings. Paymaster, yesterday's feature, slumped on profit-taking. Other golds weakened quietly.

Base metals firmed with Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou again in the spotlight.

Western oils sagged over a solid front. Losses ranged up to 15c.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Produce prices quoted on the spot market here this morning:

Churning cream: No. 1, truck price, 55 cents; delivered 58 cents.

Creamery prints: First grade, 58 cents.

Demand on the egg market was firm this morning and there was a good immediate delivery. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 60; A medium, 50; A pullet, 37-38; Grade B, 39-40; Grade C, 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 63-64; A medium, 55-56; A pullet, 41-42; Grade B, 43-44; Grade C, 32-33.

Butter solids: first grade, 55½-55¾ cents; second grade 53 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP) —Trading was slow at the Ontario stockyards today and prices were steady at the week's decline. Receipts: Cattle 90; calves 40; hogs 210; sheep and lambs 30. Left from yesterday were 2,300 cattle mostly stockers and plain killers.

Common to medium light steers and heifers sold for $19-$24.50; medium to good cows $17-$19.50; canners and cutters $12-$15; good stockers $26-$27.50 with a few tops at $28; common to medium stockers $23-$25.50.

Calves were $29-$31 for choice vealers; common to medium $19-$28.

Grade A hogs were $29.75; sows $24 dressed.

Lambs steady at $25.50 for good ewes and wethers with culls downward to $21; bucks $1 discount; good light sheep $13-$15 with culls downward to $6.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 5 (AP) — Cattle 250; good Holstein cows 18.00-19.50; good dairy type heifers for slaughter 20.00-22.00; good weighty sausage bulls 21.00-23.00.

Calves 100; good and choice handyweight calves 36.00-38.00; culls and strongweight bobs 26.00-28.00.

Sheep and lambs 100; market not established.

HOG PRICES

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Truck hogs were $29.25 at Stratford, Ont., today.

Dressed, grade A hogs, delivered, were $29 at Hull, Que.

CANADIAN DOLLAR

New York, Oct. 5 — (CP) — The Canadian dollar was down 1-4 of a cent at a discount of 5 1-4 per cent in terms of United States funds in mid-day foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was down 1-8 of a cent at $2.80 1-8.

72.2 Bus. Wheat Yield Per Acre

Hensall, Oct. 5 — (CP) — An extraordinary yield of 72.2 bushels of wheat an acre was reported today from the farm of Harry G. Strang. He credited his abundant crop — which compares with an average of 40 bushels in the rest of Huron county — to two bushels of registered seed from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Strang had a clear margin over other growers in the county. He now is eligible for the grand award at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto next month.

PICTON

Council Authorizes Payment Of $35,000 in Full Settlement For McFarland Contracting Co.

Picton—Settlement of the litigation between the McFarland Construction Co., and the Town of Picton, related to the sewage disposal system, took place at Tuesday night's meeting. The original writ of the company against the town for $146,592.20 to be withdrawn, and also the town's counter-claim.

The settlement involves payment by the town to the company of $35,000, which brings the total of all payments to $626,769.64.

The latter sum if complete settlement is related to a proposal contained in a letter written by the company on May 4, 1948, and accepted by town council, which offered to complete the sewerage system, including 1,000 private drain connections at a cost not to exceed $625,000. The final settlement figure, confirmed by town council on Tuesday is, therefore, $1,769.64 more than the previously named figure of $625,000 and that $1,769 is related to various claims in the company's original writs for additional costs arising from the company's interpretation of sewerage disposal system contracts.

Agrees to Repairs

McFarland Co. agrees to make repairs to two defective points in the system and to post a bond in connection with defects which might appear in the system of laterals.

In a recorded vote, all members of council were in form of accepting the McFarland offer, which had been made at a private meeting a week ago, except Deputy Reeve R. Cockburn.

Against Advice

Council's action was against the advice of solicitor R. E. Nourse who said that settlement would free the company of liability for defects in the system and he foresaw great cost as a result. He would be agreeable to settlement if the firm would post a bond re laterals which might be found short and including a guarantee re possible finding of defects in the sewerage mains which might be found to be admitting sand. He claimed breaks indicated faulty construction.

Several members of council said the system is working in accordance with original plans, with a couple of exceptions.

Deputy Reeve Cockburn, vigorously opposed, charged the Mayor (W. Henley) was a "rubber stamp". Mayor Henley, who kept his temper, called the Deputy Reeve to order and there was an apology.

Reeve J. C. Cooper said supreme court action might run to $500 a day.

Councillor L. B. Calnan said the construction company had carried out its work on the main contract under the supervision of the town's engineers and the work was certified and approved by the engineer. The guarantee period expired on June 30.

Stable Market For Potatoes Is Expected

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP) — Based on present crop expectations, a fairly stable market for the lowly Canadian spud during the next year is indicated.

Government agricultural experts naturally won't hazard a guess as to the price trend either to the producer or to the consumer, but they do point to reports that blight is reducing the potato crop.

If that happens, the feeling here is that producer prices, at least, won't go below what they are now. At present they are about 25 cents a bushel lower than a year ago.

Final official estimates of the 1950 harvest won't be available until mid-November, but a preliminary survey issued by the Bureau of Statistics three weeks ago placed the crop then at 55,363,000 hundredweight against 53,518,000 last year.

Adopt 5-Billion Air Plans Report

London, Oct. 5.— (Reuters)— Commonwealth minister have unanimously adopted a draft report detailing six-year $5,000,000,000-aid planes of India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo, they announced today.

The announcement was made in a treasury communique on the 10-day secret talks, which ended yesterday, among Commonwealth ministers and representatives of south and southeast Asian countries.

Hugh Gaitskell, British economic minister and chairman of the conference, today told a press conference the talks were "remarkably successful."

Gaitskell would give no details of the draft report until it is examined by the Commonwealth governments concerned.

Commonwealth countries presented at the talks were Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

Canada's representative was Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew.

Canada already has voted $400,000 as her share of financing the first year of a technical assistance program and is expected to vote more in the next fiscal year.

But the government has stressed that Canada's commitments in the Atlantic area will prevent her from playing in the Asian effort as big a role as she otherwise might.

No decision has yet been reached on just how the $400,000 will be spent. There have been some suggesitons that Canada send some of her technical experts to the Asiatic countries to help them develop and Canadian capital has been urged to invest there.

Czech Hockey Players on Trial At Prague

Prague, Oct. 5. (Reuters)—Several leading Czechoslovak hockey players arrested last March after Czechoslovakia withdrew from the world championships in London, went on trial before a state court today.

Proceedings opened in secret and neither the exact number of defendants nor the specific charge against them was known.

It was believed that four members of the team were being charged with slandering the state, resisting the security police, and possibly also with planning to leave Czechoslovakia illegally.

Czechoslovakia withdrew her team on the eve of the championships as the players were gathering at Prague airport to leave for London.

The next night, nine members of the team were reported to have been arrested after an incident with security police in a Prague bar.

COLISEUM APPROVED

London, Ont., Oct. 5. (CP)— The Ontario Municipal Board gave the city a green light today to build Queen's Park coliseum at a cost of $1,350,000.

The board, watch-dog over municipal finances, approved an expenditure of $350,000 upon the project over and above the $1,000,000 already provided in two votes because of "the danger of greatly increased cost if the present arrangements are not completed immediately."

Coastguard Boat Uses Grappling Irons For Three Fishermen

Ashtabula, O., Oct. 5 (AP) — A coast guard boat equipped with grappling irons today joined the search of Lake Erie waters off nearby Conneaut for three missing fishermen.

Early the hunt over choppy lake waters had been carried on by members of the Lake Erie Boating Association, a private club at Conneaut where there is no coast guard station.

The hunt was started after the three failed to appear for work Wednesday. Their wives went to Conneaut where one of the men's parked car and a boat trailer were found.

Shortly afterwards cushions, floorboards and an air tank identified as from the missing metal boat were found, police said.

Cub Pack Visits City Firehall

The members of the Eighth Belleville Cub Pack visited the firehall on Monday and were shown the various vehicles used by the firemen for the protection of property. Capt. Gerald O'Brien gave them a talk on fire prevention. The apparatus carried on the truck was explained by the firemen.

The pack was accompanied by the leaders, Miss Cunningham, Mrs. Moore, Miss Hartley and Mrs. Titterson.

Beef Pasture Lands Secured By Department

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) — The Ontario government has completed arrangements for the leasing of five demonstration beef pasture farms — a first step in a five-year program to help lower costs of beef production.

Announcing this Wednesday, livestock commissioner W.P. Watson said in a statement the program will seek to determine what can be done to increase the carrying capacity of pasture land. Farms selected were only carrying about 20 head of cattle per 100 acres during the summer months.

The farms are located in five important beef - producing counties — Ontario, Kent, Middlesex, Victoria, Bruce and Lanark. Arrangements are being made for local farmers in each county to pasture cattle on each farm.

Woman is Killed Near Merritton

Meritton, Oct. 5. (CP)—Mrs. Ethel Woolfe, 71, was killed Wednesday night when struck by an automobile, less than 50 feet from the spot where her father, Samuel Smythe, was killed by a train 15 years ago.

Leonard Wilton, 28, of Thorold, Ont., driver of the car, said Mrs. Woolfe stepped in front of him as she started to cross the street.

THIS MYSTERY OF BASEBALL

What is this mysterious thing called baseball? We are informed that two groups of men, one situated in New York, and the other in Philadelphia, are engaging in a series of baseball games which is called the World Series. This is certainly newsworthy, that a bunch of grown men called the Yankees and another called, strangely enough, the Phillies, should be playing games that seem to attract so much attention while the rest of the world goes on about its business.

We read that 38 million people will watch the games on television sets; that tickets for the series are almost impossible to obtain. Indeed, one man in this strange city of Philadelphia is offering tickets if a used car is bought from his lot.

Is all this hustle and bustle over a few ball games a sign of decadence in a modern world? Some psychologists and men in university and other research schools might think so. Very probably it is considered a release of emotions to be vitally concerned with whether a man named Konstanty or Roberts or Raschi will pitch the ball game. It seems that the distance of this or that wall from a spot called home plate is the pertinent question of the day.

We have a suspicion that there will be many grandmothers buried while the series is being played. Office boys will suddenly remember that their mother's mother whom they interred many sunny afternoons last year is due to get the same treatment again. Business men will forget about taxes and labor because they decide the series can't go on without them.

What mysterious quality does baseball have that makes strong men weak, and worried wives even more so? What is it in this game that sends writers into raptures of prose, and men on the losing side into pits of despair?

Authorities on one side claim that Abner Doubleday was the inventor of the game; on the other side, it is claimed that the game descended from the English "rounders." We would hazard a guess that if either Mr. Doubleday or the English knew to what heights this craze might rise, they might have hesitated.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS INCREASE

For the first six months of 1950 the number of motor accidents in the Province of Ontario is up 25.5 per cent over the number for the same period last year, that is 14,333 mishaps to 17,994 mishaps with cars. In this district No. 9 comprising the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Prince Edward there were 670 such accidents, or an increase of 20.3 per cent. The district is in the class of those counties under the average percentage increase for the Province. As far as percentage of accidents goes of the provincial total, this district stands at 3.7 per cent.

The greatest number of accidents of all kinds took place at street intersections (where there were 5,285 of which 24 were fatal.) The greatest number of fatal accidents for the entire province was on the straight road, namely 86. There were two fatal accidents at crossings where there was the protection of a man on duty or gates, three fatal accidents where there is an automatic signal, 13 fatal accidents where the crossing is unguarded.

The nature of the fatal injuries as reported for the first six months of the year shows the types of accident causing these fatalities. Most fatal injuries were fracture of the skull in 115 cases, 22 from fracture of the spine, 28 from other fractures, four from brain concussion, 11 from general shock, bruises and cuts, 88 from internal injuries, and one accident in which injury was only from cut glasses. In four cases death was due to drowning, two were cases of fatal burns and three were asphyxiation cases.

Condition of drivers as found by police investigation shows that 1,687 were suffering from extreme fatigue, three were in fatal accidents, 59 in personal injury accidents and 1,625 in property damage accidents.

There were reported 287 cases of intoxication reported, three being in fatal accidents and 87 in personal injury accidents.

Five to six o'clock in the afternoon appears to have been the most dangerous hour, 4 to 5 p.m., the next dangerous. Saturday claimed the largest toll of any day of the week.

Such facts as are brought out in the half-yearly departmental report on motoring and accidents reveal conditions and situations worthy of the attention of every driver, so that the roads and highways may be as safe as possible.

It is graceful in a man to think and speak with propriety, to act with deliberation and in every occurrence of life to find out and persevere in the truth—Cicero.

It is better for a city to be governed by a good man than even by good laws. — Aristotle.

FREEDOM

These are what freedom holds for man:
The right to do the best he can;
Worship and music, dance and mirth;
The products of the fertile earth;
A life enriched with pride and love;
A mind content and God above.

These under freedom man can gain:
The wisdom all the books contain;
The skill his chosen task requires;
Achievement of his own desires;
A home held sacred and secure
Which only justice can assure.

'Tis only under freedom can
A man find ways to be a man.
Where tyrants rule the soul is shriven.
The body like a beast's is driven;
With every hope and dream
denied,
Man lives a creature
terrified.

Mackenzie's Column:

Middle-of-Road Policy on Korea Doomed to Fail

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Efforts of middle-of-the-road U.N. members headed by India to reconcile the divergent Korean peace plans of Russia and the western powers were foredoomed to failure.

There is no common ground upon which the communist and the democratic blocs can meet where ideological matters are involved. They are so diametrically opposed that any attempt to bridge the differences is like trying to carry water on both shoulders.

The western program, supported by a majority of U.N. members, called for the complete defeat of the North Koreans, who have been condemned as aggressors by the peace organization. The Soviet Union demanded immediate cessation of hostilities and complete withdrawal of U.N. troops—a plan which would save the North Koreans from complete disaster. The Indian bloc would order cease-fire but wouldn't withdraw U.N. troops immediately—a gesture to both sides.

No Compromise

The position was impossible. Andrei Vishinsky himself told newspaper men that there was no chance of compromise between the Soviet and the majority plans.

The Indians delegation naturally has been following directions from Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi. In view of this, it is note-worthy to find him making a major pronouncement regarding Korea in a speech Tuesday at the meeting of the Institute of Pacific Relations in Lucknow. And this takes on special significance in view of the fact that he seems to have been adopting the role of Asiatic leadership in recent months.

Seeds of Conflict

Nehru said in his address that the Korean war contains "seeds of a mighty conflict." He warned military leaders not to carry it too far. That seems to fit the stand taken by the Indian delegation in the U.N.

Letter to the Editor

Explains Reasons for Raise in Prices

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

During the last meeting of the city council several comments were made regarding barber shops of this city and I would appreciate space in your paper to point out the following facts.

Our shop is open for inspection and for the convenience of the public eleven hours a day, five days every week and we welcome anyone who cares to come to inspect our modern equipment and sanitary conditions.

As most people will realize the cost of barber supplies, laundry, up keep, etc., has in some cases doubled in the past few years but it is just the last few months that we have finally raised the prices for our services.

During the war years when nearly everyone was making wartime wages, our prices were frozen at 35c for a haircut and 20c for a shave. Now that the price ceiling has lifted, we feel that we have a right to make a good living for the service we render to the general public, a service which at times is not a pleasant one for the barber, when some of our good citizens of Belleville, after one visit too many to their favorite hotel, decide they need a shave, or is it a nap, to freshen up.

In the past few years the income of nearly everyone has increased, for example, not too many years ago the Fathers of Our City served on the council for the honor they received, but they too decided that honor was not enough.

We feel it is an honor to serve the good people of Belleville in our lowly manner, but we too have decided that honor is not enough.

Thank you Mr. Editor for the space in your daily paper, which by the way costs nearly twice as much as it did a year ago.

Hazen Stairs,
Treasurer of Barber Association.

Heaped-up Ruins

Are you disturbed over the present day educational situation? If you are not, you should be. The thing that should disturb us is not a federal aid bill but the fact that millions of children for the first time in history of our nation are growing up without religion playing any part whatsoever in their education.

They get little religious educaton in the home, inedequate religious education instruction in Sunday-school, and then in the higher education brackets find religion eliminated and very often attacked or ridiculed.

A situation of this sort will eventually come to a head in the life of a nation, and it will be a sore situation indeed. President Lord of Dartmouth writing many years ago and seeing the current which was setting in even in his day said: "The influence of our educated men will gradually undermine the fair fabric of our national freedom, and the ruins of our country will be heaped up for an everlasting memorial, that neither liberty, nor learning, nor wealth, nor arts, nor arms, can stay the decline of that people among whom the redeeming spirit of Christianity has no permanent abode."

There are words to ponder in the midst of widespread materialism.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WORK—THE MASTER KEY

I am always impressed with what nature is forever revealing to me—indeed, what is forever revealing to anyone who will but take note. I watched a brood of wild ducks this summer through my field glasses. The mother would go through a movement and then the young would follow in imitation. Another picture interested me. I saw a brood of ducks the first day from the shells—and by instinct they were swimming and diving for food. Born with work upon their first day of conscious life in the world.

Work is the master key in all nature and in all human life. This fact makes it all important that the right work—the work that brings the greatest satisfaction to the individual—should be clearly decided upon. Not merely work to keep one alive, but work able to inspire one to the greatest happiness and usefulness in the world. It isn't money that one earns that is superior in importance, but the influence one's work creates.

Think of those in laboratories, working long and late, seeking out means for a happier and safer way of life for the many. Work is the master key to their enthusiasm, and hope of victory. No one can expect rewards without working for them.

All work, whether manual or mental, should stir the imagination and create incentive within one to personal growth and to the desire for a wider usefulness. Hands that show the evidence of use have dignity written upon them, and they exhibit character as well as beauty. Study those mother's hands that have rocked many a baby, mended clothes cooked food, and in almost endless manner put them to continual use, and you have a picture of beautiful hands!

I like to take the hand of a worker in the soil. It is always a hand of hard work and daily toil. It's an honest hand, tried and true. Work is the master key of every farmer, fisherman or factory worker—without it there would be no achievement anywhere.

People who work with indifference cheat themselves of the greatest joy from work, which is love. We spread ourselves when we work with a love of it within us!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

These nasty, little feebly spiteful paper or book matches that you get all around the restaurants and hotels and cigar stores have won their battle with me. They have been around a great many years. But I resented them from the first.

A Texas cowboy gave me the name of them. "Gopher matches," he called them. "You light one and gopher another."

Three of them to a cigarette was average for me. And as for lighting a pipe, you might better employ a fire fly. For some years I resisted patent cigarette lighters because I supposed gasoline fumes would carbon up my lungs. So I spent countless dollars on the good old wooden match, the more saw-log the better. Any number of times, my pants pocket full of them would catch fire, and I would have a blister on my thigh and a hole in my pocket. But it was less painful, I figured, than the sort of incandescent blister one of those little books of matches gave you when it caught fire in the fat palm of your hand.

Then I took up lighters, and went through the whole gamut, as you doubtless have. The $5 kind, for Christmas. The $7 kind, bought on a care-free holiday trip Then the one dollar, sensible kind. There are probably fourteen of them, of various grades, at the back of drawers all over my house. All derelict.

Then the other day, a fellow gave me a handful of these book matches, when he saw me thumbing my latest and last patent lighter. (The 59 cent type.)

"Those are different," he said.

"You mean they won't light at all?" I suggested.

"No, take a look at them," he said. "The little patch you strike them on is on the back of the book, not on the front. You can't set fire to the book . . ."

Sure enough some genius had solved the problem of safely striking book matches. The grit was on the back. So I started using them. My pockets are full of them. They work better than they used to. Or else I am not in such a hurry as I once was. But I am typing this with one hand. The left hand is bandaged. I got hold of one of the earlier type of books.

INTO EACH LIFE SOME PAIN MUST FALL

Surgical operations in which the abdomen is opened and organs either cut into or cut out, are, as a general rule, productive of more after-pain than operations upon the superficial tissues or extremities.

A part — not all — of this pain is caused by distention of the bowel. It is not generally realized by the patient, that considerable air is swallowed during the course of a general anesthetic. Opening the abdomen and handling the bowel, invariably results in lessened muscular activity of the bowel for a few days. The air within the bowel is not forced along so readily, due to the muscular inactivity, with the result that "ballooning" of certain sections of the intestine fellows:

Over-distention of the intestine causes pain. In order to obviate an excess of air in the bowel, many surgeons have adopted the plan of inserting a slender tube through the nose and throat and thence into the stomach. When the anesthetic is commenced, suction is applied to the tube and maintained throughout the operation and until the patient has recovered consciousness. While this does not remove all the contained air in the entire intestinal tract, it does prevent an excess of air from causing added pain to the patient.

Adequate care of the patient, before operation, contributes greatly to his comfort afterward. This care involves needed medication, rest, possibly a blood transfusion and other measures. A patient operated upon as an emergency, must of necessity forego much of this preliminary attention.

Under the best of circumstances, some pain is an unavoidable aftermath. A patient contemplating an abdominal operation is well advised to make up his mind in advance to expect it. What a patient often cannot understand—and his family seems less able to understand—is why a "hypo" cannot be given often enough to keep him from suffering. The same inability to understand also seems to apply to sleeplessness—even without pain—which both patient and family are apt to regard as a dire menace.

Nothing can be simpler — or more effective — in the dreary hours of the night, than for the nurse to administer a hypo. Within a few minutes pain disappears and the patient may fall asleep. Simple and effective as it seems to be, such a procedure may cost the patient's life at worst and at best often leads to dangerous complications.

There is a clear-cut need and indication for an occasional typo after surgery. The directions for this medication are written down by the doctor, who in advance, estimates the needs of the situation, and prescribes the amount and time of the injection of the drug. Very rarely is this ever left to the discretion of the nurse.

Narcotic drugs for one thing, depress respiration and deprive the brain of needed oxygen. This lack of oxygen can be fatal. There is no such thing as a narcotic drug which can be given freely without disadvantage to a patient. The patient—and particularly his family should understand this and try to help the patient and the doctor both by not endlessly asking the doctor if he can't "do something" to relieve the pain. Of course he can. But the doctor is interested in seeing his patient live—something which relatives seem often not to understand.

Sleeplessness, in a patient who is not suffering great pain, is not always relieved by safe doses of sedative drugs. There is a limit here too. A narcotic drug is not given merely because the patient cannot sleep. It actually does not matter too much—insofar as his recovery is concerned—whether the patient spends a great deal of time sleeping or not. As long as he is resting, sleep is not highly essential.

You can help the situation greatly and aid both the patient and the doctor alike by not plaguing the doctor with the information that the patient is in pain. The doctor knows that as well as you do—much better in fact. A doctor who has operated upon a person often finds himself doctoring—or fighting off—the entire family afterward. Stay out of the act as much as you can. All hands will appreciate it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Fool Proof Cough Medicine

I wish to thank you for your fool proof cough medicine recipe (in booklet Call it C-R-I, for copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope). I have made up several batches of it, and it has brought relief every time I tried it. (M. G.)

Answer—So called because even if the baby gets hold of it and drinks some, it can do no harm. Few so-called "cough" medicines are as safe as that to have in the house.

Look up a Better Doctor

If one desired to have their (whose?) baby at home but could find no doctor who would take the case, what would you advise them (whom?) doing? (Rev.——.)

Answer—If you would make up your mind about it and let one person, say the prospective mother, or, better, two, for the prospective father should be in on it if he isn't a so-and-so, the problem would be less confusing. If the place where the couple live is fit for human occupancy a doctor worthy of the name can hardly refuse to "take the case." Questions like yours, sir. —oh, well, never mind, I'm off for the bowling green.

Lengthy Agenda Presented To Council for Consideration

Trenton—Town Council, with a crammed agenda, considered or acted on at least six different problems last week, and came up with one commendation, two definite decisions, referred one issue back to the Chamber of Commerce deferred one issue and gave one problem more consideration.

The commendation was directed at R. F. McInnes, for his "many hours of service in the interests of his fellow citizens" and instructed that "this formal recognition of Mr. McInnes' fruitful endeavor shall be held as exemplary to the citizens of the Town of Trenton."

Mr. McInnes recently resigned from the executive of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and has been forced to curb his activities as Boy Scout Commissioner, chairman of the Board of Education and president of the Rotary Club because of ill health.

Complaints Registered

In the "definite decision" bracket, Council heard complaints from town residents who objected to the building of a garage in a residential area. At the present time, there is nothing on the town books to prevent a man from building any place, and Council moved to speed a zoning by-law through as soon as possible. The zoning committee, however, is working on a by-law which will give the town engineer power to refuse building permits if the proposed structure does not conform to the area in which it is to be built.

The only way to "stop indiscriminate building," one councillor said, was to "get the zoning by-law through as soon as possible."

The second decision was one to accept the tender of Dominion Securities, Toronto, on the town's hospital debenture. The debenture for $125,000 was sold at $100.78 per $100, and will bear interest at ¼ per cent the first ten years, and ½ per cent the final ten years.

Petitions Presented

The issue referred back to the Chamber of Commerce was an old one, having to do with the hours of closing stores. Petitions by three classes of merchants were presented to the council, and council asked that the C. of C. take them back for reconsideration. They felt that the petitions might cause some discord and hard feeling between merchants, and urged that the whole thing be reconsidered.

Each of the missives was signed by more than 75 per cent of the merchants involved in the three classes. There was one for the hardware merchants and builders' supplies section, one for electrical appliance and furniture stores, and one for dry goods, clothing, shoes and millinery.

The Chamber of Commerce handled the petitions at the request of the majority of the merchants, and was not promoting the deal in any way, the manager, Ezra W. Smith, said.

Defer Purchase

Council decided to defer the question of immediate purchase of land for the new high school. The site for the new building is suggested as immediately east of the town limits, between Spring St. and Dundas St. E., approximately ten acres. Total cost might be about $10,000.

Although the school is not to be built until 1953, the Board of Education asked that the land be procured immediately. Council felt that the matter could be laid over until the spring of 1951, when drainage facilities on the site could be better evaluated.

And the sixth move was to further investigate the possibility of starting to improve the North Trenton road, highway 33 north of the C.N.R. subway. Cost of repairing the road was estimated by the town engineer at $42,000. This amount would cover grading, basing and paving.

Sixteen Permits Issued During Month of Sept.

Trenton — Building-permit totals for the year 1950 soared to more than $260,000 this week as figures for September permits were released.

During the month, 16 permits were issued, with the top slots in money value going for a house and a business addition. The top two were each for $8,000, and were issued to W. J. Steenburg, of Lorne Ave., for a house, and to Mark Tripp, of King St., for a two-storey addition to the present business building.

Eleven of the permits exceeded a value of $500, and were issued, besides Steenburg and Tripp, to: Canadian Legion, Quinte St., $4,000 for renovations; G.W. Ketcheson, Dufferin St., $1,000 for a temporary dwelling; Mary Easton, Shuter St., $4,000, for a new dwelling; Claude Graham, Jr., Byron St., $6,800 for a new dwelling; E. F. Walt, 38 Marmora St., $6,000 for a new dwelling; A. A. Farrar, 158 McLellan Ave., $1,500 for a dwelling addition; B. W. Powers and Son, Front St., $1,000 for coal bins; A. Ray Fox, 98 Dundas St. E., $5,000 for a one-storey building, and Morris Westlake, $3,000 for a new dwelling.

Five permits to build garages, all under $500, were issued, and are lined up as follows: Leslie Pope, $300; Clarence Cassalman, 10 Leopold St., $300; Elsie Walker, 28 North Scott St., $200; L. Wentzloff, 201 Sidney St., $150, and Jack Pearson, $150.

U.S. Money Freer For Travellers To the States

Ottawa, Oct. 5—(CP)—The Finance Department Wednesday night announced that no special permits are required to take $50 or less in U.S. currency out of Canada.

A traveller crossing the Canada-U.S. border may take up to $50 U.S. and $50 Canadian without a permit.

As previously announced, the limitation on pleasure travel to the United States is no longer limited to $150 in a 12-month period. This limitation was imposed in November, 1947.

However, a Form H travel permit must still be obtained and surrendered to customs at the time of leaving Canada if a traveller is taking more than $50 in U.S. funds or more than a total of $100 in both U.S. and Canadian funds.

"Banks and other agents of the Foreign Exchange Control Board will, however, be authorized to approve Form H permits for amounts up to $500 per trip for business travel and up to a total of $500 during the calendar year for travel for other purposes," the announcement said.

"Applications for larger amounts may be referred to the board and will normally be approved for genuine travel expenditures in any reasonable amounts, having regard to the duration of the proposed journeys."

There is no change in the regulation prohibiting the mailing of money from the country without a permit. As before, such funds must be mailed through the banks.

WILL VISIT KINGSTON

Ottawa, Oct: 5 — (CP) — The Governor General and Viscountess Alexander will visit Kingston, Ont., Friday, it was announced Wednesday.

They will travel by train from their summer residence in Quebec and will arrive in Kingston at 1.25 p.m. EST.

During the visit, the Governor General will officiate at the placing of a corner stone for the main building of the Kingston Community Memorial Health and Recreation Centre.

WEDDINGS

McCOY—PIGDEN

Trinity United Church, Madoc, decorated with Autumn flowers and ferns was the setting for a pretty wedding at two o'clock, September 30, when Shirley Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Pigden, Madoc, was united in marriage to Lynn Allan McCoy, also of Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. McCoy. Rev. Mr. Lane performed the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mr. Stanley Hawthorne and Mr. Ramond Smith sang "I'll Walk Beside You" and "Tell Me Why".

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white satin with net off-the-shoulder yoke, long pointed sleeves, full skirt ending in a train, a lace edged net veil caught to her hair with a halo of beads and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses tied with white satin ribbon.

The bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Harris, wore yellow taffeta, lace hat and carried bronze roses. Dona Mary Tennyson as flower girl, was attired in sky blue taffeta and carried a nosegay of rosebuds and 'mums.

Mr. Eric McCoy, Toronto, brother of the groom, was best man and Mr. Russel Empey and Mr. Farley Vermilyea acted as ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the dining room being attractively decorated with pink and white streamers. Mrs. Hugh Empey and Miss Alberta McCoy poured tea. Mrs. Pigden received her guests in a dress of dove grey with black accessories and wore a corsage of red roses. Mrs. McCoy assisted wearing hunter's green with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to London, Ont., the bride donned a grey suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were in attendance from Port Perry, Toronto and Belleville.

Mr and Mrs. McCoy will take up residence at their farm near Madoc.

Women's Activities

AIKEN'S W.M.S.

The September meeting of Aiken's Auxiliary was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Wilmot Bailey with a good attendance.

Call to Worship was given by Mrs. C. McMullen.

Mrs. S. Spafford, in introducing the Worship Service theme, "The Spirit of the Cross," asked the members to think together of Japan. Flowers on display were to remind all of the love of beauty, a characteristic of the Japanese people. A poem written by Kagawa, a devout Japanese Christian, was read by Mrs. F. Moon.

Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. F. Scrimshaw gave Scripture readings. Mrs. McMullen led in responsive readings and silent prayers. Mrs. R. Marshall and Mrs. E. Hubble led in prayer for the Japanese people.

Mrs. P. Hamilton sang the solo "Holy Spirit Pray."

Mrs. F. Moon conducted an Intelligance Test on "What Do We Know About Japan."

The new Study Book was introduced, "The United Church Re-enters Japan," by Sybil Courtice.

On display were pieces of real China.

The first chapter topic is, "The United Church Re-enters Japan Through Relief and Reconstruction."

This begins with the surrender of the Japanese in August, 1945, the destruction in Japan, and of the appeal to American Christians from Tokyo. We heard of the American and Canadian relief sent to Japan. Presenting this chapter were Mrs. Spafford, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Moon, Mrs. Scrimshaw.

During the business period the hostess and program committee were thanked. A letter was read from Dorothy Pearson, missionary on furlough, thanking members for gifts from the society.

Plans were made for combined meeting on Oct. 25 to be held at Aiken's Church, when the society is to be "At Home" to members of White's, Stone's, Scott's, Wallbridge, Bridge Street, Tabernacle, Holloway Street churches.

It was decided to dispense with the regular October meeting.

Meeting closed with a hymn and the Benediction.

Refreshments were served during social half-hour.

AIKEN'S W.A.

Mrs. Fred Moon opened her home on Sept. 21 for the regular W.A. meeting.

With Mrs. W. Bush presiding, the meeting opened with the theme song. The 23rd Psalm was read by Mrs. W. Bailey. Mrs. Ken Jones gave a reading, "By the Still Waters." A hymn was sung and Mrs. E. Hubble led in prayer. Mrs. Lee Grills favored with a piano solo.

Thank-you letters were received from Mrs. Gordon Wilman, Mrs. Robert Bunnett and Mrs. Ken Bush thanked the society personally for flowers sent to her in the hospital.

Mrs. G. Denike and Mrs. E. Hubble offered to clean the church for October. Mrs. (Rev.) Neelands invited the ladies to her home for their next meeting, to be held at an earlier date, Oct. 5th., committee in charge to be Mrs. E. Hubble, Mrs. H. Denike, Mrs. G. Denike, Mrs. W. Jones, Mrs. D. McComb.

Several members reviewed the second chapter of the W.M.S. Study Book, "The United Church Carries on Through Reinforcements."

Mrs. Moon and program committee were thanked by the president for their services.

Hymn 483 was sung and Benediction repeated.

Mrs. Moon and assistants served refreshments.

PICTON

Picton — Mr. Ross Sedore and family of Enterprise were in town on Thursday, where they called on Mr. Sedore's sister Mrs. Dwight Reynolds, who is a patient in P. E. County Hospital, suffering from a broken hip. Mr. Sedore is in the wholesale lumber business and reports business extremely good at present, with stocks almost completely sold out, and the great need for experienced men to cut lumber this winter.

Miss Maggie Palmatier, Ferguson St., is a patient in P. E. county hospital.

Antiques Sold

At the auction sale at the home of Robert Thompson, Bloomfield Road on Friday afternoon several antiques belonging to the McDougall family were sold. One was an old trunk made of oak and of quaint design. This had been in the McDougall family for 150 years. It sold for 35c but the buyer was advised that Montreal antique dealers had recently paid fifty dollars for a similar antique trunk from this county. These are sold to theatrical producers as authentic stage period pieces or to museums.

School Teacher In Charge of Biggest Class

Margate, England, Oct. 5 (Reuters) —Alice Bacon, 40-year-old school teacher, has just been put in charge of her biggest class. She'll serve as chairman of the Labor party for the next 12 months, following her election to the post Tuesday at the party's annual conference here.

She'll be nominal leader of 6,000,000 party members during a crucial year which may see Labor's next struggle for re-election.

A party executive member for nine years and Member of Parliament for industrial northeast Leeds since 1945, Miss Bacon is the fifth woman to hold the office. Most recent was Education Minister "Red Ellen" Wilkinson who died in 1947.

Daughter of a Yorkshire miner, plump, brunette Alice Bacon has come a long way in politics since she joined the Labor party and made her first political speech at the age of 16.

She has represented her party at meetings and conferences in Canada, the United States, Russia—where she met Prime Minister Stalin in 1946— Austria and Palestine.

Miss Bacon has a fluent platform manner with a straight-from-the shoulder speaking technique that audiences like.

She succeeds Sam Watson, an executive of the National Union of Mineworkers, in the Labor party leadership.

Inspirational Talk Given WMS Meeting

On Tuesday, the combined societies of the Bridge Street W.M.S. held their Fall thank-offering meeting.

At 6:15 about 175 from afternoon and evening auxiliaries, the Mission Circle and C.G.I.T., sat down to a bountiful pot-luck supper. At the head table were presidents and leaders from each organization, Miss Clazie and Mrs. C. D. McLellan, the guest speaker, Mrs. Arthur Clare, president of Jubilee Evening Auxiliary, presided.

Mrs. May led an appropriate devotional period using the theme "Pray for Light and Guidance".

Mrs. Kenneth Bird closed the devotional period with a lovely solo "The Lord's Prayer".

After the offering Miss Loretta McDougall introduced Mrs. McLellan, president of the Belleville presbyterial, to the gathering. She spoke on the theme "Wonderful, Beautiful, Useful."

She opened with the thought of "how wonderful our hands are when working for us as a part of our bodies but very dead and useless if severed from us. It is the same with our eyes or other parts of our body.

"We change our bodies in seven years. Some one said 'The wisdom of Confucius' was made of rice and tea and the symphonies of Beethoven were made of sauerkraut. Christ used a body like ours when He was on earth and now He needs our bodies to work for Him.

"If we do His will we will be His dwelling place on earth.

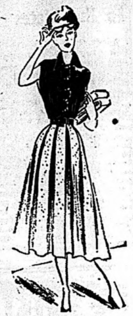
"All girls want to be beautiful. Emmerson said that "God's mark of beauty is virtue". Real beauty comes from an inward radiance. Selfishness, bad temper, kindness and co-operation all show in our faces. Walk in love—love God and your fellow men.

"Do you love Africans? Is there any one right in this room whom you don't love? You must start to change right here. Dr. Schwitzer just preached one sermon in America last year but a reporter said of him, 'The streets of Cleveland are more beautiful because Dr. Schwitzer is here.' He is not beautiful in a physical sense but his face radiates with the beauty of his spiritual life.

"Be useful—what are you going to do with your lives? There is nothing more satisfying than whole-hearted service for Christ. Your lives will then be wonderful, beautiful and useful."

Mrs. F. E. Houston expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mrs. McLellan for her splendid address.

Fall Fabric Favorites



Skirt and blouse.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

CORDUROY is way up at the top of the fabric card this year when it comes to clothes for daytime wear that are practical and pretty, with emphasis on luscious colors. The fine ribbed corduroy, used for this blouse, has an especially velvety look. The color is a rich taupe, a nice background for the sparkly rhinestone buttons. Cut on neat shirtwaist lines, it has its own belt. Tweed, a fabric that does so well with corduroy, is used for the skirt, nice nubby tweed in a grayish tone. The skirt has unpressed box pleats all around. These are nice separates with a good go-together look.

RAWDON

Springbrook W.A. Entertains Groups

Rawdon.—On Friday afternoon the ladies of Springbrook W.A., entertained several organization in the L.O.L. Hall, which was festively decorated for the occasion. The afternoon was arranged in three parts with the program coming first.

Mrs. Thos. Webb and Mrs. A. P. Williams were the reception committee to welcome the guests. The president, Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn, presided.

Stirling W.A. presented the devotional with Mrs. Don Donohoe, Mrs. Earl Bailey and Mrs. H. Bird, Sr., in charge.

Mrs. Ed. Colden, St. Thomas' W.A., gave a reading and Mrs. Frederick Beckett, Wellman's W.A., sang a solo.

Mrs. A. Tweedy contributed a ready for Salem W.A., and Mrs. Morley Davidson of Belleville, sang four selections.

Mrs. Garn Dobbs, Belleville, president of the Hastings and Prince Edward organization, brought greetings and said the project for this Autumn season would be Relief Bundles of good clothing for Western Flood Relief.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear, Carmel, secretary, brought greetings also the treasurer, Mrs. E. Murphy.

Representatives were present from Marmora, Rylestone, and St. Mark's, but they were unable to furnish a number for the program.

Vocal solos were given by Miss Ruth Linn, Mount Pleasant, Mrs. Harold Elliott, Bethel and Mrs. Gerald Thompson, Stanwood.

Rev. A. H. Beare, pastor of Springbrook United church, closed the program and officially opened the bazaar.

The booths were attractively arranged and decorated with various members in charge. They were as follows: home cooking and candy, plants, farmers' produce, fancy work and knitted goods, handkerchiefs, white elephant, also a special display of wooden articles made by the Trail Ranger boys under the direction of Rev. Mr. Beare.

Almost every article was sold during the afternoon. The guests were seated at daintily decorated tables in the basement where refreshments were served.

The afternoon was most successful and the ladies were delighted that the weather was perfect for the occasion.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Lots of girls have this problem!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and have a problem very few girls of my age have. You see, my mother is very strict about the time I come home from a date.

A few nights ago, my boy friend and I got home from a date 15 minutes late. We tried to explain to my Dad that we had honestly run out of gas, but he wouldn't listen. He said one excuse is as good as another, and that he used the same one when he first started to go with my mother. Now he makes me get home at 11 o'clock instead of 12:30.

Could you please advise me on what to do to get him to let me stay out a little longer?

P.M.

Dear P.M.:

What makes you think few girls of your age have this problem? Thousands of them do! It's one of the things I hear most about in the letters teen-agers write me.

In your particular case, since your father remembers so well what it was like to be young, I should think he would be more lenient. Since he isn't, however, then I think you will probably get farther with him if you make a point of doing exactly as he says for awhile, to show him that you really want to please him. If you can do this cheerfully, and without constantly arguing with him about it, your good sportsmanship will probably make him relent in time. Try it and see.

Try, too, getting the boys who ask you out on dates to take up courteously and respectfully with your father, when they come to call for you, the matter of when he wants them to bring you home. Then be sure they hit the hour he specifies right on the nose every time. I'd be willing to lay a small bet that if they do this in the right way, you'll find him turning surprisingly reasonable!

Be sure you aren't unreasonable yourself, though, about this thing. Remember that, as a general rule, 11 o'clock is plenty late enough for girls in school to get home from dates, and also that date nights should be confined to weekends.

Discouraged by her mother-in-law's interference

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married five months and I have a baby on the way. My husband was thrilled about it until we got a letter from his mother, telling us that we couldn't afford a baby. This has discouraged him so much that he says he wishes he were single again, though he tells me that he loves me more than ever, and that I come first in his life.

Please tell me something I can do to help him be happy again, because I love him with all my heart. His parents live far away from us.

Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W:

If your husband really loves you so much, and if you really come first in his life, then I should think he would be able to deal with this matter in a very simple way.

What I think he should do is to write his mother an affectionate but firm letter, telling her that he is quite sure he will be able to take care of his family financially, and that she need not concern herself about it in the least. This, of course, is a polite way of telling her to mind her own business.

As for your own part in the matter, don't let yourself be disheartened by what your mother-in-law has said. Just kid your husband along and keep telling him what fun it's going to be when there's a baby in the family, and how much happier both of you are going to be when you are parents. If he was thrilled at the prospect once, you may be sure he will be even more thrilled once the baby has arrived. If you refuse to let yourself be depressed over what he has said, and just brush it off casually, I am sure everything will come out all right.

BEAUTY

Self-created loveliness

It is not just how one looks, it is what one is. Every girl and woman should strive for external loveliness, but that is not the whole story. Let the most beautiful woman speak an unpleasant word, give you a cold, stony stare, and her good looks mean nothing to you. Let the plain woman radiate friendliness, hand you an engaging smile and you are filled with admiration for her. Feminine appearance depends to a certain extent upon the emotions that are reflected upon the countenance.

ed, they have nothing to offer.

Sly, catty women have sharp, shifting eyes that make you suspicious of them. You can see that they are calculating and crafty. There are brittle-faced women whose friendship you have no desire to cultivate. Granite-faced, granite-hearted. They have nothing to offer; you avoid them.

Recall the women you know who are gracious, tactful, thoughtful, who are ever ready to rush to your side if you are troubled or unhappy. Have they perfect features, fine figures? It doesn't matter. They have qualities that endear them to you, qualities that strengthen the bonds of affection and friendship.

Why, with all this wild frenzy for beauty and investments in cosmetics and treatments, many women don't realize that character and nice manners are more important, your reporter cannot guess. One is better company for oneself if one is sweet, amiable, gracious.

The lemonated viewpoint, the touch-me-not attitude, the keep-your-distance manner will express itself in a woman's face. Lips will be tight, tissues will show tension, the eyes will be cold, and marks of age will come before their time because of inner tumult and intolerence for one's fellow creatures.

Any woman, even if the fairy godmother did not kiss her in her cradle, can lift herself to beauty heights.

It isn't fair, and it is downright stupid, to indulge in a mean disposition. You come in contact with people who can't seem to be agreeable. There is the woman who talks down to clerks in stores as if she were really somebody, and she isn't if she is lacking in thoughtfulness and manners. If the slightest mistake is made in her grocery order, she flies to the telephone and makes herself obnoxious. If the old man drops cigarette ashes on the floor, she flies into a fury. Such a woman is a sore trial to everyone with whom she comes in contact. She makes a nuisance and a pest of herself. What does she gain? There are no rewards for conduct like hers. Granite-faced and granite-heart-

Miss Calhoun took the shot in stride—she laughed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

In introductions, too, practice makes perfect

To make sure that your introductions of your relatives will be both correct and gracious, you will be wise (1) to make a list of all relatives, both members of your immediate family and others whom you may be called upon to introduced, and (2) practise the form of introduction you should say in each case. P.S.: This is a particularly helpful plan for brides and grooms, in introducing their own relatives and their new in-laws.

Two receptions difficult to explain

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a home wedding, the ceremony at 12 o'clock noon, and the reception immediately following. To this will be invited the members of the immediate families and all aunts and uncles and cousins. Would it be proper for me to have another reception for my friends only in the evening at the hotel where I will stay before leaving for the country?

H. L.

This would be most unusual, and I should think that each group would wonder why the special plan for the other group. My suggestion is that you postpone the reception-for-your-friends until you return from your wedding trip, and then have this gala gathering. It might then be in the form of a housewarming.

Widow's name. . .personal preference or correct form?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column I see that you always advise a widow to continue to use her husband's name—let's say "Mrs. John Robertson". The new society editor of our local newspaper follows this rule. However, I have been a widow for twenty years and have used my first name. . . let's say "Mrs. Martha Robertson". My son, who was named for his father is married, lives in this town too, and he and his wife use "Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, Jr." In a social item in the newspaper last night my name was listed as "Mrs. John Robertson, Sr.", and my daughter-in-law's as "Mrs. John Robertson, Jr.". Is this proper? (Personally I would prefer the name I've used for so long, "Mrs. Martha Robertson.")

Widow

Yes, the correct form of your name is Mrs. John Robertson, or to distinguish you and your daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Robertson, Sr. But since obviously you don't welcome the use of this form of name, which is correctly yours, the society editor will completely understand and co-operate if you write a note asking her to use for you the form of name you prefer, "Mrs. Martha Robertson". (She doubtless hesitated to use this form of name until she was sure it was your personal preference.)

Woman guest wore white dress to wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my cousin's wedding last week I wore a white ballerina-length dress, dinner-dress type, trimmed with gold and red sequins. Not all-over trimming, but mainly at the neckline and around and just above the belt. Now a friend tells me that I was criticized for wearing a white dress at the wedding. Was this incorrect, a dress of this kind?

Ray L.

No. This type of dress was correct for you to wear at the wedding. A woman guest at a wedding may correctly wear a white dress so long as the dress doesn't look like a bridal dress. So please don't worry . . . for your dress, trimmed with gold and red sequins, couldn't have suggested a bridal dress.

For groom's mother . . . a small hat or one with big brim?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the groom's mother. The bride's mother and I both have our dresses for the wedding, both floor-length dresses, hers of a rosy shade of gray, and mine of a medium shade of blue. She has bought her hat too. . . . but I haven't yet, for I can't decide whether to wear a small hat or one with quite a big brim, which I have seen and like very much. Which would you suggest?

Groom's mother

I very enthusiastically suggest a small hat, or at least a comparatively small hat, I have never seen "a mother" at a wedding wearing a hat with a big brim who looked as smart as one wearing a becoming small hat. A small hat looks more youthful as well as chic, I think . . . more interesting as you walk, ceremoniously, up the aisle, and more comfortable in a crowded reception room.

RAWDON

Some Facts Regarding the Origin Of Hubble Hill on 'Pump Street'

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

Rawdon — Since the McFarland Construction Company has been busy renovating and remaking the road from Hoard's at the boundary line between Seymour and Rawdon townships to Stirling, many folks have asked about Hubble Hill and Mount Pleasant.

Two brothers Nehemiah Hubble and Barce Hubble were the first settlers at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, taking up Crown deeds in 1797.

Nehemiah Hubble settled where Mr. W. H. Scott now resides and his son, Myer Hubble, was born in 1812 while his father was at the war. Myer Hubble was married twice and there were no children. Mr. William H. Scott who resides on the property is a nephew.

Mr. Barce Hubble settled on the Claude Sharp farm and lived in a log house between the two Sharp properties. It is understood there were three children in that family who later took up residence elsewhere.

Nehemiah Hubble's daughter, Elizabeth called "Betsy", married Mr. Ben Coe and they lived in a small home near the Hubble cemetery on the Scott farm and farmed twenty-five acres of land now belonging to the Scott farm Later Mr. and Mrs. Coe and their family moved to the United States.

Little Reuben Hubble settled where Mr. Norman McConnell now resides and it was he who donated the land (free to all who wished to use it) for burial purposes off his property. This is known as the Hubble Hill cemetery, south of the road and opposite Mount Pleasant United Church and hall. One full length plot across the cemetery from north to south was reserved by Reuben Hubble for the Hubble clan to be laid to rest. His son Ami Hubble carried on the farm for some years before it passed into other hands. A great grandson, Clifford Hubble, Glen Ross, lives nearest to Hubble Hill.

"Big" Reuben Hubble resided [illegible] the former Elgin Chard property now a part of the Allan Bailey estate.

With such an array of Hubble families the hill and south cemetery were named after them. There were also other Hubble families on the Anson line and Mr. William Hubble still resides on that homestead.

Mount Pleasant Church was built and dedicated 79 eyars ago in June, 1871, and while it is understood it was named Mount Pleasant Methodist Church it was called "Hubble Hill" church for many years and even old records refer it as such. In 1925 it became a United Church.

Notes on Early History of Carmel District

Ed. Note:—In connection with Carmel church Jubilee services which were held recently, Mrs. Percy MacMullen records some historical items which are of interest.

Rawdon.—The late Philo White of Rawdon township, donated land from his property for Carmel Cemetery and old records speak of it as "Mount Carmel". He, with his wife, and family, resided in a log homestead east of the Harry McAdam farm. His 50-acre farm in later years was a part of the Seeney place, and it is now owned by Mr. E. Grills.

Several of Mr. White's' sons and daughters took up residence in the United States. One daughter, Azubah, married Allan Wescott, and came as a bride to live on "Pump Street" at Mount Pleasant. There was one daughter, Bertha, the late Mrs. Edward Montgomery.

Philo White was a carpenter and a journalist. He wrote items of interest about the new settlers in Canada, mostly United Empire Loyalists, for an American publication and for several Canadian papers in Toronto and Montreal. Among his writings is the story of his father, William A. White, who was given as hostage to the Indians for three days when a small child, by his parents in orders to show the Indians that the white settlers were peaceful.

The late Philo White built a latticed "Summer house" in 1887 for his granddaughter's birthday. At that time he was conducting a carpentry and blacksmith shop on the front of what is now the Burton Sharp property at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon. This "Summer House" is still in use and is in the care of his great granddaughter, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, "Sunrise Lodge", Rawdon township, and stands as a memorial of the handiwork of one of the other pioneers. These folks lived the hard life of the early settler while at the same time they enjoyed the civil and religious liberties denied them in the newly-formed United States of America.

Some of the first Rawdon settlers came in 1797 and from then on, a few each year the sons and daughters of those Loyalists, who had taken up land in large numbers along the Bay of Quinte waterfront, moved to Rawdon or Sidney township. In 1875 most Rawdon farmers who were living in Carmel community, were of Loyalist descent and had taken up Crown deeds in Rawdon on the north side of the town line road in Rawdon township were Westcott, Benedict, White, Hubble, Carlisle, Adams, Davis, Brooks, McKee, Green, Edwards, Fox, Cummings, Bailey, Johnston, Hubel and Wescott.

While those families living south of the town line road in the township of Sidney the map reveals the names of Weaver, Abbott, Richardson, Lawrence, Bamber, Stevenson, Murphy, Carr and Anderson. In this year of 1950, some of those names are no longer at Carmel but several descendants with different names still carry on the old traditions.

'TWILIGHT OF SOBRIETY'

Windsor, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan does not believe it takes a great deal of liquor to make a man unfit for driving a car.

William Dobriener, who admitted drinking two bottles of beer two hours before being involved in an accident, was convicted of careless driving Wednesday and sentenced to seven days in jail.

"A person may be more dangerous in the twilight of sobriety than when he is sodden," Magistrate Hanrahan said.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

WITH A SNARL

Halifax, N.S.—If you were to ask me what particular slice of life in Canada interested me most at the moment, I'd be tempted to answer, "The civil war."

You know the war is going on, but perhaps you never thought of it that way. I'm talking about the undeclared hostilities between what we've come to know as "the public" and the so-called servants of the public. Allow me a moment to laugh bitterly at the word "servants."

In some 8,000 miles of travel through this land of ours, which ought to be a pretty fair test, we've come to look on courtesy as a kind of uranium. We've come to accept, glumly but philosophically, the new order dedicated to the theory that the customer is mostly wrong.

This is a country where service with a smile is a promise on an old and dusty sign and not much more. I think it's time we Casper Milquetoasts on the receiving end did something about it. Life is grim enough when you have to shell out today's staggering prices. To get in return the snarl of a dyspeptic beaver is too much.

Yet, to get anything else becomes almost a cause for celebration. In Ottawa, for example, we got into an auto court (it was named the Reliance and I'm delighted to mention it) where the manager was of that old and disappearing school who believe that a smile and a little extra effort are part of the job. Nothing was too much trouble to make us happy. This man was helpful and cheerful in a dozen small ways.

When we came to leave I told this rare bird frankly that he'd helped restore our faith in the human race. And his reply, I thing, ought to be required reading for anyone who deals with the public.

"I just like to please the boss," he said. "And when you come in here you're the boss."

Little Extra

There are a lot of theories for the mass attack of gloom or downright discourtesy by those who serve. One school holds that it's simply a hangover from the war years when goods were in short supply and the retailer having no worries about enough customers, could allow himself the luxury of a take-it-or-leave-it approach.

An oil company executive I met in Winnipeg had another interesting theory. I'd asked him whatever happened to the old style service station attendant, the gazelle with the big grin and the for-you-sir-nothing-is-too-much attitude.

"I think it's the same kind of thing that's happened in England" this man said. "People began to think that if you served the public you were a victim of the class system. It's a national joke now in England that the customer is treated like a bum. There's a great deal of confusion over there between service and servility.

"We're having the same kind of trouble here. We train our men in courtesy. We have agents on the road who check up on the attitude of attendants. But it's a constant worry to find enough personable men who can meet the public in a friendly, helpful manner. The hell of it is that that's what brings the customer back, not the kind of gas we sell. It just seems that there's a reluctance these days to give that little extra something."

It goes a little deeper than that. I would cite the case of a man who drags a trailer across this country and has a certain amount of mechanical difficulty. I cite my own case.

Time after time we've gone into leading garages of big Canadian cities — garages plastered with signs suggesting that they will tackle any problem in motordom with hysterical glee. But what is the reception? "Why don't you try such-and-such a garage?" Or a curt "We're too busy here."

Here in Halifax we limped into a big garage and a short, pleasant man named Scotty McVean listened to our woes, grinned and said, "Sure! We can fix anything."

I couldn't help but reflect that it's a sad commentary on the times when you feel pathetically grateful that a man will accept your money.

Some Reason

In some cases this attitude of indifference, of course, is more cause for sorrow than anger. We've found, for example, a tragic lack of interest in their jobs by seven out of ten waitresses and department store clerks, who leave you no doubt that it would not pain them at all if you simply dropped dead.

The obvious reason for this, I think, is that these girls are desperately underpaid, that they've been left behind, more than any other group, in the race between wages and the cost of living, and they've got a lot of problems.

I never get involved with one of these ladies that I don't feel an urge to give a little speech. I thought this again last night at Halifax's best restaurant where a gal served us as if she personally carried the world on her shoulders.

I felt like saying, "Look, dearie, you're spoiling our dinner, and we came a long way for these splendid fried oysters. You've got your troubles, I know, but so have we all. You probably don't enjoy being a waitress, but if you'd just make the best of it and maybe even get a little interest out of meeting new people, it might not be so bad."

The speech never got made, of course. And I doubt if it would have made any difference. Nobody likes to take advice from the enemy.

ASSESS MILITARY NEEDS

Taipei, Formosa, Oct. 4 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur's far-east company survey group on this Chinese Nationalist island stronghold ended its work today and returned to Tokyo. The group came here early in August to assess the Nationalists' military needs in the event of a Chinese communist attack.

D-Day Table, Chairs Listed for Auction

London, —(CP) —A table around which the allied joint chiefs-of-staff drew up their plans for the D-Day offensive against Germany, is to be sold.

For nearly three years, the table which was used by generals Eisenhower and Marshall, has been housed in the executive offices of the American Overseas Airlines in London's Mayfair district. With its 10 Chippendale chairs it is to be offered to the highest bidder from the starting price of $15,000.

A plaque at each end of the table states: "In constant use October 1943-May 1944, for the deliberations of General Eisenhower, allied commander-in-chief, and his staff, who were then planning the victorious allied advance in Germany."

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

Copenhagen, Denmark. This is the last day in Copenhagen. If you have "stayed" with me all last week you will know what little time there was for shopping or sightseeing. We've window-shopped only, — as we went back and forth to Christiansborg, so today we are ready when the shops open to choose a few reminders of this gracious city and country. We especially like the patterns in Danish silver, whether it be in flat ware or jewellery, and these also have the added attraction that they are small and can slide in the small spaces of our bags that are bulging more with each country we visit.

But our "shopping spree" here is short-lived, for at ten o'clock the Minister of Agriculture had kindly arranged that we visit Denmark's experimental farm about thirty miles out of the city. We are thankful it is a nice day, and I hope to obtain some interesting colored slides. We are taken first to the dairy and cheese plant, where milk from 1,600 dairy cows is made into butter or cheese. You can't imagine anything cleaner than this dairy—walls tiled, machinery of stainless steel and everything just shining.

We saw cheese in the process of making. Many of the brands we recognized as being on the store shelves at home. Danish cheese is shipped all over the world. We saw crates labelled—Nigeria, Buenos Aires, South Africa. It is a busy place and gives employment to fifty men who live with their families in well-kept, attractive homes near the plant. We are taken further on to the cattle barns, and are amazed at their size and extent until we learn they were once owned and used by the Kings or Denmark.

The layout of the buildings follows the old Danish custom of forming a square court. But this one was huge—all cobblestoned, with a large rambling house for the manager along one side of the square and barns and storage sheds around the other three. There is a large circular well in the centre of the courtyard and before we leave at noon, men are in from the fields, watering their horses at the well. Up until a few years ago, this farm of around six hundred acres carried forty-five horses, but now they are down to twenty-two, as they have purchased three tractors. They were busy preparing the land for fall wheat today.

The foreman shows us the ensilage he is feeding—as a supplement left from last year—hay and sugar-beet tops. It is very dark in color, almost black, and does not look anything like as nourishing as our corn ensilage.

A barn accommodates one hundred and fifty cows. They are experimenting with different kinds of stanchions, so these are not uniform. We notice the gutters are very deep, well over a foot in depth, and there are no litter carriers. Men are doing the cleaning and, with wheelbarrows. They have just completed a new "hog house" as they call it and we are taken there next. It is certainly modern, each sow and litter having a good-sized yard, partly cemented and partly dirt, opening off their pen. At the front of each pen is a section for the small pigs to feed, with a small trough on either side, one for skimmed milk the other for chop. Only the young calves and herd sires are in the barn, but we see the fine herd grazing not far away and I'm able to get a good picture of them.

Ruth and I are back in time to make a trip to Rosenberg Castle, which is right in the city. It houses the crown jewels of Denmark and here we see diamonds and precious stones of all shapes and sizes and colors, some as large as birds' eggs. The castle is surrounded by moats and high walls, and the rooms are furnished with great splendor, the equal of Fredericksborg. After Fredericksborg was built, as it was large, the Danish kings seldom stayed at Rosenberg, but the valuables of the Royal Family were kept here.

The castle now stands as a museum and contains a collection of inestimable value. The beautiful rooms with their paintings, furnishings and beautiful objects of art are equalled by few museums and castles of the whole world. One could spend a day easily in one of the rooms and not see all it contained but we were thankful to have a couple of hours to observe and admire.

MARMORA

Marmora—The bi-monthly executive meeting of zone F 3 of the Ontario Command, Canadian Legion was held at Paudash Lodge, Paudash Lake on Sunday afternoon with Bancroft Branch being the host branch. Other branches represented were Marmora, Madoc, Tweed, and Belleville. Zone commander Wilbert Mumby was in charge of the proceedings. Mrs. Ray, hostess at Paudash Lodge, being one of the three lady members of the Bancroft branch, was accorded the courtesy of sitting in at the session. The chairman explained the holding of the executive meetings pointing out that they were more beneficial mutually than official visits by a zone commander to a branch and mentioned that Zone F 3 was the only zone in the Ontario command to hold such executive meetings of its particular nature.

Mention was made of the desirability of Trenton Branch transferring to the zone and it was pointed out that that branch would have to make application to its district commander to be granted a transfer.

Zone Bell to Bancroft

The zone travelling bell which had been held for a while by the Deseronto branch was presented on their behalf to President Vader of the Bancroft branch for Bancroft's custody for a term. A few complaints were aired following which Sports Officer Percy Gray, of the Marmora branch touched upon the prospects for winter sports. He also presented the softball cup to Norris Thomlison, manager of the Madoc team, which were winners of the local loop this past season. Deputy zone commander E. Little of Belleville, member of the Provincial Poppy Committee called attention to the sale of wreaths and poppies in November. He also said that of the twenty-four university scholarships of 275 dollars awarded by the Legion, two had come to Zone F 3.

Before closing the session with the National Anthem, the chairman expressed thanks to Bancroft branch and to host and hostess for hospitality received. Those in attendance from Marmora were President Clayton Bedore, Lieut. Percy Gray, Wilbert Bedore, Harold Doyle, Niles Fluke and W. J. Cottrell.

ALBURY

Albury—Mrs. Roy Williamson received word on Wednesday of the sudden passing of her sister's husband, Mr. Percy White, of Belleville. Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. White and family. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon at Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. Interment in Belleville Cemetery. Relatives from Rochester, Brockport, N.Y., Montreal and Toronto were present.

A large number attended the Rednersville W.I. at the home of Mrs. Lou McCutcheon on Thursday evening with around 40 in attendance. Delicious refreshments were served.

A few ladies attended the demonstration at Mrs. Harold Bonter's on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonter, Mrs. Earl Bonter and Joyce spent Sunday in Orillia to see Mr. Ewart Bonter, who is ill in the hospital.

The Quinte Cheese Factory stopped operation on Saturday for the season.

The Farrar's Furniture truck had the misfortune to have an accident near Bert Bryant's on Friday evening. One man was hurt seriously.

Lorne Bowerman, of Ottawa, spent a few days with his mother, Mrs. W. Bowerman.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Fitzgerald called in Stirling on Sunday afternoon to see her sister who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weese spent Sunday with relatives near Stockdale.

TWEED

Tweed—Miss Mary Shaver of Ottawa has returned to her home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McCrea of Tweed and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Chase of Frankford.

Bill Beatty of Montreal Bank, Peterborough spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Beatty.

Mrs. (Rev.) Herrington, Keene, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster of Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, Martha and Freda spent Sunday with their daughter Eileen at Ottawa. They also attended service in Chalmers' United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Lavell and Mr. Albert Ray of Toronto visited over the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Foster.

Archie Sinclair Jr., who suffered a bad accident some time ago has returned to his home after spending the past four months in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. John Finley, Miss Frances Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Meraw called on Miss Edith Graham at Bon Echo, on Sunday.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—Mr. and Mrs. Herb Sills of Toronto were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. MacDonald have moved to Campbellford, where Mr. MacDonald has taken charge of the Bank of Montreal in that town. The new manager, Mr. Hogg and his wife have moved into the bank apartment here in Frankford.

Mrs. Grant Patrick called on Mrs. Budd Patrick Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lohnes of Belleville, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes Sunday.

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion is very grateful for the following donations toward their building fund: D. O. Leavitt $5; Earl Bonisteel $2; Walter Smith $1; Allan Howes $1; George Bell $1; Arnold Armstrong $1; George Bell $1; Alex Wannamaker $1; Wilbur Reid $2; Clayton Rose $1; John Hood $1; Cecil Hood $1; Edward McCumber 50c; Sandy Morris $1; Lorne Hubble $2; Murney Wickens 50c; Charles McNeill 75c; Gorrie Hearns $2; Jack and Wes Wallis $40 (lumber). The Legion is also grateful for another cash donation received from a citizen of the village who prefers to remain anonymous.

A benefit dance will be held in the community hall in aid of Ted Ashby who was seriously injured in an automobile accident early in the summer. All help, including the orchestra, is being donated, and it is sincerely hoped that a large crowd will be on hand to help in this worthy cause. Friends will be glad to know that Ted was out for a car ride Sunday afternoon and is progressing well.

A car driven by Mr. Ashby of Oshawa plunged off the road, and through a picket fence across the lawn of Mr. Thomas Bata Saturday night. The driver, who was the only occupant of the car was uninjured, although shaken up. He claimed that he was forced off the road by a truck. Constable McGeachy of Frankford investigated the accident.

DREFT WASHES DISHES FOR YOU

★ SAVES WASHING... ★ SAVES WIPING... ★ SAVES SCOURING

LOOK! While I'm chatting on the 'phone, self-washing Dreft is washing my dishes.

Just SOAK···RINSE···and you're through!
Dishes and glasses shine···even without wiping!

It's true! With new self-washing Dreft you let your dishes stand in warm Dreft suds for 2 minutes—give a swish of the cloth as you rinse—and you're through. Dishes and glasses shine . . . even without wiping.

Pots and pans soak clean without scouring . . . These self-washing suds also work their magic on pots and pans. Have an amazing "floataway" action that gets under grease—floats away grease—better than any soap in the world. Even stubborn grease rinses away without scouring. Yet!—self-washing Dreft leaves hands beautifully smooth and white because it's so mild, and your hands are in the water such a short time. Get self-washing Dreft. Let this new Dreft wash the dishes for you.

Dreft is safer for dainty washables than the mildest soap flakes.

Leaves hands beautifully white and smooth—because it's so mild, and your hands are in the water such a short time.

FOR THE FINEST in AUTOMOBILE SERVICE AT ANY PRICE BATEMAN

Memo to HUNTERS...

Now is the time when all over Ontario sportsmen enjoy the thrills of hunting. In marshes, fields and forests, hunters make full use of our abundance of wild game.

Now, too, is the time to consider what this implies. If we think for a moment, we must realize that our supply of game is not inexhaustible. That's why we must observe the game regulations.

Game laws are designed to protect our sport—not to restrict it. If we all consider the importance of conservation at this season, and take only what we can use, we'll have better sport tomorrow.

Conserve today for tomorrow's holiday.

Communists Continue to Seize Buildings, Disrupt Traffic Following Failure of Strike

Vienna, Oct. 5 (AP) — Communist demonstrators halted all rail traffic in and out of Vienna today.

The federal railway administration said no trains are running into or from the Austrian capital in any direction.

Crowds of shouting communists, apparently angry over the failure of their general strike call yesterday initiated blockade of both rail and road traffic at St. Poelten in the Russian zone. This halted western rail traffic running into Vienna's west station. North station traffic was cut by demonstrators at Stadlau in the Russian sector of Vienna. Traffic into south station was cut at Brunn-Enzerdorf, between and the Russian military headquarters at Baden, 20 miles south of the capital.

Police, despite Russian orders not to interefere tried unsuccessfully to stop the demonstrators.

The reds occupied two federal post office and telephone exchange buildings and were driven off by police in an attempt on a third. Other bands roamed Vienna streets, stopping street car traffic and fighting with car operators.

The communists early today seized the post office at Baden, th. Soviet military headquarters. Last night they occupied the communications centre in Wiener Neustadt, also in the Russian zone.

Driven Away

The Austrian news agency reported that red squads also tried to seize the federal post office in St. Poelten, 30 miles west of Vienna, but the "demonstrators were driven away and dispersed" by police.

The Ministry of Interior reported that the communists also had blocked three secondary railway lines in the Russian zone.

A sabotage attempt was reported at the huge Donawitz steel works in Graz, in the British zone, where communist workers doused the fires in all the blast furnaces. The fires were immediately rekindled by other workers. Their action, plant officials said, saved six months production. Three communists were arrested.

The renewal of anti-government demonstrations came on the heels of western allied reports that a cominform committee had forced the reds to cancel plans for a "putsch" against Austria's coalition government.

The renewal of communist violence appeared to stem from fury at the failure of yesterday's strike, and at the reported orders from the communist information bureau (cominform).

The strike call yesterday was heeded only by most of the 50,003 workers in some, 200 Russian controlled factories.. Today even these were resuming operation.

Four Prisoners Make Escape From Burwash

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP) — Four prisoners escaped from nearby Burwash industrial farm Tuesday night after a prison football game, it became known Wednesday.

The four broke ranks from the form-up after the game. Prison guards hunted them through the surrounding country.

One of the four has escaped on two previous occasions from Guelph Reformatory and once from Burwash. He is Abraham Schuller, 32, of London, Ont., who was serving a two-to-four-year sentence for robbery with violence.

With him was Fred Morton, 28, of Toronto, sentenced to from two to 2½ years for auto theft.

The other missing prisoners are Daniel Christopher, 24, of Ottawa, sentenced to from 24 to 25 months for breaking, entering and theft and Ray Hazelwood, 21, of Orillia, Ont., serving from 12 to 15 months for theft.

WOLF HEAD PRESENTED

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP) — A hard carved wolf head was presented Wednesday to Wolf Cubs of the Toronto Boy Scout Association by the Ontario Lands Department F. W. Beatty, surveyor-general made the presentation on behalf of Lands Minister Scott.

'Russia Pushed N. Korea into It' Bevin Charges

Southampton, England, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin accused Russia today of engineering the war in Korea.

"Russia pushed North Korea into it," he said when he arrived here aboard the Queen Mary from New York. "She might well have struck the match which started a world conflagration."

He said he did not think Russia wanted "all-out" war, at this time.

"I doubt," he continued, "if they ever do. But if they can expand cheaply and annoy everybody at the same time they will do so. Therefore we have to be alert and firm."

SHOULD EXEMPT CHURCHGOERS

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP) — Controller David Balfour said yesterday that churchgoers should not have to pay fines for parking in a no-parking area. "They'll just come out of church, see the ticket and curse the cop," he said. "So what's the use of them going to church."

Alcoholic Clinics To be Established In Two Centres

Toronto, Oct. 5—(CP)— Ontario's Liquor Control Board is going to establish clinics in Toronto and Kingston and later at other places for the study of alcoholism.

Handling and treatment of alcoholics will be studied, Rev. John Foote, Deputy Commissioner of the board, Wednesday told the Optimist Club. The problem will be tackled from both the physical and mental sides.

Major Foote said the clinics will operate under the Provincial Department of Health and details will be disclosed in a few days.

Coincident with the clinics will be a research program in which the universities will be asked to assist.

"The great and basic problem," said Major Foote, "is why one person in 20 becomes alcoholic."

EXPECT RECORD CROWD

Markham, Oct. 5 (CP) — Officials expect a record number of entries at Markham Fair, which starts today. About $6,000 prize money is offered in the ninth annual fair, which will get well under way Friday, with a harness meet and cattle judging.

WANTED SOME FOOD

Brampton, Oct. 5 (CP) —Harry Groves, 28, Wednesday said that all he wanted when he broke into the house was some food. "Nobody was home, so I switched on the radio, found some liquor and relaxed." Hours later, police said, they found him wandering near the house, drunk. He was remanded for sentence.

Housing Accommodation Remains Scarce in Most Canadian Centres

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's housing situation is improving— for those who can afford it.

But for Mr. and Mrs. Average Canuck it's still just as hard as ever to find a place to live. Apartments and lower-priced homes are being gobbled up as fast as they are built.

A Canadian Press survey gives this picture:

Construction is booming in every province but rising costs make it tougher to meet the needs of the average family at a reasonable price.

In Alberta and Quebec, the accommodation is there, but prices are high. Elsewhere, the war-accumulated demand still exists.

Prices Still High

British Columbia reports a fair turnover in accommodation, but the situation is still tight and prices are high. The strain is eased by lower down-payments and opening of the new $9,000,000 Fraserview development Friday in Vancouver. That will solve the problems of 1,100 veterans and their families.

The Alberta situation has cleared slightly in the higher-priced brackets, and more people are willing to accept children in rented homes. But officials of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation say contractors have homes sold before they are built. About 2,000 units are under construction in Edmonton and 1,600 in Calgary.

In Saskatchewan accommodation is scarce, despite booming housing programs in Regina. Building has been light this year in Moose Jaw and demand is strong. The need is apparently not just for housing but for cheap housing.

It is almost impossible to rent a house in Winnipeg, officials say although more than 2,000 units are being built this year.

Housing construction in Ontario spurted upwards during 1950, but the situation remained black. In Toronto two gigantic projects are in the offing —one in North Toronto of 435 one-family homes and 137 apartment units and an east Toronto project of "several hundred" units.

Record summer building in the Montreal area has resulted in definite easing of the rental situation. Apartments are plentiful and prices range from $75 a month for a 3 1-2 room unit, to $125 for five rooms.

Some improvement was noted in New Brunswick, particularly for veterans, but things are still tight. Building continues at a high level.

Bad in Halifax

In Halifax, swollen by post-war population increases, the big problem is to provide emergency accommodation. Barracks at the Sheerwater airbase are being converted to aid 152 families, and more than 700 homes are being built for naval personnel.

Central Mortgage and Housing is in the midst of a $3,500,000 slum clearance program in Newfoundland, designed to give 140 new units. The provincial government now is setting up a housing commission to handle the need for low-cost homes.

The Prince Edward Island situation is much the same. A project is underway to provide housing for RCAF personnel at Summerside.

Proposed Move Rejected by Hog Producers

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP) — The Ontario Hog Producers Association Wednesday expressed disapproval of a proposed move to substitute live grading of hogs for carcass grading.

Some western hog producers have been seeking legislation to permit grading of hogs before they are slaughtered. Carcass grading was made compulsory in Canada since 1940.

A meeting of the association executive and county presidents said top-quality production was essential for today's domestic and export markets. The best way to ensure this was continuance of carcass grading, the meeting decided.

Another resolution suggested formation of a pork products marketing board if the present Dominion Meat Board — which now handles the sale of surplus meat products—goes out of existence if current British-Canadian bacon contracts are not renewed.

TO TAG CARS

Brantford, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Visitors to Brantford soon will receive "keys" to the city. Automobiles will be "tagged" with yellow-and-blue cardboard keys, the front of which says: "Brantford, Ontario, birthplace of the telephone, 1874." On the reverse is a list of points of interest.

U.N. Speeds Step to Put Into Effect Western Plan For the Future of Korea

By STANLEY JOHNSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 5 — (AP) — The United Nations moved full steam ahead today to put into effect a western plan for the future of war-torn Korea.

The plan, which grants tacit permission for U.N. forces to cross the 38th parallel, won 47-to-5 approval in the 60-member political committee last night. There were seven abstentions. Only the Soviet bloc, which supported a rival resolution, voted against the proposal.

Supporters of the proposal shrugged off fears that the Chinese communists may intervene in the Korean war because U.N. military occupation of North Korea will be necessary to enforce its decisions.

State Secretary Acheson told a press conference that any group looking to the world for recognition and for admission to the U.N. would hesitate to challenge U.N. principles. Communist China is fighting for the U.N. seat held by Nationalist China.

The peace plan — sponsored by Britain, Australia, Brazil, Cuba, The Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan and the Philippines — has four main aims. They are:

1. Action — including holding of elections under auspices of the U.N. — for establishing a unified, independent and democratic Korea.

2. U.N. forces should not remain in any part of Korea longer than necessary to achieve this united government. This was taken to mean that those forces could pursue the North Korean aggressors anywhere in the country north or south of the 38th parallel.

3. Economic rehabilitation of Korea. Supporting delegations hope Korea will be a "pilot project" to show what the U.N. can do in this line.

New Commission

4. A new U.N. commission of seven members to see that the plan's provisions are carried out.

The Soviet plan, defeated 46-5 with eight abstentions, was superficially similar to the majority proposal, but was attacked by French delegate Jean Chauvel as placing North and South Korea on an equal footing and attempting to ignore North Korean aggression "and thereby escape its consequences."

The committee also voted last night to take up Monday a plan submitted by Acheson which the secretary's Republican adviser, John Foster Dulles, called the "logical sequence" following discussion of Korea.

It would keep the General Assembly on 24-hour alert to meet whenever the Security Council failed to act concerning a threat to the peace. It would also request members to earmark part of their armed services for U.N. duty.

The aim is to provide a force ready to meet future aggression immediately and to prevent Russia from hamstringing anti-aggressive action through use of the veto in the Security Council.

A FRANK, OPEN STATEMENT

By your local Retail Men's Wear Association, in order to keep the citizens of this district posted on world-wide conditions, especially in relation to our own line of business.

You have been reading in the press about the constant rise in prices of raw materials entering into all lines of goods and wearing apparel in particular. Permit us to point out to you, in a few sentences, what is really taking place. Let us go back to pre-war days of 1939 and look at the picture of prices of wool and cotton only.

	Pre-War Aug., 1939	Start Price Control Dec. '41	Pre-Korea June, '50	Post Korea Sept., '50
Cotton (per lb)	11c	22c	36c	41.6c
Canadian Wool (per lb.)	17c	31c	56c	77c

Australian Wool — Aug., 49, 92 Pence lb. — Sept., 50, 187 Pence lb.

The above gives you a faint inkling of the rise in raw commodities only. Add to above the increased cost of labor — shipping — packing — selling — and general overhead and you will begin to grasp what is really going on. Your first reaction would be — why doesn't the Government put on controls? A very natural question, indeed — but where would they start and who but all of us would pay them in subsidies and taxation?

The above is not a pleasant situation nor a wholesome picture to look at, but higher prices are definitely inevitable. It has been suggested that manufacturers of fine materials and woollen fabrics for men, use synthetics as a mixture with wool, and most likely it will be the only way left open in order to hold down prices, and much as we dislike the idea, it may have to be done.

This statement is being published to inform the general public as to what is happening in the field of men's clothing and men's furnishings.

Present quotations (where quotations are possible, as all prices have been withdrawn) point to an increase for Spring 1951 to at least 15 to 25% higher than they are right now. We do not advise buying what you don't need, nor is this article being published to invite a run on stocks but we do want the public to know what is transpiring in the world commodity markets at this time. We will do all we can to maintain prices.

All of your local Men's Wear retailers buy merchandise several months in advance of a season, so that all goods for Fall and Winter 1950-51, are now either in stock or coming in at pre-advance prices ... and they pledge that as long as these stocks last they will be sold at the price intended for when bought.

All-Time Record Crowd Jams Way into Madoc Fair Grounds To View Excellent Exhibition

An all-time record crowd of approximately 9,000 persons jam-packed their way into Madoc fair grounds Wednesday as almost every conceivable inch of space was filled with cars, trucks, horses and cattle—and people.

Fair veterans who have attended the Madoc fall classic stated they had never seen its likes for crowd, the attendance surpassing even that of last year which in itself had been a record.

It was a perfect day for the fair, and residents from all parts of Hastings as well as many from neighboring counties took advantage of the day to see the sights and to have a neighborly chat with people they had not seen since last fair day.

140 Holsteins Shown

One of the features of the day was the Holstein Black and White Day sponsored by the county Holstein Association. One hundred and forty head of Holsteins were entered in the show in addition to the 26 calves shown by calf club members. In addition there were many entrants in other classes for dairy breeds and for beef type cattle.

The horse show was one of the finest ever to be seen at Madoc, and even new additional quarters for horses failed to accommodate all the horses entered. There was a good showing of sheep and swine, while the poultry exhibit was tops both in quality and numbers. All pens in the poultry building were taken.

Horse racing enthusiasts were treated to three classes of harness racing, while it took all afternoon to judge the various horse classes. The horse drawing contest was still going on as darkness crept in but die-hard lovers of horse flesh stayed to the finish. The winner was Alvin Code of Perth.

Cheese Entered

The cheese show saw 63 cheese entered. Prize winners in white cheese for export were M. Heath, G. Fluke, A. Pitt and A. MacKillican. In the class open only to cheese sold on the Madoc board winners were G. Fluke, R. Huffman, C. Clarke, A. MacKillican A. Pitt and A. Dudgeon.

Open class in white cheese saw Fluke, Clarke, Dudgeon, C. R Blair and Pitt as winners, while the prize for the highest scoring cheese went to Heath and Fluke. C. R. Blair showed the greatest number of cheese, and Huffman and Heath had the best finished cheese.

Heath, Fluke and Huffman were winners in the Hastings County Cheese Producers' special, Huffman and Heath won the J. Wilkinson special for best finished cheese and Fluke won the Ottawa Farm Journal special for the maker scoring the most points.

Junior Members Show Stock

It was a big day for junior calf club members who showed in two different classes. Miss Betty Ketcheson, member of the Madoc Calf Club was top point getter in her club's achievement day despite the fact that she placed third in the day's competition. Total points were made up from the season's work.

Madoc Calf Club winners were Doug Burnside who wins the Holstein Breeders Association halter, Ted Burnside, Betty Ketcheson, Glen Blackburn, Claude Comerford, Ross Moorecroft, Isobel Burnside, John Ash, Herold Harriss, Ed Tobin, Floyd Blackburn, Bob Griffin and Norman Griffin. Norman was the only junior showing a Shorthorn calf, all the others showing Holsteins

The Belleville Calf Club group of Kathleen Homan, John McComb and Griffin Ketcheson won the group special for county calf clubs. Other placings in the group special were Madoc, Stirling, Marmora and Hungerford calf clubs. The first three juniors from each club showed in the inter club competition.

Sheep, Swine Shown

Showing in the sheep classes were John McGuire, Don Heath and E. Mark and Son; in the swine classes, E. Mark and Son and D. Heath.

Beef cattle were shown by E. Wood, Norm Whytock, Fred Holmes, Allan Ketcheson, Garnet Kerr and M. A. Park and Son, and in the dairy classes other than Holstein, E. Wood, M. A. Park and Son, Garnet Kerr and A. Ketcheson.

Victor Irwin and Francis Rush showed stallions. Others showing in the heavy horse classes were Alex Moynes, T. A. Wilson Lumber Company, Sawyer Stoll Lumber Co., Carmen Downey, Cecil Wales of Newburgh, Ralph Heath, Campbellford, Cecile Bateman and Allan Mann.

Novelty events held the attraction of a large crowd throughout the afternoon. Mrs. David Howard of Belleville won the ladies' nail driving contest with Mrs. E Vathour of Bird's Creek and Mrs. J. H. Brethour of Bancroft also finishing in the money. Ed. Hensell of Crookston, at six feet, five and a half inches was the tallest man, and Wm. McAvoy, Winnipeg, came the longest distance.

Freckle King

Corey Burrs, Consecon, was the freckle king among the boys, while Frances Spratt of Tweed was the freckle queen. George Wilkins, Madoc and Eileen Roy of Bancroft, also came in for prizes.

The four member Napanee clown band under their leader Don Scott who also doubled as emcee kept the program going at a fast clip.

It was in the step dancing and log sawing that north county residents came to the fore. Mrs. James Gaffney, Bird's Creek, won the ladies' step dancing with Mrs. V. Lyons of Vernon and Mrs. R. McCormick, Bird's Creek, running second and third. The men's event was won by youthful Ted Palmateer of Ormsby with Wm. Reynolds of Madoc, placing second and Don Lyons of Verona, who step-danced to his own violin accompaniment, coming in for third.

15 Sawing Teams

C. Roy and B. Parks, Bancroft, won the log sawing contest, their time of 12½ seconds beating a field of 14 other sawing teams. The Freymand Brothers of Bancroft placed second with E. Alaire of Cooper and E. Canniff of Queensboro finishing third. E. Alaire did an iron man stunt by teaming up with W. Canniff of Queensboro to take fourth money.

There was a big farm machinery show with five dealers with as many types of equipment showing machines on the grounds.

Jack Burnside with Pabst Posch Phillip won the senior championship for bulls three years and over in the Black and White show. Max Burnside was first in the class for senior yearling bulls and Philo Harris, second. Jack Burnside and H. Finch and Son, Campbellford were winners in the class for junior yearling bulls.

Junior, Grand Champ

A. B. McComb and Sons had the junior and grand champion senior bull calf with Max Burnside having the reserve junior and reserve grand champion.

Bull, junior calf, M. Burnside, McComb and Sons 2-3.

Cows, 4 years and over dry, Ronald Longwell. McComb and Sons, Harry Neal; cows 4 years and over, wet; Philo Harris, senior and grand champion, McComb and Sons, and J. Burnside. Heifer, 3 years, dry—M. Burnside, J. Burnside, W. K. Caskey; heifer 3 years wet, J. Burnside, M. Burnside, Caskey; heifer 2 years, dry, Carl Thompson, reserve senior and reserve grand champion, McComb and Sons and J. Burnside; heifer 2 years, wet, Philo Harris, M. Burnside and J Pitt.

Other Prize Winners

Heifer, senior yearling—J. Pitt, M. Burnside, 2-3; heifer, junior yearling, Caskey 1-2, McComb and Sons; heifer, senior calf, McComb and Sons, Herbert Watt, E. Burnside; heifer, junior calf, M. Burnside, 1-2; junior champion and reserve junior champion McComb and Sons. There were 32 entrants in this class.

Senior get of sire—Caskey and Pitt, Philo Harris and McComb and Sons; junior get of sire, McComb and Sons, J. Burnside and H. Watt; senior progeny of dam, McComb and Sons, E. Burnside and M. Burnside; junior progeny of dam, M. Burnside, J. Pitts and H. Watts; junior herd, M. Burnside, McComb and Sons and R. Longwell. Graded herd, McComb and Sons, M. Burnside and J. Burnside.

Judge for the classes was Jas. R. Henderson of Kingston. There were 15 exhibitors with $600 total in prize money.

COURTESY VISIT

Gothenburg, Sweden, Oct. 4 — (Reuters) — A Canadian Navy formation arrived Tuesday on a courtesy visit, first to Sweden. In port were the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Huron and Micmac. They were met by Defence Minister Alan Voight and the Canadian Minister of Sweden, Thomas Stone.

CANAL TRAFFIC

Great Lakes traffic through the canals at Sault Ste. Marie, both United States and Canadian, reached a peak of 120,200,814 tons in 1942.

GREEK - TURK DEFENCE

Athens, Greece, Oct. 4 (AP) — Premier Sophocles Venizelos today confirmed that Greece and Turkey have begun negotiations for a mutual defence pact. Efforts are being made, Venizelos added, to expand the talks into plans for a regional organization. Observers said such an organization probably would include Italy and Yugoslavia.

SHAW LEAVES HOSPITAL

Luton, England, Oct. 4 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw left the hospital today a little less than four weeks after breaking his left thigh bone in a fall.

The 94-year-old playwright was in good spirits as he was lifted from a rolling bed into a waiting ambulance for the short trip to his home at Ayott St. Lawrence.

MARMORA

Splendid Work Of Bible Soc. Stressed in Talk

Marmora—The annual meeting of Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in St. Andrew's Hall on Monday evening under presidency of W. J. Cottrell with a good attendance. Prayer was offered by Rev. G. D. Young and the scriptural reading was taken by Rev. L. C. Ball. Rev. J. M. Brownlie introduced the field secretary, Rev. H Egerton Young, and made fitting remarks on the value of Biblical knowledge to the young.

Widely Distributed in Orient

An impressive address followed from Rev. Egerton Young in which he emphasized the great work being done by the Bible Society. The number of Bibles distributed in war-torn China was two million, and in India where the country has become so divided in recent time, one million copies were circulated. General MacArthur has asked for thirty million copies to be sent to Japan where even among the labor movements, Bible schools have been established.

During the past year over seventeen million Bibles were distributed over the world. Thus we were made to realize anew the tremendous and worthwhile work being done by the society.

Two films "For Times Such as These" and "The Entrance of Thy Word Giveth Light." (illustrating distribution of Braille type Bibles to the blind) proved instructive. In the absence of Rev. O. J. MacPherson, Mrs. MacPherson expressed the appreciation of the gathering for the address and films. Having thanked the retiring officers for the past year's co-operative efforts. Mr. Cottrell called upon the secretary, Mrs. L. C. Ball for her report. The treasurer's report in the unavoidable absence of the treasurer, Ritchie Wells, was given by the president, showing that over $153 had been raised, practically equalling the amount of the previous year.

Executive Re-elected

Rev. Egerton Young was called upon to conduct the election of officers. Before doing so, he paid tribute to the work of the retiring executive. This executive was re-elected as follows: Honorary presidents, Rev. L. C. Ball, Rev. J. M. Brownlie, Rev. G. D. Young, Rev. G. H. Bache, Rev. O. J. MacPherson; President, W. J. Cottrell; Secretary, Mrs. L. C. Ball; Treasurer, Richie Wells.

The executive will hold a special meeting in the near future for the appointment of canvassers.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge — Quite a number attended the Rally at this appointment on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stickle called on Mr. and Mrs. D. Trow on Sunday afternoon.

This neighborhood was shocked on Monday when they heard of the drowning of little Kathleen Denny and her little sister. Kathleen attended school here when they lived in this neighborhood and was well liked by all her little school chums. Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Denny in their great loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Webber and family of Deloro called on Mr. John Hogg, Sunday.

Mr. Wm. Sine and nephew, Mr. J. Bushell, spent Sunday with Mr. Wallace and sister of West Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace were callers on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, also Mr. and Mrs. James Walmsley. Mrs. Frank Langabeer and Mrs. B. Latchford were callers on Thursday afternoon.

Tomato picking is about completed and report a fair crop despite the recent frost which destroyed a number of acres.

Quite a number attended the W.I. meeting at the home of Mrs. Murray Reid on Wednesday afternoon last.

Mrs. Frank Harris spent a day last week at the home of Mrs. Geo. Reid, 4th Line, and enjoyed being with a number of old friends at a quilting held in her home.

FOXBORO

Foxboro — Mrs. Thompson spent some time with her friend, Miss Ethel Gowsell.

Mrs. Edwards of Cobourg returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. A. Bonkin.

A number of ladies attended the W.M.S. open meeting in the Tabernacle Church on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gay spent the weekend with Mrs. S. C. Gay, during the illness of their father, Mr. S. C. Gay, whose condition shows signs of improvement.

Miss S. Moore returned home on Thursday after spending the summer months with relatives at L'Amable.

Word was received in the village of the passing of the late Jack McFarlane of Montreal. The deceased was well known in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benedict of Ross' Corners accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Montgomery to Stirling on Sunday where they visited the former's cousin, Mr. George Rupert and Mrs. Rupert.

Sympathy is extended to Dr. S. Demorest in the passing of his brother the late Sidmer Demorest whose funeral service was conducted on Tuesday at Belleville.

Mrs. V. Simmons entertained company from Toronto on Sunday.

Rally Day Service

Rally Day services were conducted in the United Church on Sunday morning when a large number attended. Mr. C. Wilson, assisted by Mr. Everett Prindle, acted as leaders. Promotion exercises were held and an arch decorated with flowers stood at the front and through this arch thirty two people passed and were presented with a certificate as they entered a higher class.

Mrs. Rombough also favored with a solo to her own accompaniment.

READ

Read — Miss Ann Corrigan of Belleville was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Corrigan.

Mrs. Joe Brickley of Cuba is holidaying with her relatives here.

Glad to know that Mrs. Jas. F. Brennan is better after a severe attack of the "flu."

Mrs. Mary Jarrel and children spent the weekend with relatives at Frankford.

Messrs Jack O'Ray and Terry Kehoe of Toronto, spent the weekend at their home here.

A large crowd attended the shower held at Marysville for Mr. and Mrs. Harold Murphy. The young couple received many lovely gifts.

WELLINGTON

Mrs. J. H. Barrett of Auburn, N.Y., and her daughter, Mrs. E. Heater of Atlantic City, N.J., were guests of the former's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Teskey and of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Alexander, Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ainsworth are spending a few days at their cottage in the north country.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellis and children were callers on Mr. Wm. Sills, Trent Road, and of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wheeler, Pine Street, Belleville, on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Locking of Bath were Sunday afternoon callers of Mrs. James Reid.

Deepest sympathy is felt for Mrs. Claud Teskey in the loss of a sister at Montreal who passed away suddenly on Saturday.

Miss Gaile and brother Dale Ellis were weekend guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Rutter, Bloomfield.

BURR'S

Burr's — Burr's Sunday School Sunday morning was favored in having as their guest Mrs. Sherman Foster of Hillier, who was Hillier Township's delegate to "The World's Sunday School Convention" in Toronto during August. Mrs. Foster gave a delightful report of her impression of the sessions she was privileged to attend.

The Mission Band welcomed Mrs. Foster by reciting their "Purpose," in unison and by singing a verse of their hymn.

Mr. Don Parks, superintendent, thanked Mrs. Foster on the Sunday School's behalf for her report and kindness in coming.

It is interesting to note that the "Welcome Books" that each Sunday School across Canada had an opportunity of filling a page or more were carried in and received at the opening night of the convention contained contributions of $27,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble have been staying with Mrs. Earl Fox, Belleville, due to the serious injuries suffered by Mr. Fox when the truck he was driving Saturday morning was struck by a train near Ivanhoe.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Fulford, Mr. and Mrs. S. Brooks, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Adams attended the funeral of the late Percy White at Belleville on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Simon Caughey, Mr. Lorne Caughey in company with Mr. and Mrs. Leon Caughey attended the funeral of Mrs. (Dr.) Charles Morris of Battle Creek, Mich. Mrs. Morris was the former Adria Caughey of Crofton.

The Mission Band held their regular monthly meeting at the school on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden were Wednesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr.

Pre-Nuptial Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Pietre Kooger entertained at a pre-nuptial reception for their daughter, Miss Nell Kooger and fiance, Mr. John Kuipein, at their home on Saturday evening. The marriage was solemnized at the Dutch Christian Reform Church, Bloomfield, at the Sunday evening service. Local guests included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman, Jimmy, Mr. George Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. Jac Bruining. Members of the younger Dutch county residents tendered them a shower at Allisonville on Monday evening. The young couple will reside in Toronto. The community extends congratulations and all good wishes.

Mrs. Earl Anderson, Belleville, is a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden, Christian Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire, Lois and Paul, and Mrs. Fred Purtelle were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffreys, Melrose.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt were called to the bedside of their son, Mr. Will Burkitt, who was stricken Thursday with a heart seizure while at work at Rossmore. Mrs. W. Burkitt is staying with him until he is able to return to their home at Mountain View. Friends wish him a speedy and permanent recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr are spending a week's holiday in London, guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. McKee.

Mrs. Val. Squire was hostess to six schoolmate girls of her daughter, Lois, on the occasion of Lois' ninth birthday Saturday. Games, party favors and a candle-lit cake enhanced the pleasure of this joyous afternoon.

Fiery, Itching Toes and Feet

Here is a clean, stainless antiseptic oil that will do more to help you get rid of your trouble than anything you've ever use.

Its action is so powerfully penetrating that the itching is quickly stopped; and in a short time you are rid of that bothersome, fiery torture. The same is true of Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Eczema—other irritating unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at Doyle's Drug Store or any modern drug store. It is safe to use — and failure in any of these ailments is rare indeed.

READER'S DIGEST TELLS WHAT LAXATIVES ARE BEST FOR YOU!

Here's how a "lazy colon" can be regulated without pills, salts or drugs

Reader's Digest has dared print the truth about laxatives. It tells about the dangers of cathartics that upset your digestive system. Learn why—especially after 35—it's so important to safeguard your health.

Serutan is the wonderfully effective way to promote waste elimination. It has a mild laxative action like certain fruits and vegetables. No chemical drugs—no salts—no oils. Serutan gives a gentle "push", completely different in action from purgatives.

If you're over 35, read the October Reader's Digest then get a package of Serutan with confidence. What a marvelous feeling when you're regular again! Money back guarantee.

NEW! For more sluggish constipation, try new concentrated powder Serutan. Faster acting! Wonderfully effective!

Disappearence Of Kirks Remains Ten-Year Mystery

North Bay, Oct. 5—(CP)—This is the 10th anniversary of one of Canada's most baffling disappearance cases — the famed vanishing Kirks of North Bay.

In October, 1940 Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kirk packed their bags for a trip to Winnipeg and four hours later disappeared into oblivion. They were last seen at Sudbury heading for Sault Ste. Marie. Search parties combed the area for weeks, dragging lakes and rivers until ice formed. Police were baffled by the complete absence of clues. They had about $100 with them and left a sizeable bank account in North Bay untouched.

The four Kirk children now are believed to be residing with relatives at Winnipeg.

One theory about their disappearance is that their car went off the road between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie and was swallowed up by mud or quicksand.

Ask Tamblyn's

TEMPER TANTRUMS: "My little daughter (18 months) has developed the most terrific temper tantrums. She screams when we take anything from her, throws her toys on the floor and stiffens out as if she were going to have a fit. What can you do with a child that age with a temper like that? And it's come on suddenly."

Baby doctors say that with the development of the child's personality comes this desire to show off, to dominate and generally raise the roof. It's a phase, like everything else in the child's life, and, say the experts, can best be handled by completely ignoring these temper tantrums. Don't fight the child physically, say the doctors, and do try to remain calm and unruffled.

MEAT BUYING: "My husband is on a take home salary of $38 a week. There are five of us. What meat can we afford?"

Hamburger, sausages, chuck steak, pork liver, brisket, wieners and stewing beef are all good and economical buys.

WEDDING ATTIRE: "My husband and I are going to a formal wedding. I have a suitable long dress but he insists on going in an ordinary business suit. I'd rather stay at home than go looking conspicuous."

You won't. Ten to one long dresses will be in the minority and 20 to one nine men out of 10 will be wearing their best business suits.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS FROM KINGSTON

Max Jackson stated yesterday that Kingston Vics have acquired a sponsor in the Hershey club of the American Hockey League. Harold Cotton, head scout for the Boston Bruins, made the arrangements in adding Vics to the Boston-Hershey 'empire' which already includes the Barrie Flyers, Port Arthur West End Bruins, Moncton Hawks and the Sudbury Bruins.

In announcing the signing of the agreement, Max Jackson said that the team formerly known as the Barons, have also been added to the Vics organization and will be coached by Don Amey who has handled the team for a number of seasons.

Financial assistance has been given to the Vics and they will also receive surplus equipment and possibly a few players. However, the local clubs are more interested in Kingston and district talent and will welcome anyone under the age of twenty years at the practice sessions which will start in the near future.

The Vics junior "B" squad will again take part in the senior section of the Kingston City League series while the juveniles will compete in the junior section.

Harold Cotton will journey to Kingston once each month and will lend any assistance that is needed in moulding the local squads into real contenders.

DEFEAT FOR THE RUFFIANS?

A double treat is in store for wrestling fans Friday night at the Memorial Arena, when the high-flying team of Whipper Billy Watson and Timothy Geohagen will meet the new team of Leering Lee Henning and the Masked Marvel.

Watson and Geohagen, fresh from their victory last week over Henning and Fred Atkins, have been bearing down in training and believe they have perfected smooth-working team-work that will spell defeat for their rough opponents.

The combination of Whipper's speed, experience and ring savvy, along with Geohagen's remarkable strength and Irish Sleeper specialty hold, stamps them as a mighty twosome, even for the rugged Henning-Mask alliance.

If the Whipper - Timothy pair are successful in this four-man tag team test, then the fans will be in for that two-fold treat mentioned above — namely, of seeing the horrendous Henning get another trimming and witnessing the un-masking of the mystery man. If either man on his side loses, he must reveal his identity.

Two front rank matmen have been signed for the semi-final, in which Abe Zvonkin, of Hamilton, will go against Seelie Samara, the Negro star from South Africa.

Flying Pat Flanagan will test Ray Gunkel in the first bout. Both Flan and Gunkel are clever, experienced, scientific wrestlers. Their match should be a mat classic.

Little World Series Title For Columbus

Columbus, O., Oct. 5 — (AP)— The Columbus Red Birds last night racked up a second major conquest for Manager Rollie Hemsley in beating Baltimore Orioles 6-3 in the final and winning game of the Little World Series.

Hemsley, who piloted the American Association Red Birds to four victories in five games with International League champions, managed the Nashville Vols when they won the Southern Association pennant last year.

Even before the little series victory, there was speculation that Hemsley, a former star catcher, was slated to succeed Eddie Dyer as manager of the parent St. Louis Cardinals. Unconfirmed rumors say Dyer is on his way out and that either Hemsley or Manager Johnny Keane of Rochester will replace him.

The Red Birds' conquest of the International League team in the little series was no mean accomplishment. The Birds were fifth in the association in July, finished third in final season standings and eliminated Minneapolis and Indianapolis in the post-season playoffs.

In last night's game, the Birds knocked out Karl Drews — the only Oriole pitcher to win a series game.

The victory was sweet, also, for hurler Cotton Deal of the Red Birds. A "hero" last year, Deal had a spotty season until the playoffs. He didn't lose a single game in that series, and accounted for two of the four triumphs over Baltimore.

The last-game victory was a batting spree for Columbus. The Birds hammered out 12 hits, with everyone but Deal and Bill Sarni getting into the act. But only 3,827 fans braved the chilly night to see the series end. Crowds for the first three games in Baltimore averaged around 20,000.

Consensus of World Series Experts is That Robin Roberts Must Stop Yanks or Else

By JACK HAND

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (AP). — Robin Roberts must stop the New York Yankees today —or else. That is the consensus of opinion at World Series headquarters as the Phils' 20-game winner prepares to meet Allie Reynolds (16-12) in the second game.

Manager Eddie Sawyer lost his daring gamble on Jim Konstanty in yesterday's 1-0 opener, but not before his relief ace turned in a pitching job that long will be remembered. Vic Raschi simply threw too hard for the dazed National League champs, despite Konstanty's heart-tugging effort.

Now it's up to Roberts, 20-year-old wonder boy of Sunday's pennant clincher. Well rested after his strenuous 4-1 victory against Brooklyn, Roberts must win, or the 1950 series may not come back to Philadelphia.

After today's game at 1:00 p.m. EST, the clubs move to New York's spacious Yankee Stadium for the next three —if five are needed. Only if a sixth or seventh is played will they return to Shibe Park next week.

The Phils face an uphill job, reflected by the 5-to-1 odds in man-to-man betting. Reynolds is a 7 1-2-to-5 choice over Roberts in the second game. Few want to wager that the Phils will even win two games after watching Raschi handcuff them with two singles in the opener.

Raschi's brilliant job couldn't dim the near miracle of Konstanty. The 33-year-old bullpen veteran, who hadn't started a game since 1948, deserved a better fate. He allowed only four hits in eight innings before giving way to a pinch hitter. It took two fly balls to convert one of the hits into the only run of the game.

"I don't mind losing on base hits," Konstanty said. "But when a couple of fly balls beat you, it's pretty tough."

Extra Base Hit

The base hit—a double down the left-field line by Bobby Brown in the fourth inning — was the only extra-baser off Konstanty. According to Jim it was a "slider at least a half foot inside." But that was the ball game when it was backed up by two fly balls that permitted Brown to score.

Sawyer showed up at press room last night with some of the Phil officials.

"Now we can't go into New York leading 2-0," he said. "It will have to be 1-1."

Sawyer worked 33-year-old Konstanty yesterday in a daring gamble to give Roberts more rest. Roberts started three games in five days last week as the Phils wobbled down the stretch.

Essentially a fast-ball pitcher like Reynolds and Raschi, Roberts has the poise of a Grover Cleveland Alexander. It is doubtful if he will be awed by a World Series after his fine job in 40 regular-season games.

Reynolds, series veteran of 1947 and 1949 and a real hero last fall, hasn't started a game since Sept. 25.

Stars Sit in Stands

Curt Simmons and Tommy Henrich, two stars who might normally be sharing the headlines, sat in the stands as Raschi outdid Konstanty in yesterday's beautiful pitching duel. Simmons, ineligible, was on leave from the army. All he did was pitch batting practice and dream of the way it might have been. Henrich, hobbled by a bad knee, was replaced on the active list by Johnny Hopp.

Hopp came up with a nice stop of a ninth inning rap by Richie Ashburn that might have meant trouble for Raschi. Johnny had replaced big Jawn Mize in the eighth for defensive reasons.

The big Phil chance came in the fifth, when they collected both of their hits. Raschi retired 13 men in order until Willie Jones singled with one out in the fifth. After Gran Hamner flied out, Andy Seminick laced a single to left, then Raschi bore down to strike out Mike Goliat.

Raschi walked Eddie Waitkus, his only pass of the game, with one out in the sixth and proceeded to mow down the next 11 men in succession.

"Shudda been a one-hitter," said Raschi. "That single by Jones—I thought it was hit real hard and I got out of the way. It was just a dribbler."

It was the third straight 1-0 opening series game, following Johnny Sain's 1948 sparkler for Boston Braves and Reynolds' two hitter against Don Newcombe last year.

Dressing Rooms Quiet After First Game of Series

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 — (AP)— The dressing rooms of the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Phillies, after the first World Series game, reflected four things clearly:

1. Both teams were still emotionally spent from the hot pennant races.
2. Both teams realized they were over the hump in winning the big cash prize.
3. Neither team is yet fully fired up with eagerness to become world champions — that comes in a day or two.
4. Above all, the Yankees, old professional campaigners, take victory as a matter of course.

Both dressing rooms were placid after the brilliant pitching duel in which Vic Raschi of the Yankees bested Jim Konstanty of the Phillies 1-0. The Yankees sat on two long benches against the wall of a narrow room, looking at each other in silence. The Phillies moved around a little, but accepted defeat more calmly than might be expected from such a young team.

The reason for this is fairly simple. Ball players first of all set out to win the league championship. That means a cut in the World Series prize. For each player on a winning team in a series such as the present one it means about $5,500 in cash; for a player on the losing team about $4,250.

But if the Yankees or the Phillies had finished second in their league races — and both came close to it — the prize would have been only $1,000. Third place players get about $750, fourth place $350.

So when the Yankees and the Phillies clinched the pennants it meant they had a chance to win $5,500 in the series, but could not get less than about $4,250 — a bit different from $1,000. That's why the final games of the pennant race were charged with so much dressing room excitement.

The series excitement comes as the climax is approached.

Yesterday was a story of pitching craftsmanship.

Said Dick Sisler, Phillies batting hero:

"Raschi had good control. He gave me nothing good to hit at. Brother, I was really reaching for them. He had my number."

Said Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees:

"Both men pitched a good game. Course I think my man pitched a better game."

Now it can be revealed that Stengel had his batters move towards the front of the box on the theory that Konstanty's pitches don't break until they cross the plate. This did not produce much, but one run proved to be enough.

SERIES ALL TIED UP

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 5. — (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics, Wednesday night forced a seventh game in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior finals by crushing Owen Sound Crescents 13-4.

The deciding game will be played in Fergus, Friday night. The win tied the best-of-seven series at 3-3.

Nelson, Teatro and Smith each got a pair of goals for Athletics. McNulty, Teather, Frick, Croft, McMahon, Myers and Damico got the others.

Smith, Allum, Slater and Foote scored for the Crescents. Owen Sound played a tight defensive game, and passed up several chances on Bill Whitaker's net.

Stock Car Racing Introduced To Eastern Ont. Fans at New Speedway Near Marysville

Stock car racing, so popular in other sections of the province, came to the Eastern Ontario district on Wednesday afternoon, when the initial meet was held on the Belleville Speedway, a splendid half-mile strip located 13 miles east of the city on the King's Highway. More than 2,000 were in attendance, despite the chilly atmosphere and they left the track pleased with the racing and marvelled at the aptitude of the several drivers, who competed in the various heats.

This track was constructed by Dick Burrowes and was in splendid shape for the meeting. It was well oiled and graded and exceptional fast time was made in the several heats. The meet was sponsored by the Canadian Auto Racing Society of which A. Morton is the presiding official. His staff consisted of James Williams, announcer, who informed the fans of procedure and "called" the several heats as the drivers progressed around the oval. Jack Harvey acted as starter. The Ontario Provincial Police handled the large crowd in a splendid manner and there were no injuries incurred either by the drivers or the spectators.

The cars that were in competitions were ordinary stock cars and by the rules of the association the drivers are not allowed to alter the construction of the motor but are allowed a few gadgets that will "soup up" the motor. Most of the drivers use snow tread tires in order to have a good grip on the track surface and prevent sluing on the turns. In most cases the cars are well battered up because at times these racing machines do turn over when mistakes in timing occur.

Run in Heats

The association rules state that all cars must have fenders and adequate brakes and must pass police inspection. The races are run in heats of three and four miles with the first three in each heat qualifying for the main event, generally at 15 miles. Considerable nerve is required by the drivers as they are often placed in close quarters especially on the turns. Each driver is required to wear a safety belt and a crash helmet and although spills occur, the drivers, as a rule, are not seriously injured.

As the track is a new one and it being the first meet held on it the drivers set a half mile mark for the rest of the drivers to shoot at. Wally Branston of Toronto made the test run and covered the half mile in 35 seconds flat. This is the track record until some other driver betters the time. A local touch was added to the meet in that "Frenchy" Giroux and Eugene Gordon of Napanee made entries for the first time and were not disgraced in their first try at this sport.

Select Heat Cars

Mr. Morton, as presiding official, selects the cars for the heats, so there will be plenty of competition and avoid having all the fast cars in the same race. This elimination process is carried through four heats of three miles each and then the first three in each heat along with the consolation winner makes the entry for the main event. In the first heat Ted Hogan of Toronto won with Norman Brioux, Wally Branston, Thomas Forbes, Willie Hutton and Lloyd Shaw following in that order. In the second heat Lloyd Shaw, Willie Hutton and Joe Fewster finished in that order with the other three cars conking out.

The third heat was won by Carl Rutledge, followed by Ed Tardiff, Jack Dennis. Ivan Boone, Robert Neill and Alex McQuoid. In the fourth race Bob Neill won closely followed by Don Knicely, "Frenchy" Giroux and John Llellywn. In the matched race at two miles Alex McQuoid easily outdrove "Frenchy" Giroux. In the consolation event Tom Forbes won with Ivan Boone and Alex McQuoid in that order.

13 in Main Event

Thirteen cars went in the main event and Wally Branston, outdrove all his competitors, although he had to work his way through a maze of cars due to his drawing a back position at the start. Lloyd Shaw was fast-travelling second with the others strung out. Four of the cars failed to finish due to flat tires and engine trouble but the boys gave the spectators a great thrill as they manoeuvred their cars past other competitors.

After the races were completed many of the spectators went over to the pits to examine these gas buggies, that had given them so many thrills. The drivers and mechanics were most courteous in trying to answer the many questions that were fired at them and likely there were some that caught the "bug" of car racing at this meet.

New Westminster Adanacs to Meet Eastern Winners

New Westminster, B.C., Oct. 5 (CP)—New Westminster Adanacs a lacrosse team in superb condition but with no strength in depth will be fighting a jinx when they start the Mann Cup finals in Toronto Sunday.

No western champion has ever won the Dominion lacrosse title in the east. But the coast figures this year may be the exception.

A party of 21—17 players and four officials—will fly to Toronto for the best-of-seven series against either Owen Sound Crescents of St. Catharines Athletics, who are tied 3-3 in the eastern final.

It will be Adanacs' third Mann Cup appearance in four years. In 1947 they beat Mimico Mountaineers on the coast and lost to Hamilton Tigers in the east the next year. Vancouver Burrards, 1949 champions, were shunted aside in inter-city lacrosse league semi-finals this year by Adanacs.

Coach Bob Lee has built his team around 10 veterans. In the final stages of the league schedule, Adanacs took over the lead and romped through the playoffs by depending almost entirely on those 10 men.

Lee intends to use his man-for-man substitution system that brought A's the coast title.

With this system he always had six experienced men, excluding goalie Gordie Pogue, up front. This left three veterans in reserve, and they relieved in turn.

In other words, each of the veterans played 40 or 45 minutes every game. All are in great condition for the series.

Lee used his seven rookies sparingly toward the end of the season and five of them scarcely got on the floor.

Can Play Any Position

If a couple of Adanac veterans are injured, Lee is likely to find himself in bad shape. But he is depending on their top condition to see them through.

Eight of the 10 can play any position and all can score goals. Victoria Shamrocks found in the final that if they kept a careful eye on Jackie Northup, the league's top scorer, or other high scorers like Bobby Bremner or Reo Jerome, then defencemen Ralph Douglas or Jake Proctor might bust loose for two or three goals.

Most of the veterans have Mann Cup experience. These include Pogue, who has been guarding the nets since 1947, the Douglas brothers, Ralph and Johnny, and defencemen Rold Maum. The remaining two team veterans are Harry Smith and Mike Munro.

The rookies making the trip are Doug Proctor, Jake's brother, Ted Mosdell, Stan Tyson, Stan Bowling, Pat Carey, Lloyd Tamboline and the spare goalie, Gord Stoddart.

Waterloo Tigers Defeat Oshawa In Semi-Finals

Waterloo, Oct. 5 (CP)—Waterloo Tigers, champions of the senior Intercounty League, advanced to the Ontario Baseball Association finals against Niagara Falls Fords Wednesday night by defeating Oshawa Merchants 2-1.

The victory was the third straight for Waterloo as they swept the best-of-seven semi-final four games to one.

Tony De Laurentis of Oshawa and Al Dumouchelle of Waterloo hooked up in a tight pitching duel.

De Laurentis, who won the second game of the series with a one-hitter, scattered four hits, while the Tiger hurler gave up seven. Dumouchelle fanned nine and De Laurentis five. The Tigers got to De Laurentis in the fourth inning for two runs on three hits and a walk.

Alex Kvasnak and Auggie Herchenratter singled, John Fornari drew a walk and Joe Yosurak singled to drive in both runs.

Yosurak, Waterloo's ace righthander who shut out the Merchants on Monday, played right field tonight when Herchenratter was shifted to first base due to the loss of Red Kane, Larry Archambault and Manny McIntyre, all of whom are at hockey training camps.

Oshawa spoiled Dumouchelle's shutout in the sixth when Bill Harper got the Merchants' first hit, a single through the box and Sherry Rowland singled to centre to score Roger Wood from second Wood walked previously.

De Laurentis improved towards the last of the game while Dumouchelle weakened.

A throw from centre field by Tiger playing Manager Alex Kvasnak cut down McAllister at the plate with the tying run in the eights inning. In the ninth another relay from the outfield cut off Aaron Bitman at third as he tried to stretch a double into a triple. Pinch hitter George Ticony fanned for the final out with a runner on second base.

Lou Boudreau May be On Way to Chicago

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 — (AP)—Is Lou Boudreau, popular manager of the Cleveland Indians, Chicago-bound at last?

The question, first broached a year ago when Bill Veeck came close to trading Boudreau to the White Sox and revived again last June when Lou again was offered to the same club, may be answered within the next two weeks.

The Sox will be without a manager after next week, when the Board of Directors meet in Chicago and officials hand current skipper John (Red) Corriden his release. Sox officials are mum on the matter, but it was learned they already have decided to replace the 63-year-old Corriden, who took over the reins in mid-season.

The move will pave the way for one of two men under consideration to get the job. Top priority will go to Boudreau, if available. The other Canadian held in high esteem is Paul Richards, current manager of the Seattle Rainiers in the Pacific Coast League.

Religious Beliefs Ends Promising Hockey Career

(By The Canadian Press)

A promising hockey career has been renounced by 22-year-old Floyd (Butch) Martin because of his religious beliefs.

Martin, defenceman with the Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League last year, said in Kitchener Wednesday he is retiring permanently from the game because of "deep-seated religious views."

He signed a professional contract with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League last year.

His spiritual adviser, Rev. J. H. Hess, associate pastor of the first Mennonite Church here, said in a statement: "He begged to be released from his contract due to certain doubts as to the legitimacy of professional sports for a Christian."

"The Rangers complied and loaned Butch to the K-W Flying Dutchmen for one season, hoping that such convictions might change. This year the New York team sought to reclaim him. But with courage Butch informed Manager (Frank) Boucher that as a Christian his conscience would not permit him to give his time and primary concern to commercialized sport. . .

"Manager Boucher respected his convictions and change of heart."

Rocky Graziano, former world middleweight champion, administered a one-sided lacing to Gene Burton, New York welterweight at Chicago Wednesday night before knocking him out in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Montreal Junior Canadiens, Memorial Cup champions, dropped a 6-1 decision to Oshawa Generals Wednesday night in an exhibition hockey game.

Canadiens scored the only goal of the first period, on Don Marshall's pass to Mackay, but Oshawa then went to work. Herve D'Jordy fired three goals and Lou Jankowski scored twice. Delviccio got the other Oshawa goal.

Bill Gregus, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' best plunger, was ordered Wednesday to report for duty with the United States Army Oct. 16.

Coach Carl Voyles said, however, Gregus "may get a deferment for at least a couple of weeks." Deferred or not, Gregus will be able to see action in three more football games before the call-up date.

He is the second American in the Big Four League to be called up in less than a week. Bob Heck Toronto Argonauts' outside wing left for Chicago Saturday for service with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Vic Raschi both won and lost in the World series Wednesday. The New York Yankee hurler defeated Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 in the opener but his hotel room was looted while he pitched two-hit ball. Two suitcases were taken containing 140 World Series tickets, clothing, jewelry and a diamond-studded watch.

One of the suitcases was found later in an alley. It still contained 80 series tickets.

Still missing from the suitcase Raschi said, were 20 reserved seat tickets for each of the three games at New York.

The Yankee pitcher said he had purchased the tickets for friends and relatives. It is customary for players of the contending teams to be permitted to buy a certain number of tickets for each game.

Hockey teams were busy in exhibition games Wednesday night. At Stratford,, Adam Brown scored two goals to lead the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks to a 6-3 victory over Cleveland Barons of the American League. Boston Bruins meantime defeated the AHL Providence Reds 4-1 at Providence, with Dave Creighton, Johnny Peirson, Pete Horeck and Sylvio Bettio scoring for the NHL club. At Quebec, New York Rangers swamped the Aces of the Quebec Senior League 10-2, with rookie Reg Sinclair scoring two goals and an assist. In an exhibition between two AHL teams at Niagara Falls, Ont., Pittsburgh Hornets blanked Buffalo Bisons 4-0.

World Series Notes

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (AP) — Tommy Henrich discovered that fame fades fast.

It was only a year ago that the veteran New York Yankee outfielder was a world series hero, when his ninth-inning home run defeated Brooklyn Dodgers 1-0 in the first game.

Special police guarding the Yankee clubhouse yesterday required considerable convincing before they permitted the unrecognized Yankee outfielder to enter the dressing room.

"Who are you?" was the gruff inquiry.

"I'm a ball player," came Henrich's simple reply.

Finally, a team-mate came along and told the guard that Tommy was indeed a ball player.

A fan who rode a bus 27 hours, then stood in line for nine hours to win a place among the first hundred bleacherites to enter Shibe Park yesterday, grabbed the No. 1 spot for today's game.

To make sure he would be first, Ralph J. Belcore, 36, Chicago, left the park before the ninth inning yesterday. He parked himself on a basket at the bleacher entrance, and had a good 10-minute start on other enthusiasts.

The 1-0 defeat suffered by the Phillies yesterday was the club's fifth straight world series loss. They won the 1915 opener 3-1, behind Grover Cleveland Alexander, for their only series victory, then lost the next four to Boston Red Sox—all by one run.

One of the saddest Phillies fans after Vic Raschi shut out the Whiz Kids was Sgt. Cy Rappaport, an amputee who has been at the Philadelphia naval hospital 22 years. Cy tossed out the first ball to start the Philz' regular seasons in 1949 and 1950. He still thinks the Whiz Kids have enough fight to win the series.

Using the first letter in the names of the Phillies' batting order for today's game, a Philadelphia columnist came up with this bit of encouragement:

"Win and show everybody just how Sawyer's guys rate."

The batting order: "Waitkus, Ashburn, Sisler, Ennis, Jones, Hamner, Seminick, Goliat and Roberts.

Mike Yanni loves kids and baseball. Armed with 35 box-seat tickets, he gathered together that many newsboys and took them to yesterday's opener. When some newsies argued they couldn't leave their paper unsold, Mike bought up their supply.

GET WAGE INCREASE

Crystal Beach, Oct. 5 — (CP)—Village employees were granted pay increases yesterday, amounting from seven cents to as much as 25 cents an hour. New rates are 90 cents, with 95 cents for foreman, compared with 65 to 82 cents and 88 cents for foremen.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

It was Sept. 22, 1949. At Little Rock, Ark., Toronto Tip Tops were matched with the Clearwater (Florida) Bombers. Tip Tops had battled their way undefeated through the cream of North American softball teams—with the world title as their goal.

Faced with the Bombers' ace hurler, the Toronto team trailed from the 3rd to the 7th inning—then tied it up, 1-1. For the next 10 frames the teams battled a deadlock. Suddenly Tip Tops rallied. In the 18th they blasted two men home . . . and became the first Canadian team to win the world softball championship.

First! in Canada Unlimited

Close teamwork has won many firsts for Canadian sportsmen. And teamwork, with sportsmanship, can help you, too—in work and play. Together they keep your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What makes me smile broadly is the question: "How does your system work with a partner who uses a different system. My first inclination is to reply: "Lovely, lovely."

What I mean is this: Every sound system works fine with any other sound system; providing each player knows his own system; and providing neither tries any tricks on the other.

Actually, Horse Sense is the easiest system to fit with any of the other systems. The reason is that it is made up of only basics. In other words, it is simply the least common denominator of rules.

My claim is that two experts using Horse Sense become better than they were. Or any expert with any system can do better with a Horse Sense partner if the expert did not throw any curves.

In the Pike's Peak open pairs at Colorado Springs my partner was Mrs. Ruth Anne Miller of Wichita, Kansas. Before we started play, I did not know what system she used. Nor did she know mine.

But so expert was she with the system she used that it needed no advance explanation. All I did was play Horse Sense and we got along without effort and with full understanding.

One of the deals in that match is shown here:

NORTH
♠K Q 7
♥K 9
♦6 5 3
♣K 10 7 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠A 3	♠J 9 5 4 2
♥4 2	♥A J 3
♦K Q J 9 4	♦A 10
♣A Q 9 3	♣8 6 5

SOUTH
♠10 8 6
♥Q 10 8 7 6 5
♦8 7 2
♣J

This is how our bidding went:

West	East
1 D	1 S
2 C	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

When I play with someone who knows their own system, I do not find it necessary to change anything in the Horse Sense method. It fits perfectly because its basics are the basics of all systems.

Maybe I should explain the bids in detail. So I will.

Hollywood, Oct. 5 (AP)—In his current picture, Van Johnson is being supported by a sales manager, a land agent, a news reporter, a psychology student, a custom agent and a nursery gardener.

No, ' isn't tough to find actors out here. But the cast members of "Go For Broke" have been recruited from many walks of life. The reason: Most of them are Japanese-American war veterans.

"Go For Broke" which means "shoot the works" in Hawaiian slang, is the story of the 442nd regimental combat team. The outfit, composed of Japanese-Americans, saw action in Italy and France. Its members fought with distinction that the survivors were presented at the White House in June, 1946.

Van Johnson, who plays an officer of the outfit, is the only star in the picture. Most of the performers are actual veterans of the 442nd.

"They are responding very well to coaching," says Robert Pirosh writing and directing the film.

No Glamor

Pirosh, who wrote "Battleground," said:

"My idea has not been to glamorize the men. For instance, there is a goldbricker in the outfit, just as there was in any other. But the picture will show that some of them have unusual problems.

"For instance, some of them are bitter because while they are fighting, their families and sweethearts are in relocation camps on the west coast."

Pirosh explained why he sought real veterans instead of Hollywood names: "I think it detracts from the realism of a war picture if a face like Gregory Peck's or Dean Jagger's suddenly appears in the middle of a battle."

WON'T REMODEL MACHINE

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP)—When the man comes to change over your electric motors from 25-cycle to 60, don't expect him to remodel the whole machine says the Ontario Hydro Commission. Some people in the changes so far wanted their wringers and washing-machines overhauled.

Don't Suffer With Stomach Indigestion, Gas, Backache

Benefit by the Experience of Other Well Known Men and Women and Use Syntona for Prompt Relief. READ This Man's EXPERIENCE.

If you are a sufferer of stomach gas, pains, sour acid risings and distress after meals; if sluggish bowel action causes dizziness, spots before the eyes, sick headaches; if sluggish kidney action is causing backache, night rising, and if you feel tired-out, nervous, rundown follow the advice of thousands of other well known men and women and take a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Many people report help and relief even after the first few days and continued use often brings astonishing results.

"Syntona is the finest tonic I ever used," says Mr. Richard Weir, 27 Carleton Avenue, London, Ontario. "I was suffering from so many things I can hardly describe them all. My stomach was sour and gassy after meals, I'd get dizzy spells, bad headaches, and couldn't sleep well. Rheumatic pains set in my arms, limbs and joints and I had a terrible backache all the time.

MR. RICHARD WEIR

A friend advised me to take Syntona and the results I got in only a short time are quite remarkable. The sour, gassy condition of my stomach as well as the headaches and dizzy feelings are relieved and the rheumatic pains and aches are now so much better that I am enjoying more sound sleep and get up mornings feeling more rested and refreshed."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Cobourg Wins In Last Five Seconds of Play

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 5 — (CP) — With five seconds of play remaining, Bill Douglas dropped on a loose ball behind the Peterborough goal line to give Cobourg Galloping Ghosts a 5-0 victory over Peterborough Orfuns Wednesday night in an Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior B game.

The ball went wild on a bad snap as Peterborough attempted to kick from its own one yard line.

The touchdown ended a 59-minute kicking duel between Chuck Paul of Peterborough and Bob Cooper for the Ghosts. They battled on even terms until the final quarter when a brisk wind helped Cooper shove Peterborough deep in its own territory.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 — (AP)— A couple of American Leaguers were sitting in a hotel lobby the other day discussing what the Yankees can do to a rival . . . "You get by Berra and DiMaggio and Mize and you start to breathe — and then that Coleman hits a triple," sighed one man who had seen it happen . . . That's not exactly what happened to the Phillies yesterday, but it's close enough . . . the big guys just mentioned couldn't buy a hit off Jim Konstanty, but one two-base blow by Bobby Brown did the damage . . . Even that wasn't too impressive as a hit. It skidded just inside third base and slicked into foul territory toward the wall where Gene Woodling had almost knocked himself out chasing a foul in the first inning . . . The next two batters really tagged the ball harder in hitting the long flies that brought Brown home from second . . . The hitters apparently didn't want to intrude upon the pitching duel between Vic Raschi and Konstanty . . . and it wasn't surprising that a pressroom commentator remarked: "That game set television back 50 years."

Short-changed

After viewing yesterday's drab proceedings, Garry Schumacher, drum-beater for the Giants, sniffed scornfully: "Heck, it will take the Yankees four days to win four straight from these guys. We did it in two days."

Figuring the Figures

The crowd of 30,746, smallest to see a world series game since 1944, caused a lot of speculation about the unsold seats and more than a little moaning by speculators . . . But it did contribute to the only record established yesterday — it was the first time an eighth - place club shared in the series money. The Athletics collect the rent from the Phils. . . . Bobby Brown's "life-time" world series batting average is dropping rapidly. He hit .1000 in pinch roles in 1947. Last year's six blows in 12 attempts brought it down to .600, and as of today his mark is .527.

Ad-Meyer-Able Retort

Bill Meyer, Pittsburgh Pirate manager, is kept busy answering two questions (A) Is Branch Rickey going to Pittsburgh? and (B) What's wrong with your club? He has a pat reply to the second . . . Says Bill, "Anybody can tell you what my club needs — a new manager and nine new players."

(By The Canadian Press)

Probably the only disadvantage to winning the Stanley Cup, hockey's highest honor, is the all-star game.

Each year for the last four years the previous season's winner has met the all-star team in a benefit game for the league pension fund. The all-star team, picked by N.H.L. coaches, has yet to be beaten—and no wonder.

It's Detroit Red Wings' turn this year and they meet the power-packed all-star club in the Motor City Sunday night.

The game will be a big test for the Wings, who indulged in some surprising off-season trading after taking the cup. But more than anything else it will be a test of 21-year-old Terry Sawchuk.

Sawchuk, who jumped from Detroit's Indianapolis farm club, played seven games in goal for Wings last year. This year he's starting his first N.H.L. season and he's attempting to replace Harry Lumley, one of the best in the business, who was traded to Chicago.

Sawchuck isn't the only hockey player under the gun right now. Monday night in Toronto, in the annual Toronto Maple Leafs inter-squad charity game, 19-year-old Danny Lewicki will be playing for keeps, with his job with the Leafs at stake.

Playing his first year as a pro after a fine Junior career, Lewicki will line up with Max Bentley. But on the same ice will be Junior stars of several seasons back—men like Tod Sloan, Sid Smith and Fleming Mackell—who've had the benefit of minor-league experience and who want to stick with the Leafs this year.

Montreal Canadiens have their last pre-season week full of exhibition games. They play in Providence and Springfield against American Hockey League clubs and have one with Springfield Indians in Montreal Sunday. They'll have to play all of them without Bert Hirschfeld, former Halifax senior star, who pulled a groin muscle in practice.

COBOURG WINS FINAL

Napanee, Oct. 5. (CP)—Cobourg Legionnaires, champions of the Lakeshore Baseball League, won the Eastern Ontario Intermediate B baseball championship Wednesday by defeating Napanee Athletics 5-0 in the third and deciding game. The winners now meet Fort Erie in the Ontario semi-finals.

Cobourg pitching ace Bill Jamieson held the Napanee hitting in check all the way. It was his second straight shutout over Napanee in the series.

Stassen Wants Personal Visit With Stalin

Washington, Oct. 5 —(AP) — Harold E. Stassen announced Wednesday he has written Prime Minister Stalin of Russia suggesting a face-to-face meeting in an effort "to stop the drift toward war."

The State Department quickly disowned Stassen's move as having any official status. A spokesman said, however, that Stassen would undoubtedly be granted a passport if he asks one to carry out his proposed mission.

Michael J. McDermott, state Department press officer, told reporters that State Secretary Dean Acheson was informed of Stassen's letter two days ago, but he declared:

"The State Department had no prior knowledge. I understand the letter was sent in Mr. Stassen's private capacity. It had no official inspiration."

Stassen told a press conference he wrote Stalin Monday, strongly urging the Soviet dictator to change the Soviet Union's present policy "and move toward world peace and freedom for mankind."

Stassen now is president of the University of Pennsylvania. A former governor of Minnesota he was an aspirant to the 1948 Republican Presidential nomination that went to Thomas E. Dewy.

Movie Censors Will Crack Down On Crime Filims

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP) —Canadian movie censors said Wednesday they will crack down on crime films.

Moving picture censors from eight provinces, meeting here for their first national convention, said exploitation of sex in movies was a relatively minor problem since it was controlled by the Johnson office, Hollywood's self-imposed censor. But crime and brutality was the theme of an increasing number of films.

M.V.B. Newton, of Manitoba, convention chairman, said "since there has been a disposition on the part of producers to exploit crime and its commission in a manner at variance with concepts of entertainment as they are understood in Canada," such a film "will be dealt with in a uniformly severe manner until it meets with Canadian taste and requirements."

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

Voorland's colored man met him at the door when he rang the bell. If he was surprised to [illegible] the detective at this early hour [illegible]ace didn't show it. He said [illegible] right in Mistuh Shayne. Mistuh Voorland is taking a shower right now."

He led the detective into a square living room where two good paintings were hung on the wall and a few carefully selected objects d'art were tastefully displayed. The furnishings were masculine and luxurious. Shayne went across to long French doors leading out onto an iron-railed balcony and stood there thoughtfully smoking a cigarette while the negro went to inform the jeweler that he had an early visitor.

He smoked two cigarettes before Voorland showed up in a gray bathrobe and sandals, his ruddy face shining with good health and the effects of a cold shower.

"Shayne!" he exclaimed. "I suppose it's something about the bracelet. Have you recovered it?"

"Not quite." Shayne walked over to a table and crushed out the cigarette. "Sorry to bother you so early but I need a little dope."

"Not at all. Glad to help any way at all. What sort of information do you want?"

"Two or three things," said Shayne. "First, do you remember the stones you sold to a couple of men named King and Kendrick? A few years ago."

"Certainly. Here, have a seat." He indicated two chairs companionably close together and sat down and stretched his long legs out. "Two of the finest star rubies that have ever passed through my hands," Voorland resumed. "King purchased a ring and Kendrick a pendant. Truly remarkable stones."

"Do you know that both of those were stolen shortly after you sold them. . .and never recovered?"

"I belive you're right. Yes, I do recall that. You begin to interest me."

"Is there the slightest possibility that either of those stones were fakes?"

"Not the slightest." Voorland seemed neither surprised nor angry, merely certain of his judgment.

"I'd like to know how you can be so sure," Shayne persisted. "I recall hearing you tell Mr. and Mrs. Dustin that synthetic stones will stand practically every chemical test."

"Practically every test," Voorland agreed. "But there are certain tests no synthetic stone can meet."

"But suppose those tests were not applied," Shayne argued. "Suppose for instance you bought a stone from a reputable dealer. You'd take his word for its being genuine. Suppose he, in turn had taken another man's word for the stone. . .and so on down the line . . .with no one bothering to make those tests."

Voorland smiled whimsically "As a matter of act, exactly that thing has happened. It is a well-known yarn in the trade. An Amsterdam dealer bought a large ruby from an exiled Russian Grand Duchess whom he knew personally. It was consigned to a firm in Paris who, in turn passed it on to a London expert and he sold it to an American retailer. All honest men. Yet, the ruby was synthetic. Each expert along the line had trusted the other to have applied the necesasry tests.

Shayne spread out his hands. "There you are. How can you be so sure. . .?"

"That a star ruby must be genuine. Because they cannot be manufactured, Mike. The synthetic process makes such a thing an impossibility."

"Explain that to me. Just what is the process?"

Walter Voorland fished in the pocket of his robe for a stick of gum. He peeled the paper off and thrust the gum in his mouth, made a few smacking sounds, then placed both hands preciseup on his knees.

"The present successful process is known as the Verneuil Process and was perfected by Professor Verneuil in 1902. He had been working on it with others for many years. Ebelman, [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]rner and Debray. The making artificial rubies attracted more scientists than other gems because rubies have the peculior property of losing color under great heat, only to regain it when they cool. Other gems do not regain their natural color after excessive heat.

"The first succesful method was to take small, inferior Burma gems and grind them into a fine powder. By subjecting this powder to terrific heat and pressure the powdered stones were fused into one large one. Actually, a real ruby. With every chemical property still intact. Nothing added and nothing taken away." Voorland paused and chewed his gum while Shayne waited for him to continue.

"A ruby is actually nothing more than crystalized corundum. Alumina basically, with a small amount of chromium oxide to give it the characteristic color. So Verneuil went back to nature and used powdered alumina itself, adding enough chromium oxide to produce the exact color desired. These are fused at intense heat in a complicated furnace apparatus and a mass is formed which is called a boule or birne.

"I could go on like this for hours," the expert said with a slight show of impatience, "but I'm sure you get the important point. It is simply a physical impossibility to produce synthetically a stone which has the natural faults we call asterism. The star ruby. This may surprise you but a star ruby is actually a faulty stone. Crystallization under natural conditions has not been perfect. The conditions producing asterism simply cannot be reproduced in the laboratory.

Shayne drew his legs up and crossed one knobby knee over the other. "I'm convinced," he said. "It was a nebulous theory at best. Just happened to fit one set of facts. What I'd like to know is this: How do you account for the fact that neither the King ring nor the Kendrick pendant were ever recovered by the insurance companies—and have never turned up in any of the gem markets of the world?"

"There's only one logical answer. They somehow made their way into the hands of private collectors who knew they were stolen and glory in possession of them. The worship of precious gems is a curious thing, Mike, and sometimes an unhealthy one. Many of the best known stones in history have disappeared from human sight for hundreds of years, only to reappear again centuries later with no record having been kept of their peregrinations. Collecting gems becomes a mania with some men. Possessing them utterly Destroying their moral senses and all responsibility toward society."

"Men like the Rajah of Hindupoor?" Shayne suggested.

Walter Voorland's big jaws suddenly ceased their regular masticatory process. A mask seemed to drop into position over his big features.

"What about the Rajah of Hindupoor?"

"I'd like to know what you and he talked about at midnight." Shayne said quietly.

"I've no idea what you are talking about," said Voorland coolly.

"Your visit to the Rajah's suite at the Waldorf Hotel last night."

"What makes you think I did that?"

"He telephoned you from the hotel and you went right out to see him. . .using the name of Smith. What did he want?"

"Really Shayne, this prying into my private afairs. . .is that ethical?"

"Anything is ethical in a murder case."

"Murder? You don't mean. . . Mr. Dustin's injuries didn't appear serious last evening." Voorland began slowly chewing his gum again.

"It was Mrs. Dustin who got it," Shayne told him. "Haven't you seen the morning paper?"

"No. This is shocking news. Is there any connection with the bracelet?"

"Definitely. I'm the only one who knows about your midnight visit to the Rajah," Shayne went on quietly. "You can tell me about it if you like. Otherwise you can tell the police."

"Really, Shayne. I'm afraid I don't see why my visit to the Rajah has any connection with Mrs. Dustin's murder."

"Perhaps it doesn't. On the other hand, there may be a very definite connection."

"What gives you that idea? Am I under surveillance? Is the Rajah?"

"Not exactly. I've been digging into a lot of angles."

"I demand that you tell me why the Rajah is involved," said Voorland sternly.

"I'll lay it on the line" Shayne agreed. "The Rajah of Hindupoor is just the sort of unscrupulous collector you mentioned as being the probable recipient of the King and Kendrick rubies. In fact his reputation as a gem miser is such that you refused to even let him look at the ruby bracelet in your shop a couple of weeks ago."

"That's quite true. You do have a way of picking up odd bits of information," Voorland said with reluctant admiration tinging his voice. "He is the sort of private collector whom I detest with all my soul. Once let him get his grasping hands on a fine gem and it disappears into his vaults and is never seen again. Precious stones were made to bring happiness and pleasure to people. They deserve to be displayed and admired."

"Yet you hurried out to see him last night as soon as he telephoned you."

Voorland hesitated, munching slowly and quietly on his gum. "I had a very good reason."

"What reason?"

"I can't tell you that."

"Would you rather tell the police?" Shayne asked harshly.

Voorland lifted his hands from his knees in a gesture of helplessness. "I assure you our conversation was confidential and had nothing whatever to do with Mrs. Dustin's death."

"But it did have something to do with the ruby bracelet?"

Voorland's large mouth tightened obstinately. "I can't tell you what we discussed."

Shayne said, "I can have you both arrested and locked up until you decide to talk."

Beads of perspiration stood out on Voorland's face. His eyes and tone were cold when he said, "that's absurd. You can't possibly suspect either of us of complicity in murder."

COULD NOT STOP CAR

Toronto, Oct. 5 — (CP) —Three curious 11-year-old boys climbed into a parked car here. One turned on the ignition, another stepped on the starter and the third released the brake. None knew how to stop it when it moved off. Result: $500 damage to two other cars into which it crashed.

Planes Soften Reds For Final Drive North of 38th Line

S.Korean Troops Sweep 20 Miles Deeper in Red Country

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Oct. 6—(AP) — South Korean troops swept 20 miles deeper into red North Korea today on the Sea of Japan coast.

They reached and passed a point more than 75 miles above Parallel 38 where the bulk of 175,000 United Nations troops were reported cocking a massive follow-up blow for a knockout.

The South Koreans' objective apparently was the coastal industrial city of Wonsan.

Air and naval support ranged over or stood by to join the big push against the staggering red army.

Field dispatches said South Korean troops were approaching Tongchon, about 32 miles southeast of Wonsan. There was virtually no red resistance.

Equipment was abandoned along the route. Red prisoners said the North Koreans had withdrawn northward in great haste for a stand in the Wonsan area. Wonsan is 90 air miles east of Pyongyang, the communist capital.

Tongchon is more than 220 miles north of Pohang. Closer aerial support for South Korean forces on the east coast was indicated by an announcement that the Pohang airstrip would be back in use Saturday.

200,000 Casualties

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters officially estimated communist army casualties at nearly 200,000 since the communists began their invasion of South Korea June 25.

The over-all picture admittedly contained some duplications. That means a man might be wounded, removed and returned to battle, wounded again, and counted as two or more single casualties.

But among the estimated casualties were more than 40,000 prisoners taken by the allies. These included 14,028 captured or surrendered in three days this week.

The communists rushed to bolster fortifications north of the 38th Parrallel, still ignoring MacArthur's repeated surrender demands and apparently indifferent to the rising toll of men and equipment.

Scarcity of Coal Wood, Sawdust On Pacific Coast

(By The Canadian Press)

A scarcity of coal, wood and sawdust on the Pacific coast is the main drawback to bright Canadiand fuel prospects for this winter.

A Canadian Press survey shows that families with oil-heating should have no trouble keeping warm this winter. Natural gas will be plentiful in the areas here it is commonly used as fuel, and coal suppliers expect to meet their commitments everywhere except in the far west and in Saskatchewan where hard coal is scarce. Prices are general unchanged.

In Vancouver, full inspector Cal Munro said a heavy run of orders could clean out the city's coal supply in a week. Sawdust, widely used as fuel on the west coast, also is becoming scarce and fir slabs are virtually non-existent.

Re-opening of some war industries will create a scarcity of top-grade bituminous coal in Ontario but coal companies expect to satisfy industrial users with lower grades. Anthracite supplies are adequate and oil companies anticipate no difficulty in supplying their customers.

Some small Quebec towns will feel a shortage of firewood but coal and oil supplies are plentiful. Coal prices have advanced three to six per cent.

Former Dictator Of Brazil Leads In Early Returns

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 6 (AP) — A trickle of early returns gave Brazil's former dictator Getulio Vargas a strong lead today over [illegible] two principal opponents in Tuesday's presidential election.

The 67-year-old candidate, who ruled Brazil for 15 years until deposed by the army in 1945, was leading in states considered anti-Vargas territory. However, only a little more than one-tenth of the estimated 7,700,000 votes had been counted.

By last night Vargas had 499,634 compared with 224,604 for Lt. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, Brazil's top air force officer nominated by the National Democratic Union. Christiano Machado, supported by the administration of outgoing president Eurico Gaspar Dutra, was trailing with 100,805.

FRENCH AIR SERVICE

Paris, Oct. 6 — (CP) — The Constellation aircraft inaugurating the west-to-east trans-Atlantic service of Air France landed [illegible] Paris today after a non - stop flight from Dorval outside Montreal.

The plane, which earlier this week flew to Montreal from Paris arrived over Only Field 11 hours and 44 minutes after leaving Dorval.

Passengers included Canada's Transport Minister Chevrier and Jean Desy, Canadian Ambassador to Italy. Also aboard were a group of Canadian newspaper men.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 6. (CP)—Official forecasts issued by the Dominion Public Weather office at 8:30 a.m. E.S.T.: Synopsis—A strengthening southwesterly circulation .is bringing warmer air to Southern and Central Ontario today. In this flow of warmer air it has spread into Central regions last night and will gradually extend into Southern regions, thickening clouds over Southern Ontario Saturday will likely be followed by occasional light rain in the evening.

In Far North regions cloudy cool weather will continue today and Saturday. A few light showers are likely today with more general rain tonight and Saturday.

Travel Minister Declares Another Record Made

Toronto, Oct. 6. (CP)—August established another record for tourist car entries into Ontario, Travel Minister Louis P. Cecile reported Thursday.

With 275,647 U.S. vehicles coming into the province on travellers vehicle permits, an increase of 10,549 cars was chalked up over the previous record August of 1949. The amount of the increase in the two major tourist months, July and August, was approximately the same at 3.9 and 3.8 per cent respectively.

For the first eight months of the current year, Ontario has shown and increase of 23,094 U.S. tourist automobiles over the same period in the record year of 1949, the minister added.

More than 916,000 American cars have entered this province, as compared with the total for all Canada of 1,501,000 representing 63.8 per cent of the National total.

MacArthur Congratulates UK Chiefs On Brilliant Inchon Counter-Stroke

Tokyo, Oct. 6 — (Reuters) — Gen. MacArthur has exchanged congratulatory messages with British chiefs-of-staff following United Nations victories in South Korea.

The British message said:

"We send you our warmest congratulations on your brilliant victory. We have admired not only the skill with which you have conducted an extremely difficult rearguard action against great odds over many anxious weeks, but equally the bravery and tenacity with which forces under your command have responded to your inspiring and indefatigable leadership.

"We believe that the brilliant conception and masterly execution of the Inchon counter-stroke which you planned and launched while holding the enemy at bay in the south will rank amongst the finest strategic achievements in military history."

MacArthur's reply said:

"My thanks and deepest appreciation for your inspiring message. British forces played a large part in the victory."

FINE GLASS FIRMS TOTAL OF $44,000, COSTS $15,000

Defendants Admitted Price-Fixing Charges

Toronto, Oct 6 (CP)—For operating as a price-fixing combine for 20 years, nine Ontario and Quebec glass companies today were fined a total of $44,000 and court costs estimated at $15,000.

Three were ordered to pay $10,000 each and costs, the maximum penalty. Five others were fined $2,500 each and costs and the ninth, described as an individual jobber, was fined $1,500 and costs.

T. N. Phelan of Toronto, Federal prosecutor, had suggested that the companies be fined $10,000 each and required to share costs of the investigation.

Mr. Justice W. R. Treleaven of the Ontario Supreme Court imposed the maximum penalty on Hobbs Glass Ltd., London, Ont., and on Pilkington Brothers (Canada) Ltd. and Consolidated Glass Ltd., both of Toronto. He said these firms were the largest in the group and gained more than the others from combine's operations.

Fine Smaller Firms

He said the five he was fining $2,500 each and costs were smaller firms and that the penalties in their case would not be so high that they would be forced out of business. They are Advance Glass and Mirror Co. Ltd., Canadian Plate and Window Glass Ltd., Excelsior Plate Glass Co. Ltd., and Queen City Glass Ltd., all of Toronto, and J. P. O'Shea and Co. Ltd., Montreal.

In the case of Lloyd's Glass Company of Hamilton, described as an individual jobber, the fine was $1,500 and costs.

The companies, in a surprise move at their trial Sept. 26, all pleaded guilty to the charge, laid under the Combines Investigation Act.

In admitting their guilt, they claimed they had done no injury to the public. The combine had "brought the industry out of chaos" and "enabled it to serve the public better."

Former Crown Attorney Denies Charges Made

Windsor, Oct. 6 (CP) — E. C. Awrey, Windsor lawyer, denied today that as Crown Attorney he had wrongly withdrawn charges in prosecutions brought by the Windsor police morality squad.

The Windsor Police Commission, investigating law enforcement in the city, yesterday examined records of various persons in which the crown office had ordered withdrawal of a serious morality charge in favor of a lesser one.

"I did what ought to have been done in every case," Mr. Awrey said.

He said he could not remember details of the cases which were examined by the police commission yesterday but he was sure that what he had done was "for the best of the public."

If any request had been made made by him for withdrawal or reduction of a charge, it was because he felt there was insufficient evidence for conviction, Mr. Awrey said.

Two Men Injured, Rescued When Power Boat Sinks After Collision in St.Lawrence R.

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Oct. 6—(AP) — Andrew F. McNally, 64, of Chicago, chairman of the Board of Rand - McNally and Company, was injured yesterday in a collision of two power boats in the St. Lawrence River.

Also hurt was Clarence Manneau, 46, a resident of Wellesly Island in the St. Lawrence. Both are confined to hospital in this river village.

The hospital said McNally, who has a summer home on Wellesly Island, was suffering from a brain concussion, face cuts and exposure, and that Manneau suffered shock.

Manneau was piloting a 26-foot craft in which McNally was a passenger. It collided with a 35-foot heavy work boat owned by Julius M. Breitenbach, wealthy Brooklyn medicine manufacturer who has a summer home on Maple Island.

Maple and Wellesly Islands are in the 1,000 Islands group.

Breitenbach was not aboard his boat which was piloted by Charles Olsen of Maple Island. Olsen and two passengers escaped injury.

The craft carrying McNally and Manneau sank almost immediately after the crash and the two men were pulled from the water by Cecil Houghton who came out from Wellesly Island in another powerboat.

Olsen said he threw life preservers to the two men and then proceeded to shore with his boat which he said was sinking.

Manneau said McNally was stunned by the impact and that he held him on the surface by his overcoat collar until Houghton arrived.

Firefighters Concentrate on Saving Homes

Bathurst, N.B., Oct. 6—(CP)—Weary fire-fighters concentrated today on saving the home of 20 to 30 families who yesterday evacuated a third tiny settlement in the face of a large forest fire 12 miles from this northern New Brunswick town.

The village of Lincour was abandoned just a day after 125 persons fled the neighboring settlements of St. Rosette and St. Charles South. This evacuation brought to 200 the number of villagers who have left their homes since the fire started Saturday.

About 150 women and children are under Red-Cross care in the parish hall at St. Therese. A hall at West Bathurst holds 25 more, and the others are with relatives.

The weather forecast held no promise of much-needed rain.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN MEAT PRICES ACROSS DOMINION

Plentiful Supply and Freeing of Dollar Cause

(By The Canadian Press)

Meat prices dropped slightly this week in many cities across Canada.

A Canadian Press survey today showed the greatest decline in the price of beef—as much as six cents a pound in some centres. Several cities reported lamb and pork prices down as much as two or three cents.

Many wholesalers regarded the price change as a seasonal one marking the coming of fall. Others however, saw it as a reflection of a plentiful supply of meat, a weakening of the United States market for beef and the freeing of the Canadian dollar.

Vancouver and Halifax still show the highest prices for beef—about 98 cents a pound for porterhouse and sirloin steaks, a drop of two to three cents. Other Vancouver meats are down slightly, with further drops expected this weekend. Legs of lamb run 67 to 90 cents, pork chops 75 cents.

Beef has taken a six-to-eight-cent drop in Edmonton, with steaks 91 cents. Pork and lamb are little changed, pork chops are unchanged at 55 cents, shoulder of lamb down from 52 to 50.

Firm in West

Retail prices held firm in Regina and Winnipeg because of large stocks of high-priced meat on hand. However, price drops announced by wholesalers are expected to be passed on to the public next week. Sirloin steak chops are 58 to 73, leg of lamb in Winnipeg now is 79 cents. Pork about 83 cents.

One Toronto retailer predicted a five-cent drop for beef this weekend. A packinghouse official said the drop in beef started about ten days ago and was accelerated by the exchange ruling. Wholesale lamb prices are down about $3 a hundredweight pork is unchanged.

Wholesale decreases of three to four cents were passed along to Montreal housewives. Steaks and roasts now are 85 cents. Lamb legs run 75 to 79 cents; roast pork 55.

One chain-store official said consumer resistance would force prices down even more. Prices certainly would not increase.

Right and Centre Win In Finnish Voting

Helsinki, Oct. 6 — (AP) — Nearly complete figures from Finland's local government elections today gave the right and centre parties the majority of the total vote.

Preliminary figures had previously given them only the majority of seats in city and country councils, while the vote majority had been with the socialists and communists.

The change was caused by returns from the Aaland Islands, which voted two days later than the rest of the country.

With only a dozen small election districts uncounted, preliminary figures issued today gave the right and centre parties 742,832 votes as against 706,556 for the socialists and communists.

British Labor Party Against Schuman Plan to Pool Europe's Coal, Steel

By GLEN WILLIAMS

Margate, England, Oct. 6 (AP) —Britain's Labor Party voted almost unanimously today to steer clear of the Schuman plan to pool Europe's coal and steel.

The party, at its annual conference, turned down the idea of Britain's entry into such a plan because it would require them to give up some sovereignty in controlling the country's industries to a supra-natural European deferative body.

"We do not intend to let the control of the British coal and steel industries go out of British hands," said Hugh Dalton, a member of the party's executive and of the cabinet.

But Dalton said Britain is ready to take practical steps to achieve co-operation with other countries in these industries. Britain's coal industry is state-owned, and the steel industry will pass under government control early next year.

Dalton said that if other western European countries create the authority to control their coal and steel industries, "we shall do our best to co-operate with it where our best interests are concerned."

"To refuse federation is not to wihthold co-operation," he added.

Party leaders readily accepted a resolution approving the government's stand on the Schuman plan. The resolution declared the plan "will inevitably lead to a restrictive monopoly, the destruction of full employment and of the workers' standard of living."

Only one "no" was heard when the resolution was put to a vote.

U.N. to Give Green Light to Occupy All North Korea

Council Also Lays Plans For Future of Country

New York, Oct. 6—(AP)—The United Nations Assembly meets today to approve to a resolution containing implied but clear permission for Gen. MacArthur to cross the 38th Parallel.

The resolution, which passed the all-important political committee Wednesday by a vote of 47 to 5, also contains a blueprint for Korea's future as a ward of the U.N. Wednesday's vote assured a victory for the west today.

Only the five-country Soviet bloc opposed the plan in committee. Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister, is expected to rise today to continue the fight against the resolution, which is formally sponsored by Britain and seven other countries.

Any Vishinsky tirade is expected to increase the fervor with which the countries who have backed U.N. action against aggression in Korea will support the eight-power proposal as the logical consequence of that action.

The eight powers officially sponsoring the resolution are Britain, Australia. Cuba, Brazil, the Philippines, The Netherlands, Norway and Pakistan.

The Soviet union introduced a rival plan in committee, but it was overwhelmingly defeated by the majority of countries.

The two Korean proposals are superficially alike, but delegates have pointed out that resemblance is only in language and not in purpose.

Proposals Made

The eight-power proposal calls for:

1. Establishment of a unified, independent and democratic Korea including elections under U.N. auspices.

2. U.N. forces to take all appropriate steps to ensure conditions of stability through Korea, but should not remain longer than to achieve united government. This is taken to mean that those forces can pursue North Korean aggressors anywhere in the country, north of south of the 38th parallel.

3. Economic rehabilitation of Korea. supporting delegates hope Korea will be a "pilot project" to show what the U.N. can do in this line.

4. A new U.N. commission of seven members to see that the plan's provisions are carried out.

Six members—Australia, Chile, The Netherlands, Pakistan, The Philippines and Turkey — are named in the resolution. The seventh place has been left open for India, but there is strong doubt that this most influential of Asian countries will accept the appointment.

India proposed a compromise of the Russian and western Korean plans. It was decisively defeated as trying to combine the practical and impractical.

The U.N.'s powerful 14-member steering committee agreed yesterday to have the world organization take over the problem of Formosa.

The United States, where Formosa is a hot domestic political issue, proposed the item. It was opposed by the unusual combination of Russia and nationalist China. Both countries, usually bitter enemies within the U.N., agreed that Formosa is a domestic Chinese issue and not subject to international jurisdiction.

Revenue Higher From Advertising Than in U.S.

Montreal, Oct. 6 (CP) — The proportion of total advertising dollars earned by Canadian Daily newspapers is approximately 16 percent higher than that earned by United States dailies Russell C. Ronalds, president of Ronalds Advertising Agency, Ltd., said here Thursday.

Addressing the opening sesions of the annual meeting of the Newspaper Advertising Managers Association of Eastern Canada, he said that in the United States, from 1929 to 1949, total advertising had gone up 2 1-2 times and while the newspaper share of the 1929 advertising total had been 50.2 percent it had dropped to 33.9 percent by 1949.

In Canada, however, he said daily newspapers received 43.3 percent of the total advertising dollar in 1946 and in the first six months of this year they had risen to 50.4 percent, or more than radio and magazines combined.

Mr. Ronalds felt Canadian newspaper men should critically examine their product.

"How far should a daily paper go in emulating a monthly magazine, a weekly or a Sunday paper?" he asked, "Our papers today are almost daily magazines much more so that a decade or two ago, and we certainly have less and less time.

"Are we giving the reader too much in these tremendously full and busy day? Too many comics, too many stories, too many features and syndicated articles?

Earlier, Martin Livingstone, advertising manager, the Halifax Chronicle-Herald Ltd., and president of N.A.M.A., read the president's report in which he said, "great forward strides have been made by newspaper advertising during the last 10 or 11 years. The current figures received from the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association show that since 1939, all three branches of daily newspaper advertising, local, and classified have practically doubled."

WELL SUPPLIED WITH MONEY

Sudbury, Oct. 6 — (CP) — An eight-year-old Sudbury girl went to school well supplied with candy money. In fact, she had $420 in cash and a $50 bond.

Not at all selfish, the girl distributed $40 to her playmates. The principal confiscated the roll and called police after the girl was unable to account for the money.

Police learned she had taken the money and bond from a drawer at home. The money was returned, along with the $40 distributed to the other pupils.

Municipal Band Excellent Group Says Official

Regret that the people of Belleville and district apparently fail to appreciate that they have in the Belleville Municipal Band one of Canada's finest wind symphony groups, has been expressed in a letter received this week by E. Reg. Hinchey from A. L. Robertson of Kilworthy, Ont., secretary treasurer of The Canadian Bandmasters' Association.

Mr. Hinchey received the letter following presentation Monday evening of the band festival staged at the local Memorial Arena by the Belleville Municipal Band.

"Just a line to compliment you most sincerely on the fine show you put on last Monday night," wrote Mr. Robertson. "I was so glad to be able to attend and I learned much about many things I have often wondered about."

The writer complimented Flt. Lt. Ed. Kirkwood, of the Ottawa R.C.A.F. band and also Alf Cooper, who he said was "doing a good job among the kids and those youngsters showed up very well indeed against very tough opposition from your own and the Air Force Bands."

Doing Fine Jobs

"Definitely, however," Mr. Robertson went on, "I must say that your own band impressed me most of all. Ted Robbins is doing a fine job there, and I am convinced that you now have the best band you have ever had in Belleville. The reading of "Mannin Veen" was something out of this world, and so was "Finlandia".

"Most of all I was impressed with the fine musical taste the band shows in accompaniment of the soloists, who were outstanding. After all, in band work, that is one of the real tests of musicianship and those accompaniments we heard on Monday evening were perfectly controlled and extremely effective."

Not Fully Appreciated

"It does seem a pity that your citizens do not fully realize that they have in your band one of Canada's finest wind symphony groups. There must be some way to convince them of what you have there, and I do think you should try to find the answer to it all. I wish I lived in Belleville and could work with you on making the folks of Belleville a little more conscious of these things."

Mr. Robertson concluded with expressing appreciation for the very fine show and also for the many courtesies and kindnesses shown to him while in Belleville.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police are clamping down hard on motorists who persist in speeding on local streets with result that five speeders have been checked in the past two days.

Wednesday afternoon one motorist was apprehended while doing 65 miles per hour on West Bridge Street. Reason for the hurry: he was going to the stock car races at Marysville.

Again yesterday the police prowl car had a field day when four motorists were checked driving faster than the speed limit allows.

Michael Thompson, Montreal, complained to police this morning that his wallet containing $125 in cash and $500 in cheques, had been stolen from his room at the Crystal Hotel.

A Toronto resident claimed that he had been attacked by two men on Coleman Street near the footbridge gangway Thursday night. He said he managed to elude his attackers and immediately reported the matter to police. Officers checked in the area but were unable to see any suspicious characters.

Toronto, Peterborough Bands Will Accompany Hasty Pees' Clubs to Regiment Reunion

Arrangements and plans have been completed for the 6th Annual Reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment scheduled for the Armouries here on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Upwards to 1,000 ex-members of the famous fighting infantry regiment are expected to re-unite at what is expected the best function of its kind in the history of the regimental association.

Nine former commanding officers of the Hasty Pees will be here for the reunion. These include Maj. Gen. Howard Graham, D.S.O., vice chief Canadian General Staff, Ottawa; Lieut. Col. D. C. Cameron, D.S.O., Camp Borden; Lieut. George Renison, D.S.O. son of Bishop Renison, Toronto; Lieut. Col. A. A. Kennedy, D.S.O., Owen Sound; Lieut Col. Reg Abraham, O.B.E., Ottawa; Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, M.C., commanding officer of the second battalion (reserve); Belleville; Lieut. Col. W. A. Davern, Wellington, Ont.; Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, Belleville and Major G. A. Ross, Montreal.

Former commanding officers unable to be present are Lieut. Col. Sherman Young, Picton, and Lieut. Cols. W. A. Stockloser and Lord Tweedsmuir, both of whom are in England.

The Hon. Milton Gregg, V.C. Minister of Labor, Ottawa, will be the guest speaker at the reunion banquet being held in the Vanity Fair Club at 1.30 p.m. Sunday.

Rededication

This year the reunion is being dedicated to "The Regiment" and will pay special tribute to "Its Members"—all those who have served in any capacity at any time in any place, either at home or abroad, active or reserve. It is felt that a rededication at this time is particularly significant.

Led by The Queen's Own Rifle Band, the Assoro Club will arrive from Toronto at 7.30 p.m. Saturday evening and parade through Belleville to the Armouries which is serving as Headquarters for the Reunion. On Sunday, at 10 a.m., The Duffy Club from Peterborough will arrive escorted by the Peterborough Municipal Band in time to take part in the parade.

On Sunday at 12 noon, the parade will fall-in at the Armouries and led by the Queen's Own Rifle Band, The Peterborough and Belleville Municipal Bands, will march to the Belleville Cenotaph for the Memorial Church Service to be conducted by the padre, Capt. A. S. McConnell of Trenton.

Return to Armouries

Following the service in honor of those who have joined the "White Battalion", the parade will return to the Armouries, past the Saluting Base in front of the Post Office where Brig Gregg, V.C., flanked by former Commanding Officers of the Regiment, will take the salute.

A Regimental Association dance will highlight the Saturday evening get-to-gether starting at 9 p.m. in the Belleville Armouries to the music of Bill Arnold's orchestra. Some of the best talent from among former members is expected to entertain during the intermission and this year will see the best reunion ever.

Training Schools For Club Leaders Will be Opened

Training schools for homemaking club leaders in Hastings county are to be held this year October 10th and 17th at Stirling and 11th and 18th at Madoc. The project this year is "Cotton Accessories for the Club Girls' Bedroom." During the year club members will be making dresser scarves, chair pads and waste paper baskets and some of the more ambitious ones will be doing bedspreads.

County Home Economist Elsie M. Ervine points out that club membership is open to all rural girls between the ages of 12 and 26 and a club may be organized wherever there are four potential members and there is someone to be club leader.

Last year there were 126 girls in clubs in Hastings county and prospects are for a bigger membership next year.

Training schools will he held at the Department of Agriculture board room in Stirling and the Women's Institute room in Madoc from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. each day. Attendance of club leaders at meetings both days is necessary to carry on club work.

AGE NO BARRIER

Ingersoll, Oct. 6 — (CP)—Age is no barrier in John Mills' search for education. The successful, 44-year-old Brampton farmer, forced to leave school almost a quarter of a century ago as a boy, has completed his junior matriculation by correspondence and night classes. Now he has enrolled in grade 13 of the collegiate here. He intends to eventually become a teacher.

Most Factories Still Canning On Reduced Scale

Despite the fact that killing frosts of late September destroyed much tomatoes and corn in the Bay of Quinte area, most of the canning factories in Prince Edward county are still operating on a reduced scale.

In Hastings the tomato harvest ended with only 50 per cent of the crop harvested. In Prince Edward the loss also was heavy but in areas close to water and on high areas escaped damage and are still being harvested These are being sold on the domestic market and also to canning factories.

The tomato crop was two weeks behind normal in development and as result caught many farmers with only a relatively small yield per acre harvested.

The weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture reported that about 40 per cent of the silo filling was completed in Hastings by October 1st, while in Prince Edward many farmers were still seeding fall wheat and rye.

TWO ARRESTED IN CAR

Hamilton, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Police yesterday recovered an automobile stolen from Guelph and arrested its two teen-aged occupants.

The driver gave his name as Raymond Fennell, 16. The other was unidentified. Both were from Guelph.

Police said they recovered the car before the owner knew it had been stolen from a lot in Guelph.

The car was spotted when it failed to stop at an intersection. The boys were charged with car theft and returned to Guelph.

The funeral takes place to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Toronto, on Saturday.

LATE EARL ORVILLE FOX

The funeral of the late Earl Orville Fox was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. There was a large attendance, especially from the Weston Bread Company, where the deceased was a valued employee. The floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased. Rev. J. P. Henderson conducted the service in the chapel and also the last rites, interment being in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Grant Stickle, George Greatrix, Ossie Outendyke, Don Ferguson, Cameron Foster and T. Beninger.

Point Anne Street Lighting System Approved

Approval of the installation of a street lighting system at Point Anne, Belleville R. O. A., has been granted by Ontario Hydro. The system will comprise 19 - 100 watt Radial Wave type street lighting units with automatic control.

The estimated capital cost of $1,406 will be provided by the Canada Cement Company, together with lamp replacements, under an agreement with the Township of Thurlow. The Commission is to supply maintenance and all other operation.

An annual rate of $9 per annum per 100 watt unit was also approved by Ontario Hydro.

Four Injured As 14-Foot Hole Gashed in Tram

Toronto, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Four persons were injured today, one severely, when a steel-laden truck gashed a 14-foot hole in the side of a street-car.

Police said another truck pulled out from a curb into the path of the steel truck, which swerved into the street car.

Leonard Shaw, 34, was jammed between two tram seats and suffered compound fractures of both legs. J. Propipryburo, 40, driver of the steel truck, and street-car passengers Elner Miller, 40, and Charles Fester, 56, suffered minor injuries.

New R.C.A.F. Flying Station Near North Bay

Ottawa, Oct. 6. (CP) —A new R.C.A.F. flying station will be established at the Transport Department's airfield near North Bay, the Defence Department announced today.

The department said that, in addition to the construction of a group of buildings, runways at the field are to be extended. The R.C.A.F. expects to occupy the station by the end of 1951.

The department said work is to start immediately to set up a regular R.C.A.F. base complete with barrack blocks, headquarters building and married quarters. Construction contracts are to be let shortly by the Canadian Commercial Corporation, which handles defence purchasing.

The field will be used for operations and training in connection with the expansion of the Air Force, Mr. Claxton said.

During the war, the field served as an R.A.F. Training Station. Later, it was turned over to the Transport Department, which has since operated it as a landing point for Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines. Its use by the R.C.A.F. will not affect the commercial operations.

One Destroyer Coming Home End of Year

Ottawa, Oct. 6 (CP) — At least one of Canada's three destroyers in Korean waters is slated to be posted home around the end of the year, navy headquarters said today.

But, a spokesman said, the Korean situation is so fluid now that nobody knows just what is going to happen to the three destroyers although there are hopes they can come home a lot sooner than originally expected.

The tentative plans are that the Sioux will come home around the end of the year, the Cayuga early in March and the Athabaskan late in March.

Two east coast destroyers have orders to sail for the Pacific and eventually to go to Korea. The Nootka is due to leave Halifax next month, the Huron in February.

The Sioux would head back to Korea in March to complete the trip. It remains for the United Nations, in effect, Gen. MacArthur, to say how long the destroyers are needed but the situation is such now that it appears doubtful there will be any Canadian warships in Korean waters next spring.

The government has stressed that the three destroyers were loaned to U.N. only for the Korean war. It has no desire to get tied up with the vigil over Formosa or any other far Pacific duty.

Meanwhile, the navy said Vice Admiral H. T. W. Grant, chief of the naval staff, has reached Korea and is probably at sea with the three destroyers.

Says Russia Uses Chinese to Mine Silesian U-Deposits

Berlin, Oct. 6. (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper Der Tag claims today that Russia has imported 500 Chinese to mine newly-discovered uranium deposits in Polish-occupied lower Silesia.

The newspaper says the uranium was found in large quantities in the Eitenberg area. It adds that the Chinese were brought in because they could preserve secrecy better than Polish workers.

Der Tag also asserts that 20,000 Chinese are expected to be settled in Silesia by the end of this year as cheap labor for Polish-operated coal mines and lumber camps.

Official Polish sources in Berlin denied Der Tag's report on new Chinese immigration.

520 Firemen Strike in Melbourne

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 6—(AP) — This city of 1,200,000 is without a proper firefighting force today.

Melbourne's 520 firemen went on strike yesterday and today only 76 fire brigade officers are on duty.

So far there have been no serious fires but officers have been called out by false alarms.

Eighteen firemen were fired yesterday for refusing to obey an order. The rest began the strike.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Prices firmed from early easiness as the session progressed on the Toronto exchange today.

Base metals paced a mild upturn in a selected list of market leaders. Early activity was mixed with considerable realizing sales carried over from late yesterday.

Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou continued star performers in base metals. Golden Manitou sold at a new high at $6.35 while Quebec Manitou touched $2.49. Sherritt-Gordon Mines also attracted considerable demand.

Industrials bucked their way higher for gains ranging from fractions to a point. Papers continued in the limelight and constructions, steels and refining oils advanced. Imperial Oil was in heavy demand in refining oils for a new high at 29⅞.

Golds firmed on penny advances to leading junior producers.

Western oils were the only losers. Recovery moves reduced early declines but the majority of issues remained in minus territory.

MARMORA

H.S. Team Wins Second Game

Marmora — Marmora High School rugby team won their second Centre Hastings scheduled game with Madoc on the latter's grounds on Thursday evening by eighteen points to eleven.

In the first quarter, Peter Nicholson had a touchdown for Marmora which Killian converted, this being the only score in that quarter. A second touchdown was secured by Nicholson in the next quarter which was unconverted. Pigden for Madoc touched down from a forward pass by Hatch. This was unconverted.

Score at halftime was Marmora 11, Madoc 5.

Early in the third quarter Hatch got a touchdown for Tufts to convert. Killian, Marmora's left flying wing was injured in this quarter and was unable to continue play. Nicholson did the hat trick in the final quarter as he bucked over the visitors' third touchdown. Borland converted and also later kicked a point on an attempted placement in the last play which failed.

For the losers Hatch played a strenuous game and Shadbolt was placed out of the game for roughing.

The Marmora boys showed improvement since their game a week ago with Tweed. They play Stirling next on October 13 on Stirling grounds.

Pound Sterling Makes Comeback

Paris, Oct. 6 (Reuters) — The pound sterling is making a fighting comeback on the Paris black market.

It was traded today at 965 francs, only 15 cents less than the official exchange rate.

Financial sources predicted the black-market rate might pass the official figure of 980 by next week.

They said the recent Canadian decision to put the dollar on the free market had influenced the pound's comeback. Some held the opinion Britain would shortly follow suit despite all official denials.

Since May, 1945, the British pound has always sold on the Paris black market at less than the official rate. Its lowest quotation was 845 francs last March.

CANADIAN DOLLAR

New York, Oct. 6 — (CP)—The Canadian dollar was down 1/16 of a cent at a discount of 5½ per cent in terms of United States funds in opening foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80 3/16.

MARMORA

Old Landmark Being Torn Down

Marmora—One of the oldest buildings in Marmora has been torn down during the past week. The old residence on the property purchased by Mr. A. J. Maynes for the erection of a theatre, was purchased by Ira Westerfelt and the material will be used in the erection of two houses on Pearce Street.

The building taken down was at least one hundred years old and was one of the old landmarks of the village. Among those who have occupied it were the late Dr. W. G. Mackenchnie, O. R. Jones and W. A. Sanderson. C. T. Archer was the last occupant except for a few days in which it was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heath.

Preparations are being rushed for the erection of the new theatre by Mr. Maynes.

Mr. Don Ross is also going ahead with the erection of a new theatre on the Clairmont lot at the corner of Matthew and Burstal Streets.

67-Pound Pumpkin

Hiram Dafoe of Rawdon township has harvested a field pumpkin this week weighing 67 pounds. It measured 4 ft. 9 inches one way and 5 feet 6 inches the other. Mr. Dafoe also harvested a mangel weighing 24½ pounds.

Bank Held Up At Stevensville $1,000 Taken

Stevensville, Ont., Oct. 6—(CP)—A masked gunman stole about $1,000 from a Canadian Bank of Commerce Branch here today and escaped in an automobile in which three accomplices were waiting.

"This is a holdup," the six-foot gunman snapped, thrusting a revolver into the face of teller Nancy Mewha, 25. "Hand over all the money in that cage. Be quiet and nothing will happen to you."

The girl handed the bandit all the cash in a drawer. As he fled, she fainted.

Police immediately converged on this community of 500 persons eight miles east of Welland and midway between Welland and the border town of Fort Erie, Ont.

They soon established that the getaway car, the licence number of which was jotted down by a passer-by, had been stolen earlier in the day in Welland.

Police came from Niagara Falls, Welland, Fort Erie and Ridgeway. A close watch was placed on the border points of Niagara Falls and Fort Erie, through which it was thought the thieves might try to escape to the United States.

In the bank besides Mrs. Mewha, were manager R. W. A. Ferguson and ledgerkeeper Mrs. Harold Lake.

Pint-Sized Eskimo Bright Pupil, Pet of School

Brandon, Man., Oct. 6. (CP)—Susangnuk, 5, is making history.

The pin-sized Eskimo lad—nicknamed Jimmy Snow because his real name is a little difficult—is the only Eskimo ever taught at the Indian residential school in Brandon. And that institution is more than a half-century old.

Epidemic and flood brought him here.

First tuberculosis struck the Eskimo settlement at ice-bound Coral Harbor, on Southampton Island at the mouth of Hudson Bay. His mother died; his father was taken to Winnipeg for treatment, along with Jimmy.

The little boy escaped the disease. Then came the spring Red River flood. Jimmy was brought here to get an education.

His teacher, Mrs. J. A. McNeil, says he's a bright lad—can do simple addition and letter his name already. And he's the pet of the school.

Ishbel Hutton President CWL

Halifax, Oct. 6. (CP)— Miss Ishbel Hutton of Ottawa, was elected president of the Catholic Women's League yesterday at closing sessions of the 30th annual convention of the national organization. She succeeds Mrs. T. E. Durocher of Windsor, Ont.

(The Canadian Press last night erroneously reported the new president's name as "Miss Isabel Holden.")

Most Rev. John C. Cody, Bishop of London, Ont., remains national director.

WILL HOLD INQUIRY

London, Oct. 6—(CP)— Britain's Liberal party announced today it is seeking an independent inquiry into circumstances surrounding the banning of the television play, "Party Manners."

Liberal leader Clement Davies has written postmaster-general Ness Edwards saying the play's withdrawal must lead to "serious speculation about the impartiality of the BBC."

The play was withdrawn following criticism by the pro-labor Daily Herald, which said it displayed anti-government bias. It had previously been shown as a stage play, without protest.

Lutherans Become Member of National Council of Churches

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 6 (AP)—The United Lutheran Church in America for the first time in its history was on record today as approving full membership in a co-operative American Protestant agency.

By an overwhelming standing vote delegates to the 17 biennial convention yesterday agreed to become a member of the New National Council of Churches of Christ in America.

It appeared less than 50 of the 600 delegates stood in opposition. During the two-hour discussion preceding the vote, only two dissenting voices were raised.

The National Council of Churches is to be formally organized at a meeting in Cleveland next month. It will absorb the Federal Council of Churches and seven other inter-denominational agencies.

NAVY WEEK

This is Navy Week in Canada and from coast to coast attention has been focussed upon the Royal Canadian Navy and on the sister-service of the sea, the Merchant Marine. There has been carried on the air a special program on which the speakers included Defence Minister Claxton, Vice Admiral Grant, chief of the Naval Staff, a senior British naval officer, Admiral Sir Frederick Dalrymple - Hamilton, and David H. Gibson, head of the Navy League of Canada. Displays, demonstrations and other activities have and are being staged across the Dominion. Navy Day will be marked on Saturday, October 7th, when 19 of the 21 naval divisions and most of the 80 Sea Cadet corps headquarters will hold open house to the public.

In the naval divisions, citizen-sailors of the Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) will play hosts to residents of their respective communities, welcoming them on board the "ships" that serve as training centres for the Reserve. On display have been the facilities and modern equipment with which the divisions are fitted—asdic, radar, loran and wireless, weapons of varying sorts and sizes and many ingenious devices employed in teaching men to be sailors while still on dry land.

In sea cadet ships visitors have been shown how young Canadians learn good seamanship, good sportsmanship and good citizenship within the one training program.

Sunday October 8th will be the Battle of the Atlantic Sunday and in centres where there are naval establishments, formal church parades will be held. In many churches congregations will have the opportunity of remembering the sacrifices made by Canadians in the long, bitter war at sea during the Second World War.

During the Second World War the Royal Canadian Navy grew from thirteen ships and 1,819 officers and men to a force of nigh on four hundred fighting ships, served afloat or ashore by nearly ninety thousand men and six thousand women. Our ships served in the Mediterranean, in the Pacific, the far northern waters of the perilous route to Murmansk, in the tropic heat of the Caribbean, in the English Channel and in the North and Irish Seas. In the North Atlantic more than 25,000 merchant-ship voyages were brought to safe harbor. In their holds were close to two hundred million tons of cargo — the fruits of the earth and of the skill and toil of men and women of the New World, engaged in the rescue of the Old.

This heroic service was not without sacrifice. Almost 1,300 Canadian sailors gave their lives in battle against the enemy or the elements. Twenty-four Canadian ships fell victim to the enemy's assault.

There were other sacrifices, hardships of long separation from home and family, of sleepless vigil in the chill dead of darkness on the waters, of struggle against wild weather and the danger and emergency of life at sea in wartime — all these took toll in years of life, which — in a world at peace, could have been better used. To these brave souls, we owe our security. Their sacrifice has preserved for us all the quiet Christian way of life.

All this was achieved by faith in divine guidance and by that inspiration which comes from beyond the power of man.

At this time of the year the English-speaking world does not forget the glorious record of service and devotion of Britain's great admiral,, Horatio Nelson. His prayer on the morning of the Battle of Trafalgar one hundred and forty-five years ago on October 21, 1805, is an inspiration even in this distant day:

"May the God whom I worship, grant to my country, and for the benefit of Europe in general, a great and glorious victory; and may no misconduct in anyone tarnish it; and may humanity after victory be the predominant feature in the British fleet. For myself, individually, I commit my life to Him who made me and may His blessing light on my endeavors for serving my country faithfully. To Him I resign myself and the just cause, which is entrusted to me to defend. Amen, Amen, Amen."

JUNIOR PLOWMEN

Boys on farms in Southern Ontario may cast soulful eyes at the bright lights of the big city, but it becomes more and more apparent that Northern Ontario youngsters take a very active interest in agriculture, says Windsor Star.

At the annual plowing match at St. Charles, 14-year-old Basil Beauparlant took top honors in both junior and senior tractor drawn plow events. At Burwash, a short time ago, the youngster took top honors in a livestock judging competition

The important feature of the plowing honors is to be found in the fact that Basil squeezes his plowing between school lessons. He plows, not because he is forced to, but because he likes to do the work.

This is the youthful fibre that speaks well for the agriculture of this province. Much interest is being stimulated through the junior farmer movement and when a 14-year-old plowman can win both junior and senior awards, it is quite apparent that the lessons are being well and truly learned.

FOR THE CHILDREN

I say with the children who drop in to call:
"A home without cookies is no home at all."
I remember when I was a six-year-old lad
I dreaded to go where no cookies they had.

Though fine were the pictures and carpets and books
I thought that they must have had indolent cooks,
Such a home seemed to me like a furniture shop
Where you don't expect cookies and strawberry pop.

Now I say to the cook: "I don't care for myself
But you must keep a cookie jar filled on the shelf
And strawberry pop in a box
by the wall
To be ready for children who pay us a call."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOY OF COMPANIONSHIP

We cannot live happily as solitary creatures. We must have those about us who give us mental and spiritual nourishment. John Muir, the lovable Western naturalist, lived alone in the mountains and among the glaciers, but he always had companions that he loved—every bird, every flower, every animal was his friend, and he delighted in them.

Even the lost companionship of a beloved dog casts a cloud of darkness over the days of those who for long delighted in the companionship that was such a joy. As the years advance for each one of us there are those who have been our happy companions over the years that are taken from us, and we die a little.

The greatest gift that marriage gives to one is its companionship In the Bible is told the story of the companionship of David and Jonathan; and Jesus had as companions His selected disciples. And how delightful was that companionship which He had with Mary and Martha!

One of the greatest joys of a college experience is the companionship of one's classmates and the friendships created that last throughout life. A soldier could not courageously fight without his buddies about him. It was comradeship and companionship as well as the understanding of the late Ernie Pyle that made him so beloved to every soldier contacted. He was always one of them.

Even the birds and animals like to be together. You see them in flocks or groups. There is a beautiful line that I like to put in flowers that I send to friends. Here it is: "The very flowers that bend and meet in sweetening others, grow more sweet." And so we, by always trying to be companionable towards others, gain the joy of companionship for ourselves.

Nothing is superior to human companionship, but perhaps next to this is the companionship of books—books that were once men and women, and created by them as the substance of themselves. With good books about you, you need never be lonely or alone. They can both comfort and inspire. And they can always be near at hand.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HE SWITCHED TO THEOLOGY

A young physician named Martin Lloyd-Jones, who was making considerable progress as a heart specialist in England not many years ago, came to the conclusion that there is something fundamentally the matter with the human heart which medical science cannot remedy. He therefore switched from medicine to theology, entered the seminary, studied for the ministry, and is now prominent in the religious life of Britain.

Many people have discovered, as did Lloyd- Jones, that the human heart is spiritually out of adjustment, but few people have Many a man needs to learn the truth about his own heart right before God and man.

There would be more statesmanship in our country and in the world if our leaders could realize that our troubles lie not in the field of organization but in the field of human motive.

Jesus once said that out of the heart proceed the issues of life.

It is when we look at our own hearts and the sad, ignorant hearts of those who are round us that we realize the wisdom of the young London heart specialist who switched from medicine to theology that he might more effectively treat the ailing heart.

the courage to take the bold step he did to correct this difficulty.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

DRINK TO ME ONLY WITH THINE ICE

At least four times in the past week I've been buttonholed on Broadway and asked, "Have you heard what happened to Charlie Feltus?" Well, I have, but on the off-chance that you haven't, perhaps I ought to bring you up to date. . . .

For as long as I can remember, Charlie Feltus has been a promoter of things and people, and by and larcenous he has always made a pretty nice dollar at it. However, like a lot of other Times Squareheads, he has never held on to these dollars because of a weakness for bangtails and blondes.

In recent months, to hear the wisenheimers tell it, it's been rough going for Charlie in both departments seeing as how (a) most of his earnings have been going into the jewel box of a platinum-mopped tootsie named Hazel Duke, and (b) his luck at the race track has been - - as Damon Runyon used to put it - - a whole lot less than somewhat.

Came a bleak and bleary-eyed evening not long ago when Charlie called on Hazel with a face longer than Durante's smeller. "I'm in a spot, baby," he gloomed. "I owe my bookie, Butch Fleeson. seven grand and he just tipped me off that if I don't pay up by the end of the week I'm in for some bad trouble. Butch, as you know, is a pal of mine and wouldn't make no fuss if it was up to him, but he says the guy who runs the syndicate is pressing him."

"What can I do about it " asked Hazel.

"Well," said Charlie, eying the knick-knacks on her arms and neck, "I could raise several grand on your jewelry. It would be just a loan you understand. . ."

"Nuts to that loan stuff," said Hazel. "And while we're having this heart-to-heart, I might as well tell you I've been thinking of calling it quits. Don't slam the door, sucker."

Naturally, Charlie was hurt by this kiss-off, especially after his many blue-white kindnesses to the little lady, but he was an old campaigner and so he left without breaking her arm or doing anything else ungentlemanly.

The next day Hazel got a phone call from Butch Fleeson, the bookie. "Hello, Beautiful," he said. "I hear tell you've given Charlie the brush and - -"

"You wan't to pick up where he left off," laughed Hazel. "Okay by me, and you can begin by taking me to dinner."

"You catch on quick." said the bookie. He named one of the exclusive eateries on the East Side and went on, "Meet you at seven, and if you get there first order yourself a drink. I'll be over as I finish with the bets on tonight's fight."

An hour and four Martinis later, Butch phoned Hazel at the restaurant. "I got all jammed up," he said, but I'll be over in a few minutes. Have them ice up a couple of quarts of champagne and order the biggest double steak in the house. "I'm starved."

By 9, Hazel had polished off most of the porterhouse and all the champagne, but there was still no sign of Butch. Finally, plenty peeved, she told herself that no horse hustler was going to make her wait around with ketchup on her mouth. But as she arose to go the waiter handed her the tab for $51.20.

"Tell the manager I'm Mr. Fleeson's guest," she said.

Five minutes later the manager appeared. "I'm sorry," he said, but I just phoned Mr. Fleeson and he says he had no appointment here tonight.

"Okay," said Hazel wearily. "I'll just leave this bracelet as security and come in tomorrow and pay you."

The manager took the bracelet and beckoned to a stoutish gent who was sitting at the bar.

The man walked over, flashed a detective's badge and handed Hazel a typewritten sheet headed, "Articles of jewelry stolen from Mrs. Elizabeth Stone." And when Hazel examined the list she saw that, item for item, it matched the jewelry she was wearing.

"There's some mistake," she said. "I got these things from a Mr. Charles Feltus, and he told me he bought them on Fifth Ave.

"You can explain in court," said the detective. "In the meantime, hand the stuff over. I'l let you go home tonight but I'd suggest you don't try to leave town."

When Hazel got to her apartment she found a sheet of paper under the door. It was a duplicate of the jewelry list the "detective" had shown her. At the bottom was a message in Charlie's familiar scrawl:

"Butch Fleeson thanks you, the syndicate thanks you, and I thank you. Don't slam the door, sucker."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Some of the finest machine tools the manufacturing industry of this country has ever seen were in the English and Scottish exhibits at this year's Canadian trade fair. I saw machine-loving men among the visitors fondling the exhibits almost with tears in their eyes; especially those that had that brindly look as though their names might start with a Mac.

Yesterday, in a big factory devoted to the manufacture of wire, I asked the boss who was showing me through the immaculate maze of stupendous whirring wonders how many English machines they had here.

"Not one," he confessed. "English machinery is too good. It is made to last too long. Long before it is worn out, something new has been invented. Buying machinery these days is a real gamble. What is ready for delivery may already be obsolescent if not obsolete. Technology is moving too fast. You no sooner tool up with the very latest machinery than somebody invents a new process or a simpler method. And there you are, weighted down with half a million dollars worth of machinery that has got to go ten years to pay for itself.

"A few years ago, technology was moving at what you might call a predictable rate. You could see what was coming some years ahead. Those were the days when British machinery was in a class by itself.

"It is an awful thing to say, but nowadays you want only so much quality in most manufacturing businesses. Quality has to last only as long as current processes. Quality can be a liability, not an esset."

This is true of an old Scotch overcoat I've got. I'm sick of it. My family is tired of it. It is eleven years old, and it is far too good to give to the Salvation Army. It has done the local clothing trade out of at least two, maybe three sales in the past nine years. I don't own it. The darn thing owns me. I would feel like some kind of a foreigner if I wore anything else.

Mackenzie's Column:

Bevin's Physical Strength Fading Thru Ill Health

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Disquieting news comes from Britain regarding the health of Foreign Secretary Bevin.

This outstanding figure in foreign affairs yesterday delivered another of his pungent speeches in support of the United Nations and collective armed strength for the west. It was a notable effort, made at the annual convention of the Labor party, but unhappily one of the impressions it left was that Bevin's physical strength is fading through ill health.

Indeed, while he showed flashes of his old two-fisted vigor, some observers felt that this might be the last speech he would deliver at a party conferference as a cabinet minister. There have been reports from time to time that he might resign as Foreign Secretary because of his health.

If Bevin has to retire from the heavy pressure he now is under, it will be a great international loss. His views have weighed heavily in world councils, and even hardy political foes such as Russia's V. M. Molotov have had a deep respect for this exponent of shirt-sleeve diplomacy.

Resolution Defeated

One of the acheivements of the foreign secretary's speech yesterday was the defeat of the left-wing pacifist resolution calling for new talks with Russia. His attitude towards the U. N. was summed up like this:

"We have tried the four-power and five power business of . . . settling the fate of all little powers. I don't like the prospect of assuming that every little country can be bandied about on the decisions of the big ones."

Instead, he declared, he prefers to work entirely through the U.N.

Well, should this prove to be Bevin's last address before the Labor party conference as foreign secretary, he will have wound up with a fighting speech. It typifies his whole attitude towards public life since the beginning of his political career when he threw a noisy opponent bodily into a river.

Personal Health Talks

CHARLEYHORSE OF ANOTHER COLOR

In his classic, Exercise in Education and Medicine, R. Tait McKenzie, B.A., M.D., quoted Ol' Doc Galen as follows:

"If anyone immediately afterundressing proceeds to the more violent movements before he has softened the whole body and thinned the excretions and opened the pores"—or as we say nowadays before he has warmed up—"he incurs the danger of breaking or straining some of the solid parts; but if beforehand he gradually warms and softens the solids and thins the fluids and expands the pores, the person exercising will run no danger of breaking any part."

We may use different language to express what Galen said so well 1800 years ago, but we couldn't improve much on the sense of his words.

Muscular action in any circumstance, whether one happens to be cold or well warmed up, may cause rupture or tear of muscle tissue or tendon, with bleeding at the point of the tear or rupture and formation of a lump or swelling and lameness or tenderness and disability. This is a typical "charleyhorse."

In many instances only a few cells or small fibres of muscle are ruptured or torn, and little or no apparent swelling but just moderate pain, soreness and disability ensue, sufficient to keep the individual out of the game for a week.

Prevention of charley horse is not the only reason why baseball pitchers, for example, are so meticulous about warming up before they go to the mound. Another reason is to prevent simple muscle soreness or stiffness which is due to accumulation or retention in the muscles and other soft tissues of the by-products of combustion formed during vigorous or violent muscular work. These by-products are more or less acid in character and irritating if not promptly carried away in the blood stream. Removal of the irritating waste matter is hastened by massage, and by keeping the muscle warm artifically if the individual is not overheated by exertion.

Recently, writes a reader, I have been having charley horse in both legs. It occurs in the morning when I get out of bed, and it is very painful until I get the muscle straightened out. (Miss L. MacL.)

Charley horse my levator labii superioris alae que nasi. Leg cramps are not charley horses, not by a long shot. They are more painful, however, while they last. In some instances they are a manifestation of adult tetany, and they may be prevented by increasing your daily intake of calcium and vitamin D. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

These cramps occur usually in the night, in mature adults. Most persons past middle age suffer from various manifestations of calcium deficiency, due to the inadequate supply of calcium and Vitamin D in the everyday diet. For instruction on the nature and prevention or correction of these common ailments send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet The Calcium Shortage.

If you do not consume at least 1½ pints (three glasses) of milk or its equivalent daily the chances are that you have calcium deficiency.

Quack Bait

Please comment on this statement quoted from a quack doctor's quarter-page ad: "Injections of serums and vaccines directly into the blood, combined with internal medicine and electric treatments, have proven successful in all ailments." (Mrs. G. F.)

Answer—Successful from the quack's point of view, that is. Of course it is absurd.

Medical

What is the proper treatmnet for stricture of the urethra? (E. W.)

Answer—Medical or sometimes surgical.

Oatmeal

For a year or more I have craved raw oatmeal and eaten constantly. Have I a vitamin deficiency? Will this habit do any harm? (Mrs. Q. R. W.)

Answer—It will do no harm. Chances are that you have at least calcium deficiency and probably one or more vitamin deficiencies—not because you like oats but because most Americans have.

Contact Lenses

Ben Told there are contact lenses you can wear next to eyeballs instead of spectacles. Is this true? Will it hurt your eyes? (H. E. A.)

Answer—Yes. Various persons can tolerate them for from hour to four or five hours at a time.

By-Law Designed To Iron Out T[illegible] Rules

Trenton (Special) — Trenton Town Council, in a holdover meeting this week, gave two readings to a by-law designed to remedy any mixups in present traffic rules.

The by-law is now in Toronto to get the approval of the Department of Highways, and after it comes back, it will be given third and final reading. Situation leading to the new piece of legislation was that the town was overloaded with many different traffic by-laws, each dealing with a different problem.

The new idea will incorporate all the old ideas in one by-law, to thus deal with all traffic problems from pedestrians to bicycles. In effect, it is a consolidation by-law, and will eliminate the old method of having one by-law or more to look after each section.

This week's meeting was a result of a late adjournment last Friday night with business still on tap.

Three-Family House Burns, Loss is $2,300

Trenton (Special) — Fire believed to have started from overheated stove pipes caused $2,300 damage yesterday afternoon in a three-family house.

Firemen worked for an hour and a half to put out the blaze in the one-storey bungalow at 183 Sidney Street. Fire Chief Harry Filion estimated that the house itself suffered $800 damage, and the contents about $1,500. The content damage was divided between Mrs. Kay Patrick and Mrs. E. Pearson, tenants.

Neither of the tenants is believed to be insured for the contents.

Chief Filion said he believed the fire started in the Patrick side of the house. The alarm was turned in at 2 p.m. by Mrs. Patrick, who was slightly burned about the face and neck in the flash fire. The chief said that beaverboard partitions in the house made the fire move faster than usual.

The house is owned by Mr. A. Sills.

CAMPBELLFORD

P-C Assoc. Host To Mrs. L. Frost At Reception

Campbellford — The home of Mrs. W. C. Tatham, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Campbellford, was the scene of a large tea on Wednesday afternoon, when more than 200 people, mostly ladies, gathered from all parts of the country to attend the reception for Mrs. Leslie Frost, wife of the Premier of Ontario.

Mrs. Leslie Frost, Mrs. G. Arthur Welsh, wife of the Provincial Secretary, Mrs. Cameron McKenzie, president of the central district Women's Advisory Committee, and Mrs. Wm. Goodfellow, wife of the Hon. Wm. Goodfellow, received with the hostess.

The speakers were Mrs. Cameron McKenzie, and Col. G. Arthur Welsh. Mrs. Tatham, the president welcomed the guests, and throughout the remainder of the meeting, the Hon. Wm. Goodfellow occupied the chair.

Outlines Work Done

Mrs. Cameron McKenzie who is chairman of the Progressive Conservative Association in Ontario, outlined what was being accomplished by women's groups throughout the province. Mrs. McKenzie, who is active in municipal affairs in Beaverton, urged women to take an active interest in their own municipalities. In so doing, they not only added greatly to their personal knowledge, but also were capable of making worthwhile contributions to community management.

"Good leadership," she continued, "is always needed, and by keeping organizations functioning actively, the community benefits and develops."

Col. G. Arthur Welsh, Provincial Secretary, who is also Coordinator for Civil Defence, spoke to the gathering on the subject of Civil Defence. He compared the freedom and comfort Canadians enjoy, to the rigid discipline and restrictions imposed upon countries throughout Europe and Asia. "The measure of safety that Canadians have grown to except and accept in previous wars, might be considerably lessened in the future, if hostilities became widespread," he said. For this reason all communities, large and small, would be called upon to play an important part in dealing with emergencies. This district, for example, would became a "cushion area", in such a case, and would be required to provide facilities for evacuated wounded from the larger centres, and to provide volunteers for fire fighting, police and other civil defence forces.

Col. Welsh went on to say that the enemy counted largely upon the effect of confusion and panic amongst the civilian population, and at the moment, it was wisdom to hope for the best, and to prepare for the worst.

Other speakers at the meeting were Mr. Gordon Fraser, M.P., for Peterborough, and Major Earl Drope.

Young People's Groups

Dr. W. D. Butt, of Toronto, who is on the Ontario Executive of the Conservative Young People's Association, covering riding east of Toronto, was on hand, and spoke on the work of the young people's groups throughout the province. He said they are formed mainly to give the young people an insight into the workings of the government, and to promote an active interest in practical politics, but not petty politics. Dr. Butt invited any who could, to attend a meeting to be held in Toronto in the near future.

Mrs. Ruby J. Meggs expressed the thanks of the gathering to the different speakers, after which tea was served, and during the tea hour Mrs. Frost, the guest of honor, and the speakers, moved about chatting informally with the many guests.

This was one of the largest meetings of its type to be held in Campbellford, and conservatively speaking, the affair was a huge success.

PLANES SOFTEN

United States air force planes spotted two convoys speeding toward the reds' imperilled defence points Thursday night. Flares lighted the hilly countryside in sharp relief. Pilots reported 84 vehicles and 101 boxcars destroyed or damaged.

Kept Explosively Alive

The communist defence line stretched from Haeju, on the west coast, to Hwachon on the Pukhan River in the mountainous eastern interior. This was within the short-range bomb line being kept explosively alive by allied fighters and bombers.

The line already has been pierced and flanked on the east coast by South Korean forces, but the footsore republican troops today were encountering their first dogged resistance since pushing across Parallel 38 Sunday.

Spearheads of the South Korean 3rd Division captured Changjon, about 60 miles north of 38. Communists in battalion strength fought sharply but in vain at Changjon. The South Koreans then moved on toward Wonsan, industrial city 50 miles farther north.

AP correspondent William Jorden, with the 3rd Division, reported it within 32 miles of Wonsan late this afternoon, and meeting virtually no enemy resistance.

FINE GLASS FIRMS

The government took a much more serious view. The Federal prosecutor, T. N. Phelan, said at the trial the companies had submitted identical bids on at least 153 separate tenders.

Even the maximum fine would be "entirely inadequate", he said. He asked the court at that time to order the nine to pay the costs of investigation by Fred A. McGregor, former combines commissioner.

The companies are Consolidated Glass, Ltd.; Canadian Plate and Window Glass, Ltd.; Pilkington Brothers (Canada) Ltd.; Advance Glass and Mirror Co., Ltd.; Excelsior Plate Glass Co., Ltd.; and Queen City Glass Ltd., all of Toronto; Lloyd's Glass Company, Hamilton.

The companies were accused in a report submitted to the Federal government last Dec. 13 by Mr. McGregor, who has since resigned as combine commissioner. The report was made public Dec. 27 by Justice Minister Garson, who announced Feb. 7 that the government would prosecute.

W. O. Matthews of Toronto, described in the McGregor report as the secretary of the Glass Companies' Trade Association and named in the report as a party of the combine, was mentioned in the indictment against the companies as a co-conspirator. However, he was not charged.

The McGregor report said the companies operated through an association formed in 1929 to set prices and eliminate competition in glass jobbing.

Social Evening Enjoyed

The Contact Club of Christ Church held a social evening at the home of Mrs. F. Beeby, Ridley Avenue, last night. Club members enjoyed a game of military whist, and prizes were won by Anne Fisher, Helen Aselstine, Kay Young and Marg. Kells.

Guests of the club for the evening were Rev. and Mrs. J. Creeggan. After the game, refreshments were served by the hostess, Lois Beeby and co-hostesses, Laura Post, Nancy Depaul, and Doreen Mills.

WEDDINGS

LIEZERT—TOWNS

In the presence of a few close relatives at the United Church parsonage, Prescott, Ont., recently Rev. J. A. Payton united in marriage Ethil Towns, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Towns, of Belleville, Ont., and Harold Liezert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Liezert, Cardinal, Ont.

The bride looked charming in a navy blue suit with powder blue accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

The matron-of-honor, Mrs. William Towns, sister-in-law of the bride, chose a dove grey suit with navy accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

William Towns, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. George Huchcrofd, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Huchcrofd.

Later the happy couple left on a honeymoon to Ottawa and other points east.

On their return they will take up residence at 49 Wall Street, Brockville, Ont.

H&S Committee Plans Radio Programs

At the first meeting of the radio conveners of the local Home and School Associations, which was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. A. Bradford, plans for future radio programs were discussed.

The following conveners who are appointed by their various associations in attendance at the meeting were:

Mrs. W. H. Phillips, Prince Charles and Queen Mary Schools; Mrs. W. R. H. Gander, King George School; Mrs. F. T. Yealland, Queen Alexandra School, Mrs. W. Dill with Mrs. C. Miller assisting, Belleville Collegiate; Mrs. G. A. Bradford, general convener, appointed by the central committee and assistant Mrs. V. White, Queen Victoria School.

A series of weekly radio programs have been arranged, featuring events of interest in all Home and School Associations, panel discussions, musical numbers supplied by pupils, and as an interest for children a "Just for Fun Quiz".

Further details of programs will be given over the air next week on the program featuring a panel discussion on the highlights of the regional conference held in Kingston recently.

The conveners were given the following executive positions for the year:

Secretary, Mrs. F. T. Yealland; program director, Mrs. W. Dill, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Phillips and Mrs. W. R. H. Gander; talent scout, Mrs. V. White.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. took the form of a pot-luck supper with all church organizations being invited. Following a delightful supper Mrs. Wilson, president, gave an address of welcome.

Mrs. M. Davidson, newly appointed secretary of the Mission Circle girls, introduced herself to Holloway girls and asked their co-operation and help in her new position. The devotional service was conducted by representatives of other auxiliaries: Miss Phyllis Caine for C.G.I.T. Miss Doris Pollard for Mission Circle, Mrs. Van Osten for Mission Band, Miss Beth Davidson voiced her appreciation on behalf of the Mission Circle girls and introduced Miss Helen Griffis, soloist. Mrs. C. Walters as representative for W.A., introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Miss Jessie Tuite, of Albert College, who gave a very inspiring travel talk on her European tour, which proved to be a delight to all. Mrs. Anderson representing the Fellowship Club thanked the ladies for the delightful evening and presented Mrs. Earl White, soloist, Mrs. C. Holmes on behalf of the W.M.S., thanked the guest speaker and soloists and those taking part on the program. The hymn "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds", was sung by all, followed by prayer, bringing a lovely evening to a close.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

Pine Grove W.I. met for their September meeting at Mrs. F. Campbell's home with a good attendance.

The correspondence included two invitations to the members for October 12, to a River Valley W.I. tea at Mrs. P. Utman's home in the afternoon and to a Stirling W.I. regular meeting in the evening.

The Pine Grove W.I. decided to entertain the Marsh Hill ball team to a banquet on October 27th., and Mrs. G. Bartendale, Mrs. H. Detlor and Mrs. J. Campbell were appointed as a committee to make plans for this.

Mrs. H. Detlor was put in charge of replenishing the First Aid kit in the school.

Mrs. H. Coulter, convener of the "Health" committee took charge of the following program.

Address by Dr. Cornet who was introduced by Mrs. J. Brown.

Current Events, Mrs. A. Finkle.

Piano selection, Miss Joan Campbell.

Article "Health of School Children", Mrs. H. Coulter.

Refreshments were served and a social half-hour spent.

HUNTINGDON EAS W. I.

Moira— The September meeting of Huntingdon East W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Milton Vandewater. During the business discussion it was decided to donate $5 to the Blind Institute. The program was in charge of the citizenship convener, Mrs. Frank Emerson. Readings were given by Mrs. George Ellarby and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson and a solo by Mrs. Nelson Welsh. The topic "Youth is the time to sow the seeds of character," was ably prepared by Mrs. J. F. Herity and read by Mrs. Blake Ketcheson.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Philips and Ivan, Wallbridge were anniversary Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Welsh.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Farrel.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Dafoe, Mrs. Olive Williams, Frankford, spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson.

Mrs. Gertie Dickens, Belleville was a weekend visitor of her sister, Mrs. M. Welsh.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Goldie McInroy, West Huntingdon and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMullen.

Moira Victory Class sponsored an enjoyable evening at a wiener and corn roast on the farm of Mr. Ross Ketcheson. It was held in old wall of the Foster barn which makes an ideal place for such. Rev. Mr. Clarke with his guitar and Mr. Will Vandewater with his violin gave several selections of old time music, and also Mr. Clarke led in a singsong. Everyone enjoyed the evening.

Sorry to report that Mrs. Fred Ketcheson is a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Friends wish her a speedy recovery.

SIAMESE PIGS BORN

Seattle, Oct. 6 — (AP)—Siamese-twin pigs were born yesterday to a 600-pound Chester White sow on the W. D. Begls farm some 20 miles north of Seattle. The twins, joined at the stomach by a band of tissue about half an inch thick and extending from front to rear legs, were in a litter of 13 — counting them as two.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Fresh fish means live fish.

Game fishermen who toss their trout directly from the stream into the frying pan are among the few people who enjoy fish at its perfection.

In large cities tank cars are sometimes used to deliver river eels or carp which are kept alive until the time they are cold. A Danish fish processor keeps cod alive in well boats or floats until the moment they are beheaded and quick frozen for shipment.

The sale of live fish is not practical generally for coast fishermen or fish retailers. For most cooking purposes fish should be as fresh as possible or else quick frozen. Fish are fresh when the eyes are bright, the gills red and the flesh firm to the touch. If you buy fish filets, they should lack any trace of stickiness or fishy odor.

Use quick frozen ocean perch filets and freshly opened oysters in today's recipe. I dozen large oysters or 16 medium size oysters will fill the bill.

Perch Filets with Oysters
Serves 4

Thaw 1 pound of quick frozen ocen perch filets by placing in cold water until fish are soft enough to bend.

Preheat over at 450 degrees.

Place fish in a greased baking pan. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake fish 10-12 minutes or until tender when pierced with a fork.

In a saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons flour stirring well. Gradually add 1 cup hot milk stirring well, add 1 chopped hard boiled egg. Add 1 teaspoon grated onion. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Return saucepan to a slow flame. Cook, stirring frequently 10 minutes.

Place 12 oysters on fish in baking dish. Pour egg sauce over fish. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place under a moderate broiler flame for a few minutes or until cheese browns.

Filet of flounder or filet of sole may be substituted for ocean perch.

6TH TYENDINAGA

6th Tyendinaga—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCreary and boys, 5th line spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Treverton.

Mr. Wilbert and Miss Laura Sherry were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Miller Parks, Wallbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gould and Dennis, 3rd Thurlow, visited at Mrs. C. Goodman's on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lancaster and Ann spent Sunday at Mr. J. Goodman's, Centenary.

Miss Marguerite Lancaster returned after spending several weeks with her sister.

TAKE SAME ROUTE

Port Credit, Oct. 6 — (CP) —A nine-mile race over the same route by which William Lyon Mackenzie fled in 1837 will be featured in Toronto township's three-day Centennial celebrations, starting Oct. 13.

THANKSGIVING

"In everything give thanks," we're told,
By wise and holy men of old;
But can we sing a joyful song,
When every mortal thing goes wrong?

All things, always, work for good,
For those who put their trust in God;
And bitter things when they are past
Are lost in thankfulness at last.

Thankful we are for many things,
The sun that shines, the bird
that sings;
The flowers that bloom, children
at play;
And songs that drive dull care
away.

For food to eat, while others starve,
In regions far beyond the sea,
For freedom now, to worship God,
And none to say, "It shall not be."

But most of all, our thanks goes up,
To Him, the Author of our Hope,
For what He is, and did, to bless
Us with eternal happiness.

A. H. Cameron, Thomasburg, Ont.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

This morning we are down at 7.30 for breakfast, in spite of not getting into Amsterdam until four this morning, for we are planning on going to Groningen and we found to our sorrow that the train leaves at 8.20. Our hotel, the Europe, is situated right on one of the canals and on the morrow we promise ourselves a trip around the canals in the pleasure boat that's tied up right under the dining room window.

Groningen is over 100 miles away—it was the home of many of our Canadian troops during the war and we learn many married Dutch girls and are living in the city of 130,000. As we leave the city we remark about the little evidence of bombing damage and are told that Amsterdam was spared the suffering of The Hague and Rotterdam.

The fields are emerald green and the country so flat that you can see for miles on either side, and everywhere cows are grazing—the fields are dotted with them, some tethered, some wandering at will. Fields are separated by narrow ditches and crossings are made at narrow bridges, guarded by gates. Dutch cattle are certainly well behaved. I can't see ours at home staying so pacidly behind such a boundary. The cows are practically all Holsteins— here and there a red one stands out. All have their horns and are a large type—the largest we've seen in Europe.

It has been a very cool season here—the same with every country we've visited and as we go along it rains intermittently. In spite of this farmers are out digging the potatoes, probably to save them from the rot that goes with this wet weather. We see many of them doing odd jobs, such as cleaning weeds and grass out of the ditches, cutting fire wood, etc. The roofs of the barns and houses are thatched or tiled and the straw stacks and hay stacks have their own unbrellalike roof of thatch, which we learn is not always of straw, but of a tall, coarse sturdy weed that grows along all the ditches.

The gardens are the neatest thing imaginable—they plant their vegetables in small plots, never in long rows, and it is more attractive in appearance. They like green beans here—every garden has its tall poles for climbers. We learn many of these farms are small, from 20 to 70 acres, and that it is not the most productive region of Holland. A farmer here pulls a wheelbarrow load of manure to the field by roping himself to it, not pushing it. There is no evidence of mechanized farming here—anyway it is too wet—you can see the ground is just saturated.

We pass one of Holland's picturesque windmills in good repair and operating to grind grain, but the others we see (and it isn't many), are in disrepair and are almost a detriment to the landscape. When we questioned a Dutch traveller he just shrugged his shoulders intimating that that age in Dutch history is passing out. When we stop in towns along the way we notice that red and white staked gates come across to protect traffic from crossings.

A coffee vendor with his cart comes alongside the train. It is very easy to purchase—you just lower the window in your compartment, but we didn't stop long and he runs along the platform beside the moving train to pour in a few drops of cream for me. You procure reading material the same way—it is pulled along on a cart, you just roll down the window and make your choice.

Mrs. Houck and I are going to Groningen to see the family of the Dutch boy who is working for the Houck's in Canada, and members of the family are waiting on the platform to drive us about 20 miles out of the village. There is evidence of a great deal of bombing here—ugly bare places everywhere as it was a centre for housing troops. In the middle of the city a cattle sale is in progress and we slow down to get a view of it. It is held every Tuesday, farmers bring in their cows to sell for milking, not butchering. It is a hive of activity and must be rather an occasion for a family outing as many women and children are dashing to and fro, many of them, adults also, in the well-known wooden shoes—or "clumpin".

A man pushing a cart intrigues me. I watch people buying salt herrings from him and stand at the curb and eat it by putting back the head and devouring it by mouthfuls. The platform in his cart is spotless, also the kettles where he stores them and he seasons each fish to the customer's liking.

We reach the home and find the men of the family have taken a holliday, five in number, to hear about their brother in Canada. They can only speak a few words of English but had brought along a friend to interpret and Mrs. Houck was able to tell them all about the "one" in Canada. The mother said "I think of him all the time, so far away, and am so happy to hear from him." So adjustment to new situations isn't all on one side of the water. The young people present told us one of their customs in Holland — when a couple became engaged they each wear a wedding ring on the left hand showing everyone that they have been claimed and after the wedding the rings are changed over to the right hand and worn there.

When we were having tea a caller arrived, resplendent in uniform and big coat, high top hat and wearing silver chains, the insignia of his office. He was the "town crier" calling on every family in the village and nearby farms to tell them of a death. You may be sure I followed him out of the house and he posed for a picture, so I have proof that this ancient custom still survives, in color film to take back to Canada.

The family insist that we take the night train back to Amsterdam, so it is eleven o'clock before we turn in after a most enjoyable day. Would you like to know what we were served for supper? The first course was cold meat and cheese on a slice of bread—you ate this with a knife and fork and helped yourself as many times as you wished. The next course was a slice of sweetened bread, something like a currant bun, and on this you spread jam and ate this with your cup of tea.

I wanted to tell you also that the barn we visited was spotless. You would think the cement walls and floor had been scrubbed. They do not put their cows in at all in the summer time but milk them out in the fields. They take cans and pails to the cows in hand carts or wagons; we saw dozens of them standing perfectly still while they were being milked.

Scoharie—Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bradley and friend of Oshawa called on Mrs. Bradley's aunt, Mrs. Bessie Leavitt and grandmother, Mrs. Clara Jackson, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jandrew and Brenda were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

Henry Leavitt and Ross Foster are among those enjoying the four-day bus trip to New York State and City the Junior Farmer and Institute members are taking this week. They left Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Biddle and daughter of Guelph enjoyed several days' visit with Mrs. Biddle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clapp, Picton were Sunday supper guests of Mrs. B. Leavitt and Mrs. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones were Sunday evening guests at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Burford were recent Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. William McGee.

NO LONGER DIVIDING LINE

Brantford, Oct. 6 — (CP) — In the eyes of the United Nations, the 38th parallel in Korea is no longer a dividing line between two countries, Foreign Minister Sir M. Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan, said Thursday. The U. N. delegate said in an interview here that U. N. policy now is to place the whole country in a position to hold a free election to decide its own future.

STIRLING

Books of Praise Dedicated at St. Andrew's

Stirling—A special feature of the service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning was the dedication of Books of Praise to the congregaton and hymnals to the choir by St. Andrew's Club.

Mr. Clayton Tummon sang "In Thy Love." Rev. W. H. V. Walker spoke on the importance and value of belonging to the church of Jesus Christ. A real challenge presents itself to every follower of our Lord to work persistently for the Master. Jesus Christ the founder of the church was a laborer and so were the Apostles. There is a derth of workers today and a lack of interest in the work of the Lord. Be present in season and out of season and help the church to live in the world by missionary efforts.

Fine Program by Choir

An excellent program was heard in the Stirling theatre on Monday night when Saint George's Cathedral choir of Kingston presented a concert under the direction of Mr. George Maybee. The visit of this well-known choir was under the auspices of St. John's Ladies' League and a good crowd thoroughly enjoyed it.

Rev. A. J. Anderson rector acted as chairman and welcomed the visiting artists and the audience and introduced Mr. Maybee the choir leader, who spoke briefly during the intermission.

Personals

Weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rodgers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodgers of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dodwell and Sheryl of Lindsay; Mrs. E. Dodwell; Miss Shirley Dodwell and Mrs. A. N. Dodwell of Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Cross have taken up residence in J. L. Lagrow's house on Front Street W.

Mrs. Bryson Donnan of Calgary, spent the weekend with Mrs. Hugh Morton and Miss Eleanor Brown.

Mrs. Don Donohue entertained several ladies to a brush party and served refreshments on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lucas of Glencoe, spent several days last week with their daughter, Mrs. H. R. Cross and Mr. Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Stewart and girls spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wight at Wellington.

Mr. Robert Rodgers of Peterborough Normal School spent the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rodgers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sayers, Toronto, were weekend guests of the latter's parents.

Mrs. Sid Demorest entertained twenty-one ladies to a successful brush party on Friday evening. The hotsess served refreshments.

Misses Eleanor Brown and Grace Sheridan attended Campbellford fair last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Stewart and family were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vandervoort.

Messrs. A. Livingstone, Joe Fellion and W. T. Elliott attended the Men's Triples tournament in Trenton last Saturday.

On Thursday Messrs. W. T. Elliott, skip, F. R. Mallory and R. A. Patterson attended the Men's Triples in Colborne.

Miss Eliza Fletcher celebrated the 91st anniversary of her birth last Friday.

Mr. F. R. Mallory, municipal clerk, has received an official receipt for $372.34 from the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund covering Sunday donations made by Stirling and district residents.

A new roof is being laid on the local branch of the Bank of Montreal this week.

STIRLING

Supply Teacher Added to Staff

Stirling—A regular meeting of Stirling Public School Board was held in the Public Library on Monday night with chairman R. E. Fox, W. H. Donnan, C. I. Hatton, R. A. Patterson and Dr. E. A. Carleton in attendance.

Principal W. D. C. Hall reported on the memorandum regarding text books in social studies geography, history and map reading sent out by the Ontario Department of Education and suggested the board get a supply teacher for a quarter of a day each week to visit the other rooms in the school while the teachers were at work.

The hiring of Mrs. C. A. Wells as supply teacher for one-quarter day per week until Christmas was authorized by the board.

Several accounts were passed for payment.

Club Meets

The Past Noble Grands' Club held their regular meeting at the home of Sister Effie Bailey with Sister Edna Fox co-hostess.

The meeting opened in the regular form with Sister Edith Utman presiding. The program consisted of readings by Sisters Heath, Spry and Maynes and a contest by Sister Bailey.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments and Sister Bradshaw moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses for their hospitality, lovely refreshments and to the program committee.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

The September meeting of the St. Andrew's Woman's Missionary Society was held in the church parlors.

Miss Gena Spry had charge of the devotional part of the meeting. Miss Spry read comments on the lesson. "All that is done for missionary work should be done in the spirit of charity with kindness towards all."

Mrs. L. Rodgers read an account of the life of Naomi.

A short memorial service was held in memory of Mrs. Jas. Montgomery. Tribute was paid to the loyalty and devotion which she manifested to all who knew her. In her early years she had acted as leader of the Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. The church of her choice was dear to her heart even unto the end. Miss Spry read the 23rd Psalm in her memory.

Mrs. W. L. Anderson conducted the program. Mrs. R. A. Hermiston read a paper [illegible] "As for the success of Christianity in Japan I will not attempt to estimate it. You can read the reports published by the churches. The Japanese need a Christianity that works and here I offer a plea to you back home, please do all you can to see that Christianity works in America.

Mrs. Vernon Matthews played a piano solo. Mrs. W. H. V. Walker gave a few highlights of their trip through some of the American cities last summer. This was most interesting as it was interspersed with gems of poetry.

Mrs. John Fargey and Mrs. W. L. Anderson served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. B. Reid thanked the committee in charge for the splendid program and lovely refreshments.

MELROSE

Melrose—Mr. Wm. Coulter of Chatham is visiting relatives in the community, en route home from attending the re-union of the 21st Battalion in Ottawa recently.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

It Begins With One Big Moment

By ROY L. SMITH

The world is crowded with books—some of them wise, and some of them very foolish—which discuss the question [illegible] religion. Every week [illegible]drals, chapels, synagogu[illegible] [illegible]rches, people gather by [illegible] millions to worship. A visitor from Mars, to whom religion might be an entirely new thing, would be astounded at the amount of money invested in buildings dedicated to religious purposes, at the number of people engaged in religious work, and at the multitudes of those to whom religion is a dominating influence in their daily lives.

When one adds the pagan faiths to the Christian churches, the extent to which religion influences the life of the world (sometimes for good and sometimes for evil) is nothing less than amazing.

There is a Dividing

It is true, however, that the irreligious are also numerous. Some of these are bewildered folk who do not know what to believe; some are those who have become discouraged over the ineffectiveness of existing religious organizations, and some are actually anti-religious. Also, between the religions there are many lines drawn, with sharp divisions between orthodox and the heretic.

Just because Christianity has become so popular and so powerful there is great danger that a simple fact may be overlooked. There is one point at which the individual really becomes a Christian. On one side of that point he is not a Christian; on the other side of that point he has begun to be a Christian. After the beginning there is a long process of growth, but this growth does not occur until the beginning has been made.

Each Person Makes the Decision

Between believing in some Christian doctrine, and being a Christian there is a very great difference. The one who believes is one who has been convinced of the truth and logic of a doctrine. The Christian is one who, in addition to believing, has committed his life and dedicated his will to the doing of that doctrine.

> The Sunday School lesson for October 8: "Personal Commitment to Christ." Matthew 16:24-25; Mark 1:16-20; Philippians 1:19-26.

One may say that he believes in generosity, and be perfectly truthful, and still remain ungenerous. One may say that he believes in dealing justly, and still deal unjustly with his neighbors, either because he is too selfish to be just or too ignorant to know what justice is.

No one can make these decisions for us. The law may hedge us about and demand justice; it may make it difficult to be cruel and selfish. But if we are to be strictly moral it will be only as we determine inside our own souls to be so.

Others can convince us that Christian doctrines are credible; we must determine for ourselves that we will bring our lives into harmony with those doctrines and demands.

Fractional Christians

The Christian philosophy of life is all inclusive. Jesus of Nazareth proposed to redeem life for mankind, and this meant that every aspect of life had to be subjected to Christian ideals. Social aspirations, political interests, economic resources, racial ideals, domestic relations—everything is to be brought under the influence of the Christian interpretation of life. This means that each individual must open every corridor of his life to his Lord.

An old evangelist once said "You have not crowned Him Lord at all until you have crowned Him Lord of all."

In time of war the citizen is expected to have but one loyalty. This sometimes imposes upon the individual a terrible strain. But no matter how deep the issue may run, the patriot puts all else behind him and maintains one loyalty.

This is exactly what is demanded of the Christian who is to be wholly a Christian.

It May Cut Deeply

About 1923 there arrived in a section of Wisconsin a colony of several hundred German families. They were skilled craftsmen in a certain industry who were eagerly welcomed on account of their skills.

Then came the Second World War. Their children became eligible to military service. By one of these strange coincidences, scores of them found themselves toward the close of the war marching down the very roads their fathers had trod in Germany. One of the young men found himself firing at the very house in which one of his parents was born.

In spite of the inward suffering, and the spiritual anguish of the circumstances, those lads were faithful to their duty and proved themselves loyal according to every standard.

The Christian who determines to make his Christianity all inclusive may find himself, at some time in his life, faced with an equally difficult situation. This is what Jesus called "denying himself". Only by such strenuous consecration can all of life be redeemed.

ALBERTA OIL HEADS EAST

PREMIER E. C. MANNING

Alberta crude oil began the first leg of its long journey into eastern Canadian markets, when Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta opened the valve at Edmonton to send the oil flowing into the newly completed pipeline between Edmonton and Regina. Completed just six months after construction began, it represents the first lap of a 1,127-mile pipeline from Edmonton to Superior, Wis. The whole line is expected to be completed this fall, and lake freighters will begin to carry the crude oil to eastern refineries in the spring. — Central Press Canadian.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View — Miss Pearl Neal has returned to her home after spending a week with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Weaver of Westbrook. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver and family were supper guests on Sunday of Mrs. George Neal and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watering and Carl spent Saturday afternoon in Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ramsay and family of Trenton, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Sprung.

At the conclusion of the canning season at the Sprague Canning Co., Mr. Jay Sprague was presented by his employees with the gift of a smoker.

A number from here attended the social evening at Huff's Island on Friday evening, which was sponsored by the Women's Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Sprague and baby, of Belleville, spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague and family

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE BEST VIEWS

Halifax, N.S.—We've been looking back along the lipstick trail to make up a list of Canada's Best Views.

Our route across country is marked by a bold line of lip rouge (Stormy Pink), on a large map thumb-tacked to the trailer's ceiling, which was the only available space. It's studied best from a prone position on the couch which automatically makes me chief map-reader.

Well, of course, any such list has pretty severe limitations. It's a purely personal selection, covers only the narrow band of the country we saw, is frequently prejudiced by weather conditions and our morale when viewed, and does not include the Gaspe Peninsula or Cape Breton Island, which most people who've travelled extensively in Canada agree is the choice of all scenery. We had to skip them this time because we ran out of summer.

We're all agreed that the most spectacular and breath-taking vista of our particular travels is right here; or, rather, a few miles below Halifax around the region of Peggy's Cove where the open Atlantic rolls in with all its power and glory.

All of today was spent down there, alternating between the small, craggy coves, each like an idealized water-color, and the open rock shore where this stormiest of oceans sweeps in, curls and crashes in spray.

This was a windy, bright September day and the Atlantic was an incredible blue, a sight to make your spirits soar.

We had a lunch of sandwiches in a calm and tiny cove where the aged piers and lobster pots and fishing boats all seemed meticulously arranged for any visiting landscape artists, then drove out to a promontory and walked down to within the orbit of the flying spray where we stood, leaning into the wind, and letting the roar of the ocean work its hypnotism.

The Lakes

Next to this Atlantic panorama I'd put the view from the middle of Vancouver's Lions' Gate Bridge out to the Gulf of Georgia. Sentimentally, of course, that would head the list, but I'm bound to report that in all the years I've lived beside the Pacific I've never seen it with the depth of color or the sheer grandeur of this ocean.

Any list of favorite trans-Canada views would have to include a favorite lake and that, again, is largely a matter of personal experience.

In our own case, each of the hundreds of beautiful lakes on either side of the highway through Northwestern Ontario would qualify. They are not only exquisite gems of coloring, but when you've come across the dry, dusty prairies, almost any blue water-hole is a treat.

Still, I think the most beautiful lake of all is Lake Kalamalka, just outside Vernon, B.C., which is named for the Indian word meaning "many colors" and is well-nigh unbelievable. Secondly I think, would come the Lake of the Woods, which we hated to leave behind.

There was a thrill too, in coming over the crown of a hill and getting our first sight of Lake Superior just before sundown with Port Arthur and Fort William standing like an etching in the foreground and the great inland sea stretching away to the horizon.

Another case of a view dramatized by the time of day, and, too, our unforgettable first glimpse of Regina.

In this case there had been a violent thunderstorm. The sun broke through in the early dusk and everything seemed suddenly to be in an unearthly focus so that you could almost count the leaves on a cottonwood a mile away. Then we saw Regina in the distance, standing as if it grew out of the grain fields and with the sun turning the tall buildings into golden castles.

On the whole, however, the prairies' kind of scenery appealed to us only for the sense of space and sky it gives and is not so much a memory of a view, but a feeling.

And Man-Made

Our vote for the most attractive man-made object is, of course,, the Houses of Parliament with Quebec's Chateau Frontenac coming second.. The best view of the capital is from Hull, across the river, and the best view of the Chateau is from the ferry that plies the St. Lawrence to the town of Levis.

As for lofty vistas, I'd put first the mountain goat's view from the lookout on Mount Revelstoke, looking across to the glacier of Mount Begbie and sharply down into the town of Revelstoke and the Columbia River, a scene with a very Swiss flavor to it. Next would be the magnificent green valleys and peaks of the Rockies, seen from the top of the chair lift of Mount Norquay at Banff.

The farm country we thought easiest on the eyes was down the St. Lawrence from Quebec, very Continental and, I suppose, backward, but very beautiful, too, in the tidy simplicity of the farm buildings, almost always with bright flower gardens about them.

The view which gave us the deepest emotional feeling toward Canada would be, I think, from a point a few miles west of High River, Alberta, where we parked the car one early summer's day on a country road and looked west to the green foothills and, beyond, the mauve-blue bulk of the Rockies and then, looking east, saw the fields of ripening grain stretching away to where the land meets the sky and for more than a thousand miles beyond.

There's a lot that's ugly along that lipstick trail, mind you, but, even in this short-term retrospect, it's surprising how you remember —and vividly—only the things of beauty.

ROSLIN

Community Honors Young Married Couple

Roslin— Anniversary services were held in the Roslin United Church last Sunday with services at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. Rev. J. F. Everson of Belleville was the guest speaker for the day.

A large crowd gathered in the Roslin Parish Hall recently to honor Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fisher, a recent bride and groom. Mr. John Hart invited the guests of honor to be seated at the front of the hall. An address signed on behalf of the community was read by Miss Mary Bates.

The bride and groom were presented with a purse from the community and from the charivari party, silver candleholders.

Sam and Joyce both expressed their appreciation for the party which the community had given them and thanked them for the lovely gifts. Refreshments were served and the evening was spent in dancing.

CCF to Campaign Price Controls Be Reimposed

Ottawa, Oct. 6. (CP)—An immediate, country-wide campaign for the reimposition of price controls to fight inflation will be launched by the C.C.F. party, Lorne Ingle, national secretary, announced Thursday.

"Protest rallies are being organized and door-to-door canvassing is being undertaken to rally the support of all sections of the population," Mr. Ingle said.

"Every possible means will be used to arouse public opinion. If enough pressure can be brought to bear on the government, through public opinion, we may get action."

M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. leader, will broadcast an appeal over a national network by radio stations on Oct. 10, followed by further broadcasts by provincial leaders in the next few weeks.

ANNOUNCE BONUS SCHEME

London, Oct. 6 — (Reuters) — The Board of Trade Wednesday night announced a bonus scheme to enable American motion-picture companies to send home more of their earnings from Britain. In the coming year, United States producers will be able to recover sums based on a percentage of their sterling expenditures, in addition to the present fixed annual rate of $17,000,000. The arrangement was worked out in a revised Anglo - American film agreement.

LONDON GAS STRIKE ENDS

London, Oct. 6. (CP)—London's striking gas workers Thursday decided to go back to work Monday and end a wildcat stoppage which has cut off supplies to many areas for the last 21 days.

Scope of Mission Work in Canada Told St.Paul's Jubilee Service

Stirling — Mrs. C. Maxwell Loveys, Home Mission executive secretary of Dominion Board of the United Church of Canada, gave a message of interest at St. Paul's W.M.S. silver jubilee service Sunday evening.

Mrs. Loveys said in part "The United Church of Canada in its 25 years has woven the lives of men and women of every country in the world, building a nation within an empire, regardless of race and creed, thus making the Home Mission program mean— The extension of the Christian message to everyone within our national boundaries. The United Church continues its ministry of preaching, teaching, healing and serving others and aspires to attain its objective of a truly Christian nation.

Mrs. Loveys graphically pictured the various ways that the Woman's Missionary Society is endeavoring through its missionaries and assistants to present Christ and His way of living to one and all and then to bring into being "The Church of Christ in Canada". This crusade to preach the gospel and then centralize on the church is the reason that more missionary recruits and more money are urgently needed.

Largest Mission Field

Today Canada is the largest mission field as the gospel is preached in eighteen languages and there are seventy nationalities all requiring guidance from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mrs. Loveys pictured the immigration work at Halifax and the work of a missionary who speaks German. The groups who are at work in Montreal helping hundreds of people from other lands find new homes as far away as Ashcroft, B.C. She cited many incidents as to show the type of people who are coming to our land.

Then the audience was taken to Toronto where a lovely Estonia girl attending college was given a new hope for the future, thence to the Chinese missions along the west coast. Here a special communion service was held before six workers went out to win others. She also pictured the 32nd anniversary of a Chinese church concert in Toronto. She told of the work of our missionaries at Alberni, B.C., where logging camps are visited by way of an Austin car, and Mrs. Loveys said there people are establishing themselves in Canadian churches and making good citizens.

From here the audience was given a vivid picture of Indian missions especially at Ahousat, B.C., the most isolated Indian village. At this point an elderly Indian woman teaches the Bible to the children in two languages. Mrs. Loveys pictured the utter loneliness of those four who serve the church in those isolated posts in British Columbia and paid tribute to a talented Indian artist Miss Judith Hope. All this is the product of Christian missions and shows some results of our work in auxiliaries to raise money during past years. From Bible schools where babies are baptized, through various mission centres each worker is on her job constantly to help Canadian citizens along the way of life.

In Peace River Country

Miss Henrietta Campbell is at work on the most northern edge of the Peace River country. She has the right to dispense communion and baptize children as the nearest minister is ninety miles distant.

The W.M.S. in the United Church has twenty hospitals with Battle River hospital near Manning, Alberta, one of the most isolated. There has been much progress in twenty-five years but there is a great need for more young women to accept work in various places in Canada and for those who stay at home to provide more funds.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Cecil Macklin, president of St. Paul's, who presided throughout the service. The edifice was adorned with pretty autumn blooms and guests were in attendance from Trenton, Aikens, Ivanhoe, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, Marsh Hill, Holloway, Salem, Belleville and other Auxiliaries.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. J. Good, Mrs. Sid Demorest, Mrs. H. Wells and Mrs J. B. Thompson. Mrs A. E. Baker, ATCM, presided at the organ rendering selections from the Prelude, Voluntary and Postlude and St. Paul's choir sang "Just as I Am" by Bowles. Mrs. Roy Bush, president River Valley Auxiliary, a sister society, read the Bible lesson found in Corinthians based on "Charity".

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's extended a welcome to all and spoke briefly.

St. Paul's Auxiliary has eighteen life members and three are new in this jubilee year. Twenty-five dollars makes any interested woman in missions a life member.

The service was deeply appreciated by those in attendance and many greeted Mrs. Loveys before returning home.

RAWDON

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam and children, Mr. and Mrs. George Merrick, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Spencer of Mount Pleasant attended the fiftieth wedding aniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey in Jubilee Hall, Carmel, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Ruth Linn and Lois Weaver, Mrs. Gordon Linn, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Lindsay McKeown of Mount Pleasant attended Springbrook bazaar and afternoon tea on Friday afternoon. Ruth sang a solo with Lois as accompanist.

SUNBEAM MISSION BAND

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band convened Sunday morning with a large attendance.

Miss Doreen Bailey presided. Miss Ruth Sharp was pianist and Miss Lola McConnell was in charge of roll call. Miss Rae David read an appropriate selection. The teacher, Mrs. Herbert Smith, reviewed all previous Bible stories and conducted a quiz on Peter. Miss Shirley McKeown read "The Story of Peter" as recorded in the Bible.

Misses Eleanore Smith and Marilyn McConnell gathered the offering which was dedicated to missions. Plans were made to hold the next meeting at the home of the leader, Mrs. Herbert Smith on Oct. 15th. The Band members will soon be selling Christmas cards to augment their funds. The service closed with a hymn and prayer for missionaries everywhere.

CAMPBELLFORD

Pensions for Civic Employees Under Study by Council

Campbellford (Special) — A by-law covering a proposed pension lan for town employees was authorized to be passed at the meeting of the Campbellford town council held early this week. Legal advisor N. A. MacColl and Reeve Ralph Locke gave a report on the proposed plan, and a committee was formed to make further arrangements, preparatory to the passing of the by-law.

Arthur F. Collette of the Canadian Legion, addressed council soliciting an order for a memorial day wreath. This order was placed.

Mr. R. A. Townsend, town assessor, gave the assessor's report which indicated that while population had dropped from some 3,200 to 3,136, the assessment was up by $38,050. Dog licences amounted to $640.

Permission was granted the Boy Scouts to hold their annual apple day on October 14, and to use the council chambers as headquarters.

A schedule for the garage operators was passed, along with another by-law conveying a piece of property.

After passing the pay sheet, council adjourned.

R. Hazell Heads Kinsmen

At the regular meeting of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club held in the Trent House this week, the task of replacing the president elect, who no longer resides in town, was carried out.

Kinsman Ronald Hazell, a charter member of the club, was the unanimous choice, and agreed to accept the post. The gavel was handed over by past-president Harry Ayrhart.

The new president immediately sought to get plans moving for the annual Hallowe'en party to be held on Tuesday October 31 at Edgewater Park in Campbellford.

After dinner, the group was entertained by Francis Long, who projected a number of interesting Viewmaster slides on the screen.

Guests at this week's meeting were Jack Connor and Jack Tinney.

Seymour Council Meets

The Seymour council set Monday November 6 as the day for the court of revision, to be held in the council chambers at 1 p.m. at the regular monthly meeting held early this week.

All members of council were present at the meeting, and Reeve Billen was in the chair.

A letter from the Canadian March of Dimes was read, and a committee formed to look after the campaign. Chairman Sam Diamond is in charge and the vice-chairman is W. W. Archer.

The school attendance officer, Marcus Curle gave the attendance report for the month, after which the pay sheet was passed, and council adjourned.

D. B. Meiklejohn Funeral Held

The funeral of the late David Brown Meiklejohn of Seymour East was held on Monday afternoon from the family residence in Seymour. Mr. Meiklejohn, who had been in failing health for some months, passed away at his home on Saturday. He was in his 65th year.

The son of Robert Meiklejohn and the former Jane Kerr Mr. Meiklejohn resided in the township his entire lifetime. His wife the former Nettie Wallace, predeceased him four years ago.

Surviving are two children, Mrs. Stuart Hay (Helen) of Campbellford, and Murray W. Meiklejohn of Campbellford. One brother, Stuart M. resides in Peterborough, and a sister Mrs. W. Hartley (Ravina) resides in Toronto.

A farmer all his life, Mr. Meiklejohn was a director of the Trent Valley Cheese and Butter factory in Campbellford and a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's conducted the service. Burial was in Burnbrae cemetery.

Pall bearers were Messrs. Arthur Stephens, Oscar Rannie, Alfred Stephens, Roy Loucks, John and Will Bennett. Flower bearers were Messrs. John Varcoe, Mel McKeown, Ronald Loucks, Morley and Fred Bennett, Andrew Haig, Wilbert Whitton, Lindsay Fry, Grant Anderson and Fred Todd.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Finnigan and son Richy of Bowmanville spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. J. Finnigan.

Miss M. Peck of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mrs. Floyd Huffman.

Mrs. G. Vandervoort spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wallace.

Mr. Harry Burkitt of Oshawa spent the weekend with his wife and son Gregory.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wickson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wickson of Sidney.

Mrs. M. Schwagger was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Westlake spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Poole of Brighton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wannamaker and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton Wright in Batawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patrick and daughter Linda of Batawa spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McLeod spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Harold McLeod and son Larry.

Three carloads of Czech men from Batawa attended the National Alliance of Czechs on Saturday.

Mrs. Vernon Wannamaker and children spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold McLeod. Mrs. Frank Wood has been confined to her bed with the flu this past week.

Legion Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held their meeting in the Legion Hall, Monday evening. During the business session, Mrs. E. M. Evans, zone representative of Oshawa paid her official visit to the local branch, and gave an interesting talk. Following the talk bingo was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Gerald Carlisle, Mrs. Selbourn Sharpe, Mrs. Charles Harvey and Mrs. W. Rankin. The ladies voted an additional $50 to the Legion Hall.

C.A.'s Meet

The C.A.'s of the Full Gospel Tabernacle held their regular meeting at the Church last Friday evening. Vice-president Lonnie Reilly presided. Testimonies were led by May Mahone. Mary Patrick led the sword drill. Marjorie Forbes brought the word from James. A session of prayer brought the meeting to a close.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs Lorne Thompson of Stockdale on the birth of a son.

Proud of Auxiliary

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion is justly proud of its ladies' auxiliary. The ladies have raised $150 to assist in the construction of the new Legion club room on King Street, and turned in a number of donations which they have received from private citizens of the village as well. Too often, auxiliary branches of organizations are looked upon as separate units, but Frankford Legion and auxiliary have been working in harmony since their formation some five years ago. On behalf of the men of the Legion, a very hearty thank you, ladies, for your contributions to the branch.

Mrs. John Casement visited Mrs. George Patrick on Wednesday.

Mr. Jack Patrick, who is taking a course in Toronto, visited his wife and family over the weekend.

A brush demonstration was put on at the home of Mrs. Jack Patrick Tuesday evening.

Friends of Joseph Holic will be glad to hear that he was cleared of any blame in an accident in Trenton last month, in which a bicycle collided with his car.

The Young People's Union of the Frankford United Church held an old fashioned hay ride Monday evening. They returned to Rose-Lowery Hall for a corn boil.

Bill Easton is moving into an apartment over the Frankford Radio Electric Shop.

U.S. Forces Take Kaesong On Road To Commie Capital

S. Koreans Within 20 Miles Of Wonsan, Deep in N.Korea

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Oct. 7 (AP)—An Air Force spokesman today said United States forces have captured Kaesong, only two miles south of Parallel 38 on the road to the communist capital of Yyongyang.

The U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, which has wheeled nearly 200 miles since mid-September, seized the key border city.

On the east coast, South Korean troops were reported within 20 miles of Wonsan, deep in red territory.

The rapid advance of the 1st Cavalry Troopers from their last reported position, in the Suwon area 20 miles south of liberated Seoul, indicated they may spearhead the expected big push of United Nations forces on the communist capital.

From Kaesong, the reds made their heaviest invasion thrust against the U.N.-sponsored republic June 25. The city is astride the main highway and rail route to the communist capital, 92 air miles to the northwest.

There were no details of Kaesong's capture, reported to AP correspondent Hal Boyle by a U.S. Air Force spokesman. Gen. MacArthur's summary earlier said the troops met only scattered resistance in hurdling the wide banks of the Imjin, 30 miles northwest of Seoul.

MacArthur's spokesman reported that Korean red prisoners said they were instructed to try to escape to the Soviet port of Dairen on the southern tip of Manchuria.

Would Be Friendly

But the spokesman cautioned against placing too much credence in this. Other reports from red prisoners said that about 80 per cent of North Korea's 10,000,000 people would be friendly toward U.N. forces crossing the parallel.

B-29 Superfortresses meanwhile sowed an isolating chain of delayed action bombs on railways in a big northeast section of communist Korea to block defence efforts.

Heavy bombers ripped the reds' vital rail artery from Pyongyong to the northeast coast port of Chongjin, 65 air miles from Siberia. Using new tactics, the Superforts dropped tons of delayed-action bombs, timed to explode at intervals.

The fast East Air Force Command said the bombers severed the rail line in 30 places between Hamhung and Chongjin. Hamhung, 50 air miles north of Wonsan, is on a rail supply line that leads north through Manchuria to Siberia.

The South Korean 3rd Division, which has raced more than 270 miles up the east coast road since it jumped off from Pohang in South Korea, advanced today virtually unopposed.

Armed Gunmen Escape With $1,200 Payroll

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP) — Two armed gunmen escaped with a $1,200 payroll Friday after kidnapping a construction company president and an office clerk.

F. S. Bridges, president of the Bridges Construction Company, and Gordon Hurst, a clerk, told police they were held up as they emerged from the company office in north-central Toronto.

They said the bandits, waving guns, forced them into an automobile and bound and gagged them with adhesive tape. The bandits drove through the nearby Rosedale area, then jumped out and fled on foot.

Hurst said he managed to wind down the window with his knee and call for help. A passing police car noticed them.

Chief Officer Of Licence Board Is Brig. Spragge

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Brig. J. G. Spragge, comptroller of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, was appointed chief administrator of the Liquor Licence Board Friday.

The appointment makes him the top civil servant on each of the two boards regulating the sale of alcoholic beverages in the province.

The appointment was announced in a joint statement by Provincial Secretary Arthur Welsh, chief commissioner of the Liquor Control Board, and Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Liquor Licence Board. The statement did not give the reason for the new appointment.

Also announced was the appointment of G. Kenneth Graham, general manager and chief inspector of the Liquor Licence Board, as assistant chief inspector of stores for the Liquor Control Board. Replacing him on the Liquor Licence Board will be George McLean, director of information for the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity.

Rumors have been current for some time of changes in the administration of liquor control in the province. After meetings with officials of the Liquor Control Board some weeks ago, Premier Frost said there was some concern over liquor administration.

The Liquor Control Board is basically a merchandising organization which buys liquor from distilleries and distributes it. The Liquor Licence Board supervises and licences retail outlets.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP)—Synopsis: A storm centre that was near Winnipeg early this morning, is moving eastward. Rain and scattered thundershowers are spreading eastward across Northern Ontario and storm warnings are displayed at Lake Superior ports.

Slightly cooler air is sweeping eastward across the mid-western states. A band of showers and thundershowers just west of Lake Michigan early this morning marked the leading edge of this cooler air. This band of showers will move eastward across Ontario tonight. Clearing is expected for Sunday with temperatures only slightly lower than today.

GOLD CONFISCATED

Hong Kong, Oct. 7—(AP)—Six baskets of unclaimed raw gold, valued at $69,000,000, were ordered confiscated today by a Hong Kong court.

The gold was hidden in biscuit tins aboard a Cathay Pacific Airways plane. It was seized before the plane left Wednesday for Bangkok.

LEADER OF B.C. CONSERVATIVES RESIGNS OFFICE

Surprise Move Made At Special Meeting

Vancouver, Oct. 7 (CP)—In a surprise move, Hon. Herbert Anscombe, Finance Minister in British Columbia's coalition government, resigned last night as leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservative party.

But he immediately announced that he would be nominated to contest a formal election today for the leadership.

Mr. Anscomb indicated he was resigning and standing for reelection in order to remove any doubt about the party's confidence in its leader.

His sudden announcement came at a special night session of the party's annual convention. It brought a roar from the more than 500 startled delegates.

It culminated a two-hour battle between old-line party members, backing Mr. Anscomb as party leader, and young Conservatives attempting to force through a motion which would call for a leadership vote. The anti-Anscomb element is supporting W. A. C. Bennett for the job, and wanted to be sure there was a formal vote on the question.

Cause of the split in party ranks is Mr. Anscomb's business connections. The rebel group has insisted that he either resign as leader of the party or resign his directorship in companies doing business with the government. Mr. Anscomb holds a liquor company directorship.

Mr. Bennett, supported by many younger members of the party, is the coalition member of parliament for Okanagan South.

One-Woman Strike Gets Results

Bedford, Ind. Oct. 7—(AP)—The one-woman telephone strike is nearby Beltonville got results—results that may mean higher rates for the 85 subscribers.

Mrs. Opal Ford, operator for five years, came back to work yesterday at the higher wages she'd went on strike for Wednesday.

Her salary wasn't announced, but officials of the Union Home Telephone Company said the present rates of 90 cents to $1.75 a month won't be high enough to meet expenses now.

Police Lieutenant On Stand Knows Baseball Score

Newport News, Va., Oct. 7—AP Somebody apparently smuggled a radio into a courtroom yesterday.

Detective W. D. Williams, called to testify in a criminal case, took his seat in the witness box.

Solemnly, Judge and jurors leaned back to listen to his testimony.

But before the prosecuting could begin, Defence Lawyer Francis Wheeler spoke up:

"What's the score, Lieutenant?"

"Two to two," Williams replied. The trial then proceeded.

Bank President and Bank Robber Will Hunt, Fish and Swap Yarns

Hampton, S.C., Oct. 7 (AP)—A bank president and his guest—a bank robber—are hunting, fishing and swapping yarns this weekend at the banker's Savannah River camp.

James (Big Jim) Morton of Cleveland, O., who has spent some 30 years in prisons for robbing banks, arrived Thursday to accept the hospitality of Ralph O. Bowden, president of the Loan and Exchange Bank of Hampton. The banker became interested in the robber after reading his story in a national magazine (Saturday Evening Post) recently.

In inviting Morton to visit him, Bowden, a banker for 50 years, wrote: "I once had a bank blown open with nitro-glycerine and also have had a bank cut open with an acetylene torch.

"About the only experience I have not had in the banking business has been the privilege of sitting down in some isolated spot with a 'jug of wine and a loaf of bread' between us and talking with a one-time professional yeggman."

Morton commented after his arrival: "This is the first time a banker ever invited me to his home, though I did notice he invited me to his country place and not to his town home that is near his bank."

Morton said he and co-workers usually worked in the south during the winter, averaging about three bank robberies monthly, netting about $24,000, which was cut three ways. He cautioned, "nobody but a fool robs a big city bank".

After his stay here, Morton will go to Miami where he plans to write a book about his life.

Canadian Mining Industry Facing New Vistas Revenue Minister Says at Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP) — Canada's growing mineral industry now is worth $1,000,000,000 a year and faces a bright future of expansion and development, Revenue Minister McCann said today.

There are indications that Canada is "approaching a forefront position" as a world producer of crude oil, iron ore and titanium, he said in a speech prepared for delivery at Queen's University where he was given an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

He predicted the mineral industry will play a vital part in Canada's defence preparations. And until this program is completed "or unless the international situation improves to a much greater extent than we now have reason to expect, the peacetime uses of metals and minerals will have to give way to a varying degree to their uses for defence purposes."

"However, recent events in Korea give us considerable reason to hope that a determination to face realities will eventually stamp out aggression."

Indications pointed to a rising demand for the products of the mines and the oil wells for some time to come. There would be every incentive to find and develop deposits, and new mining engineers would be needed. He noted a downward trend in engineering graduates from Canadian universities and suggested the mining industry should encourage young men to take up mining by sponsoring visits to the mining and oil areas of the country.

The future of Canadian mining could be looked upon with "genuine optimism". The facts spoke for themselves and needed no coloring, yet there were those who could not resist doing so with "soothing phrases about our inexhaustible mineral resources and our untapped mineral wealth."

"Our mineral resources are neither untapped nor inexhaustible. And yet, there are few countries of comparable population that have a stronger mineral economy than Canada."

He spoke of the great iron-ore developments in the east — at Steep Rock and the Michipocoten areas in Ontario, the Labrador-Quebec region, and in the Allard Lake area of Quebec where "the largest known source of titanium in the world is being brought into production."

He concluded:

"Only a few years ago we were seriously concerned about the dwindling production of crude oil in the west. Even the prairie needs were being largely imported. Now we are thinking in terms of a possible self-sufficiency of oil supply for Canada.

Prime Minister Will Visit City On October 28th

Prime Minister Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent will be the guest of the city on Saturday, October 28th, it was announced today by Frank S. Follwell, Member for South Hastings. He is coming to the city on the invitation of the city, forwarded by His Worship, Mayor H. J. Allin, and will unveil the tablet erected to the memory of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, a former Prime Minister of this country and a native of this city.

A luncheon will be tendered the distinguished guest previous to the unveiling ceremony and it is likely that a reception will be held so that as many of the citizens can meet the Prime Minister as possible. It is the intention of the committee under the chairmanship of Ald. Claude Tice, to provide a Guard of Honor supplied by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Max Porritt. Other details have to be worked out for this unique event but it is planned to make this a memorable event in the life of this city.

CHANGES HIS MIND

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 7—(AP)—The man who marked his selective service questionnaire "Do not open until Christmas" has changed his mind.

Sgt. Richard Hermann, 21, sent selective service headquarters a letter saying:

Gobbler Growers Eat Veal Cutlets In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7—(AP)—Maryland's gobbler growers talked turkey all morning.

Speakers before the meeting of the Maryland Turkey Producers Association discussed at length the various ways to make turkey meat more appealing to the public.

They they went to lunch. They ate veal cutlet.

8 DIE IN REIGN OF TERROR

Shillong, India, Oct. 7 (Reuters) —Eight persons have died in a communist-inspired "reign of terror" which allowed the devastating August earthquakes in the Sibsagar district of northeast India, Chief Minister Bishunram Medhi of Assam said yesterday. Sibsagar, a sub-district of Assam was declared a "disturbed area" after the earthquake, one of the most severe in history.

BATTLE IN SWAMPS

Manila, Oct. 7 (AP)—Fighting between government forces and communist-led Hubalahaps raged through the fourth day today in the mountains and swamps about 25 miles northeast of Manila. A Nationalist defence spokesman said 76 of the armed guerrillas had been killed during that period.

SECURITY COUNCIL WILL APPROVE KOREA PEACE PLAN

Will Allow UN Troops To Cross 38th Line

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)— The United Nations general assembly expects to give final approval today to the Korean plan which allows U.N. troops poised at the 38th parallel to move into north Korea to unify the country.

Long speeches by Slav-group delegates—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky spoke for an hour and 12 minutes—kept the assembly plenary session from reaching a vote last night.

The Ukraine, Greece and India remained on today's speaker list—one speech for the Russian-Slav bloc plan, one for the eight-power "western plant," and one for the middle course of abstention that India took in the assembly's political committee because it didn't like either plan.

There was no doubt before the meeting began, however, that the whole assembly would give the eight-country peace program offered by Britain and seven other countries the same thumping majority it got in the political committee.

The 60 - member committee adopted the "western" plan 47 to 5, with 7 abstentions. It calls for naming a strong commission of seven U.N. votes to supervise elections for all of Korea, and to carry out a rehabilitation program in the war-torn country. The resolution also declares that U.N. troops will be withdrawn as soon as all conditions for setting the country on its feet are attained.

Scoff at Attempts by Russia

The majority scoffed at Russian attempts to get the assembly to deal with the North Koreans—branded as aggressors — on the same footing as the South Koreans, or to get agreement between the 20,000,000 South Koreans and the 10,000,000 North Koreans without strong U.N. supervision.

The assembly also had on its schedule another try at naming the third elective member of the Security Council.

It took 12 ballots in an earlier session without Turkey or Lebanon getting the two-thirds majority necessary to elect either to the two-year term for the middle east seat now held by Egypt. Turkey led on the ballots. The Netherlands and Brazil were elected to the other two seats, for the term beginning next Jan. 1.

West German Workers Strike

Hamburg, Oct. 7 (Reuters)—A strike of nearly 20,000 West German waterways' workers today cut off the North Sea port of Emden and the Baltic port of Luebeck.

Ships cannot enter these ports as the lock at Emden and the swing bridge at, Luebeck are strike-bound.

The strike began after negotiations for increases in pay had broken down.

The Kiel canal, strikebound yesterday, was open to shipping today and locks were manned by emergency squads.

Traffic on inland waterways remained paralyzed.

10,000 FAMILIES HOMELESS

Manila, Oct. 7 — (Reuters)—More than 10,000 families have lost their homes in raging floods that swept over central Luzon after a typhoon this week, the Phillippine Red Cross reported today.

The swollen Pampanga River has burst its banks at many points, and towns and villages have been cut off.

Daisy the Cow Nudges Her Owner Out of Blazing Barn, Saves His Life

North Hampton, N.H., Oct. 7 (AP)—Farmer Berwin E. Fuller credited his favorite cow—Daisy—with saving his life.

He told the story as he made plans for rebuilding a barn destroyed by fire a few days ago with loss of 65 head of cattle and two horses.

Only Daisy survived.

When the fire broke out, Fuller ran into the barn trying to free the animals. He started to lose consciousness in the smoke.

"I felt a nudge in my back as I started to fall," he recalled later. "I didn't know what it was, but I threw my arms around it and held on. It knocked down a loose door and dragged me along. The next thing I knew I was outside."

Sure enough, it was Daisy. Twelve hours later, she was found in a nearby pasture, just as contented as ever.

Fate of Special Force Will Be Decided Soon

Troops May be Sent Both to Korea and Europe

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer))

Ottawa, Oct. 7 (CP)—Indications are here that the government will be deciding in the next two or three weeks what to do with the army's special force.

There is a growing feeling in some informed quarters that the upshot may be that Canadian troops will go both to Korea and to Europe.

The key factor is whether Korea flares up again as a fighting front. If it does, that may decide the question.

If it doesn't, if Korea becomes merely an occupation job, it is felt here that the United Nations is likely to want from Canada at least a token force.

Reports from Washington have indicated that the United States, the major power involved, wants as wide an international representation as possible in the occupation force.

Ottawa is believed, on the other hand, to have informed Washington that the Canadian government isn't anxious to dispatch its full special force of 10,000 men to Korea merely for occupation duty.

A not-unlikely saw-off is that a small part of the force, say a battalion of 800 to 1,000 men, would be earmarked for that job. Australia, for instance, had that sort of a battalion in Japan.

That would leave some 9,000 men for duty elsewhere.

In Montreal last night, speaking before the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, Prime Minister St. Laurent didn't leave much doubt where the government feels they should go.

Must be Represented

Giving the first official indication that Canada definitely intends to contribute at least some armed forces to peacetime Europe, he said:

"We all recognize that the armed forces of Canada must be appropriately represented in the integrated force which is to be established by the North Atlantic alliance" for the defence of western Europe.

He still said the special force will go to Korea if that's where it can be of the greatest use when ready. But it also "might well" go to Europe.

The question of its destination is rising to a head for a variety of reasons. For one, the Atlantic pact defence ministers meet in Washington Oct. 28 to fill in the blueprint for the integrated force.

For another, the force is slated to leave Canada for Okinawa in mid-November, and that's not far away. There are immense problems of shipping and supply being handled now. These plans can't be allowed to go on indefinitely if nothing is to come of them.

Already there are some signs of the hesitation that arises from the fact than the government simply doesn't know what's going to happen. But, behind the scenes, talks with the United States are going on, and decisions are shaping up.

BODY IN WRECKAGE

Hong Kong, Oct. 7 — (AP) — Press dispatches from Canton today reported the body of a Russian pilot was found in the wreckage of a military plane that crashed Wednesday near that South China city.

The report, to the independent newspaper Kung Sheung Yat Po, gave no details, except that "the body was sent north for burial."

As early as last January, reports from Shanghai said Soviet pilots were flying military planes for the Chinese communists.

Getaway Auto Used by Robber Found in Welland

Stevensville, Oct. 7 (CP) — The getaway car used in a $1,000 bank robbery here yesterday was found abandoned on a street in nearby Welland last night.

It was reported stolen from a Welland parking lot shortly before a lone gunman snatched a bundle of banknotes from a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The bandit sped away with three companions who waited in the car during the holdup.

Thanksgiving Day Revives Old Fete

(By The Canadian Press)

Thanksgiving Day on Monday is the ever-new revival of an ancient tradition. While it's Canada's 72nd annual Thanksgiving, the custom of giving thanks for the harvest yield and the year's blessing dates from ancient times before the coming of Christ.

Traditional religious services will pack churches in cities and towns across Canada, while sports events and other outdoor celebrations attract thousands. The family dinner will be built around the Thanksgiving turkey.

This year Canadians will give thanks for a big wheat crop, though it has suffered some frost damage, and for the United Nations victory in Korea. The day has its own significance for every family.

On this continent the first Thanksgiving Day was observed in New England after the harvest in 1621. The British held a service in 1759 to celebrate the capture of Quebec, holding observances in the Ursuline Chapel at Quebec. The Canadian holiday was made official in 1879, when the governor-general, the Marquis of Lorne, set Nov. 6 as a day to attend church and give thanks.

The actual date shifted in later years. From 1918 to 1930 it was merged with Armistice Day on Nov. 11, but in 1931 the Armistice commemoration and thangsgiving services were separated and the latter was fixed for an early Monday in October. Now the actual Thangsgiving date is fixed annually.

BULGARIAN PROTEST

London, Oct. 7 (AP) — Tass, the Russian News Agency, said yesterday that Bulgaria has charged that Yugoslav soldiers fired machine-guns at Bulgarian frontier guards in a "new provocation." The protest was handed to the Yugoslav ambasadsor in Sofia, Tass said. The note said the incident occurred Sept. 19.

HITCH-HIKED WAY BACK FROM WINNIPEG

"Where there's a will there's a way" but in this case an extra pair of thumbs would come in handy.

A resident of outlying Belleville decided to go west and see what the wheat harvest was like. Reaching Winnipeg, he was greeted with five or six inches of "wet" snow, and decided that the banana belt of Ontario looked pretty good.

Being a careful young man, he decided to hitch-hike from the 'Peg to Belleville. This he accomplished, making the journey via thumb in three and one-half days.

CHRIST CHURCH MEN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING

At the regular weekly meeting of Christ Church Men's Club, Tuesday evening, [redacted] in Christ Church Parish Hall, the new minister Rev. Jack Creeggan joined in the social activities of the entire evening.

The meeting opened at 8.15 p.m., with prayers by the president and members, which was followed by a short business period and a ten-minute talk by Rev. Creeggan in reference to various church activities forthcoming.

The balance of the evening was enjoyed in games and refreshments were served to complete a very pleasant evening.

Big Potatoes Exhibited by Several Farmers

With the current season's potato crop being slightly above average there are many claims being put forth by district farmers for big yields and also big potatoes.

Harry Guernsey, Ridge Road, near Picton, harvested 118 bushels of Sebago potatoes from three 75-pound bags planted last spring.

Out in the Tweed district Leo Rashotte, French Settlement, exhibited a basket of Katahdin spuds three of which tipped the scales at a total of seven and a half pounds. The largest in the basket weighed three pounds and measured 22 inches in circumference. The other two spuds weighed well over two pounds each.

Walter Henley of the Millbridge district also had some big spuds, the combined weight of six of them being 12¼ pounds. Three of the largest were of the Chippewa variety and weighed 6¾ pounds and the other three were Columbia Russets and weighed 5½ pounds.

Gunners Hold Battery Party At Armouries

Gunners of the 32nd Battery, 9th Anti Tank Regiment, proved perfect hosts last night in the main lecture room of the Bridge Street Armouries.

They held a battery party for their wives and sweethearts which was enjoyed also by battery officers and their ladies.

B.S.M. C. Mason and Bombardiers Moon and Kimmett formed the committee in charge of the party enjoyed by upwards of 100.

Round and square dancing to the music of Winstanley and his orchestra. Plus entertainment formed the main feature of the evening's fun. Wives of the gunners and officers assisted in serving tasty refreshments at midnight.

Major Owen Atkins, officer commanding was unable to be present due to out-of-town activities. Other officers there were Captain Harold Vaughan and Lieuts. D. Burns and Harold Kellar.

Arthur Baker Suffers Injury In Head-on Crash

Arthur Baker of Belleville suffered head and body injuries today when his automobile collided head on with a trailer transport truck driven by William McCollum of Scarboro, Ont. McCollum was uninjured.

Police said the accident happened a mile east of Oshawa when Baker's car pulled out to pass another transport. His car was wrecked.

The Belleville Lodge Holds Social Evening

A social evening was enjoyed by the members and friends of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 at their fourth degree on Thursday evening. Wor. Bro. Dan Stewart was the toastmaster for the evening and introduced the several items on the program. A color film showing the laying of the corner stone at new Masonic Temple was shown. This film also showed the different stages of construction. Harold McNish gave a solo accompanied by Bro. Harry Gourley at the piano. He also rendered a number of piano solos and played while the members were assembling in the banquet room.

A most interesting technicolor film entitled "Northland Challenge" was shown and Bro. Fowler gave a most interesting account of his trip to that part of the country. The film showed the vast resources of this Dominion, the farming opportunities and the lumbering industry. It also showed the country as a vast holiday resort where hunting and fishing abounds, while the cities have all the finest of educational facilities and well equipped hospitals. Wor. Bro. W. D. Embury expressed the thanks of the lodge for the excellent address given by the speaker.

The toast to the newly-elected candidate was proposed by Bro. M. Hancock and G. Irvin replied. The toast to the visitors was proposed by Wor. Bro. Ken Bird and this was replied to by the father of the candidate and other visiting brothers. It was a most enjoyable evening at the lodge.

Fire Prevention Will be Stressed in All Phases With Full Week Program

In an effort to bring home to residents of the city the importance of fire prevention, a full week's program has been arranged by the Belleville Fire Department for Fire Prevention Week [redacted], it was stated today by Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

Much of the effort during the week will be directed toward the children with fire prevention essay and poster contests to be staged in all the city public schools and at St. Michael's Schools. Cash prizes and prizes of merchandise are being offered to the students turning out the best essays and posters in each of the schools.

Fire Drills in Schools

In addition to the essay contests, there will be fire drills at all of the schools as well as movies and lectures on fire prevention.

There will be fire inspection at all of the city public buildings and factories, as well as many of the residences also fire drill at some factories.

It will be "open house "all week at the new fire station on Moira Street and local residents will be invited to call around and see the new quarters. "Off shift" men have volunteered to return to the fire hall to help in any way possible.

Wednesday evening will see a parade by the fire department along Front Street, while Thursday evening at the fire hall there will be movies on fire prevention at the fire hall as well as demonstrations on fighting of fires. There will be a store window on Front Street bringing attention to fire prevention week.

Few Late Strawberries Offered And Eagerly Bought Up, Vegetable Market Large

They weren't radishes, despite the skepticism of some people, and they sure weren't cherries—they were strawberries, and they were on the market this morning. Furthermore, Joe Crift, who had 15 boxes of the fruit for sale, said he picked them yesterday, thus ruling out the deep freeze angle.

One minutes he had the fruit, and the next minutes it was all gone—at 50c per quart.

The second surprise of the morning was skinned mudcats at 30c per lb.

On a more solid footing cantaloupes were priced from 10c to 50c with watermelons 25c to 50c. Flemish beauty pears were 75c and 80c per basket, blue grapes were 50c per basket. Talman Sweet apples were 60c for the same quantity, and McIntoshes were 50c to 65c per basket according to size.

In the vegetable market, cabbages ranged from 5c to 20c, beets were 40c per basket, squash 5c to 15c; tomatoes were 35c and 40c pr basket, 75c for a half bushel; potatoes were 50c per peck, $1.75 per bag; carrots in the bunch were 10c, three for 25c, or 25c a half peck. Corn was 30c per dozen, in some cases 25c and vegetable marrow asking price was 10c and 15c.

Quantities of pumpkins were offered from 15c to 50c. Grade A large eggs were 62c and 63c per dozen, with other prices corresponding.

'Best Rebellion' In Years Begins As Happy Hasty Pees Reunite

All indications today pointed to the sixth annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment as being the best "rebellion" in history.

Early today ex-members of the regiment poured into the city from all points of the compass and the battles of the regiment started their sixth fighting.

Former buddies wearing broad grins of happiness at the sight of familiar faces detrained, debussed and "de-carred" from an early hour.

They're going to have the time of their lives. Officers from commanding officer Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, M.C., down to ex-privates of the Reunion Committee toiled hard and late yesterday to provide fitting surroundings for the reception of their former "footslogger" pals.

Colorful Scene

The regiment colors proudly flaunt themselves around the drill floor of the Bridge street armouries. Grim reminders of action are seen in anti-tank guns placed at strategic points. Drawings of battlefields on which the gallant Hasty Pees fought still stand out on the south wall, placed there last year by C.S.M. George (Sockless) Ponsford.

Stern and forbidding looking, and supervising all proceedings stands Chief "Petawawa-Much" famous wooden Indian mascot of the unit. By his side is the demure maiden "Minnehaha".

In the Church street armouries, headquarters of the regiment, the sergeants' and officers' messes are in festive regalia.

Reunion Committee officials worked like trojans late into the night, and were back again early this morning. The setting was perfect.

Registration started at two o'clock this afternoon and a steady stream of young "old sweats" blue bereted and some of them bemedalled poured on the "battlefield".

It looks like the best "rebellion" in the colorful history of this famous "plowboy" regiment.

Strengthen Guards For Royal Family, Says London Paper

London, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — Police chiefs have decided to strengthen guards on all members of the Royal Family and their homes, the Evening News reports tonight.

The paper states that following a recent burglary attempt at Marlborough House, London home of Queen Mary, a secret conference at Scotland Yard decided that security measures for the entire Royal Family must be increased.

POLICE BLOTTER

Drunks kept the local police department busy Friday night when no less than 12 men were apprehended and charged under the LCA. One of the offenders was charged with second offense.

The residence of "Duke" Smith Burnham St., was broken into some time during the night and $4 in cash stolen. Entrance to the premises was gained by the intruder taking out a window screen at the back of the house.

Six-year-old Phyllis Jackson, ran into the side of a passing car near the Kiwanis Centre but escaped without injury. Driver of the car, Harry Faulkner, Octavia St., told police that he had seen the little girl running across the street and managed to stop his car but the girl ran into the side of the vehicle.

GET $1,500 HAUL

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP)—Two "cat burglars" stole $1,500 from the west-end Canada Laundry last night and escaped by racing across a series of attached rooftops, swinging through an open upstairs bedroom window of a nearby house and out a rear door.

Police said the robbers apparently were disturbed in a safecracking attempt. As they fled they grabbed a cash box containing the $1,500.

Rev. O. G. McKinley, Athens, Pa., will be the guest speaker at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Everett St., for the next two weeks.

Mr. McKinley, a minister for the past thirty-three years, is a preacher of wide experience. A graduate of Marion College, Marian, Indiana, he pastored churches in the States of Indiana, Ohio and New York. The six years of full-time evangelism has taken him into many of the States and parts of Canada.

In addition to preaching, Mr. McKinley is a baritone soloist.

Four Escapees From Burwash Are Recaptured

Sudbury, Oct. 7 — (CP) Guards from Burwash industrial farm today captured four prisoners who escaped Tuesday night. The four were caught at Rutter, near Delamere, 25 miles south of here.

They are Abraham Schuiler, 32-year-old Indian from London, Ont., Fred Morton, 28, of Toronto; Daniel J. Christopher, 24, of Ottawa, and Ray Hazelwood, 21, of Orillia.

The four had been spectators at a football game at the prison farm Tuesday night. As the prisoners were forming up for the march back to the dormitories, the four dashed into the nearby bush.

A report was received last night by prison farm officials that a forcible entry had been made at a house near Delamere and a quantity of food stolen. Guards were concentrated in that area and the escaped men were overtaken at Rutter.

CONSERVE YOUNG PEOPLE

Cornwall, Oct. 7 (CP) —Unless Canada can learn to conserve and develop her young people, she cannot hope to take the place in the world affairs she should occupy 20 years from now, Dr. G. E. Hall, principal of the University of Western Ontario said here last night. Dr. Hall was addressing the annual commencement exercises of Cornwall College and Vocational School.

BAN "UNTOUCHABILITY"

Karachi, Pakistan, Oct. 7 (Reuters)—Pakistan yesterday took first steps to ban "untouchability". The constituent assembly approved unanimously a report of its committee on human rights. with a clause banning untouchability included. Untouchability, the defiling quality of a low-caste Hindu from the point of view of a strict high-caste Hindu, has caused oppressive restrictions in the past.

DRAFT MACHINERY FOR MED

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—The draft machinery for doctors in the United States starts operating on Oct. 16. President Truman yesterday ordered the registration on that date of medical men who got either government financing or selective service deferment for their studies during the Second World War but did not see 21 months of national service. The turn of other physicians, dentists and veterinarians comes later.

Korean Sidelights

With United Nations troops near the 38th Parallel, Oct. 7 (Reuters) — Two Australian soldiers dug into a foxhole here today and vowed they would be the first foreign soldiers across the 38th Parallel.

Ptes. Tex T. Wilson and Ernest S. Stone arrived in Korea a few days ago with the first detachment of Australian volunteer troops.

"We joined up to fight but when we arrived we found that our unit was too far from the front lines," Wilson said. "So we just took off and headed for the noise of firing."

An American tank gave them a lift to the front where the Australians unofficially "enlisted" in an assault rifle squad.

"We wanted to be first Australians over the Parallel," Stone said. "Now it looks as though we might even beat the Americans. Anyway we are going to try."

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 7 (AP)—The United States army's heavyweight boxing champion received the Distinguished Service Cross today for his greatest fight—and his last.

Cpl. Levi Jackson, Jr., fell under a rain of hot steel his big fist could not stop. In death he was still a champion.

The 34-year-old negro went into the final round as a medical aid man, near the town of Haman in South Korea Aug. 13.

Time and time again, Jackson faced North Korean fire to rescue men of a company which lost more than half of its personnel without giving an inch of ground.

Tokyo, Oct. 7 (AP)—Two South Korean officers today were awarded the Silver Star Medal by General MacArthur's headquarters for "conspicuous gallantry" in the Inchon landings. They are Rear Admiral Won Yil Sohn, South Korean Chief of Naval Operations, and Col. Jun Hyun Shin, commander of a Korean marine regiment.

Karachi, Pakistan, Oct. 7 (AP) —Premier Liaquat Ali Khan told parliament today that relations between Pakistan and neighboring Afghanistan "have grown worse".

He declared that the Afghan government had organized raids into Pakistan territory by tribesmen and members of the Afghan army.

1,000 'Ditty Bags' Drive is Launched

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP) — The Navy League of Canada said today it has launched a drive for 1,000 "ditty bags" to be sent to men of the three Canadian destroyers serving in Korean waters.

These kits, similar to thousands sent to Canadian seamen during the Second World War, contain toilet articles, reading and writing and mending material. They will be flown to Korea.

Youths Learn LCA Has Teeth

Windsor, Oct. 7 (CP) — Three Windsor youths discovered today the Liquor Control Act has teeth in it.

After pleading guilty to buying a case of beer from a bootlegger, the minors refused to tell from whom they had purchased the beer.

They had nothing to say when Magistrate A. W. MacMillan asked them for a statement.

Then Assistant Crown Attorney E. A. Duschesne told them that unless minors tell where they received liquor, the act provides for a jail term of from one to three months.

Each then told where they had bought the beer. They got off with a $10 fine.

Suggest Vietminh Reds Supplied from Red China

Saigon, Indo-China, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — French sources in Saigon suggested today that Vietminh communist guerrillas attacking French outposts on the rugged China-Indo China border are being supplied from communist China.

As the French army announced a falling-off in the number of attacks, French sources here reported that truck convoys had been spotted between Southern China and the Indo-Chinese frontier town of Dongdang.

Dongdang, held by the French, guards the main mountain pass between China and Indo-China, about 10 miles northwest of the French principal frontier fortress at Lang Son.

Judge Dismisses Motions to Send Officials to Jail

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP) — Mr. Justice D. A. Wells Friday dismissed a motion to send two officials of the United Electrical Workers' Union to jail for allegedly breaking an injunction against picketing of a strikebound plant at Belleville.

The Belleville Lock Co. Ltd., obtained the injunction against six employees and a labor organizer on Sept. 30. Mr. Justice Wells ruled there was no evidence that the union officials, Douglas Tyner and Glenn Bedell had taken part in the picketing. He previously had declared the strike, involving more than 50 workers in a wage-dispute, to be unlawful.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

NEW BLOOD AND NEW CAPITAL 1816 - 1836

(6th Instalment)

After the peace of 1815 a change can be noted in the pattern of settlement in Upper Canada. Hitherto immigration into the province had been chiefly from the United States and had consisted largely of Loyalists (the latecomers sometimes of a very passive type of loyalty) and of Americans looking for new areas for exploitation. The war had checked the flow of American settlers for a time and the number of immigrants who could now be called "loyalist," even in the widest sense of the word, had become negligible.

(There were, however, some groups in the United States who had become disgusted with conditions there and moved to Canada as soon as possible after the peace. These were mostly recent arrivals of British origin.)

In Europe and Britain the Napoleonic wars left the usual aftermath of displacement and disorder, and by 1818 the first small beginnings of a great wave of emigration that was to people much of North America, Australia and New Zealand were already on the move. Hitherto only a few small groups of European and British settlers had come to Upper Canada, and the number of individual settlers from the Old World had been very small.

Now, however, the older countries were becoming aware of the possibilities of Canada as an outlet for the surplus population, which was complicating the problems of re-adjustment brought about by war and by social and industrial revolution at home. At first the movement was largely one of individuals, often possessed of some means, who came out on their own initiative to seek for wider opportunities, but soon there began the first of the organized settlement schemes which were to continue on a much larger scale through the thirties, forties and fifties.

The Moira region, and in fact most of the Midland district, still lay a little apart from the main stream of traffic and consequently of immigration. The fronts of the southern townships were well settled, and even in the second tier of townships a great deal of land was held by non-residents or as reserves. The picture of Thurlow townships in 1818 which can be drawn from Robert Gourlay's "Statistical Account of Upper Canada" shows that while much progress had been made in the last five or ten years, it had been largely limited to parts of the first six concessions.

Gourlay remarks that Thurlow and Sidney were well settled in the south part and estimates their population to be about 1,800 each.

(Robert Gourlay: Statistical Account of Upper Canada, 1822. Gourlay gets his figure by taking the populations of the five Midland district townships from which there were assessment returns, striking an average and applying what he considered a proper proportion of this figure to the other townships according to his estimate of the degree of settlement in each. He considered Sidney and Thurlow up to the average of the townships with known populations.)

He heard of only four families settled in Huntingdon and none in Hungerford. His estimates of the population of Sidney and Thurlow were possibly too low. Sidney seems to have been more populous than Thurlow, but most of the settlement in that township lay outside the Moira watershed. The replies of the inhabitants of Thurlow to the questionnaire which Gourlay circulated in 1818 (known as "Queries") stated that rather less than half the township (25,000 acres) was "in the hands of the actual settlers," and only a small proportion of this land can have been cleared.

From 15,000 to 20,000 acres are described as unsold apparently including the land held by non-resident owners, while 14,000 acres were kept by the government. This last would include the reserves in the part of the township surveyed after 1789, for few reserves had been made in the survey of 1787.

The great acreage of land held by the non-residents was certainly retarding settlement in Thurlow and elsewhere. Wild lands were untaxed and there was little inducement to the owners to improve them once the patent had been secured. The absentees neglected their road duties, and if they used their lands at all, it was usually only as a source of timber. The grants had originally consisted of additional lands, granted to the Loyalists on various considerations. But many of them had by now passed from the hands of their original owners to merchants and other speculators.

Since there was a powerful group who were interested in continuing the system of tax-free wild lands, much less is heard of the evils it brought about than about the annoyance caused by the Reserves, which almost everyone joined in condemning. Conservationists, however, may be inclined to think that the advantage of retaining a proportion of the lots uncleared for a time might in the long run outweigh the disadvantage of a quarter-mile of unoccupied frontage every two miles or so, and to wish that the Crown Reserves, at least, had remained public property for a somewhat longer period.

This refers to the "chequered plan" by which the reserves were scattered through the concessions. When large blocks of reserves separated settled townships, the evils were increased. A useful system of reserves might have been worked out if conditions had permitted. It has been suggested that the reserves were of benefit to settlers of small means who could not afford to buy land outright.

The question of the Clergy Reserves was complicated by other issues which do not concern conservation.

The large private holdings, however, were often in solid blocks of several hundred acres and formed barriers across the natural lines of settlement. Some owners rented their additional lands, when they could, and in Thurlow and Sidney there seems to have been a demand for leased farms, so that a proportion of the unsold lands and reserves was probably occupied by tenants. A farm of 200 acres with fifty acres cleared rented for £25 a year, and the rent for one with 65 acres cleared "near the Bay of Quinte," was much higher. This probably represented the average acreage of clearing on well established farms in the two areas.

In 1819 a small tax on wild lands of non-residents was imposed by the Legislature and this was made permanent in 1824, with provisions for selling the land to pay taxes eight years in arrears. The proceeds were to be spent on the roads. The tax, combined with rising prices, brought about the sale of a good deal of land and during the next fifteen years the back concessions of the older townships began to fill up. When the Canada Company purchased the Crown Reserves in 1826 they got only a few scattered lots in Thurlow, and every concession in the township appears to have had some degree of settlement by 1836.

The part of Sidney township within the Moira Watershed had also been opened up by that time. In Hungerford and Huntingdon the usual number of lots had been reserved and the progress of settlement was slow in the early twenties. Lumbermen and Indian traders had entered the township however and some settlers had followed them by 1826. Tracks were opened up on both sides of the river to each end of Stoco Lake and through Sugar Island (where the Indians made large quantities of maple sugar every spring) to the south shore of the lake. It was on Sugar Island that the first permanent settlers in Hungerford located in 1826.

Lumbering was opening the way for settlement as was usual in Upper Canada. The progress began with the selective cutting of the best trees. These were then floated down the smaller rivers on the spring flood and made up into rafts when they reached a larger waterway. Mast timber, however, was too long to be run down a river such as the Moira and was usually drawn down in timber tugs along trails cut in the bush. When the front concessions began to be settled saw mills would be set up at convenient points on the river or the tributaries and the sawn lumber hauled down the trails to the lake. Each sawmill gave employment to from ten to thirty men and so formed a nucleus for settlement. When enough homesteaders had settled in the neighborhood, the mill owner would add a grist mill to his establishment. Meanwhile, blacksmith shops and taverns would have opened at focal points along the main trails and would form the nucleus for crossroad villages from which roads would be opened and settlers spread throughout the concessions.

In 1826 the Canada Company acquired reserve lots in each concession of Huntingdon and Hungerford and in the next ten years the six southern concessions of Huntingdon and the area west and southwest of Stoco Lake appear to have been settled to some extent. By 1836 Munroe's grist mill and sawmill was running on the site of Tweed and Trumpour's sawmill near Chapman. The sites of Thrasher's Corners, Roslin and Thomasburg were already road junctions on the main road up the west side of the river, which followed very nearly the line of the present Highway No. 37. It would appear that settlement in the neighborhood of these villages dates at least from the early thirties.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

A FLASH OF BLUE

If we were actually dependent upon the presence of bluebirds for our happiness, what doleful people Canadians would be from the end of October until the middle of March! During those months, these gentle birds are seeking milder weather than we are able to provide. However, the period of absence is not long in comparison to that of many species. Bluebirds do not travel far, and return before snow has left our fields.

Apparently courting man, bluebirds breed only throughout that part of Canada which is settled, from the Prairie provinces to Newfoundland. Nothing pleases them better than old apple trees with cavities suitable for occupancy; but orchards are not the only localities where they may be found nesting. Any old stump or Fortunately, bluebirds are quite willing to use manufactured bird houses, because for some years they have been faced with a housing problem. The advent of the starling, and our modern, tidy way of either employing a tree surgeon or cutting down unsightly old trees have proved to be almost fatal to bluebirds.

When sun slants from the right direction on their heads, backs, wings and tails, the beauty of the males is breath-taking. On a dull day, females appear a soft grey with a bluish tinge. The breasts of adults are a pinky red, brighter in the male than the female. Like robins, the spotted breasts of the young ones show their kinship to the thrushes: both are members of the thrush family.

Indeed the resemblance between robins and bluebirds goes farther than looks. Their voices are sufficiently similar to be mistaken for each other's when heard at some distance by someone not too well acquainted with bird songs. However, the strings of the bluebirds' violins are muted. Three or four sweet, murmuring notes make up the song; but the "chur-wi" call, usually given on the wing, is perhaps even more delightful to hear.

The pose of a bluebird sitting on its favorite fence post or telegraph wire is quite different from that of its relatives. The hunched shoulders are as distinctive as their flash of blue in flight.

Though we really do manage to grasp happiness without the assistance of bluebirds, it is well worth our while to try to attract the robins' little cousins with th brilliant blue plumage and appealing voices.

AT THANKSGIVING

This is the season of plenty and of thankfulness. In all the years there has never been real shortage of crops in Canada for the soil is fertile and modern agricultural science knows the means whereby the soil can be maintained with all the richness of its chemical constituents which are necessary for a food-producing country. Looking into the future and observing that agricultural science is a handmaiden of nature's riches Canadians can be proud that their country has been so blessed by nature and by Providence.

It is a time of thankfulness and grateful expression for the riches which the fields of Canada and labor of Canadians bring to our homes and to the homes of peoples in far-off lands. No people should be more grateful than the people of Canada for the inheritance which is theirs and the rich promises which this country holds for their children and grandchildren. Long since the New World was looked upon as a Land of Promise and the realization of the possibilities of life in the New World has been the agency which has brought many thousands of new citizens here to settle and begin life anew in a promising young nation. How well those early newcomers to Canada have prospered and how well they have established their families in this land is well known.

Even yet the flow of population continues to a land of promise after generations. And Canada welcomes the sturdy and stout of heart to her shores to share the present and especially the future. The migrations of new citizens from the older countries of the world help to enrich Canada and to extend her blessings to the newcomers and the generations which will follow. Since the war there has been a very heavy influx of newcomers and the sign of lessening of the flow has not yet been noticed. So far has this country's fame penetrated the Old World.

Especially at this season of the year the spirit of the harvest home prevails in every section of the country. It is found in the endless number of autumn festivals held by church societies and other groups at which the autumn's plenty and the spirit of thanksgiving are emphasized. These festivities take on an importance which cannot be overstressed for they are an expression of the spirit of people and of the country at large.

And then there comes the national Thanksgiving which is the expression of the spirit of all the people and of the season. In countless places of worship harvest hymns are sung.

"We thank Thee then O Father,
For all things bright and good,
The seed-time and the harvest,
Our life, our health, our food.
Accept the gifts we offer
For all Thy love imparts
And what Thou most desirest,
Our humble, thankful hearts.

All good gifts around us
Are sent from Heaven above,
Then thank the Lord, O thank the Lord,
For all His love.

This is the spirit of gratitude and thanksgiving in the people's hearts at this season for the dependence all feel on Providence and for the happiness such a season brings.

WOODLOT PROBLEM

More and more attention is being focussed on the long-neglected woodlot. There have been meetings, publications issued and resolutions passed on the question. One of the latest publications on the Canadian farm woodlot has been put out by the National Chemurgic Council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. It points up the fact that the woodlot, which is usually situated on the poorest soil on the place, it a potential treasure-house, says Woodland World.

Everybody seems to be agreed that something must be done to rehabilitate the hundreds of thousands of small private forests. Government action has not been fully effective mainly because there just aren't enough woodlot foresters to get around the country and talk to the farmers in language they understand. Probably there is a partial solution to correcting some of the malpractices by attacking them at the local or municipal level. In fact, Halton County in Ontario has done just this, and with success. The county will pay up to $50 to individual owners for the construction of fences to enclose their woodlots, thus overcoming one of the most widespread abuses — that of utilizing them as pasturage. It's a program which every municipality in the country could study with profit.

THE NEWSBOY

"Just the newsboy!" did you say,
Passing by from day to day,
Regularly, morn and night,
Glimpsed, then quickly out of sight?
Look once more with clearer eye.
It may be a priest goes
by.

"Just the newsboy!" Look once more
As he passes by your door.
Swift is time, and brief the span
When the boy becomes a man.
It may mean that youngster small
Is the doctor you will call.

"Just the newsboy!" did you
say?
There are men of fame
today,
Artists, lawyers, surgeons
wise,
Leaders of great enterprise,
Who were newsboys—did you know—
Not so very long ago.

"Just the newsboy!" Further look!
Some day you may buy his book;
Have him paint your grand-
child's face;
Call him in to plead your case,
Or before life ebbs
away
Ask him at your bed to pray.

Canadians Will Complete Training On Okinawa Is.

Tokyo, Oct. 7 — (Reuters) — Canadian troops for the Korean War area expected to complete their training on the Pacific Island of Okinawa, it was learned Friday.

This key air base has been lightly defended since the United States 29th Regiment was thrown into the struggle in August to hold the shrinking American bridgehead in Korea.

It is believed the Canadians will help to garrison the strategic island while preparing for operational or occupation duties in Korea.

The Canadian brigade is expected to leave Canada some time in November.

In Ottawa, headquarters officials said advance parties of Canada's Special Brigade have started to move in accordance with an over-all plan to train the brigade in the Far East.

For this reason, advance parties have arrived at Fort Lewis, Wash. which is planned as a mustering-centre through which the troops will move on their way east. There are no centres in Canada sufficiently large to assemble the brigade as a unit.

ACCUSED GIVEN REMAND

Peterborough, Oct. 7 — (CP)— Harvey David Silvester, 32, was remanded Friday to Oct. 12 on a charge of wilfully setting fire to the S. S. Kresge store here Aug. 17, 1948.

The remand will allow time for preparation of a report on Silvester's mental condition. He has already been examined.

Fine Black Granite Located Near Rouyn

Rouyn, Que.,—CP—In the heart of one of Canada's richest treasure troves of gold, copper, zink, silver and other metals, a new source of wealth has been found - - black granite.

Until comparatively recently, prospectors searching for the more glamorous ores disregarded the grey rock which lies in a district about 10 miles from this thriving northwestern Quebec mining town. Now the black granite - - said the only commercial deposit in North America - - is being worked by a group of Rouyn business men and is being shipped to all parts of the country.

Its presence was discovered in 1946 when the Quebec government was building a road through Beauchastel township. A stonecutter, J. A. Lacroix, saw the blasted pieces of rock and interested some fellow-residents in the possibilities of the granite for building and monument purposes.

Ex Lariviere, secretary-treasurer of the company formed to quarry the granite, said geologists who have examined it claim it is a better grade of granite than that obtained from Sweden, previously considered the best. The Rouyn black granite is said to be harder and polishes to a glossy black as compared with the grey tones said to prevail in the Swedish product.

Conversion Plan On Schedule Says Saunders

Toronto, Oct. 7 — (CP) — The frequency - conversion program of the Ontario Hydro Commission — believed the largest effort of its kind in the world — is on schedule on its first anniversary. Robert H. Saunders, chairman, announced Friday.

He said the program started Oct. 5, 1949, now is proceeding in three main areas simultaneously— north and east of Toronto, in the Sarnia district and the London area.

About 243,800 pieces of equipment for 61,895 of its 800,000 customers have been converted from 25 to 60 cycles, the chairman reported.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The King's Printer has produced one of the masterpieces in the fourth edition of "Native Trees of Canada," which is bulletin 61 of the Dominion Forest Service in new and beautiful format. It costs only $1.50, and in its way is even a bigger bargain than the famous Taverner "Birds of Canada" which, to date, has been the King's Printer's best gift to the nature worshippers of Canada.

With "Native Trees", even a young child can identify any tree in the country. Each species is described by a series of brilliant photographs of the whole tree, the leaf fruit and winter twigs. These are associated with detailed descriptive text which includes in every instance, a small colored map that gives the normal range of each species of tree. These miniature maps in themselves are of intense interest even to those who have known trees for a long time.

D. A. Macdonald, the Dominion Forester, is to be congratulated on this great book. He took the old Bulletin 61, which was first published in 1917, and reprinted with varying degrees of revision in 1921, 1933 and 1939, and while paying full tribute to the work of the men who prepared that old manual with its line drawings and succinct text, simply revolutionized it. He called upon the services of foresters, artists, photographers, and the resources of all affiliated departments of government, including the British Columbia and Quebec Forest Services. The result is a book that stands up with the finest printing and publishing of the United States or Britain. It contains several decorative color plates,, and there does not appear to be a wasted inch of space in the entire 290 pages.

This may appear an odd time of year to rave about such a book; but the fact is, there is no better season in which to make a study of trees that autumn and winter. In summer, you can't see the trees for the forest. With this new tree manual, with its vivid photographs of bark, winter twigs, cones and other fruit, you can, in winter, get your trees straight.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

READ AND REREAD

How very little we know about those with whom we come closest in contact, and whom we imagine we know most. Even after years of periodic association, that one upon whom we may have looked as a friend may prove to be but another stranger!

People are like books. You have to read them carefully— and long. John Ruskin once wrote: "No book is serviceable until it has been read and reread, and loved and loved." Could not that phrase be applied to people? Can we know our friend after but a thoughtless and smattering appraisal? Must we not read that one again and again, until we love him as well?

So deeply do some writers put themselves into their books that we take them to us as a friend— reading and rereading them. That is what makes some books immotal. Each character is looked upon as real, and as embodying some characteristic of the author.

It is only after persistent effort that we come to gain any knowledge at all. Trial and test, over and over again, finally give birth to the useful invention. Every book that I have greatly enjoyed at first reading has always doubly interested me at the second reading. How often we meet people whom we may misunderstand or dislike at a first meeting, but who after better acquaintance become our permanent friends.

There are individual accounts, written into books, that give an interesting picture of some phase of a period of history, but to get an all-over picture many books must be read and reread in order to place that picture more vividly before one. It is only through this persistent method that some people have committed to memory noteable sayings and poems, and which give to them many a moment of enjoyment, when alone or when far from their home.

We ought to make our books and friends "serviceable" to us, as Ruskin suggests in the quotation above. But this can only come about through love and understanding. Read and reread that book that has inspired you— and that friend as well!

EVERYONE NEEDS NUTRITIONAL IODIN

Webster says i-o-d-i-n-e spells io-dine, but chemists generally pronounce it io-deen or iodin, so, if you wish, you may spell it iodin.

Not in my lexicon. I spell it iodin when I mean nutritional or food iodine; iodine (both i's long) when I mean medicinal iodine.

I advise readers to take iodine if, when or as their physicians prescribe the medicine for them. It is dangerous for a layman to monkey with iodine or iodides in any dose or form.

Iodin is different. Every one needs iodin. Every child, youth or adult requires a certain daily ration of it, minute in quantity as compared with a medicinal dose, but nevertheless absolutely essential for well being.

Probably the soil in a few areas of North America still contains enough iodine or iodide to assure an adequate ration of iodin to birds, animals and people of the area — in drinking water, vegetables, eggs, milk, meat raised on the soil. But in many areas the soil is poor in iodine or iodide and hence poultry, pigs, sheep, cattle, horses, cats, dogs—oh, yes, people in the area are likely to suffer from iodin deficiency.

One such area is the Great Lakes basin. Another is the Rocky Mountain area in Canada and the Northern United States. Thanks to importation of foods, fresh and canned, a good many people and animals in these areas get some iodin by chance. If the imported food happens to be fish or shellfish from the sea the people and animals may get an adequate ration of iodin from use of such iodin-rich food in their regular diet.

How come the prevalence of goitre and cretinism in the Swiss Alps, the Balkan states, Derbyshire in England, on the Peruvian plateau, in the Gilgit region of the Himalayas in northern India? The natural iodine or iodide in the soil of these high places, being very soluble, has been leeched out and carried in glacial streams and rivers down to the sea. This accounts for the goitre (large neck or throat), cretinism (stunted physical and mental development) and myxedema (psysical and mental dullness or hebetude) of so many persons in the regions mentioned.

In a crude and arbitrary way medical and nutrition authorities estimate the minimum daily requirement of iodin for the growing child or youth to be approximately one-tenth milligram —equivalent to 1/600th of a grain. This sheer guess is far too low, in my opinion—and who am I to dispute the pronouncement of the authorities? Chemical analyses show that there is nearly a milligram of iodin in a pound of herring, about one-half milligram in a small serving of codfish or salmon, fresh, dried or canned. I believe the nutrition authorities who made the estimate were intimidated by old timers in the medical profession who clung to traditional obsessions against iodized salt, iodized drinking water etc., long after both science and experience had proved such notions wrong

D. T. Quigley, M.D., F.A.C.S., speaking of nutritional deficiencies in his highly instructive little book The Natonal Malnutrition, published by Lee Foundation, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, cites Plummer and other recognized authorities as having estimated the daily requirement of the body to be about 10 milligrams of iodin — approximately 1/6th grain. Plummer evidently gave his own opinion—not what he thought the old timers would approve. In a apper on the recurrence of peptic ulcer Dr. Quigley said:

"There are only three known areas in the U.S. where sufficient amounts of iodin in the soil. Iodin deficiency is therefore nearly universal. The quantities needed for optimum health have been very much underrated. These quantities must be raised to ten times or a hundred times the maintenance dose (minimum daily requirement) when severe deficiency has existed over a relatively long period of time."

Evidently Dr. Quigley says what he thinks, too, and without first clearing it with the old timers.

Strength for the Day

READING IN RIGHT LIGHT

A minister was reading the Scripture lesson at an evening service when the lights went out. It happened, however, that an illuminated cross at the back of the chancel was on a different circuit and it remained lighted. The minister simply walked to the end of the chancel and, in the light which came from the illuminated cross, continued his reading of the Scripture.

There was something significant about this episode. The minister read the Scripture in the light of the cross. And we must read it in the light of the cross if we would understand it. The Bible is not a book of pious platitudes. It is the revelation God has made of Himself hrough history—and particularly through the history of the Jewish people. From the earliest chapters of Genesis, the whole of the revealed Word looks toward the coming of a Divine Savior.

Hundreds of years before the coming of Jesus, prophets saw the shadow of death and sacrifice fall across the pathway of the promised Messiah. We never understand the Old Testament unless we read it in the light of the New. We cannot understand the significance of God's long revelation of Himself through patriarch, priest, prophet, and opostle unless we read it in the light of the cross of Jesus Christ, which was the divine culmination of all that had gone before.

Busy Fall, Winter Program Expected as 'Y' Lays Plans

All is in readiness for a busy fall and winter program at the Y.M.C.A. according to plans presented by the general secretary A. V. Davis and chairmen of committee, to the Board of Directors at the opening meeting of the season, held last evening.

The fall program of activities for boys, girls and adults will get underway officially during the week of October 16. Included in the schedule will be periods of calisthenics, health classes, basketball, volleyball, bowling, handball, weight lifting, swimming, bridge, social activities, craft instruction classes etc. A trained secretarial staff will be ready to give leadership to this balanced program.

Reports of the summer program were presented to the directors which indicated considerable activity in the building, the community and at camp. C. A. Schell, executive secretary of the National Council of Canadian Y. M. C. A.'s discussed trends in financing across the country. John W. Deacon outlined plans for the Red Feather Community Chest campaign.

Additional Members

The committee on Community Recreation of N. E. Edwards, G. A. Freeman, J. H. Legate and Dr. E. G. Kennedy, reported on activities which had taken place since the committee was appointed on December 9, 1949. A. B. Hunt and John W. Thornbury were additional members of the committee during the organization period.

The following highlights were noted in the report:

The general secretary had been instructed to communicate with the Board of Education signifying the willingness and desire of the Y. M. C. A. to provide personnel for the supervision of city playgrounds if funds and facilities could be made available. At the same time it was suggested that coordination of efforts by the Parks Board, the City Council and the Board of Education would facilitate the operation.

Committee Named

A committee of these civic bodies with Enos David, chairman of the Board of Education as general chairman, Dr. R. W. Potter, representing the City Council and Henry F. Becker representing the Parks Board, known as the Belleville Recreation Committee requested the Y.M.C.A. to undertake the supervision of seven junior and three senior playgrounds. The association proposed hours of 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. for the junior playgrounds and 9.30 a.m. to dark for the senior playgrounds, daily except Sundays for the month of July and August at a cost of $4,500.00.

An eighth junior playground had been added at a supervisory cost of $300.00. This playground in operation became a senior playground. The opening hour of all playgrounds has been advanced to 9.00 a.m. and the closing hour extended to 5.00 p.m. for junior playgrounds.

Supervision of the work of the guard at the wading pool was accepted by the head supervisor appointed by the Y.M.C.A., W. J. Musgrove.

Prepared Budget

The general secretary was requested to prepare a budget on equipment and plans for facilities. The total budget for equipment and supervision was estimated at $7,500.00 of which collections to date from public subscription has amounted to slightly over $6,000.00. It is hoped the public will respond to the appeal of the Recreation Committee to clear up the deficit.

The total registration at the playgrounds was 2,041, the daily average attendance was 755; and the total attendance 38,331.

The program consisted of group games, singing games, crafts, story hours, track and field sports, hikes, drawing, overnight hikes, volleyball, horseshoes, softball leagues, swimming, industrial trips, miniature golf, tumbling, and use of the standard equipment of slides, swings, and sand boxes.

The Y.M.C.A. was donated for playground program use for swimming two afternoons per week and 928 persons availed themselves of the opportunity for free swimming.

Boys Enjoy Games

The softball leagues captured the interest and participation of several hundred boys and girls with final games being played at the fair grounds. The association lived well within its budget of $4,800 the cost of supervision being $4,572.01.

A display of handwork was prepared for the Belleville Exhibition.

The report of the Moira Lake Camp for boys and girls showed that a total of 165 campers and staff spent a total of 358 camper weeks as compared with 140 participating for 288 camper weeks in 1949. Over 50 campers participated at no cost to themselves. The report continued indicating that the true worth of the camp was the values produced in boys and girls exposed to wholesome activity under capable leadership. Many and varied types of activity were sponsored to catch the imagination of every camper. The excellent leadership was reflected in the quality of the program and the interest of the campers. There was a generous amount of athletics and aquatics and only three campers failed to pass a swimming test. Music, dramatics, and hobbies had an important place in the program giving campers an opportunity for self-expression.

Understanding Staff

Over and above the display activity, the report referred to spiritual values reflected in the out-of-doors not only in the worship services but in the quiet meditation with nature and the friendly counsel by an understanding staff.

The report expressed appreciation for the contribution of time, effort, planning and money made by Rotary Club under the direction of G. B. Scott, for the improvement of the camp equipment. The diving tower added to the waterfront facilities and the infirmary was an important addition in the camp.

In the city an active program was conducted for members. The Summer Fun Club a daily program for girls and boys attracted an attendance of over 1,600 with a program of games, hikes, softball, wiener roasts, and theatre parties. Young men, women and adults participated in swimming and gymnasium activities with an attendance of over 700.

Mr. Deacon in appealing for the support of the directors in the Red Feather Campaign indicated that there was equally important work being done in different fields by the Victorian Order of Nurses and The Children's Aid Society all of which were dependent in part for their financing on the Community Chest appeal, which would take place in the latter part of October.

Mr. Schell indicated that across the country communities recognized the important character building aspects of Y.M.C.A. program and were giving to it increased support.

BMB Band Notes

By TREBLE CLEF

By now you have all no doubt, read the account of our festival on Monday night. Believe us folks, words alone couldn't possibly express the music or pageantry of our show. To all of you who missed this event, and there were far, far too many in that class, we say you missed the finest musical event ever staged in your city. Try as we may, we can find no logical reason for the lack of support given us in the presentation of this work. We feel sure that any of you who missed the show and since have talked to people who saw it will well realize that your small town band did a big time job of putting together a show for your entertainment. It is sincerely hoped by all of us and other outside help, that next year our fellow citizens will be more enthusiastic in their support of the bandsmen who worked for no compensation other than the attendance of you citizens.

You can readily understand our disappointment at the poor attendance for the visiting bands who so graciously gave freely of their time and talent to help make our show successful from the performers end of it.

We won't go into any repetition of the performance as that was most capably covered in a previous issue of this paper.

We would like however, to take this opportunity to thank all those outsiders who gave of their time, and donations to help us, such persons and organizations as King George Home and School Club who so ably looked after the sale of tickets. Imperial Oil Co., who lent the necessary materials for our stage, to the wives and mothers of all our own bandsmen who donated sandwiches, etc., for the entertainment of the bands after the show, and to all others too numerous to mention again we say thanks.

At the reception for the bands in the armouries, after the show it was decided to forfeit our regular Tuesday rehearsal as we had to go to the arena to dismantel our staging, etc., and return it to the persons from whom it was borrowed.

However, we are on parade again Sunday for the H. and P. E. regiment reunion. Also we shall be in full force at rehearsal on Tuesday next week.

In closing we would again like to remind you that our only compensation for our efforts to present you, our public with music you like is your personal support to our ventures whatever they may be.

Will see you again next week with more band news.

P.S. Don't forget we're still looking for new members.

Treble Cleff.

STIRLING

Musical Comedy Skillfully Produced By St. Paul's United Choir

Stirling—St. Paul's United Church choir with a cast of over fifty persons presented "The Gypsy Rover" a romantic musical comedy to a full house in Stirling Theatre on Wednesday evening.

The comedy was under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Baker organist of St. Paul's and the music throughout was of the highest order.

The costumes were of the George the third period and were a picture to behold. The gorgeous colors of satin and sateens combined with velvet and lace enhanced the beauty of each scene. This together with a vivid lighting system gave the comedy a more forceful interpretation of life in a gypsy band.

In Three Acts

The Gypsy Rover" was presented in three acts and is built around "Rob" played by Wm Reynolds. "Rob" was stolen by his nurse "Meg" played by Mrs. Harry Brown, wife of "Marto", Russell Pyear and "Rob" grows to manhood among the gypsies believing "Meg and Marto" are his parents. Later in act II "Meg" proves "Rob's" identity by his locket and clothes and he inherits a fortune and becomes "Sir Gilbert Howe" of English nobility.

"Lady Constance Martendale", Mrs. Walter Warren and daughter of "Sir George Martendale", an English country gentleman, Harry Brown were heard in soprano and tenor solos. While "Lady Constance was riding with her fiance "Lord Craven, an English fop "Doncha know". Bob Patterson they became lost in the woods and wandered into the gypsy camp and here "Lady Constance" falls in love with "Rob, the Gypsy Rover" at first sight.

Interesting Plot

This entanglement produces several scenes of interest and humor after which Lord Craven's hunting party capture "Rob" and he is thrown into prison but later escapes. "Zara" the belle of the Gypsy camp is played by Miss Helen Stapley and "Sinfo" her Gypsy lover by Harold Hagerman. "Nina", Sir George's second daughter played by Miss Joan Stapley and her lover "Capt. Jerome of the English Army", Jack Bush. Other characters were—"Sir Toby Tyon", a society butterfly played by Grant Richardson; "McCorkle, a London song publisher, Meighen Rodgers and "Lackey", Roy Tucker.

This main cast of thirteen with a setting of ten musical numbers in chorus and solo parts all in Gypsy costumes ranging from a mixed chorus a girls chorus and Gypsy boys and girls all portrayed the story which was enjoyed by the large audience.

Scene in Gypsy Camp

All of act I took place in a Gypsy camp, near London, England, while act II and act III were totally different scenes in the home of Sir George Martendale. "Rob" becomes a successful composer and has come into his inheritance although it almost broke "Meg and Marto's" hearts to part with their adopted son. Act. II was presented in seven musical episodes while act III depicted a solo by Rob "Bye and Bye" and at this point he proves to "Constance" that although he is now a rich man dressed in satin and velvet, he is also her long lost Gypsy lover known as "The Gypsy Rover" and the story ended on that happy note "They lived happily ever after."

The entire company presented the grand finale chorus and the big show was over until Thursday evening when there will be a repeat performance with a different cast.

Pays Tribute to Cast

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's introduced the cast at the beginning and paid tribute to all who had assisted and this included costumes and stage and lighting by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bell, and a great deal of assistance by a number of folks from St. Paul's and Carmel.

Following the last chorus Bob Patterson expressed his appreciation (which wasn't in the script) to Mrs. Baker who had given so willingly of her time and ability and little Miss Janet Ann Good presented Mrs. Baker with a bouquet for which she gave her grateful thanks.

The Gypsy Rover have an invitation to visit Frankford in the near future.

U.S. FORCES

The Republic's Capital Division on the 3rd's left flank, pursued 1,000 North Koreans near Songhyon, 35 miles inland from the east coast and 15 miles north of parallel 38.

Fifty miles inland, the Republic's 6th division entered the hydro-electric centre of Hwachon. It is seven miles north of the border. Fifteen miles north of Hwachon, a red group of 10 tanks, 24 artillery pieces and 30 trucks was observed retreating north

All types of aircraft; from jets to B-29s, ranged over North Korea to disrupt any red efforts toward organizing a defence line. The raiders hit rail and highway traffic, even ox-drawn carts. They struck airfields "to prevent any aerial activity by the communists," the air summary said, adding:

"No operations of any kind were noted."

Light bombers blasted military targets in and near North Korean cities, including the capital of Pyongyang. The reds sent up intense anti-aircraft fire, downing one fighter.

The Far East air force command said red Korea activity south of the border was "practically non-existent."

The disorganized North Korean survivors in South Korea were reduced largely to guerrilla warfare. Between Taejon and Seoul, Australian troops Saturday fought off ambushing attackers in their first engagement of the Korean war.

The Aussies were moving north to join British troops of a Commonwealth brigade in the Seoul area.

WEDDINGS

LA CHAPELLE—McAVOY

St. James' Roman Catholic Church, Stirling, Ont., adorned with standard of pink and white Picardy gladioli, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, September 30, at 10:30 a.m., when Hanora Marie McAvoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip McAvoy, Ivanhoe, Ont., became the bride of Roy Stanislaus La Chappelle, Crookston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John La Chappelle. The Rev. Father G. O'Hearn, Stirling, performed the ceremony and Daniel McAvoy and Nicholas Bibby, acted as acolytes. Wedding music was played by Mr. Ronald Robinson with the soloist Mr. Gerard Lehay singing before the ceremony "The Rosary" and during the Mass, "Ave Maria".

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length white satin and lace gown, with molded lace bodice pointed at the back, buttoned to the collar in the front with a panel of lace down the front and back of skirt which was full and ended in a slight train. The tight-fitting sleeves ended in lily points over the hands. She wore a Dutch style lace headdress with fingertip veil of tulle illusion bound with matching satin. Her bouquet was of Pinnochio roses with circular arrangement with floralized streamers.

Miss Agnes McAvoy, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore gold corded American taffeta with molded bodice, sweetheart neckline, short cap sleeves, a matching heart-shaped headdress and lily-points mitts. Her flowers were Talisman roses and bronze feathered 'mums of the garlanded cluster type.

The bridesmaids, Miss Ileen McAvoy and Miss Reta McAvoy, sisters of the bride, were attired in similar gowns of rust corded American taffeta with matching mitts and heart-shaped hats same as the maid of honor's.

Little Miss Roseanne McAvoy, as flower girl, wore rust corded taffeta with full skirt, sweetheart neckline puff seleves, matching wristlets and sash, also a Dutch cap. Her bouquet was a miniature of the bride's with bronze feathered 'mums, Talisman roses and bronze maline.

Mr. Maurice La Chappelle, of Crookston, Ont., brother of the groom was best man and the ushers were Mr. Patrick McAvoy, Oshawa, and Mr. Bernard La Chappelle, brother of the groom, Crookston.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, when 129 guests were received by Mrs. McAvoy wearing a dress of wine crepe, navy accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. La Chappelle assisted, wearing medium blue crepe, navy accessories and corsage of yellow Dream roses.

Those who served were Helen Kerby, Mary Kerby, Jane Gay, Jane McAvoy, Eleanor Wannamaker, Ruth Richardson, Shirley Tanner, Jean Martin, Elsie Richardson, Sally Farrell and Dorothy Jones and the rooms were decorated in gladioli in variegated colors, other Fall flowers and pink and white streamers and bells. The bride's table was centred with three-tiered wedding cake.

For a wedding trip to Buffalo, the bride chose a powder blue gabardine suit, navy accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Oshawa, Winnipeg, Man.; Smiths Falls, Peterborough, Sarnia, Frankford, Lonsdale.

The bride's gift to the groom was Gladstone luggage, to the maid of honor, gold compact, to bridesmaids, rhinestone necklaces, to flower girl, birthstone pendant, to soloist, leather billfold, to organist, gold tie pin, gifts to the girls, who served were cream and sugar sets.

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of luggage to the groomsman and ushers, initialled tie pins.

Upon their return the bride and groom will reside at 64 West Bridge Street, Belleville.

Prior to her wedding the bride was guest of honor at a shower given by the girls of the Bell Telephone staff, when a trilight lamp was presented, also at a towel and linen shower at the home of Misses Helen and Mary Kerby, Ivanhoe.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

Amsterdam, Holland.

We had a nice day yesterday in Groningen. We saw over 100 miles of Dutch countryside, had several hours in a Dutch rural home and an interesting chat with Dutch farmers and their wives.

You will be interested in this Dutch custom: On our way to the station at Groningen, we made a short call to another home where a relative of the boy we'd come to tell about lived. A dear old lady of 92 was one of its inmates. She was sitting in a comfortable armchair with her feet on a square wooden stool. I saw the stool was unusual, holes in the top and open on one side, and in it a dish of glowing coals, one way they have of making their old people comfortable and a very simple foot warmer it was. They burn coke in Holland so coals would be an easy matter. Later in the stores we saw brass miniatures of this Dutch "warmer."

In both homes we visited were elderly people, lovingly cared for by members of the family. In our new land of hustle and bustle and government services are we stripping old-age of the love, respect and dignity that is its right?

We shop this morning in spite of the pouring rain-our hotel is central, and it is an easy matter to dodge from one store to the next. We particularly like the china, decorated in the beautiful Dutch delft blue, but have to be satisfied with a few odd pieces as luggage is getting to be a problem. We had to pay for excess baggage before we boarded the plane at Copenhagen and Paris and London are ahead.

After lunch we take the boat trip around the canals-this is how you sight - see in Amsterdam - not by bus. The water is a muddy green and the sides of the canals are bricked and are slimy and mossy where the water laps against them. Residences and stores line the sides solidly—the common practice being the store at street level, and three and four floors of living quarters above. You miss the flower beds and bright window boxes that were everywhere in Copenhagen. Here it is tall, grim, flat-faced (no decorative balconies) buildings facing each other across a canal.

Some of the canals have a row of trees along them, especially in the best residential areas, but the general order seems to be: Building, sidewalk, road and parking area, right at the brink of the canal - no railing or guards of any kind to keep a person or a vehicle from going right on over. Boats are drawn up in front of residences and stores for it is the mode of travel and deliveries. We see a high load of baled straw disappearing around the corner on a flat-bottomed boat, and the corners are really sharp—many of them right angled and our boat had to be manoeuvred back and forth to get around them. Some of the passageways are so narrow that you can reach out and touch the brick wall on either side.

These sight-seeing boats are luxurious—part of the top and all the sides of glass and comfortable seats, upholstered in red leather and seating about 70. The guide calls attention to buildings of interest as we glide along. I got a good picture of the "Street of the Seven Bridges." The bridges all have central spires with smaller ones at either side and are just the continuance of the wider streets and carry all kinds of traffic. Only once did I notice a smaller one just for pedestrians. When approaching corners where we meet other canals the guide sounds a loud fog-horn as a warning.

We make a circle in Amsterdam's wonderful harbor, where ship's of every nation in the world are tied up, loading or unloading. The harbor on either side is just a maze of huge, tall cranes, used for the operations. I wish I could follow the guide's broken English better. I know he is reporting what each ship is bringing into this country and what each is taking out as we pass them. I see the names painted on their sides. Sumatra, Java, Panama, East Indies, Ceylon, Buenos Aires. Sometimes flat scows, fitted with cranes, are drawn up on the other side of the boat to expedite change of cargo.

Many ocean boats are high in dry docks for painting or repair. The Germans sank some of these during the war—the largest was just lately raised and repaired. It seems almost an endless harbor with different wharves extending far out into the water. It is no wonder the Dutch have always been sea-faring traders with such splendid, natural facilities to assist.

The guilder is the Dutch coin and its value is a little better than 3 for our Canadian dollar. Our hotel wouldn't cash Canadian Travelers cheques (the first one that didn't give this service) so I visited one of their banks—and such a procedure. It is almost an endurance test to get a little cash. A receptionist was sitting in the lobby of the bank. He asks your business, sounds a buzzer, and points you to a door where a series of closed wickets face you and when I say closed I mean just that— not one sign of activity anywhere—just like a blank wall. Then I notice a buzzer beside one of the wickets and push it—up flies the small door and at last you see a human being. I stated my business, handed over passport and credentials and down went the wicket again. I waited until what I thought a ridiculously long time for such a little service and then buzzed again. The same man appeared, clearly amazed at my impatience, but in a few minutes I had my cash and was on my way. I notice how clearly street crossings are marked for pedestrians—long, white lines, eight inches wide clear across the right of way.

We are on our way by plane to Paris at 5:30. I am thankful the first part of the trip is in daylight. The canals and waterways of this unique and interesting country make a colorful pattern from the air.

GLASS—BIRDIE

Gladioli and Fall flowers formed the background for a very pretty wedding solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, September 23, at two o'clock, when Gwendolyn Helen, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Birdie, of Belleville, became the bride of Charles Orlean Glass, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Glass of Plainfield. Rev. J. G. Hornsby performed the ceremony.

Mr. Templer was organist, and Miss Marilyn Eggleton sang "I'll Walk Beside You", before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of brocaded nylon with Queen Anne collar, studded with pearls, long sleeves with points over the wrists and full skirt ending in a train. Her veil fell gracefully from a net cap, with sequins, and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Dorothy Waddingham, of Lonsdale, was the bride's only attendant, and was very becomingly gowned in blue taffeta with matching mitts and headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink gladioli.

Mr. Orley R. Glass, of Roslin, ably performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Lenard Graham and Mr. Finkle, of Belleville.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Golden Acres", where Mrs. Birdie received her guests, dressed in navy blue satin dress, navy accessories and a corsage of fuchsia gladioli. She was assisted by the groom's mother dressed in a marine blue wool jersey dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli.

The bride's gift to her attendant was a necklace of rhinestones, and the groom's gift to the best man, a wallet and ushers, tie pins.

For travelling to Fort Erie, and Rochester, N.Y., and Ottawa, the bride chose a dove grey gabardine suit, with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Glass will reside near Plainfield.

Prior to her marriage, a kitchen shower was given by many friends in the home of Mrs. Earl Gray, Plainfield The evening was spent by making a bride's scrap book and a mock marriage was presented by some of her friend. The bride-elect opened her gifts and thanked each. She received many lovely and useful kitchen articles in blue and white. The hostess served delicious refreshments and a social evening was spent. Miss Dorothy Waddingham held a linen shower.

The Poets And Autumn

AUTUMN SPLENDOR

The trees their flaming torches raise
Above the sun-kissed land,
The sumachs in these Autumn days
In crimson velvet stand.
Oh! glad the brightness of the Spring!
And gay the Summer time
But Autumn days, no season brings
A beauty such as thine.
So in the face of ripened age
Doth light and love appear,
As when the brilliant Autumn days
Crown bright the closing years.
—Helen B. Anderson.

The world is now very beautiful in its bright Autumn dress. The trees and shrubs are clothed in crimson and gold, and the meanest plant in the garden is showing a splash of color. What a privilege to enjoy this Autumn splendor in the great out-of-doors! Walking up the street this morning to bring water from a neighboring well, I was delighted with a picture of Autumn trees encircling a pasture — the trees radiant in the Autumn colors of green, brown, crimson and gold. I once asked an English friend if England possessed such colorful beauty as our Canadian Autumn, and her answer was "No". It is no wonder that our Canadian poets have written of the beauty of Autumn. Listen to W. H. Carruth:

A haze on the far horizon, an infinit tender sky,
The rich ripe tint of the cornfield and the wild geese wheeling high,
And all over upland and lowland the charm of the golden-rod,
Some of us call it Autum, but others call it God.

And how sweetly Jean Blewett sings of October:

All the splendor of the Summer, all the Springtime's light and grace,
All the riches of the harvest, crown her head and light her face;
And the wind goes sighing, sighing, as if loth to let her pass,
While the crickets sing exultant in the lean and withered grass.
O the warm October haze!
O the splendor of the days!
O the mingling of the crimson with the sombre brown and grays!

And now we have Bliss Carman in his vagabond song:

There is something in October sets our gipsy blood astir,
We must rise and follow her
When from every hill of flame
She calls and calls each vagabond by name and, on the top of a hill for all to see,
God planted a scarlet maple tree.

Anyone familiar with the Ontario countryside will recognize the following pen-picture painted by William Wilfrid Campbell:

Along the line of smoky hills,
The crimson forest stands,
And all the day the blue-jay calls
Throughout the Autumn land.
Now by the brook the maple leans with all his glory spread;
And all the sumachs on the hill
Have turned their green to red.
Now by great marshes wrapt in mist
Or past some river's mouth
Throughout the long, still autumn day
Wild birds are flying south;

We shall conclude by quoting the following poem by Thomas C. Clark:

When Summer Dies

When Summer dies, and all the trees
Are vibrant with sad melodies;
When lovely gardens lately gold
Are lying prostrate, in the mould;
There comes upon the swelling breeze
From distant aisles and sunny seas,
A host of fragrant memories,
And I am young — however old
When Summer dies.

CRUSHED BY FARM WAGON

Woodstock, Oct. 7 — (CP) — Crushed by a farm wagon, Kenneth Roy Oliver, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Oliver of East Zorra died in hospital here yesterday. The child had been following the wagon drawing mangles to a barn when the vehicle backed up and ran over him.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

"Along the line of smoky hills, The crimson forest stands,"—lines which were surely meant for a sunny October afternoon along the Perth road, and over by Chaffeys Locks. How easy it is for apartment dwellers to forget all about the lure of autumn in the Canadian countryside . . , to forget the feeling you get when you casually happen upon a scatter of hickory nuts under a ragged tree . . . the feeling that tickles when you spot a fat, field mushroom resting like a brand new golf ball lost in the rough . . . or the surprise of found treasure as you run to grab up a puff ball on the rim of a knoll . . . the sight of a wild crab tree with its red apples packed tight together like gumdrops in a cellophane bag.

With all these things you instinctively fill your pockets as squirrels heap up a storehouse. And all the while, you scold your husband lightly for not thinking to put in a basket. On and on, you go, until all your pockets are full, and as in dreams, you are overcome by the abundance of good things with no way to carry them off. It is indeed a dream, this autumn brillliance and ripeness.

You thought you were just going for a drive. You forgot all about the harvest of nature, the perfume of colored leaves, the oil paintings on the hills. But they were there, when you came.

The people of Hamilton are out to build a new art gallery where they can show their fine collection of paintings to advantage and where the whole community may gather to enjoy some of the finer things of life. Novel fund-raising idea there, is their Mile of Pictures.

To attract attention, the Hamilton art committee arranged to display Canadian paintings in the store windows along a mile of main streets. These paintings were sent to the committee by the artists across Canada. They are for sale, with the artist collecting half of the market price and the other half going to the campaign for a new gallery. Pictures may be purchased right from the store in which they are displayed, at from $15 up.

This idea of getting art out into the street, is a plan which could be used more frequently and at other times than during a drive. We Canadians are too prone to hiding our best things in galleries and archives, instead of putting them out to air where all may see on their way to work.

One of the most ambitious Canadian art pieces was done by a group of Toronto artists during World War II. It was an immense mural depicting the work of the RCAF. It hung in the great hall of the Union Station . . . During the war years thousands of travellers, instead of being faced with a stone wall, saw a beautiful painting in all the delicate shades and shadows of air force blue.

Those who came and went through the big station time and again, always looked for the striking mural. What a shame this piece of Canadian art was removed after the war — carted off to a museum basement for storage some place, simply because the theme was no longer current.

Far too many of our public buildings lack the warmth and beauty of interior art. Like many of our homes, they are bare and cold and empty. We must have galleries and museums as centres from which art may develop and circulate. But it is now high time we got more of our arts and our crafts into the street.

Ladies Auxiliary of CNRAA Holds Successful Bazaar

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the C.N.R. Athletic Association held a most successful bazaar in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Thursday afternoon. It was well attended and members and their guests were received by the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. R. L. Johnston, before they made their way to the booths.

In all, the ladies had arranged five booths and a tea room, and all were tastefully decorated. The apron booth, which was under the direction of Mrs. L. A. Daugherty, was a full array of color, with many noval pieces of work shown. Assisting in the booth were Mrs. Al Wardhaugh and Mrs. R. F. Clarke.

The parcel post booth, at which there was a surprise for everyone, Mrs. Dickens, Mrs. Vandervoort and Mrs. Walter Cowles took charge. This booth proved a popular feature, and was challenged for popularity by the home cooking booth under the direction of Mrs. Jerome. She was assisted by Mrs. Al Meagher and Mrs. Richards.

Bride's Booth

The fourth booth was the bride's, and it was centred by a beautifully decorated doll on which tickets were sold. Shown in the booth were many lovely ideas for showers, and numerous miscellaneous articles. Mrs. T. C. Young looked after this booth, and was assisted by Mrs. J. S. Masterson, Mrs. Gilroy and Mrs. B. Shaddock.

The fancy work booth, in charge of Mrs. H. R. Boyle, was also very popular. Mrs. Boyle drew assistance from Mrs. J. D. Fitzgerald, Mrs. W. Waite and Mrs. E. Green.

In the tea room which was decorated in beautiful fashion with Autumn flowers and candles, the hostesses were Mrs. Windover and Mrs. Rupert. Pouring tea were, Mrs H. N. Quinsey, Mrs. F. Mott, Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. W. G. Fairbairn. Serving were Mrs. Burton, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. H. Clarke, Mrs. Sager, Mrs. Dickens, Mrs. Gerow, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. G. H. Diment, Mrs. Urch, and Mrs. R. W. Windover.

The bazaar was convened by Mrs. W. Gray, Jr., and the treasurer is Mrs. B. Kilpatrick.

A blanket draw which was looked after by Mrs. Albert Clarke was won by Mrs. J. Grant, 167 Pine Street.

WOMEN OF MOOSE HOLD EUCHRE PARTY

The Women of the Moose held their regular euchre, Thursday evening, in the Saco club rooms with a good attendance. The following people took prizes: ladies' Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Vickers, and Mrs. Conway; men, C. Jeffs, E. Cruison, Mr. Hamett. Lone hands, Mrs. Conway and L. Coon. Freeze-out, Mrs. Conway, Mr. McWilliams. The sugar donated by co-worker Connell was drawn by Mr. Lennox and won by Mrs. Hamett.

BRIDGE ST. Y.P.U.

The weekly meeting of the Bridge St. Y.P.U. was held in the church.

The group discussed citizenship and after an interesting discussion concluded that a good citizen must obey the Golden Rule. This problem of citizenship is to be the topic at future meetings.

It was decided not to hold a meeting next Monday night.

Southampton, England, Oct. 7—(CP) — Canada's fisheries minister, R. W. Mayhew, sailed today for home after taking part in Commonwealth talks on economic aid to southeast Asia.

Britain Supplies Military Planes To Most Forces

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—A United States survey showed today that Britain has supplied jet military planes to most of the world's air forces.

A study made public by the Aircraft Industries Association lists British jet fighters as standard first-line equipment for 15 other countries. In addition, British engine designs are in use in both the United States and Russia.

Countries which are using British jet fighters are France, Italy, Sweden, South Africa, India, Norway, Venezuela, Switzerland and Argentina, all using the Vampire, a small single-engine plane; the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark, Egypt and Argentina, using the two-engine Meteor; and Canada, using both the Vampire and the Meteor.

The only country committed to an American jet fighter is Canada, which is building a large number—something more than 100-North America F-86 Sabres.

Sudbury Miner Had Dynamite On His Person

Toronto, Oct. 6—(CP)—Vladmir Varbue of Sudbury today was convicted of carrying concealed weapons—five sticks of dynamite—with which police said he intended to blow up the Toronto home of his estranged wife.

He was remanded to Oct. 13 for sentence.

Police said the 38-year-old miner had the dynamite—enough to seriously damage a city block—when arrested. He was carrying also a detonator cap and fuse wrapped in absorbent cotton.

Deputy Police Chief M. M. Mulholland said Varbue wrote his wife a letter warning her what would happen if she didn't return to him. Mrs. Varbue and their nine-year-old daughter have been living in Toronto for more than eight months. Varbue visited them from time to time to try to persuade his wife to return to him.

HEAVY WHEAT SHIPMENT

Winnipeg, Oct. 6 (CP)—More wheat moved from Canadian farms in the week ended Sept. 28 than in any week since September, 1939, the Board of Grain Commissioners reported today.

The figure this year was 36,800,000 bushels. The total for the week ended Sept. 29, 1939, was 40,000,000.

A grain-trade source said cause of the huge deliveries this year probably was lateness of the 1950 harvest, coupled with a bumper production and shortage of farm storage space.

Advertising Men Told to Watch Small Accounts

Montreal, Oct. 7 (CP)—Wilfred Campbell, assistant advertising manager of the Toronto Daily Star urged advertising men Friday to keep on the constant lookout for the new small accounts and to remember the importance of making personal calls.

Mr. Campbell spoke before delegates to the Newspaper Advertising Managers Association of Eastern Canada.

"Canadian daily newspapers in the main are the one mass medium in which the manufacturer and retailer can interlock their advertising campaigns," he said. "They are the only medium in which the manufacturer can run an advertisement at the same time when the product is available and the consumer wants to buy."

He said this country's advertising rate for daily newspapers is the lowest of any type on the continent and is one third lower than the global average.

Round-table discussions were continued today, led by Ross Bates, advertising manager of the St. Catharines Standard.

Howard S. Mark, advertising manager of The Robert Simpson Co., Toronto, told a luncheon gathering that department stores look more favorably on a newspaper circulation manager who gives natural circulation figures than those who create artificially.

He suggested newspaper men keep in touch with store managers and send them any material likely of interest and use in their business.

The production manager, he said, is vitally important since reproduction of an advertisement in the paper has been shown to affect sales by 50 to 75 per cent.

Chinese Embassy Denies Tibet Invaded by Reds

New Delhi, India, Oct. 7—(AP)—Reports that Chinese communist troops have invaded Tibet were denied today by the Chinese embassy. An Indian government spokesman and a Tibetan delegation currently in New Delhi also said they had no word of it.

Meanwhile a report from Kalimpong, a frontier town in northern Bengal, published in New Delhi papers today said the eastern Tibetan province of Kham has been lost to Indian-Tibetan trade since its occupation by Chinese communists.

Tibetan Finance Minister Tsepon Shakabpa, who heads the Tibetan mission here, said he knew nothing about any red seizure of the province.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is nothing larcenous about a holdup in bridge. It is a play that means holding back with a winning card until later. You can see the need for such a play in this deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 7
♥K 9
♦6 5 3
♣K 10 7 4 2

WEST
♠A 3
♥4 2
♦K Q J 9 4
♣A Q 9 3

EAST
♠J 9 5 4 2
♥A J 3
♦A 10
♣8 6 5

SOUTH
♠10 8 6
♥Q 10 8 7 6 5
♦8 7 2
♣J

East is the declarer at a contract of three no-trump. Opening lead from south is the heart seven. When dummy hand goes down it is the duty of declarer to take stock of what he can take.

The five diamonds and three other aces are eight of the needed nine tricks. To take the ninth trick it looks as if it will need one more club trick. This must come home to roost.

In developing a club, however, east has a worry. Before the club can be brought in there is a danger. The danger is that south will get too many heart tricks. Plan to prevent this.

How should the plan be laid? If possible, find some means of keeping south out of the lead. One chance of doing this is to see that north has no hearts to lead to his south partner.

So, when north covered the first trick with the king, east did not hurry with his ace. Instead, he refused to take the first heart trick. The ace was held up until the second round of that suit.

The heart nine return by north was taken with east ace. Now north is unable to lead a heart if he gets in again. And declarer will hope that any trick given up will go to the north hand.

So, declarer ran five diamonds and led the club queen. This forced north into the lead when it was covered with the king. Any return from there gives west or east the ninth trick needed.

If north returns a club it is bound to give dummy west a trick in clubs besides the ace of that suit. If north returns a spade, a spade or club trick is extra for the declarer or dummy.

The holdup is done without the aid of a gun.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 7 (AP) — This week Marie Wilson opened in a program of plays that present her as a hillbilly maid, a cockney laundry girl and a Russian widow. Which shows you how far some stars will go to escape type-casting.

Marie, of course, is generally thought of as the dim-witted Irma of radio and movies. The blonde beauty, who is about as dim-witted as Dorothy Thompson, realizes that type-casting endangers any career.

Marie's attempt to escape typing no doubt will cost her something. The meagre salary will probably not pay for the gowns she had designed for her roles. I might add that one of the costumes covers her right up to the neck. In it she proves as charming as usual.

[illegible] 'n' Stuff

Two items of significance came from M.G.M. this week. The studio announced it would make a special trailer to advertise "King Solomon's Mines" on television, and that Red Skelton had concluded negotiations for a new contract which will probably give him the right to do television.

Until now, the big studio has never publicly admitted it has had a "hands off" policy. This could be the start of a new era.

Edgar Bergen has unveiled his travelogue which he made in Sweden a summer ago and it is highly amusing. Charlie and Mortimer are in it, but Edgar manages to get as many laughs. No wonder—he was the producer.

Another note about "movies are better than ever". Showing at leading local theatres are "Platinum Blonde" (1931), "San Quentin" (1937)), "Alcatraz Island" (1938) and "Pigskin Parade" (1936).

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

DON'T FORGET TO DUCK

Don't look now, fellas, but the open season on humans is now with us.

It began this morning when guns roared in the marshes, over the lakes and creeks and other spots where Brer Mallard or Black skims through the air.

And with the roar of the first blunderbuss comes the advice to both hunters and ducks to keep out of range of a loaded shotgun.

It has been estimated that well over ninety per cent of all hunting accidents each fall can be avoided, if each hunter acquaints himself with the fundamentals of safe gun handling, and constantly practices them.

* * *

There are the foolish kind of hunters who go around pointing their guns at a pal. They think it is funny to see the scared look on his face. If there is one of these in your crowd, tell him to go seal-fishing in Siberia. He's not safe to have around. Because some day he will tote the gun that wasn't loaded, yet went off and killed or maimed one of the gang.

* * *

Saying there is an unloaded gun is like the Irishman who saw a giraffe for the first time. Pat scratched his noggin, shook his head and snorted:—"Tis a dom lie. There ain't no such thing." If all guns are unloaded how come a lot of them go off and kill people.

There is only one way to carry an unloaded gun — and that is to make sure yourself that it does not carry death in the breech. Make doubly sure when you have to climb fences, or wander through thick underbrush.

* * *

Don't be a trigger-happy nimrod. There's no point in blazing away at what you think is game moving in the brush. While you don't have to be introduced to a buck, bear or banshee while questing game, you at least can make sure what your target is. If you don't, Joe or George's wife might be a widow when what you thought was a deer, was a poker-playing pal. It ain't funny, McGee".

* * *

If one of your hunting buddies develops an itch on his back, don't use your blunderbuss to 'scratch it wil'. In fact keep the weapon with its muzzle pointed at the ground, or at least in the opposite direction to your friend.

* * *

Don't be a hunting chameleon. Clothes that blend well with the woods are not good hunting duds. Somebody not so smart as you might think you are the last word in venison steaks and take a pot shot at you. Get yourself a bright red shirt or something with a loud check. By wearing such duds as these, you cannot be easily mistaken for game.

* * *

And don't allow your gun to resemble a piece of cheesed celery. Keep it clean and dirt-free, for dirty guns sometimes explode and the missus wouldn't like you any more if you came home with your handsome face pocked with chunks of gun-barrel.

* * *

Keep that safety catch on, and don't take it for granted that it will remain that way until you snap it off. Safety catches have a habit of becoming knocked off while the hunter is brushing the woods.

* * *

Says a Department of Lands and Forests spokesman: "There simply is no excuse for the careless handling of a weapon. A gun of any kind is a very deadly implement in careless hands, yet quite safe if a few simple rules are followed."

"Remember" he said, "that a careful hunter is a true sportsman who realizes that for the welfare of the sport engaged in, it is always best to know and observe the game laws and the ethics of sportsmanship."

Waterloo Tigers Win First Game In O.B.A. Finals

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 7 —(CP) —With one victory already tucked away, Waterloo Tigers have the advantage of their home park today for the second game of their Ontario Baseball Association final senior series with Niagara Falls Fords.

The Tigers backed up the five hit pitching of Joe Yosurak with a 15-hit barrage on three Falls twirlers in capturing the series opener here last night, 7-0. Third game of the best-of-seven set will be played here Monday

An error by Falls shortstop Steve Wodynski —only miscue of the game— helped the Intercounty League champions get away to a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Wodynski dropped a perfect double-play ball, and successive singles by Kane and Lillie drove the first two runners home.

But there was no trace of a taint in the way the Tigers manufactured their other five runs. They bunched two singles and a walk in the fourth for one, then shelled starter Gord Johnson from the hill in the fifth with a triple, double and two singles, good for two runs. Presutti yielded Waterloo's final two runs in the eighth.

The Fords, who had the satisfaction of registering the game's only double play, were unable to solve Yosurak's slants. All their five hits were singles, two of them by third-baseman Whittet.

'We Wuz Robbed', Shout Whip And Timothy After Fifth Man Wins Match for Leer and Mask

Strange things happened at Memorial Arena last night. In fact Whipper Billy Watson and Timothy Geohagen are still wondering what it was all about.

A weird piece of leg-pulling swung the decision of the main wrestling bout squarely into the laps of that horrendous duo the Masked Marvel and Lee (The Leer)) Henning exactly one minute after the third fall started.

And another queer quirk in this cock-eyed display was that the bloke who actually won the bout was not a participant in the affair.

He was a tall longish individual grotesquely garbed in a Shadow cloak, complete with mask and wearing a gaudy yellow and black monstrosity in place of a shirt, who dubbed himself the manager of the Masked Marvel. Actually he was the bat boy for the pair and finally swung the scale of victory their way.

Pulled His Leg

It happened like this. The Whipper and Timothy who had battered, bashed and banged Lee Henning, the Mask, the "Wasp" and Bunny Dunlop, the referee, into submission in the second fall, were well on the way to a third fall victory and the match when Timothy backed the Mask into the ropes and was giving him the well-known treatment.

The Whip, who had entered into a verbal argument with the rotund arbiter, was telling him his bedtime story when the "Wasp", the manager of the Mask, shoved a furtive paw into the ring, snatched at Geohagen's le gand pulled him down to the mat. The Mask quickly leaped on top of the prone Irisher and was pummeling the bejabers out of him when "Bunny" kissed the Whip a tender farewell and turned to his work.

He saw the prostrate Irishman under the Mask, and promptly gave the fall and match to the villains while the "Wasp" buzzed happily in his nest.

Pelted With Paper

Quickly sensing their advantage the Mask and the Leer rushed out of the ring to the dressing room, under a shower of paper bags and what-not while the thunderstruck faithful stood in the aisles and screamed for justice. They milled about the ringside yelling at Dunlop, who somehow or other got it in his head that he had erred; something was wrong, and all was not right in Glocomorra.

He rushed to the dressing room where the Leer and the Mask, sat on the lap of the 'Wasp' who was crooning over them like a mother over her new-born twins, and ordered them back to battle.

"Irene, Good Night Irene" warbled the unholy three. "It's later than you think." They refused pointblank to return, claiming amid snickers of joy, that they had won the bout fairly and squarely, and after all, bub, we're willing to let bygones be bygones. And besides it is nearly eleven o'clock and we have to get our evening milk before bedtime.

"No Soap"

"Bunny" stormed out of the dressing room. There was nothing he could do except stand by his decision. In the meantime the crowd waited as did the Whip and Timothy. But it was no soap, and the fun was over.

The action was fast and furious throughout with the Whip and Timothy having an edge in overall punishment. At one time the Whip raced about the ring on a house-cleaning tour heaving first the Leer then the Mask out of action, hurling the 'wasp' back to his place and finished by giving the corpulent Bunny the heave-ho. It was all in good fun and no fractures were noted.

The Leer and the Mask pulled all their tricks out of the bag while Bunny, needed six eyes, four hands and extra pair of feet and a periscope to get in on all the action.

Pat Flanagan went down to defeat before popular Ray Gunkel in a fast-moving preliminary while Seeli Samara, the Negro sensation won his bout over Abe Zvonkin in the semi final.

Boston Bruins' Coach Predicts Good Season

Boston, Oct. 7—(AP)— Their season opener still is a week away but coach Lynn Patrick is confident his Boston Bruins will be heard from in the National Hockey League this year.

"I can't say where we'll finish," the new Boston pilot said today, "but I'm pretty sure we'll be in the playoffs come next spring."

Patrick, who led New York Rangers into the Stanley Cup finals last season, feels he has a "sound" club despite the fact he has seen the players in only 10 days of actual practice.

"At first I was a little worried but honestly I've really been pleasantly surprised," said the youthful coach. "And I don't think I'm being too optimistic about our chances."

Only three new faces will be in the line-up of the Boston entry, which failed to make the playoffs last season. Lorne Ferguson, a 20-year-old rookie up from Hershey in the American League, has earned one wing spot while Steve Kraftcheck, 21, and Eddie Riegel, 26, off-season purchases from Cleveland, have won defence posts.

Patrick plans to keep intact the Bruins' hign-scoring line of Paul Ronty at centre, Johnny Pierson at right wing and little Kenny Smith on the left flank.

Co-captain Eddie Sanford, out last season with a severed achilles tendon, has regained his form and will pivot for Ferguson and Eddie Harrison. Patrick surprised experts by placing Milt Schmidt at right wing with centre Phil Maloney and Dave Creighton.

Schmidt up Front

Schmidt, who alternated as a forward and rear guardsman a year ago, was expected to be assigned a regular defence berth, but Patrick feels the speedy veteran still has plenty left to play up front.

A defenceman who wasn't expected to make the team this year has impressed the Bruins mentor the most. He is Murray Henderson, who Patrick described as "darn good—one of the best in the league."

Henderson has been paired with Kraftcheck. The other pairs will be the young veteran Fernie Flaman with Riegel, and Bill Quackenbush, streamlined at 183 pounds, with Ed Kryanowski.

Jack Gelineau, who came out of McGill University and stepped into Frankie Brisek's shoes last year, again will be back in goal.

Fighting it out for the spare forward's spot are the veterans Woody Dumart and Pete Horeck, and Sam Bettio, who was bought up in mid-season last year. Dumart appears to have a slight edge.

Kenny Reardon Making Good As Ambassador

(By The Canadian Press)

Kenny Reardon shows promise of being just as good a goodwill ambassador for Montreal Canadiens as he was a defence player for the National Hockey League team.

The former Winnipegger has been a tremendous hit with youngsters attending Canadiens' Amateur Hockey School at Regina Stadium

"I'm not in very good shape but I like to get out there with the boys," said Reardon, who recently announced his retirement from active hockey.

He came to the Regina camp straight from attending a hockey clinic for college coaches in the New England states.

He picks Detroit as the team to beat again in the N.H.L.

"They're having trouble placing a 20-goal man like Gaye Stewart so you can understand how strong they are. This Prystal (Metro Prystal, formerly of Chicago Black Hawks) will be a big help to the Wings, too."

Mike King, Edmonton's big plunging halfback, has taken over the lead in the western interprovincial football league scoring race.

Statistics released in Regina Friday by league secretary Bob Gillies show king has eight touchdowns for 40 points.

Trailing him by four points is Jack Hartman, Saskatchewan Roughriders' place-kicking expert. Hartman, who has missed only one convert in 17 attempts, also has five field goals and one touchdown.

The early-season leader Tom Casey, flashy Winnipeg Bomber half, is in third spot with 35 points on seven touchdowns, three more than place-kicking aces Annis Stukus of Edmonton and Winnipeg's Joe Aguirre.

Thirty-six distance runners are entered for today's edition of the oldest annual foot race in Canada—the around-the-bay race.

The grind of 19 miles, 165 yards around Burlington Bay was originated in 1894.

Top Canadians entered are Paul Collins, Wolfville, N.S.; Gerard Cote, St. Hyacinthe, Que., and Scotty Rankine, Preston, Ont.

McGill University won the annual Canadian intercollegiate golf title Friday, defeating six other four-man teams in a 36-hole medal tournament at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club.

Paced by Bobby Paul who won the individual championship with 18-hole scores of 78-78 for 156, McGill's divot-diggers had a team total of 646. University of Toronto golfers placed second, 24 strokes behind McGill, with 670. University of Western Ontario placed third with 684; University of Montreal fifth with 691; Carleton College sixth with 710; Sir George Williams College seventh with 713 and Queen's University last with 722.

Montreal junior Canadiens, 1949 Memorial Cup winners, edged Windsor Spitfires of the Ontario Hockey Association 2-1 last night in an exhibition junior game at Sarnia.

Montreal came from behind to tie the count at 1-1 in the second period and then won on a goal by George Hollingsworth in the same period.

It was the second game in two nights for the two teams, Windsor winning 4-1 in Windsor Thursday.

Detroit Red Wings came from behind to score a 7-3 victory over Indianapolis Capitals, in an exhibition hockey game at Chatham Memorial arena last night. The Wings were down 2-1 at the end of the first period.

World Series Game Will Tell Whether They're Still Old 'Four Straight' Yankees

By JACK HAND

New York, Oct. 7 (AP) —Same old "four straight" Yankees. The World Series now resembles the old days of 1927, '28, '32, '38 and '39.

After yesterday's third victory over the luckless Phil whiz kids, the Yanks were poised for the kill. You could get 50 to 1 if you liked the Phils in the series.

No club ever came back from three lickings to win a championship and the Phils haven't played like a team to break precedent. Every move they've made has backfired.

Eddie Ford, the Yanks' "Golden Boy" of the stretch drive, was ready for today's fourth game at 1:00 p.m. EST. The 21-year-old kid southpaw copped nine in a row before he finally lost one on relief. He is one of the Yankee hopes for the future.

Eddie Sawyer had two probable pitchers for his groggy National League champs —Bob Miller (11-6) and Bubba Church (8-6), both untried rookie righthanders seeing their first World Series.

Sawyer, however, indicated he might switch to Jim Konstanty, his constant reliefer. Jim pitched eight innings in the 1-0 opener and worked one-third of an inning in yesterday's 3-2 Yankee victory.

Flaws in defence cost the Phils the third game yesterday before 64,505 fans at Yankee Stadium. They outhit the Yanks for the first time, taking great liberties with starter Ed Lopat, but folded in the clutch.

Control Left Him

Kenny Heintzelman, their grey thatched southpaw vet, took a 2-1 lead into the eighth inning. He had two out and nobody on base when his control deserted him. After walking Gerry Coleman on a 3-2 pitch, he passed Yoggi Berra and Joe DiMaggio on eight straight balls.

Konstanty strode from the bull pen with the bases full. Yankee manager Casey Stengel switched from Hank Bauer to pinch-hitter Bobby Brown.

Big Jim made Brown hit a ground ball to shortstop that should have taken him out of the inning. But Gran Hamner fumbled the ball. He dropped it again as he tried to pick it up with his barehand. Before he found the handle, Coleman was across the plate with the tying run.

Coleman Produces Hit

Coleman, an inconspicuous .287 hitter in regular season, tightened his grip on the World Series hero title by a ninth inning single that broke up the game after Gene Woodling and Phil Rizzuto scratched infield singles.

The Yanks have scored a total of six runs in the first three games. Coleman has driven in three and scored two of them With four hits in 11 at bats, he's among the leading hitters with a .364 average.

With a base hit in the right spot or a break along the way, the Phils could lead 3-0 today instead of tottering on the brink of elimination.

Sawyer got better pitching than anybody figured from Konstanty, Robin Roberts and Heintzelman. Yet he lost all three—the first two because the Phils couldn't hit and the third because they couldn't come up with a ground ball.

Glaring Error

Hamner's glaring error on an easy chance was the blow that ruined the Phils. But another error, on a bad throw by Andy Seminick in the third, made the Yanks' first score easier.

A walk to Phil Rizzuto, a stolen base, Seminick's bad throw and a single by that man Coleman accounted for the first Yank run.

The Phils found Eddie Lopat no mystery, nibbling away at his soft pitches until they finally tied the score on Del Ennis' double and Dick Sisler's single.

It was about time, too, Ennis and Sisler to break into the hit column. The Phils' extra-base punch had been held hitless in 20 previous trips.

Hamner, leading series hitter at .500, could have been the hero instead of the goat in the important third game. He came up with three hits, including a single that touched off a seventh inning rally. Andy Seminick's sacrifice and Mike Goliat's single sent Hamner home with the run that put the Phils ahead for the first time in 26 innings of series play.

Hamner Hits Double

Again in the ninth, after his error permitted the Yanks to tie the score, Hamner lashed into the first pitch from reliefer Tom Ferrick for a double. Only a fine bare-handed stab on the bounce by Joe DiMaggio robbed Hamner of a triple or potential inside-the-park homer.

The Phils had Ferrick on the ropes when a bunt moved Hamner to third. Stengel ordered his pitcher to walk Goliat intentionally. Dick Whitman, batting for Konstanty, rapped to Joe Collins, who nipped Hamner at the plate. Then Eddie Waitkus flied to Cliff Mapes for the third

Sawyer had dug deep into his reserves for pinch hitting and running talent in the ninth. So the veteran Jimmy Bloodworth went to second base in the last of the ninth. Rus Meyer went to the hill. Both moves proved wrong.

Meyer retired the first two men. Bloodworth juggled Woodling's slow roller for a scratch single. Jim made a fine diving stop of Rizzuto's hard bounder but again the ball went for a hit. Then Coleman dunked a fly ball between Jackie Mayo and Richie Ashburn for the game-winning single.

Letting Coleman hit was another stroke of genius by Stengel who can do no wrong. He considered sending Johnny Hopp up to hit for Coleman. Luckily for him, he decided to stick with Gerry.

Corner Shots

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

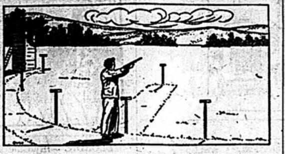
Soccer is all over but for the shouting in this district for another season. The winner of every competition has been decided except for the Trenton cup. Flyers and Trenton Merchants are scheduled to come to grips in the final to decide which team will have the honor of holding the trophy for the ensuing year. Batawa have already won the Bay of Quinte League Championship and also the Belleville Charity Cup. The Shoemen thus have their name on the Kent Shoe Golf Trophy for the second year in succession as they managed to take the League Championship last year.

In Eastern Ontario soccer circles Kingston United have carried all before them in the newly formed Eastern Ontario League and are still in the final of the Ontario Intermediate Championship competition the second leg of which will be played at the Kingston United grounds today against Camp Borden Army. Kingston are of course strongly fancied to beat the Simcoe County Leaguers and to take possession of the trophy.

To ensure successful and strong soccer teams in the future a start will have to be made to cultivate the junior element. This year we had the unfortunate situation in Belleville when we had a band of very keen youngsters who had banded themselves together as a team but there was no opposition for them. Challenges were issued to Trenton and the surrounding district but they were not accepted. A try was made to endeavor to have a Toronto junior team visit the district but the financial obstacle was too great to overcome. The provincial education authorities are trying to have soccer introduced in the high schools as well as the public schools and if these efforts come to anything it will do much to popularize the game in this district.

All soccer fans are anxiously looking forward to Friday 27th October which is the date of the bumper banquet and dance to be held at the new Queensway Hotel ballroom. Tickets are on sale at $2.00 per person from the Bay of Quinte F. A. executive and from any soccer club secretary. This promises to be a very fine evening.

Wing-Shooting Warm-Up Necessary



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

I see it happen every shooting season. So do you. A pheasant or a grouse flushes within easy range. The hunter brings up his gun, fires once, twice or three times, and the bird goes on its way untouched.

A rabbit jumps from its hiding place and starts off across a field or a clearing, its white puff-ball of a tail offering a splendid target as it bounces through the weeds. Most of the shot pellets from the average hunter's gun will mow down the weeds a foot or more behind that elusive tail.

When evening comes and hunters gather to take a cup of cheer and discuss the events of the day, then we hear the weeping and the wailing from those whose shooting eyes were not what they might have been.

I can't understand how or why the average gunner should be surprised that he misses game. Disappointed, yes, but not surprised.

He probably takes his shotgun out of its case once or twice a year to oil it and keep it in shape. Then, come "opening day," he goes afield.

The amazing thing to me is that he manages to hit anything other than crisp fresh air and outdoor scenery.

An Exacting Sport

Wing shooting for upland game is an exacting sport. Mounting the gun to the shoulder, swaying with the bird, calculating correct leads, and proper trigger pull are a series of practical motions, all of them blended into one smooth, co-ordinated motion.

Correct handling of a shotgun is not easy, any more than correct handling of a fly rod or a golf club is easy. It requires practice. A man who shoots a gun only once or twice a year honestly can't expect to be a very good wing shot.

Fortunately there are usually remedies for most deficiencies if a fellow will take the trouble to look for them. Wing shooting is no exception.

When my son, Dick, came around to the age when he was old enough to go wing shooting with me, I suggested to him that he spend some time "dry pointing" his gun.

Every day, for ten minutes or so, he would practise mounting his gun to his shoulder and aiming at objects on the walls of his room. In a surprisingly short time he could handle a shotgun like an oldtimer.

The next step was the purchase of a hand trap and some clay pigeons. I would throw the birds for him, often at difficult angles, and the rule was that he should snap-shoot each bird with the exception of the absolute straightaways.

By the time hunting season rolled around, Dick could give a good account of himself in the field.

The next step was trap shooting. As soon as he could break a fair number of birds at the trap, we switched to the skeet field. It wasn't long before he could make his old man look like a beginner.

If a man will take the trouble to spend a little time getting acquainted with his shotgun, following along these same general lines, it won't be long before he can become a reasonably good wing shot.

Get Printed Instructions

In the outdoor magazines, gun catalogues, etc., anyone who is interested can find ample information on correct leads. Better still, the reference room at your public library can give you many excellent books on wing shooting.

When a bird, flying at thirty-five miles per hour, moves directly across your line of fire, obviously if you point your gun directly at him and pull the trigger you will miss him.

In order to hit that bird, your gun must be pointed at a spot somewhat ahead of it, so that bird and shot pattern will meet. Otherwise the shot charge will pass harmlessly behind the bird. All this and much more you can find at your public library. A good book on wing shooting makes fascinating reading.

Last but not least, does your gun fit you? In other words, when you mount your gun to your shoulder and point it . . . not aim it; there is a vast difference . . . at an object, is the gun actually aimed at that object?

There is an easy way to find out. First shut your eyes. Now, mount your gun to your shoulder and settle your cheek against the stock, just as though you were shooting at a bird in flight.

Open your right eye (if you shoot from the right shoulder) and find out if your line of vision goes out over the centre of the breech to the front sight. You should be able to see the rib along the top of the barrel or barrels.

If, without moving your head, the line of vision of your master eye is where it should be for correct aiming, your gun fits you. If not, take it to your gunsmith and have the stock altered or padded so that it does fit. Usually, it is not a difficult job.

And, while we are talking about wing shooting, don't forget that birds and small game are active and available to the gun during Solunar Periods. They react just as well and sometimes better than the fish. Plan your trips with the aid of the Solunar Tables if you would find the best sport which each day has to offer.

Owen Sound Wins Lacrosse Title For Ontario

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—For the first time in his long lacrosse career, Doug Gillespie is within shooting distance of the Mann Cup, representing Canadian lacrosse supremacy.

Gillespie's coaching and high scoring helped Owen Sound Crescents to the championship of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior circuit this season.

Last night in Fergus he fired two goals and got two assists as Crescents pounded St. Catharines Athletics 10-3 in the final game of the Ontario finals. It gave Crescents the right to meet New Westminster Adanacs in the best-of-seven Mann Cup finals which open here Sunday.

New Westminster, 1947 Dominion champions, arrived by air last night, undeterred by a long-standing jinx which so far has always seen the defeat of western teams in eastern territory.

Adanacs arrived without two stars, Ralph and Johnny Douglas, who were unable to get time off from work for the trip. They will be replaced by Arnie Ferguson, playing coach of the Victoria Shamrocks, and Alfy Wood, top scorer this season with New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Crescents went into last night's game in the indoor Fergus rink favored to win. They are the only team in the league to have played their home games indoors.

Each team has won its three home games in the best-of-seven finals.

Defenceman Don McWhirter scored twice while Arnold (Onions) Smith, Jack Foote, Harry Kazarian, Jack Mason and Russ Salter got the others.

Leo Teatro, Ken Croft and J. McNulty scored for Athletics, who in the last 12 years have won the Mann Cup six times.

Crescents go into their first final as a well-seasoned club, loaded with veterans. Goaltender Lloyd (Moon) Wotton this year was firt winner of the Scott Galbraith Trophy for the most valuable player in the league. Both Wootton and Gillespie made the league all-stars.

In front of him on defence are McWhirter and Marlow Woods on one line with Bull Allum and Fred Smith, making his third appearance in a cup final, on the other.

Mason, Smith, Gillespie and Slater, who topped the league in goals scored, make up one forward line. Grant Gillespie, Kazarian, Foote and Campbell are the second. Utility men are 37-year-old veteran Yorky Jordan, Tommy Burlington and Tommy Shkordoff.

PRIBILOF PROFITS

Some lady rang the doorbell to see ma, saying she was Mrs. Pipp and I went to tell ma, and just then the telefone rang and I ansered it, being Puds Simkins to talk to me on generel principles.

Which we kept on doing for about 20 minutes and I said, Hay goodbye now, I think I heard something.

Meening the frunt door closing hard without actually slamming, sounding like a mad lady shutting it on her way out, and I thawt, Heck, good nite, I must of forgot.

And ma was in her room getting reddy to go out and play bridge, and I watched her a minute, saying, Hay ma, do you know a lady with a pointy nose and glasses?

Oh, I dont know, why? ma said, and I said, Because I think she knows you. Two of her frunt teeth stick out a little, I said.

Oh, you meen Mrs. Pipp, ma said. Goodness what a boar she is. She stops in without warning just to chat for a minute, to quote her own invarible werds, and if she leaves inside of an hour, she never has yet, ma said, and I said, Well anyways, she told me to tell you she's here. About 20 minutes ago, I said.

What? Have you taken leave of your remaining senses? ma said, and I said, Oh, dont worry ma, she left again, so she cant make you late for the bridge game. You can call her up some time and blame it on me, I said.

Well I should think I could, you silly scatter brane, ma said. I'll call her the ferst thing this evening, and meanwhile thank goodness I wont have a lot of difficult explaining to do to the other bridge ladies. Oh dear, how can you be so dopey? she said. And she gave me a soft push for being a dope, and a chocklit peppermint

$100 Million Railroad to Open Ire Ore Wealth of Umgava-Labrador

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 5 —(CP) — A summer's throbbing probe of the Ungava-Labrador wilderness has about ended.

And today key moves in this creation of a new "Kingdom of Iron" in Northern Quebec are taking place in the cities, in the private councils of Big Money.

This is, perhaps, private enterprise at its biggest.

Involved are millions of tons of high grade iron ore in the Ungava-Labrador "trough." The problem is to get this iron to market economically. The answer —before ever a nickel of profit is made from Ungava's wealth —is "more money."

Already the probing for the charting of iron deposits has involved hundreds of millions. Needed are many millions more for construction of mine establishments, a $100,000,000, 360-mile railway and shipping docks.

Five-Year Job

At best it is a five-year job. But indications today are that the financing now is a matter of tying up the loose ends. Then back to the schedule which calls for mining and shipping of at least 10,000,000 tons of iron ore a year out of the Ungava area by 1955.

Already the green light has been given for construction of the railway from Sept. Iles on the St. Lawrence River to the iron range on the Quebec-Labrador boundary. Cartier Construction Company, Quebec, has been awarded the contract. Associated with Cartier are Fred Mannix and Co. Ltd., of Edmonton and Vancouver; Morrison-Knudsen Carp., Boise, Idaho; and McNamara Construction Company, Toronto.

The 360-mile line will be known as Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway Company, wholly owned by the iron ore interests—Labrador Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd., and Hollinger North Shore Exploration Company.

Work on the railroad will start immediately with the rushing of a temporary dock at Sept. Iles to handle construction equipment. This gear will be distributed during the winter over the first 100 miles of the road and by spring the cutting of tunnels will be about completed. Ten airfields are to be built for servicing the road-builders.

Definitely there now is no doubt that what is probably the biggest gamble in Canadian mining history has developed a champion, W. H. Durrell, general manager of the Labrador Mining and Exploration Company, explained that at the end of 1948 323,000,000 tons of high grade ore were "in sight." More was uncovered last summer.

Through 1948 the diamond drills cut into iron deposits which were previously unknown. During 1949 the field campaign was confined largely to catching up on geological mapping so that 1950's drilling could be a search for new ore.

Field is Tremendous

"We have not our figures of discovery for this summer, but certainly we have enough ore in sight to satisfy everybody that the field is tremendous," said Mr. Durrell.

During the past summer 13 drilling crews, involving some 300 men, worked out of headquarters at Burnt Creek, about 320 miles north of Sept. Iles. The drillers will come out for the winter, leaving their operations which extend 200 miles through the "trough" and only a maintenance crew of 30-odd men will remain. Spring will see the country come to life again.

"It would be a waste of time to go on with further drilling before mining," said Mr. Durrell. "Exploration now can be carried on more economically when integrated with active mining operations."

He explained it is planned to chart each year as much ore as is mined, to keep a reserve of some 400,000,000 tons continuously ahead.

Pop went through a red lite while he was driving me and ma home from downtown, and the traffic cop blew his whisale and pop pulled up at the cerb, saying, Yee gods, it's Beet Face, the werst tempered traffic cop that ever lived. I'll handle him, I've got a plan of campaign all lined out, he said.

Which just then the cop stuck his face rite close to pop's face, saying, So, a blind man driving a car, heh?

Not at all, officer, although a blind man could probably drive this car, it runs perfectly, pop said, and the cop said, Oh is that so, well it runs a little too free and easy, and you talk a little too free and easy, brother. Didn't you see that stop signal, or are you the kind of a smart aleck that signals dont meen anything to? he said.

I saw the signal all rite, but I happened to be thinking of something more important at the time pop said, and the cop said, Oh you was, heh? You was thinking of something more important than endangering life and property, heh? Now that's enough, brother, show me your license, I'm giving you a ticket, see? he said.

Where is it, I'm in a hurry, pop said, and the cop said, You got nuthing on me, brother, I cant see the last of you too quick, and he wrote one out and gave it to pop with his face even redder than when he started, seeming impossible, and we kept on going and ma said, Why William, what possessed you?

A life long ambition, pop said. I've always wanted to spit back at a chronically appolectic traffic

TRAVEL VARIETY

Planes, canoes, a truck and a jeep give an indication of the mobility of this tiny Northern outpost in the Ungava-Labrador iron area. Hundreds of millions of dollars are being spent on a development which is expected to produce 10,000,000 tons of high-grade iron ore a year by 1955. EXPLODING MINES

The crew of a 40-millimeter gun on board the Canadian destroyer Sioux, explodes a floating mine with gunfire off the west coast of Korea. Crew members are: PO. Roy Nordal (standing, right) of Winnipeg; PO Douglas Allen of Moose Jaw and Victoria, B.C., seated at gun, and AB. Roy Wellburn of Vancouver. This is a Royal Canadian Navy photo. — (CP Photo.)

VISIT ENGLAND

Nine Canadian newspaper women are visiting England as guests of the Dollar-Sterling Board. Here a group of them inspects magazines distributed by W. H. Smith and his son, British news agents, booksellers and stationers. Left to right, standing at table are: Pearl L'Ami of the Winnipeg Free Press; Kay Rex of The Canadian Press, Ottawa; Armande Marc of La Patrie, Montreal; Mrs. Reta Myers of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Women's Press Club; and Joan Marshall of the C.B.C., Moncton, N.B. Standing behind are Maud Kerr of the Montreal Family Herald, and (partially hidden by Mrs. Myers) Byrne Hope Sanders of Toronto, leader of the delegation and editor of Chatelaine Magazine. Not in the photo are Margaret Aitken of the Toronto Telegram, and Pat Wallace of the Vancouver Province. — (CP Photo.

Australians Fight Off Reds In First Battle

By HAL BOYLE

Taejon, Korea, Oct. 7—(AP)—Australian troops fought off ambushing communist attackers in pre-dawn darkness today in their first engagement of the Korean war.

They had been moving north behind British convoys headed for the Seoul area. The attack was made six miles north of Yongdong, 22 air miles southeast of Taejon.

No casualties have been reported.

From time to time there had been scattered small-arms fire across the road. The hills still are full of North Korean troops trying desperately to escape to North Korea.

About 1 a.m. unseen red attackers threw grenades at Australian bren carriers packed with ammunition. One missile struck a carrier and halted it temporarily.

Within 15 seconds after the explosion the Australians were firing back with machine-guns and small arms. That disheartened the attackers.

The convoy rolled on to Taejon without further incident.

Dressing Room Comment

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Oct. 7 (AP) — Granny Hamner, youthful shortstop of the beaten Philadelphia Phils, dragged his leaden feet down the runway leading into the visiting team's dressing room at Yankee Stadium.

His eyes were blurred. His head hung almost on his chest.

Suddenly he felt an arm around his shoulders. He looked up and saw Joe DiMaggio.

"Don't feel too badly, kid," Joe was saying in a sympathetic voice. "It was a bad break for you. But it happens to the best of us. It happened to me once. That's the break of the game. Keep your chin up. You're too good a ball player to let it get you down."

The great Yankee star was referring to the grievous error made by Hamner in the eighth inning that allowed the Yankees to tie the score. New York went on to win the game in the ninth, 3-2, to take a 3-0 lead in the World Series.

Hamner looked at Joe, thankfulness written all over his face. Finally he managed to mutter:

"I've made a lot of errors in my time, Joe, but that one . . ."

Granny swallowed hard and continued: "It was a simple grounder. I was sure I had it. But I let it slip off my fingers."

Later Hamner sat deep in the confines of his locker looking into space. Nobody talked to him. Nobody had the heart. Although he seemed to be looking at you, you knew he didn't see you.

Perhaps he was recalling that dark day six years ago when, as a 17-year-old youngster fresh out of Richmond, Va., he sat slumped in the Shibe Park dressing room, crying his heart out.

He had just received an unmerciful roasting from a hostile crowd for having a particularly bad day in the field. Hurt and shamed by the boos, the crestfallen kid did what probably any inexperienced youth would do. He hung his head, slunked into the safety of the clubhouse and sat down and cried.

After a while he felt a friendly arm around his shoulders. It belonged to Fred Fitzsimmons, then Phils' manager.

"I know how you feel, son," wise old Freddy said in a fatherly fashion. "We all go through it some time or another. But don't take it so hard. You're going to make them eat their words some day. They'll be cheering you plenty before you are through."

And maybe if he recalled that, it helped a little.

World Series Notes

New York Oct. 7 (AP) —Whiz 'Kids' huh? The ace Philadelphia relief pitcher, Jim Konstanty, is 33 years old, Ken Heintzelman is crowding 35, and their battery mate, Andy Seminick, is 30.

Rookie Eddie Ford of the Yanks, scheduled to take the mound today was looking at a souvenir picture with Charlie Silvera. The latter said he didn't think it was so good. Beamed Ford: "Mine looks all right to me. It could be a lousy picture and I'd still like it. Just so it's in there."

Most of the credit for the fine pitching the Yanks have been getting goes to coach Jim Turner who has complete control of the elbow corps for Stengel. Both Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds say they have learned a great deal from Turner, who, incidentally, was past 30 when he hit the big leagues.

Don't discount the role the scouts have played in this series. Johnny Neun did the book on the Phils, while George Earnshaw hounded the Yanks. Stengel jokingly remarked during the stretch drive that he'd be glad to tell Earnshaw anything about the Yanks George couldn't find out for himself.

Someone asked Stengel the condition of his players and he quipped "just a few colds in the shoulder muscles. Tightened up, you know. Their batting averages have tightened up, too."

Well, as someone remarked, if the Yanks can't beat you one way, they'll do it another. If the hitters aren't hitting. The pitchers pitch just a little better—and if the pitchers are pitching and the hitters aren't hitting, then just don't let the other guys make a wrong move— Granny Hamner found that out.

College Crowds Will Lend Color This Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The college crowd will supply most of the color for Eastern Canada's football fans today, but the Interprovincial Union and the Western Conference will supply the vital payoff battles.

There'll be bands and cheer leaders galore when Toronto Varsity takes on Queen's at Kingston and the favored McGill Redmen are at home in the defending champion University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

In the Big Four, the Canadian champion Montreal Alouettes will be fighting for the playoffs when they meet Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa today and Montreal Sunday.

Hamilton Tiger - Cats will be out to avenge a stinging 48-8 defeat from Toronto Argos. They meet the Argos in Toronto today and Hamilton Monday.

In the west, Edmonton, comfortably in first place, plays Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina. Calgary Stampeders visit Winnipeg Blue Bombers. On Monday, Edmonton plays in Winnipeg and Calgary in Regina.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior circuit, the winless Windsor Rockets take on the undefeated Sarnia Imperials at Sarnia today. But most of the league's fans will be watching for Sarnia's visit to Toronto for a Thanksgiving Day visit with Balmy Beach.

Balmies Strengthened

Balmy Beach has been strengthened considerably since the Imperials handed the Argonaut farm club a 39-0 licking earlier in the season. Beaches now are two points behind Imperials in the league standing while Windsor, with four straight losses, is virtually out of the running.

Victories by Montreal and Ottawa last weekend tightened up the Big Four loop. Argos now are in first place, two points ahead of Ottawa and Hamilton. Montreal has four points. But a double victory by either of the underdog Alouettes or Tiger - Cats could change the whoe picture.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"I did. He doesn't answer."

"Then he is not in," the man said.

"I'm a little worried about him," said Shayne. "I think we'd better go up and see if he's all right."

The man's black eyes widened. "You mean he is sick? I saw him in the hall yesterday and he was all right."

"I mean," Shayne said harshly, "there's been one murder and I don't want another one."

"Murder?"

"Or suicide. I'm a detective. Get your master key and let's go up."

The superintendent's jaw fell open. "Sure. If you think. . ." He scurried away and returned with a key ring.

"Mr. Randolph is a good tenant," he said worriedly as they got in the small elevator and he pressed the '3' button. "A very friendly gentleman. What you say about murder?"

"One of his clients. Insurance." They reached the third floor and he followed the superintendent, his suspenders still dangling, to Earl Randolph's room.

The door opened easily and the gray-haired man stood back, frightened and cringing, to let the tall detective enter first.

Shayne saw Randolph's Panama hat on the rack where it had been when he visited the insurance man last night. He pointed it out to the little man and said grimly, "his hat is here, all right and stalked on toward the daybed behind the littered card table.

Earl Randolph, dressed as he had been when Shayne saw him last, lay on the daybed, half-way on his side, face downward, with one leg trailing off. The overhead lights were still burning and an empty glass lay on the floor where it had dropped from his fingers when he collapsed.

Shayne caught Randolph's shoulder and turned him over, lifting the dangling leg with his left hand putting it on the daybed. The insurance man's mouth was open and he was breathing heavily.

"Is he—dead?" the superintendent asked anxiously.

"Yeh. Dead drunk," said Shayne angrily. "Help me get him in the bathroom."

The supintendent eagerly grabbed Randolph's legs while Shayne lifted his shoulders. They carried the heavy man into the bathroom and propped him in the tub at an angle where the spray of the shower would strike him on the head and torso. The superintendent held his body erect while Shayne drew the curtain and turned the shower on.

Randolph stirred under the impact of cold water and tried drunkenly to move his head out of the way.

Shayne said "I'll get him straightened out. Thanks for helping me. You can go and shave now."

The superintendent backed away uncertainly, then turned and ran from the bathroom muttering to himself.

Shayne heard the door close. He stood back from the shower, but drew the curtain aside a little to grimly watch the man struggle to emerge from the coma that held him.

Randolph was opening and closing his mouth, twisting his head to escape the stream of cold water, inching his way back dazedly in the tub, but Shayne kept moving the swivel head of the shower to keep the full force on his head and face.

Presently Randolph opened his eyes. "Shut it off—" he muttered thickly. "I'm drowning."

Shayne shut off the water and said "stand up and well get your clothes off." He reached in and supported the drenched man, unbuckled his belt and shirt and helped him to get out of the soggy clothes, leaving them in the bathtub.

Randolph clung to Shayne as he stepped from the tub and staggered and collapsed again, his head hanging in his quivering hands.

Shayne said "take it easy. Try to rub yourself down while I make some coffee."

He left the sagging man and went through the living room to a tiny kitchenette and found the necesary things to make coffee. While it was brewing, he went into the living room and straightened the daybed.

Randolph swayed from the bathroom as he finished. His body was flabby and he held one hand pressed to his forehead. He groaned and said "get me a robe, will you? Oh my head!" He groped his way into the bedroom and Shayne followed, found his robe and got his arms into it as one would dress a rag doll.

"Come out here and sit up," Shayne demanded, leading Randolph by the arm to a chair in the living room.

Shayne went back to the kitchenette and found a can of tomato juice in the refrigerator. He opened it and poured out a large glass full, added a couple of teaspoonsful of Worcestershire sauce which he found on the shelf and sprinkled it with cayenne pepper. He carried the glass into the living room where Randolph was slumped low in a chair.

"Here—drink this down. If it stays, we'll follow it with black coffee." He held the glass to Randolph's lips.

Randolph brought both his hands up to grasp the glass. Shayne let go, and the insurance man's hands trembled violently, spilling the juice over his black silk robe. Shayne took the glass and held it to his lips and Randolph emptied it in a dozen quivering gulps, then slumped back in the chair, his body inert.

"Hold on," Shayne said. "The coffee is ready." He hurried to the kitchen and brought a steaming cup of coffee. "Here, sit up and drink this."

Randolph pulled himself up slowly. "Boy I hope you don't think I meant to get this way," he said thickly. "Passing out like a school kid. I can't remember when I ever did that before."

"I think," said Shayne soothingly "you were under a terrific mental strain after I left here last night. You just poured the stuff down faster than you realized."

Randolph sighed, holding himself erect with an effort. "I was tired and worked up over that jewel loss."

"And much more than that," said Shayne.

Randolph's glazed eyes lifted to meet Shayne's. "What'd you mean by that?"

Shayne sat down oppositie him and lit a cigarette. "Finish your coffee and I'll get you another cup. We've got a lot to talk about."

Randolph looked at him with a worried frown, then took the cup firmly in both hands and lifted it nervously to his mouth. Some of it spilled, but he kept on sipping until it cooled enough to drink.

Shayne got up and went into the kitchenette and brought the coffee pot back. He refilled Randolph's cup and took the pot back. When he returned he resumed his seat, crossed his knees and sat bent forward studying the toes of his big shoes abstractedly while the insurance agent drank most of his second cup of coffee.

Randolph raised his eyes to Shayne's and asked "why are you looking at me like that?"

Shayne's gray eyes narrowed. He said "a lot of things have happened, and I wasn't looking at you."

"But you was thinkin' about me and I don't like it," said Randolph.

"Cut it Earl," said Shayne sharply. "A lot of things have happened that don't make sense. Unless — you seriously consider the possibility that those rubies were fakes."

Randolph gulped down the last of his second cup of coffee and straightened up. "Star rubies! Impossible. There are tests that definitely—"

"Did you apply them at any time?" Shayne cut in sharply.

Randolph put his elbows on his knees and rested his chin wearily in his palms. "It wasn't necessary. Star rubies can't be made synthetically. Walter Voorland is one of the world's greatest experts."

Shayne brought his long torso up stiffly. "We keep coming back to that. Just for the sake of argument, let's suppose the darned things were synthetic and Voorland knew it. Suppose the ones he sold King and Kendrick and Mark Dustin were all synthetic. Would that explain the curious string of coincidences? The theft of each one soon after it was purchased?"

"I don't see," said Randolph dazedly "how the fact that they were synthetic would change any thing."

"It might explain why none of the rubies were ever recovered" Shayne retored. "Suppose the thieves discovered they were synthetic?"

"All the more reason why they would have been returned to the insurance company for a reward. said Randolph.

Shayne considered for a moment, then asked "would the insurance company pay a reward for fake gems?" A deep frown creased his forehead and a muscle quivered in his gaunt face.

"Why no?" Randolph asked "we'd turn them over to the original owner and save the amount of the policy."

Shayne frowned and formulated his words slowly. "We were going on the hypothesis that Voorland knew they were synthetic when he sold them."

"A crazy hypothesis," said Randolph weakly. His head bent forward to rest in his palms.

"In which case," said Shayne, "he might have arranged to have them stolen."

Randolph groaned and ran his hands over his forehead. "In the name of Heaven why? He'd collected his full price in each case —which was plenty. Why would he bother to steal the darned things back? I've already explained why he can't resell them at a profit." His head came down to rest in his palms again.

coffee," Shayne asked anxiously.

"How about another cup of He stood up and went toward the kitchenette. "I'll be right back."

IVANHOE

Gifts Presented Prior to Departure

Ivanhoe—Mrs. C. Stevenson of Crookston has left to rejoin her husband in Detroit where he has secured a position. Prior to her departure a number of her friends called on her and presented her with a gold compact. She was also presented with a make-up kit from the Girls' Club. Mrs. Stevenson took a keen interest in club work and in all community activities.

Their friends here hope the Stevensons will again take up residence in their home in the not too distant future.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

The September meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. met at the home of the president Mrs. John McInroy on Thursday afternoon.

A paper on the roll call was given by Mrs. John Hassall. Mrs. John Wright told of the mission field work.

A solo with guitar accompaniment was given by Mrs. Foster Wilson. The guest speaker, Mrs. W. H. V. Walker spoke on "Skill in taking things as they come". The speaker stated, "when we put this philosophy into practice we learn to get along with the unexpected circumstances of human existence. How do you keep placid when troubles come as Shakespeare once said "not singly but in battalions?" How do you keep quiet in the midst of storms and confusion?. Just have God's peace within us as St. Paul said "I have learned in whatsoever state I am there with to be content."

The speakers told of a few impressions when visiting New York and Boston last summer among them of a tour to the darkest spot on the Amercian continent, New York's Chinatown where thousands of men from all over the world are fed, clothed and sheltered in the Rescue Society Mission.

Mrs. Walker also visited Plymouth where the heroic little pilgrim band of 102 men, women and children from the Mayflower landed in 1620 and began the settlement of New England. Fortified by faith and grim determination the colonists became established in the face of great adversity.

A solo was given by Mrs. Barton Haggerty.

Mrs. J. C. Sills conducted a Bible quiz.

MADOC

Thanksgiving Service Held at St. John's

Madoc — The annual Harvest Thanksgiving service was held in St. John's Anglican Church Madoc. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and fruit for the occasion.

There was a full choir present and a large congregation attended.

The special preacher for the occasion was Archdeacon Smith, rector of St. Thomas Church, Belleville.

The lessons were read by Rev. F. F. Downing of Tweed and Mr. R. J. Good of Kingston. The service was conducted by the rector Rev. T. Harvey Good.

After service the congregation retired to the Orange Hall where a bounteous lunch was provided by the ladies of the parish and a social hour which everyone enjoyed was a happy culmination, to a truly happy day. The Harvest Festival was continued in the church again at the Sunday morning service, at which there was a large congregation.

On Sunday evening the rector, Rev. T. H. Good conducted a special harvest Thanksgiving service at the Anglican Church in Bannockburn. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers and fruit for the occasion and a very large congregation was in attendance.

CHURCHILL IN COPENHAGEN

Copenhagen, Oct. 7 (Reuters)— Winston Churchill will ride in a seven-mile "triumphal procession" through Copenhagen Monday, when he and Mrs. Churchill arrive for three days as guests of King Frederik and Queen Ingrid at Fredensborg Castle.

Streets are being garlanded and the city is preparing to give the wartime British prime minister the greatest welcome Denmark has ever accorded a foreign visitor.

Tuesday Churchill will be presented with an honorary doctorate by Copenhagen University.

We have much to give thanks for...

...for the good things of the earth...

for golden harvests and fruitful fields, promising abundance for ourselves, and for others, too . .

for the riches of the mine and the mill and the factory, helping to make a better life for all of us . .

...for the things of the spirit, too...

the blessings that can't be measured, counted or weighed on a scale . .

for the strength and vigour and enthusiasm that inspires us to work and build . .

for confidence in ourselves and in our country . . and for the courage of our youth, eager to help preserve the freedom of all who have the will to be free . .

On this Thanksgiving Day, 1950, we have much to give thanks for.

New Police Commission Will Act, Not Recommend, Says Chairman of Board

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 6 (CP) — The Windsor Police Commission yesterday ended four days of intensive investigation of police administration and law enforcement in this border city with the promise of more to come when it reconvenes Oct. 16.

Judge Archibald Cochrane, Commission chairman, indicated the three-man board is not prepared yet to draft a reorganization of the police department, but added: "We won't make recommendations — we act."

Meeting since Monday, the commission has questioned top police officials in its investigation which was touched off by a report on police conditions in Windsor by two provincial police inspectors.

The inspectors said they found vice and gambling widespread in Windsor, and added that local police must have known of it.

The present Police Commission was formed following issuance of the report, when two commissioners resigned.

Judge Cochrane, county judge of Peel, and Magistrate Roland A. Harris of Windsor were appointed to take their places. Mayor Arthur J. Reaume remains as the third member.

Sgt. George Browne, head of the Police Morality Squad, gave evidence yesterday of the relationship between his squad and the Windsor Crown Attorney's office.

Producing a sheaf of court records, Sgt. Browne outlined a series of prosecutions against various persons in which the Crown office ordered withdrawal of a serious morality charge in favor of a lesser one.

Made by Crown's Office

He said that requests for withdrawal of charges had been made by either Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey or the Assistant Crown Attorney, E. A. Duchesne.

Mr. Awrey was removed from his post in September when the provincial police report was made public.

Questioned by Judge Cochrane, Sgt. Browne said he conferred with the Crown Attorney's office in each morality squad case, obeying directions given by the Crown.

The sergeant expressed surprise when Judge Cochrane told him the Crown Attorney had no power to direct police in laying charges.

"I think you will find that from now on . . . that practice has ceased," the judge said.

Examine Court Records

The commission examined court records of three men: Alex Schincariol, John McCauley and Umberto Caverzan.

Judge Cochrane noted that each has been charged originally with keeping liquor for sale after raid by the morality squad. In each case, the charge was withdrawn at the request of the Crown Attorney's office, and convictions registered on the lesser charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Persons arrested at each of the places, and charged as found-ins, were released without trial when the original charge was not carried through.

The charge of keeping liquor for sale carries a jail penalty, the judge explained. The lesser charge of persons involved fines.

Schincariol's record, which goes back to 1926, was examined closely. It showed a series of fines but no jail terms.

"Despite this man's long record for bootlegging, has he ever been tried as a second offender?" Judge Cochrane asked.

"Obviously not," Sgt. Browne replied. "Otherwise he would have gone to jail."

The judge commended morality squad officers who prepared evidence in the arrests of Schincariol, McCauley and Caverzan. In his opinion, the evidence could have brought convictions on the charge of illegal sale of liquor.

Pleased to Help

Police Chief Claude Renaud told the commission he had been asked by the provincial police in 1946 for permission to investigate certain morality cases.

He said he wrote to Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer saying he would be "pleased to help" in the investigation. He added that provincial police vice squads then visited the city and made arrests.

Chief Renaud, who submitted records of morality cases in Windsor since 1936, was told to supply more detailed records at the commission's next meeting.

Judge Cochrane criticized the records for lumping together totals of cases withdrawn before trial and dismissed after trial.

"The record doesn't give a very accurate picture so we could find out how many got to trial," he said.

The chief said that previous commissions had found no fault with the form of his reports.

Says 75 P.C. Would Welcome U.N. Forces

Brantford, Oct. 6—(CP)—Rev. William Scott, a United Church missionary in Seoul, Korea, for 36 years, said Wednesday he was sure that if the forces of the United Nations continued their march into North Korea, they would be accepted with "outstretched arms" by more than 75 per cent of the people.

Speaking to the clergy and lay members of the Brantford Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, Dr. Scott said it was necessary that the whole country be occupied before any semblance of unity and peace could be secured.

Dr. and Mrs. Scott returned to Canada on furlough just three weeks before the invasion of South Korea.

RUSSIANS FAIL TO ATTEND

New York, Oct. 6— (AP)—Two hundred United Nations delegates, staff members and their wives dined and danced last night in the Rainbow Room at Radio City as guests of the Rockefellers. Only the Russians failed to attend from the list of invitations that included all 60 U. N. members.

BABY BORN ON TRAIN

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 6 — (AP)— A seven-pound, 14-ounce baby boy was born to a woman passenger in a Burlington train coach as it pulled into Omaha Wednesday. The mother said she had ridden the train about 300 miles, had no idea anything was about to happen and "then there it was."

FLY KITES TOO CLOSE

London, Oct. 6 — (Reuters) — Schoolboys are worrying Britain's airport authorities by flying their kites too close to landing fields where four-engined passenger planes are landing and taking off every few minutes. It is an offence in Britain to fly a kite close to an airport, but thus far no one has been brought before a juvenile court for doing so. Usually a fatherly lecture by a policeman is sufficient.

CLOCK LEADS TO ARREST

St. Omer, Northern France, Oct. 6 — (Reuters) — A musical clock playing "Ave Maria" led to the arrest of a thief and a receiver here. The thief stole the clock from a local church and passed it on to the receiver, who was carrying it off in a bag when it started to play. Children heard it and told police.

Austria Survives Political Crisis, Reds End Strike

Vienna, Oct. 6—(AP)— Communism today was considered to have suffered one of its most crushing recent defeats in Europe as Austria returned to normal after two days of red terror.

Trains were running on schedule again. Street cars operated unhindered and 50,000 striking reds went back to work.

Communist efforts to foment a general strike to terrorize the country, to isolate its capital and perhaps to set up a rump government were abandoned at midnight last night.

The communist leaders called off their ineffective two-day general strike and within minutes red demonstrators took down barricades which yesterday closed all but one of Vienna's main rail lines and froze traffic from the capital into the Russian zone.

The communists gave up in the face of calm resistance by the rest of the Austrians, who since the 13th century have sat the crossroads of the east and west and repeatedly have thrown back eastern aggression.

Ignore Red Call

The bulk of the country's laborers ignored the communist strike call.

The non-communist battled fanatic young reds for control of factories, power plants, transport facilities and government buildings.

Although Soviet troops and commanders aided the terrorist campaign, the Russians carefully avoided any action that might have caused an international incident.

The Austrian reds said they called off their strike because of "western pressure."

A purge of red leadership is definitely in the cards as a result of the fiasco, but that is of secondary importance. More important is the fact that Austria safely remains the west's easternmost stronghold on the fringes of Russia's defence line in Europe.

The failure of the communist attempt shows that only direct aggression by Russia might win the country to the red fold. For this the Russians apparently are not ready.

REJECT OFFER

Brantford, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Negotiations for increased wages can get confusing at times. Works Department employees rejected an offer of a three-cent hourly boost. Reason was that they thought it was a counter-off to their demands Then they discovered that it was really a cost-of-living bonus. Now they've accepted it, and negotiations are still going on for wages.

WALKED 125,000 MILES

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 6 (AP) — Had meter-reader Joseph T. Bechard's prosaic rounds been straightened out, he could have tramped about the globe approximately five times in the last 35 years. The Public Service Company of New Hampshire said yesterday that Bechard had walked 125,000 miles while taking 2,500,000 metre readings, and hadn't missed a day's work since he had influenza in 1918.

US Mine Sweeper Sunk by Mine Near North Korea

Washington, Oct. 6—(AP)—The United tSates Navy announced today the mine sweeper Magpie has been sunk by a floating mine near North Korea. Twenty-one men are missing.

It was the third U.S. ship to hit a mine in Korean waters. Two destroyers—the Brush and the Mansfield—were damaged by earlier collisions with mines and 11 men on the Brush were lost.

The Magpie hit a mine Sunday near the city of Ch'Uksan-Dong. Twelve survivors were picked up by a sister ship, the minesweeper Merganser and carried to Pusan, Korea.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Navy chief of operations, told a congressional committee last Monday that a "great many" Russian-made floating mines have been found in Korean waters. He said they had been "recently laid and not long out of the storehouse."

Seven crew members were injured in a mine explosion that damaged the destroyer last Saturday.

Eleven were killed, 10 injured and three missing in a similar blast that tore a hole in the bottom of the destroyer Brush three days earlier.

Sheman called the mines illegal. He explained that The Hague Convention—an international agreement signed at The Hague—outlawed floating mines because they might drift into the ships of neutral countries.

Sherman said the mines apparently had been cast adrift by the North Koreans.

Approve Common Liturgy, Hymnal For Lutheran Ch.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 6 (AP) — The United Lutheran Church in America Wednesday night approved adoption of a common liturgy and hymnal.

The action, taken in a late session of the 17th Biennial Convention of the U. L. C. A., was on recommendation of the common service book committee. Dr. Luther D. Reed, President Emeritus of the Philadelphia Lutheran Seminary, headed that committee.

Committee members have been working for the last five years to reach common ground on these matters with representatives of the American Lutheran Church, the Augustana Lutheran Church, and the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

U. L. C. A. officials said if all churches concerned give final approval, two-thirds of the Lutherans in the United States will use a single, complete service book.

Dr. Reed emphasized the "great delicacy" of his committee's work because of the different linguistic and cultural backgrounds involved. If its efforts were successful it would mean a "common book of worship and a common hymnal for the first time in 200 years."

Twenty-eight Canadian delegates are attending the session. They represent the Synod of Canada, Synod of Western Canada and Synod of Nova Scotia.

Commie Premier Says All Not Well In Red China

Hong Kong, Oct. 6. (AP) — Chou En-Lai, Chinese communist premier, has admitted publicly that all is not well in red China.

The full import of his "policy statement" in Peiping October 1 was temporarily obscured by his attack on the United States and his warning against "aggression" on any of red China's neighbors.

But further portions of his anniversary statement have just been released here by the official communist new China news agency. They show that guerrillas, sabotage and resistance to land measures are giving the communist regime plenty of headaches.

Chou said flatly that the most important task for the regime in the next two years is consolidating control over "newly-liberated areas" where he estimated 200,000 anti-communist guerrillas are active.

This was far different from his speech a year ago, when he declared the country's No. 1 problem would be "economic improvement."

"China's second-fiercest class struggle," Chou said, "is putting across land reforms."

The premier and foreign minister declared this land-reform struggle was surpassed only by "the war of liberation"—China's civil war. Chou said some landlords have been sabotaging the program by giving away their land, killing livestock and destroying farm implements, houses, crops and trees.

He indirectly conceded that farmer and landlord opposition is strong enough to force a slowing up of land redistribution in "newly-liberated areas".

Chou reported 4,000 "secret agents" have been arrested, 170 secret radio stations seized and 11 cases of "international espionage" unearthed in the last year. He did not elaborate on the "international espionage".

MUST HAVE MAJORITY

Stratford, Oct. 6 — (CP) New entries to the 10-year Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series will be made only on the approval of 75 per cent of members, the league council ruled Thursday night.

Council also ruled that releases of players on professional negotiation lists to the pro club's junior farm must be made by Sept. 1, 1951. Such players must be signed by their new clubs by Sept. 15.

A junior 'B' franchise for the St. Catharines area was approved on condition the club did not operate out of St. Catharines.

SUCCESSFUL TURKEY RAISER

Timmins, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Vincent Perello, a native of Spain who learned about raising turkeys from a book, is making a success of his 400-bird farm here. In the three years he's been in the business, his losses have averaged only five per cent, which is pretty good for turkeys.

Canadians of Jap Origin Seeking Compensation For Losses in Second World War

Ottawa, Oct. 6—(CP)—Representatives of Canada's Japanese have launched a new appeal to the government for an increase in compensation awarded for losses in the Second World War.

The Japanes-Canadian Citizens Association, has submitted a 3,000 word brief to Prime Minister St. Laurent. The brief says the $1,372,000 which the government now is distributing is not enough to meet "the injustices and hardship" suffered by Japanese-Canadians.

But there is no certainty that the government will give the new appeal any more attention than others received during the last few months.

It is indicated the association will be informed that the recommendations of the royal commission were final. No further compensation will be made.

The official thinking is that though the Japanese suffered, war brought suffering to others, too. Few were spared. The Japanese were no exception.

Some 22,000 Japanese in British Columbia were uprooted in 1942 from their homes, farms, fishing vessels and stores and shifted inland. They included women and children born in Canada, naturalized Canadians and Japanese nationals.

Security Move

The shift, carried out by the R.C.M.P. on orders of the federal government, was a precautionary security move, augmented, the association claims, by the political need to appease a strong anti-Japanese feeling in British Columbia, a feeling that had more to do with business competition that with war.

Those of Japanese ancestry, in some cases, were given only two hours to vacate their homes, the association says. A person with a rooming house was ordered to a road camp. When he refused to go, he was interned.

Others, hastily herded together, were told to leave their belongings behind. When their crates and trunks later were sent to them, they found the trunks had been looted. Fishing vessels were liquidated at drastically-low prices. Farms were sold at whatever price could be obtained.

Recognized Injustice

The association says the government recognized that injustice had been done when it appointed a royal commission three years ago to investigate the claims of those caught up in the exodus.

Although the commission recommended the payment of an additional $1,372,000 to Japanese over and above what they received in property sales, it was insufficient to cover all of the losses sustained. The money now is being distributed among 1,300 claimants from the government's Vancouver office.

The association believes the commission was too limited in scope. It did not consider the loss of goodwill of a business as a result of the owner's disappearance from the community, or losses of business debts outstanding when the shift occurred.

U.N. Advised to Leave Fon of Bikon Alone

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 6 — (AP)— The U.N. was counselled Wednesday to leave the 81-year-old Fon of Bikon alone with his troubles, maintaining that a man has his hands full handling a hundred women at one time.

The admonition came in the trusteeship committee of the general assembly while discussing a petition concerned with the household of Fon.

Awni Jhalidy, delegate of Iraq, declared:

"We should leave the man alone; it is enough to handle 100 women at one time. . . may God give him strength in his arduous task!"

The Fon became the subject of a United Nations debate about two years ago when a British Roman Catholic organization, St. Joan's Social and Spiritual Alliance, complained that he had 600 wives. Britain said this was wrong —the Fon only had 110 wives.

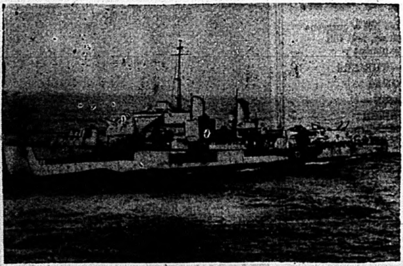
NEW RUSSIAN MINES DAMAGE U. S. SHIPS



Admiral Forrest P. Sherman has revealed that a second American warship was damaged in Korean waters by an illegal Russian-made floating mine apparently set adrift, by Korean communists. The U.S.S. Mansfield (above), a destroyer, struck a mine off Changjon on the northeast Korean coast, with injury to seven men. A few days earlier, the U.S. destroyer Brush hit a floating mine off the North Korean coast. — Central Press Canadian.

Just three months and four days after the Korean red invasion, South Korean troops were back at the 38th parallel. The map traces the course of the rapid advances made by U.N. forces after the invaded land recovered from the initial shock of the communist stab in the back. U.N. South Korean forces have advanced north beyond the 38th parallel up to 65 miles. The U.N. is leaving question of how far Allied forces will go up to Gen. MacArthur. Deaf-and-Dumb Wrestler Wins In His Division

(By The Canadian Press)

[illegible] Ordman, deaf-and-dumb [illegible] from South Africa, won [illegible]-heavyweight title at the [illegible] Jewish world Olympics in Tel [illegible] last night, pinning Max [illegible] of Canada a Toronto grappler, in 34 seconds.

In the heavyweight class, Henry Wittenberg, New York detective who won the 191-pound title at the 1948 Olympic games, won the title by default when the only competitor in that class, Freddie Oberlander of Canada, withdrew because of illness.

Oberlander, a Montrealer, is manager and captain of the whole Canadian team. Cause of his illness was not known.

Israel, which clinched the team title several days ago, piled up more points by winning the soccer championship with a 2-1 victory over South Africa.

The United States basketball team kept its undefeated record intact by routing Israel 65-27 last night. The Americans will meet Canada, also undefeated, for the championship Saturday night.

Managing Director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens has announced acquisition of Roly McLenahan from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League in exchange for defenceman Ray Garipy, who was obtained from the A.H.L. Buffalo Bisons three days ago.

McLenahan, 28-year-old 170-pound defenceman, has played with three A.H.L. clubs in his pro career and played nine games with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League in the 1945-46 season.

McLenahan is rated a high-scoring defenceman. Last season he led his team with 25 goals and 35 assists for 60 points. He first played pro hockey with Indianapolis of the A.H.L. in 1945-46 and was later called up by the Red Wings. From Indianapolis, after his Detroit stay, he went to Cleveland of the A.H.L. and has played the last three seasons with Hershey.

McLenahan is from Fredericton, N.B., and last played amateur hockey with Sudbury Frood Mines.

Will Be Here For Hasty Pees Reunion

Several former commanding officers and officers will be here for the 6th annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Included are those shown above. Left to right, standing, are Lieut.-Col. D. C. Cameron, D.S.O., Camp Borden; C.S.M. George Ponsford, Durban, South Africa, who is unable to be present; Major General Howard Graham, D.S.O., Ottawa; Padre Lieut.-Col. Walter Gilling, Peterborough. Front row, Lieut. Angus Duffy; Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, D.S.O., Owen Sound and Lieut.-Col. Reg. Abraham, Ottawa.

Bill Mawhinney, Canadian amateur champion, moved down another opponent Thursday in his bid to win the California State Amateur Tournament, defeating Dick Yost of Portland, Ore., 1-up in a third-round match.

It was the second straight last-hole victory for the Vancouver shotmaker.

Maurice Richard, all-star right winger of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, drilled home two goals in less than two minutes last night as the Montreal Canadiens downed the American Hockey League's Rhode Island Reds 4-1 in an exhibition game at Providence. A crowd of 1,498 attended.

Cal Burnett scored the winning goal as Springfield Indians defeated the Buffalo Bisons 4-3 in an American Hockey League exhibition game at Fort Erie last night.

Goals by Gordon Davidson, Ken Hayden and Ralph Hoskins gave Springfield a 3-0 lead before Les Hickey hit for Buffalo late in the second period. Paul Meger scored twice within 35 seconds to tie it up early in the final period. Burnett rescued Springfield at 9:05.

The University of Montreal holds a commanding lead in the intercollegiate tennis championship today with an imposing array of 17 victories against only two defeats.

The University of Toronto holds down second place with a 10-11 mark while McGill is in third place with a 7-14 mark. The University of Ottawa is last with six victories, against 15 defeats.

The tournament ends today.

NO NEED OF BLACKOUTS

Washington, Oct. 6 — (AP) — Total blackouts of cities may not be ordered in any future wars because radar can locate many targets in the dark, W. Stuart Symington said yesterday. The chairman of the National Resources Board said, however, that the blackout method of protecting against air raids may not be ruled out of civilian defence plans altogether. A special type of "lighting pattern" may be used.

Sleepy Citizens Petition Council

Cartersville, Ga., Oct. 6 (AP)—A group of sleepy citizens has had too much of "Good Night Irene."

The group yesterday petitioned city council to force a drive-in cafe operator to unplug his juke box—equipped with an outside speaker—every night at 10 p.m.

"We've been putting Irene to bed every night until midnight for months," complained the petitioners. "Now we'd like to get some sleep ourselves."

METEOR FLASHES

MUST SOUND-PROOF ALLEYS

Toronto, Oct. 6 — (CP)—One bowling-alley proprietor will have to sound-proof his alleys if he wants to operate Sundays, the Parks Committee ruled Thursday. The alleys are located in a residential area and residents say there is enough noise in the neighborhood without having to put up with more on Sundays.

Albert Juniors Hand Trenton High 8-0 Defeat

Albert College Junior COSSA Rugby team started off their season with a clear-cut win over the visiting Trenton High School team by a score of 8 to 0.

There was no score in the first quarter of the game, Trenton gained ground around the end of the line, but couldn't dent the centre, any gains made were off-set by the superior booting Bruce Vaughan, Albert's towering kicker. In the second quarter, Dave Scott, captain of the Albert team led his team down to the Trenton 25 yard line with some fine line plunging, which was helped by John McCullough's scampers around the end—Trenton held strongly for two downs, and on the third down Bruce Vaughan kicked for a single point. Half time score Albert College 1, Trenton High School 0.

Score in Second Half

Play opened up in the second half, Hill and Wilson made some nice gains for Trenton, but a Burk to Brown pass, set Albert u. again on the Trenton 15 yard line. Albert made five yards on first down, but were penalized a second down for taking too much time in the huddle, on the third down, Bruce Vaughan again kicked for a single point— to make the score 2 to 0 for the home team. Shortly after, Larry Burk, Albert's smart young quarterback hit Archie Brown his diminutive end with enough long pass out in the flat, and Albert had the ball on Trenton's 20 yard line. Dave Scott, took a hand off and went through the centre for 12 yards, to give Albert a first down on the eight yard line, close to the side line. Burt, playing smart, took the ball himself and lugged it across field in front of the goal posts from which position Dave Scott scampered across the line for a touchdown. Larry Burk made the convert to put Albert on top by eight points. The third quarter ended without further score. Play during the last quarter ranged around centre field, with Trenton boys fighting hard to get back in the game. In the last few minutes, Albert tried for yards on a third down and lost the ball—but managed to stave off the Trenton rushes and passes. The game ending Albert College 8 Trenton H.S. 0.

Trenton lost a lot of ground during the game by not giving yards on kicks and through providing interference for backfields running back kicks, this perhaps provided the necessary yardage that got Albert College points.

For the winners, Larry Burk called a very heady game, and Dave Scott was a tower of strength, but running and plunging. Vaughan kicked well and his intercepting of Trenton's forward passes, set up many of the Albert drives, McCullough also went well on the offense. Heaton, Archie Brown, and Ralph Hodd tackled well and opened up some gaping holes in the line.

For Trenton, all members of the team played a heady game, but penalties for minor infractions worked against the team.

The win places Albert College in a tie for the top of the league with the Belleville C.I. boys.

Say Egypt Offers Army of One to Two Million Men

By MAX HARRELSON

Lake Success, Oct. 5 (AP)—Egypt was reported today to have offered to contribute an army of 1,000,000 to $2,000,000 men as part of a permanent international force if the United States and other United Nations members will supply the arms and equipment.

Informed quarters said the offer was made by Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah-El-Din at a private luncheon given yesterday by Secretary of State Dean Acheson for heads of the Arab U.N. delegations.

The offer was understood to have been made on the condition that British troops are withdrawn from Egyptian soil.

'Chiselers' Tied For Top Slot In 'A' League

Moore's "Chiselers" by virtue of their 7-0 win over the Lawn Bowlers at the Bowl-O-Drome last night drew up on level terms with the Northern Electric at the top of the Major "A" Bowling League standing.

Tobe's County Gardens who divided the top slot last week dropped into second place after Northern Electric tabbed them for a 5-2 loss.

Callaghan's Ice defeated the Belleville Golf by a 5-2 count while in the remaining game the CNR took the measure of Esquire For Men by a similar count.

Some good scores were racked up with 13 keglers toppling the maples for three strings exceeding 650. Included were Ernie Colebourne, 779 (311); Sam Halbert 766 (326); Maurice Callaghan, Jr. 750; Mark Storms, 721 (323); Jack Wardhaugh, 720; Dave Tobe, 704; Harry Ridley, 700; Pat Drumm, 699; Newt. TV OR NOT TV

Yesterday afternoon we sat in a box seat in the Don Lee Stadium on North Park Street. The Hon. Lee, by the way has a smart television set installed and we just happened along to catch up on the dope of the Commercial Softball League banquet.

By some strange quirk of coincidence, the world series baseball game, (the second to be exact) was being flashed on the Lee T-V screen.

Lee, being an amiable guy insisted that we stay. We objected. There was work to do in the office. Lee promptly called four of his neighbors, who are a modern version of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, and they promtply gave us the physical works. In other words, we were forced to remain at the Lee basement stadium, and watch this hateful second game of the world baseball tussle between those grand Whiz Kids of Philadelphia and the power-packed shock troops of the New York Yankees.

As this is being written, the third game of the series is still in the offing. By the time it goes to the three readers, the game will probably have been settled. And the Yanks will have made it three in a row.

Human nature is such that the clear-thinking fan goes for the under-dog. We were in Toronto on Wednesday with the Shrine Club and their kiddies and we took time out to quiz a few of the Hogtown residents as to their feelings regarding the world's series. Twelve of them said the Phillies — but, like a lot of the rest of us, their heart was with the Phils, but their money was on the Yanks.

Win or lose, it must be admitted that to date, or at least in the first two games of the series, the Phillies pitching has had the Yankee powerhouse short-circuited. True, yesterday, Joe DiMaggio sprang a leak in the Phils insulation and pounded out a game - winning homer.

Heralded by the wise sports guys as the team with the power and the pitching, and although as this is being written the Yankees are two up on the gallant Phillies, the moral victory rests with the heroes of Shibe (not Sheebe, son) Park.

The vaunted power of the Yanks has been muffled by Johnny Konstanty and the bonus beauty,— Robin Roberts. True the hurling of the Yanks has been typically world series stuff with Raschi and Al Reynolds coming through, but the performances of the Yankee hurlers were matched by the "amateurs" from the city of brotherly love. Had the Phillies come through with some needed clutch hitting the results might have been different.

In other words the Yanks have nothing to be proud of. True they got the nod, but not through any over-display of their vaunted power. Lady Luck has had something to do with it.

* * *

But the hidden power of one or the other team will be "bustin' out all over" some of these days. Those sock-producing bludgeons cannot be still forever. We're going to travel along with practically every baseball fan we have talked with, and hope that it is the Phillies hickory which will flash baseballs into the blue sky of Yankee Stadium.

BASEBALL

Batawa lost their first game of the Intermediate "A" semi-finals going down before the Oakville team by an 8-1 count. The second game is scheduled for Exhibition Park here on Monday afternoon.

QUICK, THE ASPIRIN!

While the world series is grabbing the sports spotlight at the moment, it probably won't deter nearly 2,000 of the faithful from seeing the four-way brawl at Memorial Arena tonight. The new partnership of the Masked Marvel and Lee Henning will be seen in action, and their names alone are guarantee of some flaming fireworks. Whipper Watson and his handsome buddy, Timmy Geohagen however are ready and rarin' to go. It should be quite an evening.

Only Miracle Comeback Can Save Hitless Phils as World Series Moves into N.Y. Stadium

By JACK HAND

New York, Oct. 6 (AP) —Only a miracle comeback can save the hitless Phillies as the World Series moves into cavernous Yankee Stadium with New York holding a 2-0 edge. One home-run blast by "the same old Joe DiMaggio" put the Phils on this desperate spot.

Not since the 1921 New York Giants has a club won after losing the first two series games. And that was back in the days of the best-of-nine series.

Talk of "four straight" buzzes in Yankee ears with the odds 1 to 15 on the American Leaguers to cop their 13th world title. Some 70,000 fans will be on hand for the Phils' first visit to Yankee Stadium.

Yankee Ed Lopat (18-8) is a 5-to-12 choice over either Ken Heintzelman (3-9) or Bob Miller (11-6) for today's third game at 1.00 p.m. EST. Manager Eddie Sawyer will pick his starter in the clubhouse before batting practice.

No miracle —but only a timely base hit—was needed to rescue the Phils in the first two games when they lost 1-0 and 2-0. Now they are fresh out of pitchers like Robin Roberts and Jim Konstanty who can be counted on to chill sluggers like the Yanks.

Sawyer has no complaints about the excellent jobs of his first two pitchers. They contained such Yankee power hitters as Yogi Berra and Johnny Mize. They put the shackles on DiMaggio until he rocketed Roberts' pitch into the upper left field seats yesterday afternoon. But this is the end of the line. Now the batters figure to cut loose.

Lopat, a chunky lefthander with a knuckler, screwball, slider and a little bit of everything except a fast ball, may not match Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds in effectiveness. Still, in the vast confines of the Stadium, Lopat can be expected to pitch his usual steady, capable game. To succeed he must continue to check the power of Del Ennis and Andy Seminick, strangely silent in the early games.

Hamner Hitting Well

Ennis and Dick Sisler, home-run hero of the pennant clincher, went hitless in the first two games. Seminick, Willie Jones and Mike Goliat each have only one hit. The team is batting but .145. Only Gran Hamner at .333 is in the .300 class.

There has been no bursting power from the Yankee lineup. Gene Woodling and Bobby Brown lead the club with .375. DiMaggio, Mize, Berra, Phil Rizzuto and Jerry Coleman each have only one hit.

Miller, a handsome rookie who made the big hop from Terre Haute, Ind., to the majors in one season, won his first eight starts. His best pitch is a sinking fast ball. Since mid-September, the 24-year-old rookie has been troubled by a sore shoulder.

Heintzelman, a grey-thatched southpaw of 35 years, might have the "nothing stuff" to fool the free-swinging Yanks. He didn't win a game from May 8 to Sept. 15 but hung up 17 victories in 1949. If Heintzelman pitches, Manager Casey Stengel probably will shuffle his New York line-up to play Billy Johnson at third base instead of Brown.

"We can't be any worse in the Yankee Stadium," said Sawyer last night," maybe our kids will snap out of it. We'll play our usual game and score some runs—I hope."

Need Hitting Power

Sawyer summed up the Phils troubles neatly when he said: "It looks like we need four bases on balls to score."

It took a bad-hop single over Coleman's head to drive in the lone Phil run of the series in the fifth inning yesterday. Time after time they left the big run on base. In the eighth and ninth, they hit into rally-ending double plays.

After DiMaggio's homer they still had a chance to bounce back against Reynolds. They moved pinch-hitter Jack Mayo to second base with one out in the last of the 10th. But he died on second as Richie Ashburn and Sisler failed.

The Phils drew cheers from the 32,660 fans with four extra-base hits in their total of seven. Hamner doubled and tripled and Ashburn and Eddie Waitkus doubled. Each time Reynolds bore down with his smoking fast ball to get out of trouble.

The Yanks had Roberts rocking in the first and broke through to score in the second. Coleman walked, scooted to third on Reynolds' single and came home on Woodling's infield single to short stop Hamner.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—If you say you're second—guessing the 1950 world series, you're probably guilty of a bad pun...second is where the Phillies hopes died in the second game..they left five men stranded on that base because they couldn't get a hit at the right time...that's where their only scoring chance died in the opener, too...and it was second-baseman Mike Goliat who had the best chances to bring a runner home and failed...he fanned Wednesday with a runner on second. Yesterday he flied out to end the inning after Gran Hamner tripled, flied again behind Andy Seminick's walk and finally grounded into a double play with Hamner on second... but what the heck! Mike scored the Phils' only run in two days and you can't expect one guy to do everything.

Guessing Again

The night-time managers have found a couple of chances to criticize...they argued Wednesday night that Seminick should have tried to pick Bobby Brown off third just before he scored the only opening-game run... last night they were questioning Eddie Sawyer's strategy in having Dick Sisler bunt in the eighth inning. Dick didn't look much like a bunter as he forced Richie Ashburn, but he hasn't looked like a hitter, either, since he hit that homer to win the pennant.

Heard in the Night

Detroit Manager Red Rolfe picked up a fat bonus for finishing second with what his bosses figured was a fourth-place club. ..Branch Rickey commuted to the Philadelphia games from his Maryland farm instead of bucking the hotel crowds...Jim Konstanty's undertaker, the guy who can tell Jim what's wrong with his pitching—was watching naturally from a box...Konstanty, after pitching eight innings Wednesday, wise-cracked that he be rested and ready for relief duty the next afternoon because he didn't have anything to do until 1 p.m....actually it was 3:25 p.m. when he began to warm up.

Coach Obeck Says McGill Has Best Football Squad Since Before 2nd World War

By PHIL ADLEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 6. (CP)—A glance at McGill University's 1950 senior football squad indicates the team is hot.

As coach Vic Obeck puts it: "It's McGill's best football team since before the Second World War."

Not much change took place in the Redmen camp this season. Most notable absentee on the playing field will be Rocky Robillard who topped the intercollegiate point parade last season.

Rocky now is assistant to Coach Obeck but the name Robillard will still appear in line-ups. His cousin, Eugene, 21, an outstanding performer with Ottawa Tech., will appear in the McGill backfield.

The Redmen have played two exhibitions this season and looked like champions both times even though they lost to the Grey Cup champions Montreal Alouettes 19-6. Sarnia Imperials of the O.R.F.U. was beaten by them 25-8.

McGill was weak in the air against the Alouettes but then flinging Frankie Filchock was tossing for the larks.

Fourth Year as Coach

This is Vic Obeck's fourth year as coach of the Montrealers. He is also director of athletics at McGill.

The gridders start the four-team intercollegiate schedule Saturday where they left off last season—playing London's Western Mustangs. After topping the loop last season, McGill lost to the Mustangs in a sudden-death game for the championship.

The exhibition with Alouettes was costly for McGill. George Valois, one of the Union's top scorers last Fall, suffered a shoulder injury.

Obeck said he expects to shift Ken Wager, 25-year-old native of Pembroke, Ont., to the right half slot until Valois recovers. Ken showed up well in the game against Sarnia and his powerful line charges are expected to give the Mustangs a jolt.

The starting line-up will probably show Fred Wilmot, Pete Robinson and Wagner as halfbacks and Harry Irving at quarter. Obeck's choice as safety half will be either Bob Stanley or Roy Deschield.

Only Robinson and Irving held down positions on the senior grid team last year.

Good Safety Man

Deschields, a 220-pound safety from Windsor, Ont., was ruled ineligible last season. Wilmot likewise was not allowed to play senior ball last year. On the Calgary Stampeders team of 1948, halfback Wilmot is expected to team up with Irving to form a strong pitch-and-catch combination. Stanley was part of McGill's second team last year.

One of the prizes to turn up with McGill this season is Mike Farrell. Better known as "Iron Mike", he was voted most valuable player in Calgary Junior ranks last Fall.

Others expected to line-up with McGill include G. Grain, Haskell Blauer, George Bossy, Dave Caldwell, Manchester, Conn.; Ball Handler, Vince Capogreco; Bill Cave, Clyde Whitman, Ron Sharp, formerly with Ottawa in the O.R.F.U., who has played three seasons with McGill; Dave Tomlinson, formerly with Calgary Stampeders; Jim Mitchener and Bob Marshall.

Rangers Shaping Good Third Line For Year's Play

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 6 — (CP) — New York Rangers are shaping a strong third forward line on which General Manager Frank Boucher is pinning much of his optimism for the club's 1950 - 51 National Hockey League aspirations.

"That third line looks like it will jell," Boucher said outlining the Ranger pre-season setup. "A strong third line will put us on a par with the best."

The club that finished in 4th place last year and came within one goal of winning the Stanley Cup to blast pre-season ridicule, is basing its new hopes on more than an elusive third line.

Claude (Chuck) Rayner graces the nets again. Boucher indicated his esteem of the 30-year-old Sutherland, Sask., goaltender by signing him this week to a new three-year contract calling for a handsome boost in salary.

Edgar Laprade, the sparky winger who scored 44 points last year to lead the team, is also one of the first names mentioned by Ranger brass when they talk about the club's strength.

While this season's Rangers are perhaps the most standpat club in the league, they will have at least one brand - new face in Reg Sinclair, the former McGill University star who is expected to leap into N. H. L. ranks straight from Sherbrooke Saints of the Quebec Senior League.

Sinclair is almost a sure bet for that third forward line. It will probably be centered by Jack McLeod, a second-year man who has been impressive in training camp.

Leswick on First Line

The irrepressible little Tony Leswick will pivot the first line with Laprade and the improved Duncan Fisher on the wings. Pentti Lund, who led the scoring in the Stanley Cup playoffs last season with 11 points, skates with Ed Slowinski and Don Raleigh on the wings again.

Fighting for a place on that third line or as two utility forwards to be carried as well, are veteran Herbert (Buddy) O'Connor, Alex Kaleta, Nick Mickoski, Eddie Kullman and bespectacled Clint Albright, who passed up hockey last season to finish his education in Winnipeg. Two of these players will be dropped.

Veteran defencemen back on duty are Allan Stanley, the $70,000 "baby" of two years ago, Fran Eddolls, Pat Egan, Wally Stanowski and Gus Kyle. Jack Lancien and, Fred Shero of last season's Rangers and Norm Gustavson from Tacoma Rockets of the Pacific Coast League are candidates for one open defence job.

An 18-man team will swing into the season's play at Detroit Oct. 11 with 35-year-old Neil Colville in the coach's seat replacing Lynn Patrick who went over to Boston Bruins between seasons. Colville, former Ranger star forward and defenceman, was previously mentor of the Rangers' New Haven, Conn., farm team.

As the Rangers this week tuned up their teamwork with an exhibition tour in Quebec province, publicity director Stan Saplin asked:

"Since the Rangers were only one goal away from the Stanley Cup last year who can say they won't win it this year?"

Notes From Series

New York, Oct. 6 (AP) —This isn't Brooklyn, that's for sure. The bleacherites didn't start to form their line in front of the Yankee Stadium until yesterday morning. And at that there were two die-hards, one of them Maxwell Walkey, 39, of Winnipeg. The gendarmes chased the pair, but told them their spot at the head of the line would be reserved in the early evening.

The Yankees even beat the Phillies into New York last night The Phils were due to arrive 10 minutes ahead of the Yanks, but it was the train carrying the Yanks which arrived at Penn Station first.

Umpire Jocko Conlan must be a tough bloke. He caught a foul ball on the arm yesterday, but X-rays showed no fracture. Back when he played for Yank manager Casey Stengel in Toledo of the American Association, Jocko hurt his foot in a game, they stamped on it to see if it bothered him enough to withdraw. It didn't, but after the game, a fracture was found.

Here's a postscript on the hotel robbery in which Yank pitcher Vic Raschi and his wife lost many valuables: just before he left for the game the day of the robbery, Ivy placed $3,000 in players' series ticket money in the hotel safe.

Quick quote from Tiger manager Red Rolfe, a spectator: "Just scouting the Yanks for next year."

The Yanks might win the ball games, but the Phils have something too—female ushers, and pretty.

Dressing Room Comment

By TED SMITS

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 — (AP)—Did you ever try calling balls and strikes from the grandstand?

Are you an expert enough to classify every pitch even if you are 100 or 200 feet away from the plate?

Well, listen now to some testimony from men right in the thick of things. If they can't decide what happened, what chance have you got back there is your seat, peering down from a bad angle?

This is on an important pitch, too. It was the one Joe DiMaggio belted for a home run in the 10th inning of yesterday's World Series game to give victory to New York Yankees over Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1.

Robin Roberts, the Phillie pitcher, declared:

"It was a fast ball, belt high. I had to challenge him with a fast one. I was behind two balls and one strike."

Said DiMaggio:

"I thought it was a low, inside slider, the ball I hit. Course he will probably say it was something else. They always do. But it looked like a low inside slider to me. I went down with it."

A fast ball and a slider are two entirely different things. A fast ball is just what you would think — a ball thrown with all the speed a pitcher can command. A slider is a curve ball with a gentle bend to it instead of a fast break — the pitcher grips it on the smooth part instead of on the seams, so it does not get as much twist as does a curve ball.

Phils Play Good Ball

Even before he heard what Roberts said, Joe indicated he expected to have an argument. That's because he has been through this kind of thing before.

Aside from such technical disputes, the series dressing rooms took on a different tone yesterday. The Yankees really acted excited after winning that 10-inning thriller. They smiled, shouted in subdued way, and unbent. The Phillies, of course, were morose and full of self-criticism.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees, who has yet to smile since the series started, replied like this to the question as to whether his team would win in four straight:

"No, Sir. I didn't say that. The Phils play good ball. They play hard. All their pitchers are great. When the other guys are pretty good I don't lie about it, I give 'em credit. There has been four great pitching performances — two on each side — in two days."

Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies summed it up like this:

"We got our only run thanks to a bad bounce over Gerry Coleman's head at second base. It looks like we need four bases on balls to score. Well, there is one solace. We can't be any worse in the Yankee Stadium."

Topsy-Turvy Big Four Season Starts Last Half

(By The Canadian Press)

They start in Saturday on the last leg of a topsy-turvy Big Four football season, and it's still anybody's fight.

A trail of shattered crystal balls attests to the startling form reversals of the first half of the schedule. Toronto's amazing Argonauts, almost unanimously consigned to the cellar by pre-season dopesters, now are favored to take it all.

Argos take on Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto, holding a two point edge over Hamilton and Ottawa Rough Riders. The Grey cup champion Montreal Alouettes, trailing with only two victories, face Ottawa in the capital. The two teams return to Montreal for a Sunday game while Toronto journeys to Hamilton Monday, Thanksgiving Day.

The United States draft is expected to play a big part in the future of both Toronto and Hamilton.

Argos lost outside Bob Heck, called up for service with the U.S. Marines. But big Bill McCormick, a lineman cut adrift earlier this year by Argos, has been signed as a replacement.

Hamilton's ace plunging half, Bill Gregus, has also been ordered to report to the U.S. armed services Oct. 16. However, Gregus may obtain deferment because of his status as a student.

Argos will also be without the defensive strength of Elroy (Buckets) Hirsch, smashing centre secondary man, and veteran halfback Byron Karrys. Both are out with injuries.

Andy Gordon, Ottawa quarterback, is back practising after suffering a slight concusion. Pete Karpuk is also back in shape after a shaking-up.

Gerry Lefebvre, out of action for several games, returns to the line-up, and linemen John Wagoner and Benny Steck reported recovered from injuries, will be dressed.

In the west, the first-place Edmonton Eskimos tangle with Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina, while Calgary Stampeders face the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg.

No Injuries

There are no injuries on the Bombers as they go into their two game home series — the Eskimos play there Monday —and the latter game is regarded by the Bombers as their chance to raceup the loss of prestige suffered last Monday when they went into the fourth quarter against the Eskimos with a 10-point lead and lost the game.

Winnipeg and Edmonton are in a close battle for the leadership with the Eskimos only two points in front with one more game played.

The Edmonton-Winnipeg game may develop into a passing duel between Lindy Berry, Edmonton's classy Texan import, and Indian Jack Jacobs, former Green Bay Packer.

The Saturday game may mean the end of Les Lear's Stampeders as far as this season is concerned. With only two victories in 10 games of the 15-game schedule they can't afford to drop another.

It could be a rough weekend for the roughriders. Three of them will be on the sidelines for the Saturday afternoon contest with Edmonton. George Festeryga, Johnny Bell and Gordon Perry are the injured players.

Festeryga is in hospital with a bruised kidney, Bell has a dislocated shoulder and Perry is still nursing an arm dislocation. Mat Anthony and Del Wardien also are in poor shape, but are expected to see action.

On the brighter side, fullback Nelson Green probably will be back in harness.

Eskimos Strengthened

The Eskimos will be strengthened [illegible] sively and defensively, with speedy Doug Pyzer, sidelined the last two games by a rib separation, back in action. And lineman Earl Valiquette has recovered from a pulled back muscle.

The Calgary team spirit appears to be at a season high, with the line, which has appeared weak all season, beginning to strengthen. The return of Normie (China Clipper) Kwong injured at the start of the season also seems to have injected new life.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union, the lowly Windsor Rockets do battle with Sarnia's undefeated Imperials. On Thanksgiving Day, Sarnia goes to Toronto to face the improved Balmy Beach team.

The college loop gets into full swing Saturday too. Toronto Varsity Blues tussle with the tricolor of Queen's University in Kingston. The defending champion Western Mustangs play McGill in Montreal.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 6 (AP)—After 12-year absence, Danielle Darrieux is back in Hollywood with surprising viewpoint—she dislikes the nudity of French fashions.

"I think it is terrible," she remarked. "Why, they have décolleté down here." She indicated her waist.

Miss Darrieux, who was wearing a smartly tailored and unrevealing dress, also deplored the French bathing suits. "They wear two strips of cloth like that," she said, holding her fingers an inch apart. "You go on the beaches and see nothing but nudity. I wear a two-piece suit myself, but not like the Bikini.

"I think nudity is wrong in fashions. A woman is much more attractive for what she conceals, not reveals."

Too Expensive

"Paris fashions are lovely," she added, "but far too expensive. The prices are outrageous. Why, you can pay a half-million francs for one evening gown. The only ones who can afford the exclusive gowns are the fat old women who are laden with jewelry.

"The rest of the French women go to the shops where they can get copies of dresses from the style showings."

The French actress is here to act in "Welcome to Paris" for M.G.M. Her only other American film was "The Rage of Paris," which she made in 1938 with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Universal lavished a big publicity splurge on her, advising that her last name should be pronounced "Dare-you."

Sketchy Reason

But she went home after the picture and did not return. She is sketchy about the reason. "They never called me back," she said. "Then the war came and I stayed at home with my family."

AT THE BELLE — Handsome William Holden and glamorous Gloria Swanson are starred with sensational newcomer Nancy Olsen in Paramount's "Sunset Boulevard," a Hollywood love story, showing today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Margaret O'Brien in "The Canterville Ghost," is the second feature on Saturday matinee at 3.00 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL — Huntz Hall proves irresistible to lovely Wendy Waldron in Monogram's new Bowery Boys' comedy, "Lucky Losers," now at the Capitol Theatre, with Leo Gorcey in the starring role. On the same program "Cheyenne Takes Over." Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open at 12.30.

AT THE CAPITOL — Al "Fuzzy" St. John slips past one of the badmen who thought he held the bewiskered gent at bay. The above scene is from the PRC film, "Cheyenne Takes Over," now playing at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. On the same program, "Lucky Losers," starring Leo Gorcey and the Bowery Boys. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A sound opening one bid should promise better than average in all main items. The main items are tricks, high cards (no-trump tricks), sure tricks, and the suit named as trump.

It is understood, of course, that a player must bid when partner forces with a signal. But in any later round of bidding, any additional values are shown with an increase in the last contract number.

Take this deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 7
♥K 9
♦6 5 3
♣K 10 7 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠A 3	♠J 9 5 4 2
♥4 2	♥A J 3
♦K Q J 9 4	♦A 10
♣A Q 9 3	♣8 6 5

SOUTH
♠10 8 6
♥Q 10 8 7 6 5
♦8 7 2
♣J

The bidding goes like this:

West	East
1 D.	1 S
2 C	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

The opener shows better than average, inclusive of five tricks. Only four of these tricks need be high cards. The fifth may be only a short card in some suit when the bid is in a suit.

Any response other than a pass by partner of the opener shows at least three tricks. If the response is in a suit it is admitted that such a suit is at least biddable. As with the bid of one spade.

The second round bid of two clubs by west is a raise in number. It shows a sixth trick in the south hand. Since the raise is in suit the sixth trick may be another short card.

Being a takeout to a new suit, east is forced to bid again. Having no more takeouts and no assist, no-trump is the only bid left. Being forced, the bid of two no-trump by east shows nothing additional.

The only bid left to west is no-trump, if any. He has one high card more than his opening promised. His raise to three no-trump shows it.

East thus becomes the declarer at a contract of three no-trump. Opening lead from south is heart seven. Make it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Last nite pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and I said, Hay pop, I've got a swell chance to get a swell medal.

Whose life do you have to save? pop said, and I said, Just some babies. I have to sell 5 dollers erth of Milk Seals, to provide free milk for poor babies without any. All us fellows are trying to sell them and get a medal. Will you buy a doller's werth and give me a good start, pop? I said.

I'll think about it, pop said.

And after a while I saw his coat hanging on the back of a chair, and I had a good idea and reached in the pockit and got his little red memorandum book and put some strips of Milk Seals between different pages to remind him, and today after supper I said, Hay pop, have you thawt any more about buying a doller's werth of Milk Seals?

By gollies that reminds me, pop said. When I got to my office this morning I found an important letter requesting certain information, and do you know where that information was? he said, and I said, Heh? Why? Where?

It was in my memorandum book, and when I opened the book to get it I found that it was gone forever under a flood of mucillage off the backs of Milk Seals, pop said, and I said, G. heck.

That's the same remark that I made when I saw my memorandum book, pop said. And I made an even more violent remark when I opened it to another page for an important private telefone number, and it wasn't there. It was under another deluge of mucillidge. I'm thinking of applying myself for free milk or a poor baby. There's one in this house, or at least he acts like one, he said.

Meening me, and I decided to postpone the subject till pop had time to forget.

The main trubble being he's got a good memory.

I.O.O.F. Grand Master Pays Official Visit

Picton—The official visit of Charles A. Hutchison, Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows to Bay of Quinte District No. 47, was the occasion of an enjoyable banquet at Quinte Lodge No. 143, Picton, Tuesday night. There were 125 Oddfellows in attendance from Picton, Belleville, Trenton and Brighton. Dinner was served by the Macpelah Rebekah Lodge.

P.D.D.G.M. Robert Cockburn presided as toastmaster. District Deputy Grand Master Lenoard Robinson welcomed the Grand Master to the lodge and Mayor William Henley welcomed him to the town.

The Grand Master gave an enlightening address on the work of the Order and had words of praise for the work being done by the district lodges. After Ben Begbie had given a report of the local Cancer, Polio and Tuberculosis Fund, the Grand Master commended the lodge on its fine work.

A toast to the ladies was given by Harry Palen with Mrs. Earl Hicks, Noble Grand of the Rebekah lodge responding. Edward Rolston, Noble Grand of the Picton lodge and several visiting members spoke briefly.

MARMORA

C.W.L. MEETS

Marmora— The October meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Tuesday evening with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Cook, occupied the chair. Reports from the conveners of social service, Mrs. C. Crawford and Mrs. K. Donaldson were received.

Miss Mary Hughes, convener of the sewing club displayed a beautiful quilt which will be quilted in the school on Friday by the members, when a pot luck dinner will be served. The correspondence was dealt with which included many thank you letters for gifts received. Mrs. P. Brawley and Mrs. Joseph Doyle volunteered to visit the sick and shutins for the coming month. Mrs. F. Johnston and Mrs. J. Clairmont were appointed conveners for Group No. 4 and Group No. 7 was requested to furnish refreshments for the November meeting.

The president displayed samples of draperies and curtains for the new parish hall and Mrs. C. Cook and Mrs. C. Crawford were appointed to look after the purchasing of same.

Mrs. Sandham displayed some everlasting flowers in fancy pots, which she is preparing for sale at the annual bazaar.

The president thanked the members for their assistance and cooperation at the bake sale and also at the booth at the fair. She reminded the members of the bazaar coming up and hoped they were working on the articles for the fancy goods table. She stated that Father O'Neill had donated $10 for apron material and the aprons were being made by Mrs. Jos. Freeman.

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill then addressed the members and expressed his regret that Mrs. C. Brady had resigned the office of president, but was glad that the vacancy had been filled by the former president, Mrs. C. Cook, who was well qualified to fill the position. He discussed the selection of curtains for the hall and thanked Mrs. Dermont Bedore for her donation of $12 realized by a euchre party held in her home.

A discussion was then held and it was decided to hold a bingo in the school next Tuesday evening. The president then passed around holiday coin bags to the members who were to contribute a dime on each holiday and then on their birthday before the May meeting in 1951.

Mrs. J. Black then took charge of the program and the following numbers were enjoyed.

Reading, "The Holy Rosary", Mrs. H. Brady; hymn, Schubert's "Ave Marie", Mrs. H. Brady; reading "An Irish Te Deum", Mrs. Ed Warren reading, "Our Lady of Fatima", Miss F. Auger and song, "Our Lady of Fatima", Mrs. H. Brady. Mrs. J. Black was the accompanist.

In a drawing held by Mrs. P. Brawley for a scarf and bag, donated by Miss K. Doyle, the holder of the lucky ticket was Mrs. Sylvester Phillips of Deloro.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the ladies of Group 4.

Personals

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

Shayne sighed. "I make a point of suspecting everyone and everything. I see it this way: I believe the gang had a buyer for the bracelet when they snatched it . . and the Rajah is a logical candidate. At ten o'clock last night they had no intention of dickering with the insurance company for a reward. Something happened during the next few hours that caused them to change their minds. Why did they decide not to deal with the Rajah? Did you get to them first, Walter? And did the Rajah find it out? Is that why he sent for you suddenly?"

"Is the insurance company offering a reward?" countered the jeweler.

"I don't know." Shayne brushed the question aside. "The way things are shaping up now, I don't believe we'll have to pay a reward. I think I can put my hands on the bracelet right now without paying anybody off."

"That's wonderful," Voorland said. "How did you manage it so quickly?"

"I'm asking the questions" Shayne told him angrily. "This is your last chance to tell me what the Rajah wanted. Without that information I'm going to bull this thing through on a hunch. . .and God help anyone who stands in my way."

"Give me time to think it over Mike," begged Voorland. "If I decide that any information I have has the slightest bearing on Mrs. Dustin's death, I give you my word of honor I won't withhold it. In order to decide that you must explain how she died."

Shayne studied the jeweler's face for a full sixty seconds. The man was badly shaken and he was frightened but Shayne believed he was telling the truth. He didn't believe Voorland had realized that murder was involved until he, himself, had informed him. Despite his fanatical desire to recover the bracelet Shayne decided that Voorland would draw the line at protecting a murderer.

He nodded and gave a brief account of the manner in which Celia Dustin had met her death. Voorland listened attentively and when Shayne finished, he got up to stride across the room and back.

"I'm afraid I don't understand" he confessed. I don't yet see how my information can help you. I'll tell you one thing, though. I'm morally certain Mrs. Dustin was not in on the attack on her husband."

Shayne nodded agreement. "I don't go for that theory myself. But she must have known something. Something that was dangerous to someone who saw to it that she would never tell anyone."

"Perhaps it was some detail about the hold-up that she forgot in the first confusion and worry. Something that she remembered later and felt . you should know."

"That's quite possible. Are you in the market for the bracelet?" Shayne asked suddenly.

"I" faltered Voorland. "It belongs to Mr. Dustin, you know. It's legally his property."

"I don't imagine he cares too much. He's fully protected by the insurance, and with his wife gone. . ."

"I am willing to refund the full purchase price if it is recovered and he doesn't wish to keep it," said Voorland with dignity.

Shayne stood up and said shortly "start thinking things over, Walter. I'm waiting for some information from New York and Ohio. I'll be ready to move when I receive it, and maybe that time you'll decide your scruples are ill advised and be ready to tell me where the Rajah fits in. Don't try to contact him," he advised casually as he neared the door. "I've got his telephone tapped and a tail on him."

He went out to his car with the glum thought that he hadn't accomplished much, but if he could get enough people stirred up there was bound to be a break somewhere along the line.

Timothy Rourkes apartment wasn't far from Voorland's, though in a far less swanky neighborhood. The elevator man told him the reporter was in, and he went up and pounded on the door. Rourke finally opened it, yawning. His rumpled pajamas hung on his frame like the misfiting garments on a scarecrow He let Shayne enter the living room and offered him a drink and poured a snort for himself.

"You're determined a guy shan't have any sleep, so I guess I'd better have an eye-opener," he complained.

Shayne grinned and said "you should complain after all the scoops I've given you."

Rourke took a long swallow of his drink and turned his deep-set eyes on the detective. "You got a scoop?"

"Maybe," said Shayne carually.

"Sit down and bring me up-to-date on things." Rourke toed a chair up beside the couch and sat down. Shayne sank down on the sofa and placed his drink on the table.

"Things may be breaking," he confided, and after a few irrelevant remarks he brought the conversation around to Mark and Celia Dustin.

"I liked Dustin," Rourke declared after half the drink had warmed his stomach. "Thirty years of newspaper work and I still get a sick feeling in my belly when I break the news to a husband or wife. . or a mother and father," he added, "like in the Kathleen Deland kidnapping case. The Dustins had only been married two years, Mike."

Shayne chuckled. "You're a romanticist at heart, Tim. That's why one of these days you'll write a great American novel. Yeh. The bracelet was an anniversary present to Celia Dustin. How did Dustin take her death?"

Rourke was moodily silent for a moment, then he said "without breaking down. A tough westerner like Dustin wouldn't. But he is convinced his wife did not have anything to do with the theft, no matter what sort of case Painter tries to make out. He'll fight any man who does believe it, broken right hand and all."

"Then he doesn't believe she doped him intentionally?"

Rourke shifted his position in the chair and said "he doesn't see how to get around that. He figures she decided to take a hand in it and didn't want to waken him. He thinks she remembered some clue that she wanted to tell you."

the beach?"

"J. Donald Bankhead?" Rourke's

"Sounds reasonable," said Shayne moodily. "Do you know a fellow named Bankhead here on torso came forward and his eyes glowed. "What about him?"

"That's what I'm asking you."

Rourke settled back. "He has a curio shop down on South Beach Mostly junk for tourists, but Ive seen some expensive Oriental stuff mixed in with the rest. Nice enough guy, I'd say."

"Rich?"

"All those junk shops do a big business during the tourist season. You know how it is. So far as I know his nose is clean."

"It's dirty right now," Shayne told him sharply. "His so-called gardener and chauffeur and some third party pulled the Dustin job last night in Bankhead's limousine."

"Is that straight?" Rourke jumped up and started pulling off his pajama jacket.

"Off the record and for your information only," Shayne said swiftly and harshly. "He knows I'm on to him, but I haven't any proof yet. He may try to brazen it out. I think he'll try to get rid of the bracelet if he hasn't already unloaded it. You've still got a little drag with the Beach force, haven't you?"

"A little," Rourke agreed, and put his skinny arms back into the pajama sleeves. "Tagging along with you hasn't raised my stock with Painter's men." He sat down dejectedly.

Shayne took his drink in one long swallow, and with his eyes half-closed looking at the glass said "could you pass along enough of a hint to get Bankhead tailed and a check on his movements last night?"

"That shouldn't be too hard."

Shayne put the glass down, got up and said "I'll see you in your office later . . .to pick up replies to those telegrams we sent." He stalked out to his car and drove across the bay to the mainland.

When he entered the small foyer of Earl Randolph's apartment building he pushed the button beneath Randolph's name and held it down for a long time. There was no answer.

Under a card which read 1-A Superintendent the name of E. Palinimo was written in small letters pressed the button and got an answering click of the door immediately. He went in. A door at the right opened and a gray-haired man came out. He wore slippers and trousers and an undershirt, and his suspenders hung down from his waist. He held a lathered shaving brush in his hand and asked gruffly "can I help you?"

"Do you know whether Mr. Randolph is in?"

"Three D? Did you try his button?"

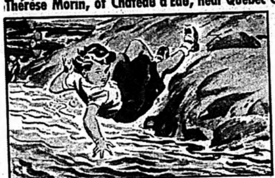
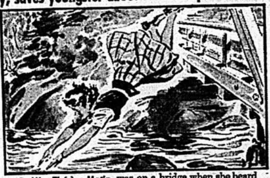
GIRL, 19, PLUNGES 30 FEET INTO ROCK-STREWN RIVER

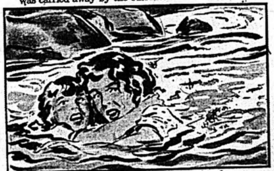
Thérèse Morin, of Chateau d'Eau, near Quebec City, saves youngster about to be swept over falls



1. The little girl, daughter of a vacationing Quebec druggist, had been playing with her friends on the rocks that border the St. Charles River at Chateau d'Eau. With the typical over-confidence of a 9-year-old child, she came too close to the edge — lost her footing and fell into the water. Within seconds she was carried away by the current!



2. Miss Thérèse Morin was on a bridge when she heard the cries of the drowning youngster. Although she had just finished a large meal and that it was 30 feet down to the water's surface, she plunged into the rock-strewn river. Her feet had been cut by the jagged rocks, but she managed to reach the child — just as she was reaching the falls!



3. Strong swimming and a plentiful supply of courage enabled Thérèse Morin, not only to grasp the child before she was swept over the falls, but also to bring her safely in to shore. Because her instinctive action was in keeping with the highest traditions of good citizenship, we are proud to present this brave Canadian girl with The Dow Award.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Americans Making Slow Progress North of 38th Line

South Koreans Battle Reds In Wonsan, Take Airfield

Tokyo, Oct. 10—(AP)—American soldiers and tanks clawed ahead yard by yard with fire-bomb support today against fierce North Korean opposition on the main road leading to communist Korea's capital city, Pyongyang.

The distance to Pyongyang from just above the Parallel-38 border where the American fighting began Monday is 80-odd airline miles almost due east of Pyongyang.

AP correspondent Hal Boyle reported South Korean sources said troops have fought clear through to Wonsan's northern limits after capturing the valuable nearby airfield.

The report said red resistance in the city had dwindled to machine-gun, small-arms and occasional mortar fire.

Correspondent William Jorden reported from Wonsan that the reds fled before the South Koreans but turned back and put up a fight in the northern half.

Between these two battle areas, red forces, partly regrouped in two divisions, put up stiff resistance against South Koreans driving northward in the centre of the peninsula.

The U.S. 1st Calvary Division kicked off in regimental strength Monday from Kaesong just below 38, and ran into stiff red resistance right from the start.

Communist troops were dug in on mountains flanking the main Seoul-Pyongyang road. They poured a withering fire into the advancing troopers and forced them to dig in overnight.

Along 25-Mile Front

The 1st Cavalry troopers fanned out along a 25-mile front.

American tanks, artillery and planes blasted a path through the outer defence lines. The infantry fought through to the vicinity of Sinchon, a highway village about 2½ miles north of 38.

Another cavalry column crossed the Yesong River, 10 miles west of Kaesong, smashed three red counter-attacks, and drove ahead on a northwest tangent.

A third column drove to the vicinity of Panbu, 15 miles northeast of Kaesong.

Gen. MacArthur's Tuesday summary said gains were made against "stubborn enemy resistance supported by small-arms, mortar and artillery fire."

Lt. Col. William Walton said the reds had prepared defensive positions to a depth of 25 miles.

May Not Be Across

A British official announcement said the Commonwealth brigade composed of British and Australian troops was advancing with U.S. first corps units.

A British spokesman said he could not say whether the British forces were across Parallel 38 yet.

MacArthur's headquarters said the biggest known concentration of North Korean troops is in the centre of the peninsula about five miles north of the border. A spokesman said at least two red divisions — 20,000 troops — are massed there.

Two red Korean majors surrendered south of 38 and said they did not expect communist resistance to hold up much longer. One, a medical officer, said the North Korean civilians are "98 per cent unsympathetic" toward their communist rulers.

The other formerly attached to an armored brigade, pedicted there would be little guerilla activity in communist Korea.

THE WEATHER

A very complex disturbance that extends from Eastern Michigan to Southeastern Ontario is causing extensive cloudiness accompanied by intermittent rain over the southern and central parts of the province. Late Monday this same storm brought heavy rain to Southern Ontario with Toronto reporting a total fall of 1.6 inches. At present however the precipitation is light and intermittent. As this band of unsettled weather moves slowly northeastward clearing is looked for in southwestern regions later today and in central and eastern regions Wednesday.

Northern Ontario is expected to have variable cloudiness with little noticeable change in temperature.

Bill Ezinicki Now in Toronto To Talk Terms

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP)—The mystery surrounding Bill Ezinicki's hockey future may be cleared up today.

The thumping right winger arrived by plane from his home at Winnipeg and went into conference with officials of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Ezinicki didn't report for pre-season training with the Leafs at St. Catharines, saying in an interview at Winnipeg that he was not in shape.

Trans-Canada Airlines provided the first report today on his arrival. Clarence (Hap) Day, assistant general manager of the Leafs, said he didn't know the player was arriving. Later he reported that Ezinicki was in touch with him.

Canadian Beards May Appear In U.K. Festival

Canterbury, England, Oct. 10 (CP) — Beards grown in Canada may grace Canterbury's Festival of Britain Pageant next year.

Mayor Stanley Jennings has received a letter from several Canadians offering to grow beards and then come over to take part in the celebrations.

"We are replying to the letter but we cannot say whether it will be accepted," an official said.

Mayor Jennings recently appealed for strong men to grow beards to lend realism to historical aspects of the pageant. But he did not count on a response from as far away as Canada.

MOTHER SENTENCED

Kitchener, Oct. 7 (CP)—A Kitchener mother of three young children yesterday was sentenced to seven days in jail when convicted of a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency. Sentence was suspended on her aged father, convicted on a similar count, on condition he keep away from his daughter's home.

35 INJURED IN R. R. WRECK

Los Angeles, Oct. 10 — (AP)—Thirty-five persons were injured, some seriously, when a Pacific electric passenger train crashed into the rear of a Pacific electric freight train today in heavy fog.

The sheriff's office dispatcher said that apparently no one was killed.

NINE BUSINESS HOUSES GUTTED BY $750,000 FIRE

20 Nfld. Soldiers Assist Firefighters

North Sydney, N.S., Oct. 10 — (CP)—Fire driven by a high wind swept along the business section on this Capt Breton port town today and caused damage officially estimated at more than $750,000.

Nine business houses, including a funeral parlor and a hotel, were destroyed or gutted. Six others were badly damaged and three dwellings destroyed.

At 8 a.m., E.S.T. th blaze, battled by four fire departments from this industrial area of Cape Breton, was still out of control. No casualties were reported in the outbreak that began at 4 a.m.

The blaze, brought under control at 9:30 a.m. E.S.T., was the worst in the history of this town of 4,000 Other bad outbreaks occurred in 1912 and 1945, when a theatre and six other buildings were destroyed.

Fire Chief Bill Parsons and Police Chief Louis Clark were in charge of fire-fighting operations. They were assisted by hundreds of volunteers, including 20 Newfoundland soldiers who were waiting for the island ferry when the fire broke out

A northwest wind of 35 miles an hour lashed the flames through the wooden buildings. Some 25 persons were made homeless and at least 50 put out of work.

Freighter Grounds In Snowstorm

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 10 (CP) —The British freighter Mapledore ran aground at Captain Jack's Tickle in a blinding Labrador snowstorm it was reported today.

A message—from the Newfoundland hospital ship Maraval —gave few details but said that she is standing by the stricken vessel, out of London. The motor vessel Algerine also is standing by.

The report indicated the Mapledore is in no danger and is not leaking.

Lloyd's register of shipping lists the freighter as 4,574 tons. It was estimated here she carries a crew of 35 or 40. No casualties were reported.

CHIEF'S TRAINING COURSE

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Training course for municipal fire chiefs, under the auspices of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department, will open at the University of Toronto on Oct. 26.

D. E. Barrett, assistant director of fire training, of the Ontario Department will preside.

Featured during the two-day course will be talks on civil defence by Maj-Gen. F. F. Worthington, civil defence co-ordinator for Canada and Arthur Welsh, Ontario chairman of the Civil Defence Committee.

Suggests Everyone Has Cancer Cells Trouble is When They Co-operate

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Schenectady, N.Y., Oct. 10—(AP) —A new theory of how people get cancer was presented to the National Academy of Sciences here today.

If the theory is correct, probably everyone has cancer cells in his body from birth to the grave. But they are single, surrounded by healthy cells. And they do not sprout like seeds. The cancer begins only when four to six of them get together and cooperate to start the malignant growth.

The new cancer theory was reported by Dr. J. C. Fisher and Dr. J. H. Hollomon of the General Electric Research Laboratory.

The scientists got the idea from the growth of crystals, such as ice or gems. These crystals start from a small nucleus and grow surprisingly like living things. Crystal growth can be predicted by mathematics.

Fisher and Hollomon applied these mathematics to cancers. They assumed that cancer started from a small particle, a fact well established by cancer research.

One source of cancer is mutations of single tissue cells, which are changes in hereditary characters of a single cell.

The researchers got from the American Society the rates of cancer in human being. These are more numerous in elderly people and infants than in children.

The crystal mathematics showed that these differences in cancer in the three age groups were what would be expected if the Gene mutation evidence were correct. The elderly, in these mathematics, have more cancers because the accumulation of mutated cells over the years increases the probability of them getting together.

For infants, the explanation is found in the faster rate of cell growth during that early period. There are more mutated cells and therefore better chances of them getting together. As the body grows, and the cell rate of production drops, this chance for cancer decreases.

Truman Will Fly to Meet MacArthur in Pacific

Washington, Oct. 10—(AP) — President Truman announced today he will meet this weekend with General MacArthur in the Pacific to discuss "the final phase of United Nations actions in Korea".

Truman said in a statement that he will also discuss with MacArthur "other matters within his responsibility." He did not say what these were.

Truman's statement did not say where he would meet with the United Nations commander.

The White House withheld an announcement on the place of the meeting. But is was presumed to be somewhere west of Hawaii.

It was learned the president will go directly to the rendezvous from St. Louis whither he is flying tomorrow.

The White House sources which gave this word to reporters declined to elaborate on the occasion for the meeting.

Possibly one purpose of the Truman-MacArthur meeting is to review the whole Pacific situation before the President addresses the United Nations General Assembly Oct. 24.

MacArthur and the Truman administration have disagreed over policy toward Formosa, island stronghold of the Chinese nationalist government.

MacArthur has taken the position that is is essential to United States' far Pacific defence line that Formosa be kept out of unfriendly hands. The administration position is that Formosa's future is a matter for the United Nations to decide.

Opposes Plan to Lure Football Talent to Varsity

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto today cracked down on an alumni plan to lure "promising football talent" to the university.

Revealing a move by several "old grads" soliciting contributions to persuade football players to enroll at Varsity, Dr. Smith said "any project to subsidize players, however unofficial, will be officially opposed."

He did not name the alumni involved, but said the appeal was strictly unofficial. He said the group sent a letter to a select list of graduates asking for contributions.

"We have an amateur team, and the university intends to hold the line against professionalism," he said. Football is an accepted part of college life, "but we of the university must never forget that it is an educational institution."

"I am confident that the staff, the students and a vast majority of the graduates and public will support what may be a last-ditch stand against the forces of professionalism which have obscured the true objectives of student athletics in many American universities.

Warren Stevens, university athletic director, said the scheme was "news" to him.

The Toronto football team finished last in the four-team Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union last year. Fielding an inexperienced team, they won their first 1950 league start Saturday, downing Queen's 7-1 in Kingston.

One-Legged Vet Wins $264,138 In Football Pool

Carlisle, Cumberland, England, Oct. 10 (Reuters)—Thomas Wood, 42, a one-legged clerk, today won £94,335 ($264,138) for one shilling in a football pool—the highest pool dividend ever paid in Britain.

Wood, a married man with two sons, lost his right leg while serving as a sergeant-major with the British army in Burma during the last war.

Last week in the same pool, he won £9 for sixpence, which encouraged him to double his stake this week. His previous biggest pool win was £53.

A 71-year-old woman last week won a dividend of £91,785 for a sixpence investment.

Couple Wedded Before Altar of Crates in Korea

U. S. 10th Corps Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 10 — (AP) — Before an altar of packing crates in a shell-torn building, James F. King of Worcester, Mass., and Lieut. Anna Jacobs of Muskogee, Okla., were married Sunday.

They became engaged last summer. The Korean War interrupted their wedding plans. King was sent overseas almost immediately. Weeks later Nurse Jacobs was assigned to Korea.

Ten days ago they chanced to meet at headquarters. Then came the first U. S. Army wedding in Korea since the war.

7-Day Sentence And $100 Fine For Low Flying

Dundas, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) — Believed the first time a jail sentence has been imposed for low flying, Robert Milson, 26, was sentenced to seven days in jail and fined $100 or an additional two months in jail today.

Milson pleaded guilty to a charge of low flying over Spring Valley survey in nearby Ancaster Sept. 29.

Harry Moyer Ex-Cartoonist Killed in Crash

Grand Island, N.Y., Oct. 10—(CP) —Harry B. (Hy) Moyer, 68, retired Canadian cartoonist, was killed in an automobile collision yesterday. His wife and two daughters were injured in the head-on crash.

Mr. Moyer, who started as a cartoonist with the Toronto Star later working for King Features Syndicate in New York. In the 1930s he returned to Toronto where he joined the staff of the Telegram. During the Second World War he was a cartographer for the Toronto Globe and Mail. Since then he has been living in retirement in Toronto.

S.A. Declares 'Open Sunday Offence to God'

Montreal, Oct. 10 (CP) —Resolutions deploring liquor legislation, Sunday sports, gambling, indifference to religion and materialistic education were unanimously adopted by Salvation Army officers at their 68th annual congress here.

The convention, ending today, brought together officers from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Quebec.

The body condemned "over indulgence in strong drinking, as the "greatest single evil of modern times."

Declaring "open Sunday" was an offence against God, the officers commend the Lord's Day Alliance and other "Christian and public-minded individuals who have raised their voices against commercialized Sunday sport."

U. K. PARLIAMENT SESSION

London, Oct. 10 (AP) — The present session of Parliament will end Oct. 26, it was announced today. The new session will begin on Oct. 31.

Also on Oct. 26 the King will meet members of both Houses in a colorful ceremony preceding the opening of the new House of Commons chamber. The old chamber was destroyed by German bombs May 10, 1941.

Parliament now is completing its summer recess. It will return to Westminster next Tuesday.

RUSSIA CHARGES PLANES STRAFED SOVIET AIRFIELD

U.S. Says Matter Should Be Dealt With by U.N.

Moscow, Oct. 10 (AP)—Russia charged last night that two American fighter planes strafed and damaged a Soviet airfield near the key Siberian seaport of Vladivostok last Sunday.

A Russian protest note was proferred to the United States Minister-Counsellor, Walworth Barbour, by Andrei Y. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister. The note placed the incident 62 miles north of the Russian-Korean border.

It demanded "strict punishment" for the "responsible personnel" and American assurances against such incidents in the future.

The note said two F-80 Shooting Star jets machine-gunned . . airfield in the Sukhaya Rechka area. Suyhaya Rechka is across Novik Bay from Vladivostok and about 18 miles of that important Siberian rail and shipping terminus.

"As a result of the firing, damage was inflicted on airdrome equipment," the note declared. It made no mention of casualties.

Barbour declined to accept the note on the grounds the protest was a matter for the United Nations to handle.

Gromyko disagreed, arguing that since the note dealt with the firing by American planes on a Russian installation, it was the sole concern of the two governments involved.

The note subsequently was sent by the Rusians to the American embassy. U.S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, who had been in bed with a cold, went there early this morning to inform the State Department by cable of the Soviet communication.

Published Without Comment 6

The note was published in Moscow papers without editorial comment.

In refusing to accept the note, Barbour took the same stand as was taken by the United States last September, when Russia protested the downing of a Russian lpace by American aircraft off Korea.

That note was never accepted by the United States, and Russia submitted it to the U.N. for consideration only, not for action. It has remained shelved.

Korea has a long common frontier with Manchuria, China, but borders on the Soviet Union for only about 20 miles along the extreme north-eastern tip of Lorthern Korea.

Oct. 3 the United States acknowledged that Aug. 27 American planes fired by accident on a communist Chinese airstrip in Antung, Manchuria—far west of the scene of the alleged violation o fthe Soviet frontier.

The Manchurian incident was protested by the Chinese communist government. Unlike the Russian notes, its complaint was addressed to the U.N. Security Council rather than to the United States.

Peiping has no diplomatic relations with the United States, which has not recognized the communist regime.

The U.S. proposed that a U.N. commission be appointed to make a spot investigation of the Chinese charges, but the proposal was vetoed in the security council by Russia.

FOXHOLES OUTSIDE FRONTIER

Berlin, Oct. 10 — (AP) — Russian-zone communist police yesterday dug several foxholes for machine-gun crews in the American sector of Berlin but hurriedly retreated when they discovered they were outside their own frontier, the U.S. high commission reported today.

Genealogy Experts Look to Canada For Missing Heir to Old Peerage

London, Oct. 10. (CP)—Experts in genealogy looked to Canada today for the missing heir to a peerage created 400 years ago by King Henry VIII.

Editors of Debrett's Peerage—sometimes irreverently called the Bible of the blue bloods—appealed for help in tracing a man named Harry Edward Plunkett, who left to seek his fortune in Canada before the turn of the century.

If Plunkett is still alive, he would be 102 years old—and No. 1 heir to one of Ireland's oldest families.

"If we can't locate Plunkett or any close relatives he might have had," Debrett's said today, "it would hold up any succession to the title of the future."

Debrett's experts became worried about Plunkett after the death last February of the 15th Lord Louth. His 21-year-old son, Otway Michael James Oliver Plunkett, succeeded. That left Harry Edward Plunkett next in line.

Special Brigade Vanguard Now At U.S. Camp

Troops May be Delegated Either to Korea or Europe

Fort Lewis, Wash., Ot. 10—(CP) —More than 100 officers and men "housekeeping" vanguard of a troop movement unprecedented in Canadian military history, rolled into this huge United States army training centre last night.

At an undisclosed later date, a self-contained brigade of 4,000 to 5,000 men—about half of those recruited as a special United Nations force for action in Korea—will arrive at the 30,000-acre training ground which served as jumping-off point for thousands of American troops in the Second World War and for the U.S. 2nd Division now in Korea.

Just what Canada plans for the troops hasn't been announced yet, but never before has it sent troops on so large a scale to train in a foreign country.

The brigade, commanded by Brig. J. M. Rockingham of Vancouver, is bound on present plans for further training in the east—likely the U.S. army base at the Pacific Island of Okinawa.

That has been mentioned as a possible advance training point by the Canadian government with sailing date scheduled for mid-November.

It may be, however, that only a token occupation force will be asked of Canada now that action in Korea apparently is headed for a final mop-up shortly.

Good Mustering Centre

In that case, most of the troops might be freed for any United Nations forces held in the far east, or might be delegated to the European theatre. Canada has not committed herself to such a step, but has indicated officially that she will join any such organization established by Atlantic Pact countries to safeguard Europe. What she will do with the other half of the special force in unknown.

Selection of Fort Lewis as a mustering centre for the brigade was made because Canada has no adequate training centres handy enough for such a jumping-off point, sources here say.

At least part of the training to be given here for the troops assembled from bases across Canada will be "processing" into American-type arms.

Because of the U.S. role in United Nations police action, and because of the growing joint Canadian-U.S. arms integration, that step is essential.

It was planned during the late sages of the Second World War to integrate Canada's 6th Division bound for action against Japan. The war ended before Canadian troops reached the U.S. bases slated to train them.

Suitable For Training

Before the U.S. 2nd Division sailed for Korea, the base contained 20,000 men. It handled a during the Second World War. The number much higher than that surrounding terrain is suitable for almost any type of training.

Yesterday's truck-and-bus convoy from Vancouver, commanded by Maj. William Campbell, arrived late yesterday, went through a brief official greeting and march past reviewing stand and took over quarters assigned them.

Col. Carl H. Boehm Friday headed an officer group preceding the larger force.

THROWN FROM BACK SEAT

Cornwall, Oct. 10 (CP) — Thrown from the back seat of a motorcycle, Oscar Houle, 22, of nearby Moose Creek was killed Monday night near Berwick, 25 miles north of here. The driver, Malcolm Morrison, also of Moose Creek, was uninjured.

Motor Vehicles Will Cost Govt. $36,000,000

Ottawa, Oct. 10 (CP) — The government has earmarked $36,000,000 for the purchase of motor vehicles for the defence department and announcement is expected shortly of big, multi-million dollar orders for the production of jeeps by Canada's automotive industry.

Defence Minister Claxton said the sum includes $21,000,000 for the development and purchase of American type vehicles to be produced in this country. Informed quarters said that probably means big production orders for Canada's auto plants at Windsor and Oshawa, Ont.

Defence sources said the $36,000,000 will probably be spent not only on jeeps but other types of vehicles as well, including some for the special army force.

Mother of 23 Failed to Share In Millar Will

Toronto, Oct. 10, (CP)—Mrs. Grace Bagnato, 61, died Saturday. She was the mother of 23 children, nine or them born between 1926 and 1936, the period of the famous $500,000 Millar stork derby.

Mrs. Bagnato failed to share in the money, left by Charles Vance Millar, an eccentric Toronto lawyer, to the Toronto mother who gave birth to the most children in the 10 years after his death in 1926.

A court ruled her ineligible to share in the money because two of her nine children were unregistered. The money was divided among four Toronto women after a length court dispute.

FAVORITE WINS STAKE

Ascot, England, Oct. 7 (Reuters) —Cagire II romped home to win the $28,000 King George VI Stakes here today by four lengths.

The 4-1 favorite, owned by Mrs. Evan Williams, was ridden by Charlie Elliott.

Baron G. de Waldern's French Army, Fast Fox, was second. An Irish contender, Beau Sire, was third.

"LIL" WHALEN DIES

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Lillian (Lil) Whalen, a link between the old vaudeville days and the motion picture era, died Sunday. She was a checkroom attendant at Shea's theatres here for more than 50 years.

15-POUND TYEE SALMON ENJOYED BY CITY RESIDENTS

Pan-fried bass, pickerel or lunge have their own merits for the fish lover, but Mr. and Ernest Martin, Church Street, had a rare piscatorial treat for their week-end fare.

They dined on fresh British Columbia Tyee salmon, sent to them by their son, Leslie. The fish, a 15-pounder, was expressed via air and arrived in perfect condition.

Earlier in the season Mr. Martin, who lives in British Columbia caught a 54-pounder with a 20-pound tes' line.

JOHNNY SEMARK JOINS SPECIAL FORCE

Johnny Semark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Semark, 260 Coleman Street, has joined the Special Service force of the Canadian Army.

Semark, well known in sports here, served four years in the Canadian Navy during the last war. His father, also a veteran of the Second World War served five years with the 34th Battery RCA.

Johnny was born in Belleville and went to school here.

PETERBOROUGH VET WINNER OF DRAW

The winner of the draw for the scholarship prize of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association, was Mr. S. R. Halton, of Peterborough. The draw was made at the reunion banquet held in the Club Vanity Fair on Sunday. Proceeds of the draw which are estimated at well over $800 will go to the regimental scholarship fund, which will provide college educations for selectees from sons and daughters of members of the regiment who were killed in action or died of wounds.

S. A. WILL RAISE MONEY TO SEND PARCELS OVERSEAS

On Thursday evening, the home league of the local Salvation Army Corps is sponsoring an evening of entertainment in the citadel for the purpose of raising money for overseas parcels. Mrs. Brigadier Gage will preside over the gathering, feature of which will be an illustrated recitation entitled "The Changed Cross." The Citadel band and songsters will provide special music for the occasion and the public is cordially invited.

WINNERS OF PRIZE DRAWS

Winners of the prize draws at T. A. Tucker and Co. Limited, this morning were Mrs. S. Smith, 164 West Moira Street, who won an electric kitchen clock; Mrs. C. Heath, 164 George Street, Apt. 2, whose prize is an electric iron, and Mrs. George Winters, 167 Dundas Street East, who won an electric toaster.

The draw was connected with National Radio Week, which was held last week. It has no bearing on the draw for the radios in Toronto. Prize winners may pick up their awards at the Tucker store.

Memorial Arena To Have Ice After Oct. 13th

Hockey may be closer than you think.

At a special meeting this morning of the Arena Commission, it was recommended that ice be installed in Memorial Arena as soon after October 13th as possible.

It was learned on information from a member of the CNRAA delegation present that six teams, Queen's University Belleville, Gananoque, Nylons of Kingston, Peterborough Hockey Club and Peterborough Legion will form the 1950 Senior "B" group from this district. Authority of this information is O.H.A. convener Lorne Cook of Kingston.

The commission will inspect and test the Stewart-Warner public address system which has been installed in the arena for approval and if found satisfactory recommend its purchase.

The commission will purchase a new set of goal nets and equipment.

A delegation from the Belleville Hockey Association consisting of Messrs. Ken McNaught, Jack Yanover and Dick Beare waited on the commission as did the CNRAA delegation of Harper McElrath and Jim Ethier. They urged the installation of ice as soon as possible due to the fact that O.H.A. operations will start in November this year.

Alderman A. McLean Haig presided over the meeting with Commissioners Claude D. Tice and Mayor Jack Allin attending.

Stolen Chicks Found Huddled Behind Barn

Just because chickens leave their roost is no reason to believe that they have been stolen.

Just this was found out over the weekend by a Dundas Street resident who complained to police that 14 Plymouth Rock chickens had been stolen from his barn.

The police officer investigated the reported theft, but found it was merely a false alarm. The "stolen" chickens were found behind the owner's barn—where they had been chased by the family dog.

POLICE BLOTTER

It was expensive target shooting for a group of boys who Monday morning were found shooting on Zwick's Island. An employee of the filtration plant complained that bullets were coming in his direction with result that a constable investigated. Owner of the rifle had no gun license and the gun was confiscated.

An electric defroster fan was reported stolen from Reid's service station, Bridge Street. The fan was believed to have been stolen by some young men who had stopped for gasoline.

The manager of a local cafe complained that three men had ordered steaks and then neglected to pay for them. When the manager approached the men with respect to payment they disappeared down a nearby alley. Police were called but the men had disappeared.

Clothes line thieves were busy over the weekend. A woman at 393½ Front Street reported that numerous articles of underwear and other clothing had been taken from her line.

Two young girls from the Cobourg girls' training school were picked up by provincial police and were later returned to the school. The girls had taken French leave from the Institution.

Nearly 800 Hasty Pees, Wives Enjoy Color and Camaraderie Of Regiment's 6th Reunion

By G.H.C.

The Sixth Annual Reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held here over the weekend, lived up to pre get-together predictions.

It was voted, without a doubt, the best "rebellion" held by the unit since reunion inception six years ago. And upwards of 800 of these famous "plowboy" soldiers can't be wrong.

From Pittsburgh, Pa., Northern Quebec, the Maritimes, the prairie and all parts of Ontario, came these ex-buddies of a famous infantry regiment that wrote a glowing page in the book of Canada's fighting achievements.

From the top "brass" which included a federal cabinet minister on whose breast gleamed the red of the Victoria Cross, a major general, several ex-regimental commanders, and other high-ranking officers to the humblest private, these men met in the common camaraderie that only those who have met death, defied it and lived, can.

The "Fighting First"

On their heads were the red berets of the First Division. On their breasts glittered decorations, awards and other medals. On the arms of some, were the bands denoting "Assoro" and "Duffy" clubs, branches of the post-war regimental association. They had the "freedom of the city" and took full advantage of it.

They brought their ladies with them. They, too, enjoyed to the full, the hospitality of the regiment, and the city. They entered into the spirit of reunion, as their ex-soldier husbands again relived the experiences of the light and dark sides of the war.

The Bridge Street armouries, and the messes of the Church St. Armouries rang to the sound of reminiscences on Saturday afternoon. In the evening the Hasty Pees and their ladies enjoyed a dance held on the drill floor. Groups of buddies celebrated far into the early hours of the morning.

The White Battalion'

But with all the thrill of reunion, the joys of again meeting familiar faces, the Hasty Pees did not forget their buddies of the "White Battalion", those who gave their lives for civilization.

On Sunday, to the stirring music of three crack bands, the Queen's Own Rifles Drum and Bugle Band, Toronto; the Belleville Municipal Band and the Peterborough Civic Band, they marched 500 strong to the city cenotaph where they paid reverent tribute to the memory of those buddies who "went west".

Later they sat at the festive board where 350 enjoyed the reunion banquet held in the Club Vanity Fair.

Following the banquet, regimental business was conducted at the annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Association. Officers were elected or re-elected for the coming year and plans laid for the seventh reunion.

Colorful Parade

The most colorful feature of the reunion was the parade on Sunday to the Station Street Cenotaph.

A brilliant October sun shone down on the trim red and green uniforms and plumed headdress of the Queen's Own Rifles Band of Toronto, the scarlet and blue of the Belleville Municipal Band, the grey and maroon of the Peterborough Civic Band, and the additional color of berets and medals of the veterans as the parade massed at the Bridge Street Armouries.

Headed by the Queen's Own Band the parade under Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound, swung from the armories to Bridge Street to Front to Station and the Cenotaph. Crowds of people lined the route of march as the 500 veterans again brought the tramp of marching feet to the city.

The Belleville and Peterborough bands caught up the tempo at intermittent periods.

Behind Col. Kennedy marched distinguished guests and ex-commanding officers of the regiment. Included were the Hon. Milton Gregg, V.C., Minister of Labor, special guest of the unit. Major General, Howard Graham, DSO, former commanding officer and now vice-chief of the general staff, Canadian army; Lieut. Col. D. C. Cameron, DSO, Camp Borden; Lieut. Col. Reg. Abraham MBE, Ottawa; Lieut. G. E. Renison, Toronto; Lieut. Col. W. Davern, Wellington, Ont.

Head-On Crash Injures Three Persons, One From Belleville

A head-on crash at Milltown this morning, east of Shannonville, put three people in hospital. One, Mrs. John Nagel, of Regina, Sask., is reported in critical condition.

The crash happened at the top of the hill on slippery pavement about 9.35 a.m. Robert Slavin, of Belleville, was driving east on No. 2 highway, and came into collision with the Nagel car which was moving west. Witnesses said that the accident happened so fast it was hard to tell just what had occurred.

Mr. Slavin is in Belleville General Hospital with cuts on his face, and a severe shaking-up. Nagel is believed to have a broken hip, is badly cut and bruised, and suffering from shock.

Both cars were extensively damaged, with the motors pushed back and steering wheels warped and twisted from the impact. Mrs. Gilbert Scott, who was in a car immediately following the Slavin vehicle, said that there was a bang, and steam flew in all directions. "I thought they were on fire for a minute," she said.

The Nagels were reported to be on their way to Scotland, Ontario, where they were to pick up his parents to take them back to Saskatchewan. Witnesses said that Nagel told them this was a somewhat deferred wedding trip, and that they had been down near Sherbrooke, P.Q. Nagel said that he and his wife had been married three years.

Three ambulances were required to take away the injured. Mrs. Scott, who was accompanied by five Albert College students, including her own son, said that her party phoned Bush's Ambulances as soon as it was apparent that there were severe injuries.

Nagel told Mrs. Scott that his brother Wesley lives at R.R. 2, Scotland Ontario, between Dundas, Ontario and Brantford.

In the Scott car were Bob Fleck, Oshawa, Larry Burk, and Bruce Vaughan, both of Talara, Peru; Pete Weggeman, Maracaibo, Venezuela, Dave Scott, Belleville, and Mrs. Scott. They were on their way to Kingston.

The impact was so heavy that after the cars met directly head-on, each car front was pushed southwards off the road. Oil was spilled on the pavement as pans were smashed.

Dr. A. E. Miles attended the injured at the scene before they were taken to hospital. O.P.P. Constable Ken Williamson investigated.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—Market leaders encountered moderate downward pressure as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The market slumped sharply at the opening on a flood of selling orders that accumulated over the long holiday weekend but losses were reduced slightly in mid-session.

Key industrials showed losses ranged from fractions to more than a point. Papers paced the decline. Constructions found strong support with Gypsum selling at a new high and utilities and steels also brightened.

Base Metals also sagged with losses about doubling gains. Ascot Corp., with property near Sherbrooke, Que., featured the list, trading heavily for a gain of 40 cents at $2.24 following news of financing plans. Golden Manitou, highlight last week, slumped sharply on heavy profit-taking and leaders of the group like Noranda, International Nickel and Hudson Bay showed losses up to $1.25.

Western oils started higher but followed the general trend in later dealings.

Junior gold producers weakened quietly while seniors held firm.

CANADIAN DOLLAR

New York, Oct. 10 — (CP) — the Canadian dollar was up ⅛ of a cent at a discount of 5⅜ per cent in terms of United States funds in mid-day foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was up 1/16 of a cent at $2.80 3/16.

Fire Department Inspects Public, Business Bldgs.

Twelve members of the Belleville Fire Department started out this morning on an inspection of city public and other buildings in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 8th to 14th. "Off" shift members of the force have volunteered to do the inspection of public and school buildings, allowing men on the regular shifts to be on duty at the fire halls.

"Every week should be fire prevention week," Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated today as he urged city residents to take every possible precaution at all times to prevent fires.

Parade Wednesday

Wednesday night at 7:30 city firemen will stage a parade starting from the Upper Bridge and traversing the length of Front Street. Fire equipment and floats will take part in the parade. If rain occurs the parade will be held on Thursday night.

On Thursday evening fire fighting demonstrations will be staged at the new fire hall, while movies on fire prevention will be shown to the public. All week "open house" will be held at the new fire hall with the general public being cordially invited to inspect the hall.

Further bringing attention to the observance of Fire Prevention Week a store window at Goodman's Men's Wear will be decorated for the balance of the week.

Theft of Boots Sequel in Court

Theft of a pair of boots from the beverage room of a local hotel had its sequel in city magistrate's court 'his morning when Wilfred Ferguson, R.R. 8, Belleville was remanded for sentence following a plea of guilty.

Les. Davidson, Station Street, complained to police that a pair of $14 boots had disappeared from beside his table. A check at a local swap shop turned up the boots, the store manager telling police that he had bought the boots for $3.

The names of a large number of persons charged under the LCA appeared on the morning's police court docket while a number of motorists charged with speeding paid fines and costs out of court.

MARMORA

Rider Injured When Motorbike Crashes Fence

Marmora, Ont. (Special.)—One motorcycle rider is in hospital and another badly shaken up following a crash one mile east of this village Monday night.

Jack H. Hendron is in Peterborough hospital is an unconscious condition and Ray Foster also of Peterborough, was sent home after examination had revealed no injuries.

Hendron was driving the bike and Foster riding pillion when the machine failed to negotiate the turn near the farm of Lorne Grey.

The bike careened across the road and crashed through a wooden fence. Hendron was hurled several feet following the impact. He was unconscious when picked up and at a late hour this morning had not recovered. It is believed he suffered severe head injuries.

Foster was found in a dazed condition, but otherwise suffered no injuries.

Hendron and Foster were driving to Cordova when the accident occurred.

Dr. D. Holdcroft of Havelock, attended the men when it was found a Marmora physician was unavailable. He immediately ordered Hendron to hospital.

O.P.P. Corporal Jack Hatch, Madoc, and Constable Percy Embury, Marmora, investigated the accident.

H. & P.E. Assoc. Elects Executive

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association at its annual meeting held in the Club Vanity Fair on Sunday placed the 1949 executive back in office "in toto".

Reassuming his presidential duties is Lieut. Angus Duffy. Past President is Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, D.S.O., of Owen Sound. Lieut.-Col. Max Porritt, M.C., commanding officer of the Second Battalion, is vice-president, and Capt. Bob Scott, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting, representative of the various branches of the association, unanimously decided that the 1950 reunion will be held in Picton. A motion that the function be held on a date other than the Thanksgiving weekend, was defeated by an amendment.

Fund Has $4,000

In his report, President Duffy stated that no one was eligible for the scholarship fund this year. The fund amounts to some $3,000 exclusive of the proceeds from the 1950 draw which, it was expected, would be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

The Assoro Club of Toronto and the Duffy Club of Peterborough, Lieut. Duffy pointed out, were "going concerns". He paid special tribute to these clubs for the splendid work they are doing along charitable lines.

He expressed his appreciation of the co-operation he had received during his 1949 term of office. He also expressed his gratitude to Capt. Bob Scott, Sgt. M. Rashotte and many others whose efforts had been no small factors in making the 1950 reunion the great success it was.

The executive will investigate the possibility of appointing an assistant secretary in each community where branches of the association exist.

Regimental History

Lieut.-Col. Reg. Abraham, speaking on the question of a regimental history, told the association that due to mounting costs the production of the history should be dropped unless some definite procedure was assured.

The history was of paramount importance to the regiment, a member said, in suggesting that association branches raise money this year to defray expenses.

On motion of Lieut.-Col. Abraham, Charles Broadbent was named chairman of a committee to secure a writer. He will report to the executive prior to making any commitments.

Genet Trophy Won by Ottawa Signals Regt.

The Genet trophy awarded annually by the Canadian Signals Association to the Reserve Force signals unit judged best in the country, has been won this year by Ottawa's 3rd Divisional Signals Regiment commanded by Lt.-Col. E. D. Baldock, M.B.E.

The trophy, a large silver tray with appropriate engraving, was presented to the winning unit by Brig. J. E. Genet, C.B.E., M.C., of Rossmore, honorary colonel commandant of the Corps.

In addition to the prized trophy, a total of $87 in prize money was distributed by Lt.-Col. Baldock on behalf of the Association to other ranks of the regiment. The Colonel himself scored heavily toward winning the trophy with his essay on the training of a Reserve Force Signals operator. Major C. Stroud, Captain M. L. Weber and Lieutenant Ray Brule also helped with prize-winning papers on signals tactics and organization.

Colonel Baldock and his men hope to hold the trophy indefinitely.

"If we're the best in the country now," he said, "there is no good reason why we won't be this time next year or for years to come."

Liquid Foam Used to Extinguish Gas Tank Fire

A flaming gasoline tank in a truck owned by J. E. Morgan, of Foxboro, caused city firemen a few anxious moments this morning before the blaze was extinguished.

The truck had been driven in Foley's Foundry on Front Street for some welding repairs and the driver of the truck for some reason had taken off the top of the gasoline tank and omitted to replace it. When the welding commenced the fumes ignited with result the flames spread into the tank.

Fortunately the tank failed to explode and the flames were extinguished with the use of liquid foam. Very little damage was caused to the truck, firemen stated.

Lifelong Tweed Residents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Lesage Happily Wed for 60 Years

Lifelong residents of Tweed and district, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell LeSage, of this village celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage here on Sunday, Oct. 8. Mr. LeSage is 85, while his bride of 60 years, the former Philemon Genore, is 86.

During childhood Mr. and Mrs. LeSage lived on adjoining farms at Clair River and practically grew up together. Following their marriage back in 1890 they bought their first farm for $1,500 at Otter Creek. Until that time Mr. LeSage had made his living selling fanning mills throughout the district and after buying his first farm still acted as salesman "to make ends meet".

They worked hard to pay for their farm and to improve it and then sold it for $4,000. But luck was an important factor, according to Mr. LeSage.

In 1910 they bought their second farm north of Tweed which they operated until 1925 when they moved into the village.

'Hard Scratching'

They recall the days of "hard scratching" on their first farm and the many jobs at which Mr. LeSage was employed around the turn of the century.

These included loading gravel for the C.P.R. around 1883 at $1.50 per day, without board, or driving logs on the Moira river for Gilmour and Rathbun at $15 per month.

Sunday the happy couple were "at home" to friends and relatives while Monday an anniversary dinner was enjoyed at St. Carthagh's Church hall by about 65 guests. Four generations of the LeSage family were present at the home on Sunday. They were Mr. and Mrs. LeSage, their son, Ernest, and his daughter, Mrs. Don Rashotte with her five-months-old son.

The couple have had eight children, two of whom are dead. Three of their sons, Wilfred, Felix and Ernest, live in Tweed and operate LeSage Bros. Motor Sales. Rev. Simon LeSage is parish priest at Chesterville, Ont. A daughter, Sister Mary Yvonne (Lily) is a nurse and Mother Superior at the Roman Catholic Hospital at Smiths Falls. Another daughter, Sister Mary Berna (Mary) is a teacher at Perth.

Opening of Duck-Hunting Season Best in Recent Years Most Nimrods Get Their Bags

The mouth-watering aroma of roasting wild duck was apparent in many a home over the holiday weekend.

Many a cellar and garage bore feathered evidence of the trophies of the chase on Saturday as hunters readied the weekend "specials."

For out in the creeks, marshes and wherever the ducks fly, the mallards, blacks and teals cooperated nearly one hundred per cent with the nimrods in their quest for the first wild duck repast of the season.

Consensus of hunters, and conservation officers is that the 1950 opening of the duck-hunting season was the best in years.

Several city hunters, out in their "hides" waiting for the dawn to crack, were home by breakfast time with their quota in the literal bag. Others were later, but they had little or no trouble in knocking down the "seven."

According to Game Overseer Fred MacDonald, the plenitude of ducks was general throughout the district. During his patrol he ran across several hunting parties and each had its quota within a reasonably short time.

And the boys behaved themselves. As far as Overseer MacDonald was concerned, the law was not even scratched, let alone broken.

Predictions of Overseer MacDonald and other conservation officers that the 1950 season would compare with the best in previous years were borne out in the success of the opening day's shoot.

An exceptionally good spring hatching and a minimum of poaching in the latter months are said to be the chief contributing factors to the presence of large numbers of ducks.

FIRE PREVENTION AND SAFETY

Every effort is being made to draw attention of all people to the fact that this is Fire Prevention Week. In the program which has been prepared to place stress on the danger of fire at the opening of the autumn when fires are being lighted after the summer's recess, every angle of prevention will be presented before the people so that no one can miss being impressed with the duty of safeguarding homes and stores and plants from risk of destruction by fire and of protecting lives.

There will be fire drills in the schools, movies will be shown on fire prevention. Competitions for the children will appeal to the keen minds of the younger population, and their interest will have its influence upon every household and upon family heads. Public buildings will be inspected along with various plants in the community.

Too much attention cannot be paid for a fire carelessly caused can do an immense amount of material damage, bring heavy financial loss to the owners and the nation and cause risk to or loss of human life.

One of the lessons to learn in this age is to prevent destruction of wealth and human life by that enemy — uncontrolled fire. The toll in life and property, which means a heavy national loss, is something which must be prevented by all means. Fire departments like that at Belleville, have been modernized with the latest equipment for fighting fires and firemen well trained to their duties.

It is a good sign to see the fire department stressing the importance of the public being familiar with the fire-fighting equipment which the corporation now possesses. This knowledge and familiarity can well be a means of intensifying human effort to avoid the risks of fire and remove or correct any factors which can lead to destruction if fire should get started and flames leap beyond control.

Thoroughly trained firemen and modern equipment of the besa calibre do a service in this respect which cannot be overestimated. The avoidance of one fire is worth a great deal to safety and for ease of mind.

We are living in a day that is conscious of the dangers of fire, for destructible property has a far greater value than it has ever had before in history. There is new equipment to combat fire.

Let every citizen do his best to remove every hazard, so that there may be no possible cause of fire. The protection which is effective is the wholesale co-operation of the entire public towards this one ideal. When it is remembered that last year there were many deaths from fire and many persons injured by this means in Canada, the great value of united and co-operative effort is self-evident.

A TALE OF HORROR

Mass murders so great in number that the civilized mind staggers in contemplation of the depravity which could bring such horrors to pass have been reported in the wake of the retreat of the communist North Koreans beyond the 38th Parallel. Twenty-five thousand persons, South Korean men, women and children, brutally slain, have been found unburied or buried along the line of retreat of the red forces of the North Koreans.

Where possible the northern enemy tried to hide the evidence of mass slaughters of innocent people. But graves have been opened by the South Koreans to learn the extent of the horrors which the baffled communists of the north committed. Horrible brutalities were revealed.

But search and computation will never be able to tabulate the full number of the butchered. Yet enough and far too many evidences of mass-murder have been found.

Communist North Koreans have a charge to answer before the bar of humanity. Their aim is to demoralize the free people. By their works they are now known.

Such evidence of wanton slaughter done in the name of the barbarism which is communism must steel the hearts of the free world that such depravity may be abolished from the earth.

"COUPLETS" RELIEVE TRAFFIC

Another method that helps to overcome traffic congestion in some large cities is a wider application of the one-way street system which the American Municipal Association reports that proved successful in reducing accidents and making for a freer flow of motor vehicles.

The plan is known as one-way street couplets and its chief purpose is to east through highway traffic as it enters an urban zone. Where it can be established in its simplest form, the couplet is comprised of two parallel one-way streets lying a block apart and running across the town.

This through highway traffic is thus split into two opposite streams as it enters a civic area. When the town limits are reached the two one-way channels again converge on the original trunk highway. Officials of those centres where the system has been tried say that such couplets certainly do facilitate the flow of through traffic and tend largely to prevent mid-town congestion. —Hamilton Spectator.

THE GOLFING BARBER

The Barber of Bad Axe had woe on his face.
"All summer," said he, "I've been painting the place.
I've played little golf. Almost none," he complained.
"On the few afternoons that I had off it rained.
I'm shaking approaches and hooking my drive."
But he shot the first nine in a neat thirty-five.

Last year it was dandruff that ruined his game.
This year from a paint brush his poor putting came.
Fresh coating the window sills gives to the wrist
Of a golfer a most unreliable twist.
But the Barber of Bad Axe, in spite of his woes,
The second nine finished with thirty-eight blows.

For twenty-five years, it is truth that I tell,
The Barber of Bad Axe has never been well,
Through all the diseases his ailments have run,
Yet his health has improved once a game was begun.
And though painter's colic his eyesight had dimmed
By the Barber of Bad Axe again I was trimmed.

Blame Terrorists For Bombing Of Labor Temple

Toronto, Oct. 10. (CP)— A Ukrainian organization whose Labor Temple was damaged Sunday night by a crude bomb charged Monday that "Fascist terrorists" were responsible.

Police reported no development in their investigation of the blast, which injured 10 of the 900-odd persons in the building on West-Central Bathurst street.

But Peter Prokop, National secretary of the Association of United Ukrainians, told reporters the "Terrorists" are a group of displaced persons. Most of them fought for the Germans in the Halychyna S.S. division during the Second World War, he said.

"We know who these people are," he added, "but we can't put our fingers on the ones who are responsible right away."

Damage to the Labor Temple, which was seized by the custodian of alien properties during the war because of alleged connection with the communist party, was estimated at $10,000. None of the injured was in serious condition.

The building, returned to its owners, the Ukrainian Farmer Labor Association in 1945, was jammed with dancers and with persons watching a concert. A homemade gunpowder bomb, filled with six-inch railway spikes, smashed windows and scattered glass on the crowd.

Detective Sgt. Daniel Mann of Toronto's anti-subversive squad said examination of the blast scene showed the bomb apparently was set, not thrown. His men found a fuse more than a foot long. The R.C.M.P. also is investigating.

Prokop identified the "Terrorists" as a group of Displaced Persons closely linked with the League of Liberation of the Ukraine, which is active in Europe. Most were extreme Nationalists, he said, who lived in Polish Galicia before the war and who enlisted in the German army when told the Ukraine could be "liberated", he said.

Began Railway Link With Ungava

Quebec, Oct. 10 (CP)—Premier Duplessis announced at a press conference yesterday that work on the 360-mile railway linking Sept Isles, on the St. Lawrence River north shore, and the Ungava and Labrador iron-ore deposits started Oct. 4.

The rail line, which will cost about $100,000,000 will bring ore from Ungava to a harbor to be constructed at Sept Isles. From there it will be shipped to Sorel, 50 miles below Montreal, for processing.

The premier said the cost will be borne entirely by the "company concerned with the exploitation of the ore deposits."

"Formerly," the premier said, "the government always granted subsidies for such projects. Under the union nationale government, there has not been a cent given in subsidies."

For 120 miles, construction of the railway will be "comparable to certain phases of the work in the Rockies when a rail line was built there," Mr. Duplessis said.

The whole development and rail-line construction will provide work for thousands during the next four years.

The premier also said that start of the session of the Quebec legislature Nov. 8, as announced Wednesday, is "not a special session." It was the "regular session starting earlier than usual."

Mr. Duplessis said Wednesday that the Quebec legislature had been called to adopt "special legislation" designed to speed reconstruction in fire-ravaged Rimouski and Cabano.

The session will be adjourned until next year to allow delegates from Quebec to attend the federal provincial constitutional conference at Ottawa in December.

The premier said there was "nothing extraordinary" in calling a session at this time.

Mackenzie's Column:

Crucial Moment In The Life of United Nations

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This is a crucial moment in the life of the United Nations—one that can make it or render it impotent in the matter of maintaining peace.

That now is the significance of the United States proposals before the General Assembly political committee. This program is designed to give the assembly emergency powers to combat aggression.

Specifically it provides, among other things, the creation of stand-by U. N. military forces. These would enable the peace organization to apply sanctions to aggression and back them up.

In short, the U. N. is discussing whether it shall face up to the obligations for which it was created or adopt the role of an international debating society — noisy but ineffective.

But, someone demands, hasn't the U. N. just applied sanctions effectively in the case of Korea?

Yes, and John Foster Dulles, Republic adviser to State Secretary Dean Acheson, called attention to this in presenting the American program before the political committee.

Dulles declared that the U. N. collective action in the Korean crisis was the pattern for action by the peace organization in the future. However, he said that only a series of accidents made success possible.

Russia Favors Some Points

These accidents included Russia's boycott of the Security Council in June and her consequent inability to veto the Korean project, the presence of American troops on occupation duty in Japan, and reports from the U. N. commission on Korea.

So the American program is devised to make sure that in future the U. N. won't be dependent on a series of accidents to halt aggression.

Yesterday's U. N. session produced a surprising and highly interesting development. Dulles left the door open for support of the plan by Russia, which previously had been antagonistic. The American representative made the telling argument that if the Soviet representatives believe, as they profess, that the U. S. has aggressive intentions, "then they will want the protection that these proposals will afford."

After Dulles finished his presentation Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, told the committee that Russia favors some points in the American program.

The foreign minister didn't amplify this statement, which created both surprise and puzzlement. Some wondered whether the Soviet Union was making a virtue of necessity, inasmuch as the veto can't be used in the assembly proceedings to block any measure.

This American program, which means so much to the effectiveness of the U. N. also is sponsored by Canada, Britain, France the Philippines, Turkey and Uruguay—a strong and representative backing.

JES' PLAIN FOLKS

Today, once and for all, I'd like to give the lie to the libel that Hollywood folks are a breed apart —that they're exhibitionists who specialize in double-dealing and double-living. As I know them, and I know them plenty well, they just happen to be slightly more photogenic versions of your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda — ordinary citizens who work hard, send their kids to Sunday School and get misty-eyed when they see the Red, White and Blue spanking in the breeze.

What's that? The gent in the checked vest wants proof? Okay, but since the principals in the tale coming up are modest people I'll have to alias up their names.

A few years ago Moira Gaye, one of the most publicized patooties in filmdom, divorced Hubby No. 4, a scenario writer, and married Hubby No. 5, a set designer. These multiple marriages, I hasten to add, do not mean that Moira was promiscuous; they only go to show that, if it's love that makes the world go round, the star had such an overdose of this commodity that she went around a bit faster than most.

Toward the end of the war, as you may remember, a lot of writers and directors with Hungarian and Czech names were showing up in Hollywood, and because of their aristocratic backgrounds and accents most of them were received with open arms and salons. One in particular, a Czech director I'll call Matchek, was welcomed with particularly open arms by Moira who was so smitten that she decided to make him Hubby No. 6.

Moira, like any Main Street hausfrau, was naturally anxious for her prospective husband to be a bang-up success, and so she set out to sell him to the executives of her studio. "Matchek's a great director," she told them, "and it so happens he owns the rights to a story that would be perfect for me. Why don't you buy it for my next picture? There's only one condition — Matchek must direct."

The studio heads knew what Moira didn't — that she was no longer the box office attraction she was quacked up to be, but they also knew that if she were properly handled her past glories might carry her along for another picture or two. And so, out of loyalty to an old money maker — and touched by her devotion to her next husband — they agreed to buy both Matchek and his story.

A couple of days after the film went into production, the refugee dropped in to see the studio boss.

"As you know," he said, "I love dear Moira very much, but there's one thing I love even more —my integrity as an artist. And when I make a picture I permit nothing—not even love— to stand in the way. Therefore, in all honesty, I got to tell you that in this particular picture dear Moira stinks and I think you ought to replace her with —". And here the incorruptible one named an up-an-coming actress who had recently been signed by the studio.

"I'll see what I can do," said the understanding bossman.

The rest is quickly told. Moira was kicked out of the role and simultaneously out of Matchek's life, and the director, specializing in sentimental films about home life, went on to become one of the wonder boys of Hollywood.

As for Moira, I see her occasionally in one of the more shadowy midtown spots in Manhattan. As a rule, she's nursing a Martini, and, if the scuttlebutt is to be believed, still carries a torch for the Czech who was to have been Hubby No. 6.

And that's all there is to this just-folksy tale about a boy and girl in the land of the gold cocoanuts — dead ringers, I'm sure you'll agree, for your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A new style of sky-writing is now to be seen over the cities of this continent. Instead of a single aircraft trailing a fragile plume of handscript across the skies, seven aircraft, magnificently drilled, march with loud precision across the sky, printing words with all the perfection and speed of the teletype.

The seven of them, as though glued together on a rod, march abreast. And on some signal system of timing that is sheer science, each plane emits a jet of vivid white smoke. These jets combine to make immense letters of perfect form. You see the message written on the sky with all the clarity and celerity with which magnified teletype bulletins speed along the roof-edge of The Times building in Times Square, N.Y.

In fact, it is awful. The last realm of freedom, the wide, serene sky, has been pinched from us. First, they blocked off the horizon around us with sign boards. Then they pre-empted the very air about us with loud speakers. It has grown steadily more difficult to escape somebody's message. We have been messaged to the point of distraction. Now overhead, they put the lid on us. We are, with a vengeance, a captive audience.

The new sky-teletype should have its uses. For example, a conqueror could use it for broadcasting orders to a subject people. In war, a general could speak to his troops in battle with tremendous effect. It is too bad we did not have these precision sky-writers after we got air supremacy in Normandy in the late war. We could have spent all day chatting with the Germans about this and that.

But the sky, in a sense, is each man's private property. It is to the sky the human gaze turns for escape when the earth gets too tough. Heaven has always been supposed to be up there. Maybe too bold a seizure of the sky for advertising purposes might convey a sense of trespass.

STOMACH ULCERS

"Sakes alive," you probably will be saying to yourself, "What's this fellow doing now — running a column on how to be healthy?" Yes, as a matter of fact, he is; not the kind of a health column which physicians can write with the authority of their profession behind them, but some advice from a parson on how to avoid certain physical ailments which come from mental and spiritual disturbances.

Someone has said that you don't get stomach ulcers from what you eat, but from what's eating you. The cause of stomach ulcers is well known — tension, anxiety, frustration, and all varieties of irregular habits of living. Surgery doesn't do much good unless at the same time one changes his way of thinking and his way of living. It's what eating at you that causes the trouble.

This is true not only of stomach ulcers but of many other ailments. How much disease is caused by hate, jealousy, and unhallowed desires only God Himself knows. But there are probably as many physical ailments arising from these causes as from germs. At least we know that one-half of our hospital beds are occupied by mental patients in varying states of nervous collapse.

Doctors can give us advice about diet but only we ourselves can handle the things that are eating at us. That is, we ourselves — by the grace of God.

Driving 40 Years Man Wins Contest

Johannesburg (CP) — The older folks can still teach the youngsters a thing or two.

A challenge driving test between 58-year-old, six-foot S. H. Morris and tiny, 19-year-old Sybil Gutchen finally settled an issue that had considerable space in local newspapers.

Followed by cameramen and reporters, and watched by official driving examiners, Mr. Morris began his test by knocking over the portable markers. He went on, however, to amass a total of 322 points.

Sybil negotiated the markers, but collected only 262 points.

His 40 years of driving gave Morris only a small margin in the road test, but he talked himself to victory in the oral test, where he piled up an extra 41-point lead.

Sybil says: "I didn't know they would ask me about skids, burst tires and things. Mr. Morris is very good, but I still think that lots of older drivers would fail the modern driving test."

TO MAKE IT BETTER KNOWN

A patient expressing his gratitude for the result he obtained from the ambulant or injection treatment of hemorrhoids deplored the fact that reading about it in this column was the first time he had occasion to know that such a treatment existed.

He wanted to know why, if the treatment was as successful in most cases as it was in his, the treatment was not better known and why doctors never mentioned it to him. He stated that he had suffered from hemorrhoids for many years and had been examined by several doctors all of whom suggested an operation and none of whom mentioned that any alternative existed.

The patient's experience was that a few office treatments requiring but a few minutes and occasioning no pain whatever, completely relieved him of an annoying condition he had put up with for years. Had he known of the ambulant or injection treatment, he could have saved himself years of misery. He thinks that the treatment should be publicized much more than it is.

I agree with him. For years I have been trying to call this treatment to the public's attention. For the benefit of those who "never heard of it," once again I will describe this procedure to the extent that space here permits. More information may be had from the leaflet titled "It is Stupid To Suffer From Piles," which you may have by requesting it by name and accompanying your request with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The word "ambulant" is applied to this treatment for the reason that the patient remains ambulatory—able to walk about—at all times. He walks in for the treatment and afterward walks out and attends to his usual business. The treatment is accomplished by the hypodermic injection of drugs into the area of the hemorrhoids. This procedure employs instruments specifically designed for the purpose. The injection itself is not only painless, but when skillfully administered, the patient is not aware of the fact that the needle has been inserted into the tissues. Afterward, occasionally a mild sensation of pressure may be present for a few minutes, but usually not even this is noticed.

The treatment is designed for "internal" hemorrhoids. It is not designed for anything else. Briefly stated, the difference between "internal" and "external" hemorrhoids, is one of position. Internal hemorrhoids lie higher up in the rectum whereas external hemorrhoids lie immediately adjacent to the rectal opening—in some instances even extending outside the rectal opening. However, not everything that extends or projects outside the rectal opening is a hemorrhoid. "Skin tags",—folds of skin which develop following the clotting of blood in veins close to the rectal opening (thromboses) or which result from other disturbances within the opening, are frequently mistaken for "hemorrhoids."

Most hemorrhoids which bleed, or which prolapse (protrude) through the rectal opening, are "internal" and as such can be adequately handled by the ambulant treatment. Usually all bleeding ceases after a few office treatments. However, not all internal hemorrhoids bleed nor do they prolapse. But they may give rise to a variety of symptoms—such even as the symptoms of peptic (so-called "stomach") ulcer, to say nothing of such symptoms as difficult evacuation, backache and varied nervous symptoms.

The ambulant treatment keeps one out of the hospital. It does not interfere with one's business. It is a standard and ethically accepted procedure with the same scope and limitations of other comparable procedures. It is not designed as a "cure-all," but rather for a single specific purpose. Fortunately, most cases of hemorrhoids fall within the scope of the treatment.

Like any other comparable procedure, the treatment is no better than the "man behind the gun." In the hands of a physician experienced and skillful in the procedure, it is a boon to mankind. There seems to be a tendency on the part of surgeons to adopt a single surgical procedure which proves to be satisfactory and to cling to this procedure until they become expert at it, rather than to shift from one procedure to another. This, I believe, is the chief reason why many surgeons who employ the usual surgical operation for hemorrhoids fail to mention to the patient the alternative treatment.

Lemon Juice Myth

Will drinking the juice of one lemon before each meal have any harmful effect on an adult? (Mrs. W. R.)

Answer—Not if she is careful to keep it off her teeth.

Hair Growers

Has it been proven that oils, such as liquid albolene, used on the skin of the face, cause hair to grow? (Miss P. H.)

Answer—No.

The Doctor Hopes

I have developed arthritis. A year ago the doctors made X-ray films and found I have gallstones. Now the doctor says that if I have an operation for gallstones my arthritis will disappear. (Mrs. N. L.)

Answer—He hopes it will. Of course no doctor can assure you of such a result.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEWSPAPERBOY DAY

This is the day in which arrangements have been made to honor the boys who sell newspapers upon the street, or who deliver them to homes. The cry on the streets of the big cities by newsboys is now mostly confined to a past era because of so many innovations for the distribution of news, but still thousands of boys earn their way up in life by it.

Half of all my expenses in college were earned by selling and delivering newspapers upon the streets of a Kansas town, and it is a thrilling memory. Many of our great men of today were once newsboys, including Governors, legislators and business men.

"Extra, mister?" is a past memory, but a pleasant one. I know many publishers and owners of great newspapers who once sold their papers upon the streets of their cities, and their telling of it is always accompanied with pride and satisfaction. Many and many a boy has stepped upon the first rung of the ladder of success through the sale of newspapers. Thousands of them are at it today.

One of the thrills of my early life was rushing down the streets of Ottawa, Kansas, with a great armful of newspapers telling of the sinking of the Spanish fleet at Manilla Bay by Commodore Dewey, later known and loved as Admiral Dewey. What a changed world that news created.

Before millions are awake in the morning, there is a newspaper at the door of each, and at evening, as well, in many cities; but the newsboy has gone his way—many times to his schoolroom. A cheery note on pay day, or an extra boost of encouragement would give him double joy in his work. Keep that in mind.

The newspaperboy invests nothing but himself when he takes the job of being the link between the newspaper and the reader. He volunteers and goes to work. It's his initiation in taking advantage of our free way of life and taking upon himself the responsibility that leads to good and useful citizenship. Newspaperboy, we salute you!

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

Paris, France.

We have had two days of sightseeing in this wonder city, Paris, the gay and light-hearted, the mecca for tourists seeking new diversions and new interests. We reached our hotel by nine Wednesday evening in time to take a first walk down one of its perfect streets and to rub shoulders with people of every nationality gathered from the four corners of the earth and out to see the night life of the city. The streets are crowded, more so than the main streets of our cities at mid-day. Nearly every other place is a restaurant or a cafe, all with sidewalk tables even if it is just four or five in number, with white-coated waiters scurrying to and fro in attempting to meet the wishes of a demanding public. There is no sign here of dignified service we met everywhere in the Scandinavian countries where waiters were always in formal attire and where they take an apprenticeship in the art of serving the public. The Parisian waiter is just too busy to be dignified or especially courteous; he must get dreadfully tired of the endless procession of people day after day who pass through his hands. As you walk along this busy Paris street, you realize that the whole city lives and thrives on tourist trade and is geared to meet the demands of the travelling public.

We have had two wonderful days of sight seeing in the city of Paris and its environs. I would like to take you with me everywhere, but it is impossible, we would get hopelessly lost, figuratively speaking in the maze of historic lore I have been soaking up these two days. I can only tell you the highlights of our trip hoping that I also give you enough detail that some day you will want to see it all for yourself—this city of bright lights and pleasure and at the same time a treasure-house of art and history.

We visited the Place de Concord—the city square of Paris reputed to be the finest in the world, where the guillotine was erected at the time of the French Revolution by the mob who demanded the heads of royalty and of the nobility. To carry this gruesome, but historic, record further, later in the day we visited the council chamber in the magnificent Palais de Justice (law courts) where the mock trials of these victims were held. We saw the narrow staircase, opening into the judgment chambers from the cells below, up which the victims climbed to hear their death sentence, and the small door opening into the cobblestoned courtyard from which they took their final ride in rough, two-wheeled carts—3,000 in all.

We saw the Arc de Triomphe, the glorious memorial France erected to her million and a half dead in the First World War. We drove slowly along the Rue de Paix—the costliest street in Paris, and saw these well-known names—Ciro's, famed for perfume, Cartier, the house of jewels, Paquin, renowned clothes designer—then into the Rue de Honore, which our guide assures us is a good shopping centre, not so expensive as the Rue de Paix, and I made a mental note that I might venture here to see what Paris had to offer. All through the city are beautiful statues standing dignified and lovely in ornamental squares, honoring France's great men of history, art and government. Joan of Arc is lovingly honored with their one bronze statue. It had just recently been reguilded and shone as brightly and untarnished as her love of country many years ago. We passed the central markets of Paris and saw the trading and activity that goes with feeding a great population.

We had an hour in the Louvre-the art centre of Paris, covering an area of 40 acres and housing priceless and countless treasures—you need two days to do the Louvre properly. I felt ashamed that we had to literally gallop through, it seemed like sacrilege for it houses the originals of objects of art we've admired all our lives. Mona Lisa, the famous work of Leonardo de Vinci looks down at us with her intriguing but controversial smile. Corridor after corridor contain the originals of the Dutch, Italian and French painters, and you long for time to study and appraise their perfection and beauty. The statue of Winged Victory stands at the top of a flight of stairs and if you come to the side to admire the statue you see the wonderful sweep of her skirts of stone blowing in the wind. The Venus de Milo, probably the most renowned statue in the world, stands at the end of a long corridor and you marvel at the perfection and grace of a figure carved from stone.

We go on to visit Notre Dame Cathedral, an outstanding example of the beauty of Gothic architecture. The nave of the church is 100 feet high and can hold 9,000 people. It is the spiritual centre of Paris, where history, soul and faith of a nation summed up. It's noted for its organ of 6,000 pipes, its 3 beautiful rose windows dating from the 11th and 13th centuries and its flying buttresses, an unusual method of support, making room for 27 small chapels along the sides of the cathedral. We stop to admire the Palais de Chaillot the music centre of Paris where classical concerts of Paris are held and near it is a small cemetery where famed musicians are buried, among them Debussy. From here you look down magnificent terraces and gardens to a central fountain and on to the famous Eiffel Tower. This place was built for the exhibition of 1937, and in 1947 United Nations met here for their deliberations.

The Eiffel Tower, a vast framework of metal rises 1,000 feet into the air. It was built as the principal attraction for the Great Exhibition of 1888, and is considered a masterpiece of steel construction. A visit to the highest national point in Paris to church of the Mons Martyre, where the best view of the city is obtained completed the day's tours. I neglected to add two beauty spots of the city, the Luxembourg gardens and the formal gardens of the Tuilleries near the central square, Place de Concord are full of charm and containing gracious memories of Napoleon and Josephine and their happy life here together—while he was ascending to power and was content with this less imposing structure. It is filled with festive relics of his day, many of them being used by Napoleon and his family. Here you saw his days of triumph, but also his downfall—one room is fitted up like his cell at St. Helena and contains the simple articles he lived with until his death.

We had several hours in the famous palace of Versailles, with probably the most renowned formal gardens in the world—all conceived by Louis XIV in honor of his wife, Josephine.

The next day one tour took us outside Paris to the palace of Malmaison, a smaller residence, his queen. This Palace was used by the French monarchy until the revolution, then transformed into a museum and contains wonderful and priceless objects of art, used in the day of pomp and pageantry and the historic value of its Gobelin tapestries and rugs, paintings, gold plate, fine furniture, statues, etc., is incalculable. The gardens of Versailles are so beautiful they defy description.

Couple Receives Cold Dunking In Freak Crash

Campbellford, Oct. 10 —James Lowry, age 72 of Lawrence St., Trenton, and a companion, Nellie Cavell, age 62, also of Trenton, received a cold dunking in the waters of a creek about two miles north of Warkworth on the Warkworth-Hastings road on Friday evening, following a freak accident.
